North Dakota Senator Says Roosevelt Policies Must Continue.

Opponents of the President Working for Their Repudiation.

Declares There Must be Readjustment of Tariff Schedules.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Hansbrough arrived from Washington Saturday evening to remain a few days looking over the political situation. He will be in his seat when congress convenes again next Monday. The senator had some throat trouble which kept him in his apartments at the capital for several days, and it was reported that he was seriously ill, but his presence here in North Dakota, looking quite well and feeling very hopeful in regard to his campaign, would seem to indicate that the report concerning his health was erroneous.

When asked for his views relative to national politics, the senator replied: "The suggestion that the national convention after a hot fight or two balloting for the candidates whose names will be presented, will turn spontaneously and earnestly to Roosevelt, is worthy of serious consideration. I have all along maintained that in such an emergency Roosevelt would sink his personal desire to go into private life and accept the nomination. This is almost sure to happen if there is any probability of an attempt to elect a candidate representing reactionary policies.

Inspired Talk.

"It is quite certin that the convention will insist upon not only the right kind of a candidate to insure party success, but also upon a strong platform declaration in favor of progressive Republicanism. An organized effort is being made to have the convention repudiate the policies so persistently insisted upon by the president. We have already heard a good deal about inspired talk in certain quarters about 'conservative action' and a 'restoration of confidence.' If there has been any loss of confidence it has come about in consequence of too much of that brand of conservatism advocated by the special interests. Observing people must have noted the frequency with which these 'conservative' admonitions have been repeated, coming chiefly from corporation sources from orators of the corporation counsel school. It might be well to inquire with some care into the

SENATOR HANSBROUGH

BETTING IS TWO TO ONE

San Francisco, Jan. 1.—Betting on the fighters who will meet in the arena at Colma, at 2:15 this afternoon, to decide the featherweight championship, went last night to 2 to 1 in favor of Abe Attell, as against Owen Moran. When betting first opened, odds were placed at 10 to 8, and it was not thought that the price would drop lower than 10 to 7. Then came the switch to 10 to 6, and later to 2 to 1.

James Jeffries, who will referee the fight, has visited both the fighters, and has had a thorough understanding with them as to the style of fisticuffs they will observe while clinching and breaking.

Yesterday he spent a couple of hours with Attell, and went over the same ground as was covered during his trip to Moran's on Monday. Attell promised that he would not hold, and that he would break clean when ordered to do so. Moran has made a promise to the same effect.

According to the latest reports, both the boys have come in nicely at the weight, and each says he has nothing to desire in the matter of conditioning. Neither of the boys did any work yesterday. Both lounged about the training quarters during the day. Early today Moran will go out to Colma and occupy a cottage near the arena. Attell's quarters are in the same neighborhood, close to the arena, where the boys will weigh in before the noon hour today. Both are confident of their ability to win out.

PREFERS DEATH TO BEING SICK

Ishpeming, Mich., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—N. A. Carlson, a pioneer resident of this county, committed suicide Sunday at his home on Wabash street. He had been in poor health for a long time, suffering from cancer, and was particularly despondent last week. Carlson had been dead some time before his wife found him hanging from a rope in the clothes closet.

The deceased was fairly well known in the city. For a number of years before locating here he lived on a farm at Greenwood, where one son is now located. Three other sons live in the West. The time of the funeral will be decided on today.

ENGLISH FOOTBALLISTS

Will Make Another Visit to the United States This Spring.

New York, Jan. 1.—Negotiations entered into between A. A. Parker of London, manager of the team of English football players, styled the Corinthians, who visited this country last year, and Harry Manley, president of the New York State Association Football league, will assume another visit from an English eleven this spring. Parker, who has sailed for London, informed Mr. Manley that he would bring over the civil service team of London, an organization of first-class amateurs, which leads in the series of the southern league in England. The Englishmen are due here about the middle of April and will play two matches in Canada, two in Philadelphia and two in this city.

As chairman of the football section of the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis club, Mr. Manley will arrange to have the two matches in New York played on the grounds at Livingston, Staten Island.

SAFEGUARDS FOR PEOPLE

Regarding Banking Urged by Governor Hughes in Message.

Trust Companies Should Have Some Restrictions as Banks.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 1.—The annual message of Governor Hughes which was sent to the legislature today contains many important recommendations. Chief among these, in the light of certain conditions disclosed by the recent financial upheaval, is a recommendation regarding the amendment of the law relating to banks and trust companies. In bringing this matter to the attention of the legislature, the governor urges them to adopt every practicable means "to prevent the repetition of reprehensible practices and to assure the proper management of the financial institutions chartered and supervised by the state, on whose stability and prosperity the interests of our people in every walk of life so largely depend."

Another important recommendation has as its object the complete suppression of race-track gambling throughout the state.

Direct nominations at primaries and a simplified form of ballot are urged in the message, and recommendations also are made for better provision for the care and protection of emigrants. With reference to the banking laws the message says:

Banking Laws.

"Recent events have demonstrated the necessity for providing effective means for preventing the exploitation of banks and trust companies, and the acquisition and use of a control of a number of institutions to facilitate selfish schemes opposed to sound banking. If suitable restrictions are imposed in explicit form and with appropriate penalties, ensuring adequate knowledge and proper action on the part of the board of directors with regard to loans and other transactions; preventing the deposits of moneys of one institution with another in order that the officers, directors, or stockholders of the former may obtain desired credits from the latter; limiting the amount which may be loaned by any bank or trust company on the stock of another financial institution; reducing the amount which may be loaned on collateral to any one interest; and erecting proper safeguards against loans and investments in all of schemes of promotion represented by unmarketable securities, and if in addition, suitable means are provided for the enforcement of the rulings of the superintendent of banks with regard to improper or unsafe practices, the security of our financial institutions and the confidence which springs from just reliance on their proper management, will greatly be strengthened.

Reserves Should Be Maintained.

"It is apparent that existence of demand obligations requires reserves to be maintained and that they have the salutary tendency to prevent an undue expansion on credits. With regard to trust companies, however, the matter of reserves is a phase of larger question. It

FEMALE CASHIER

Charged With Embezzlement and Arrested in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.) — Miss Augusta Fahrm, aged 28 years, cashier of the A. E. Johnson Steamship agency, 100 Washington avenue south, was arrested, late yesterday afternoon, and locked up in the city jail on a charge of embezzling about $5,000 of the company's funds. Miss Fahrm, through her attorney, denies the charge and says the shortage in her accounts discovered by expert accountants was the result of an error in bookkeeping. She claims she can prove her innocence if given an opportunity.

She was arrested immediately after her return from Omaha, where she had been visiting her parents.

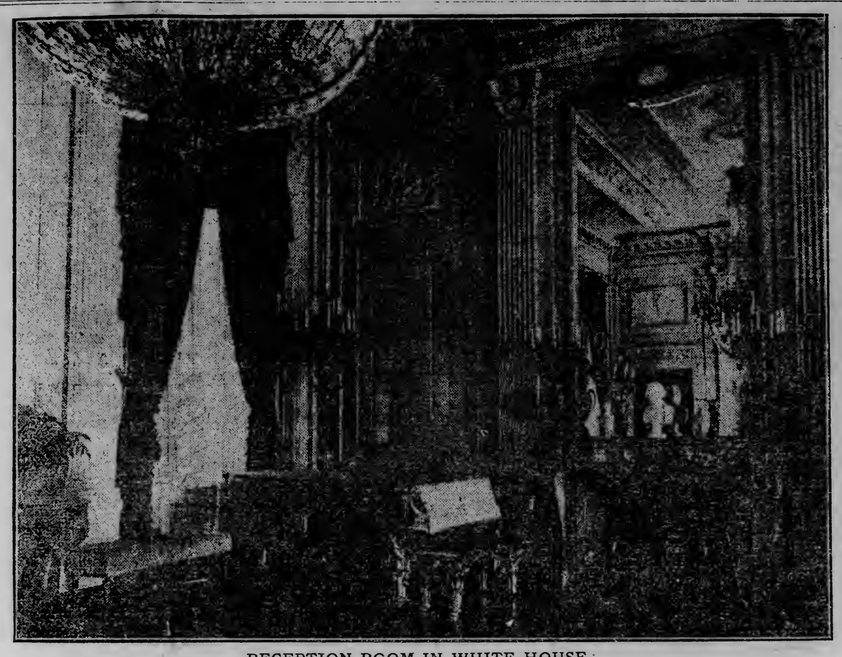
COLD IN WISCONSIN AND SOUTHERN MINNESOTA.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 1.—Today brought the coldest weather of the winter thus far in the Northwest. At Wisconsin and Southern Minnesota points the first zero weather of the season was experienced. At 8 o'clock the temperature at La Crosse was zero, at Duluth 2 below, at Williston, N. D., 12 below and at Winnipeg 8 below.

TAFT WILL ATTEND.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 1.—Secretary William H. Taft has written the Hartford-Yale Alumni association to the effect that if nothing prevents, he will come here as the guest of that body on Feb. 7.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES THE PUBLIC AT WHITE HOUSE FOR SEVENTH TIME



RECEPTION ROOM IN WHITE HOUSE.
The President and Mrs. Roosevelt Received Thousands of Visitors New Year's Day.

New Year's Reception a Most Successful and Gorgeous Event.

Ambassadors and Officials the First to be Received.

General Public Follows in Solid Lines of Great Length.

Washington, Jan. 1—Theodore Roosevelt today officiated for the seventh time as president of the United States at the New Year's reception at the White House. Assisting him in exchanging the salutations of the season were Mrs. Roosevelt and the members and ladies of the cabinet.

The niceties of diplomatic etiquette were religiously observed in the conduct of that part of the reception, which has grown during the past hundred years and more to partake largely of the nature of an official function. In this way, but without appearance of prearrangement, the president greeted, first, the vice president and the members of his cabinet, then each foreign nation represented in the person of ambassador or minister; the judiciary, through the personnel of the supreme court bench, and the judges of the local, federal and district courts; senators and representatives in congress; officers of the army, navy, marine corps and militia of the District of Columbia, heads of government bureaus and members of government commissions; organizations of veterans, including the Society of the Cincinnati, Aztec club, 1874, Associated Veterans of the War of 1846-47; military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, Grand Army of the Republic, Medal of Honor Legion, Union Veteran Legion, Union Veterans union, Society of the Army of Santiago, Spanish war veterans, Army and Navy union, minute men, Sons of the American Revolution, and Oldest Inhabitants association of the District of Columbia.

The Public Received.

And then the public, gathering in a constantly lengthening line at the west gate to the White House grounds. The people had stood since 9 o'clock in the morning. It was 1 o'clock when the gates were opened to admit them. The line kept intact by a special detail of police, now extended in double column for two blocks up Pennsylvania avenue, and for two blocks down Seventeenth street, past the state, war and navy building. It was a joyous holiday throng, and left its impress of good feeling on the president, who, after more than four hours of handshaking, expressed exhilaration rather than exhaustion.

Impressive in its dignity, interesting in its personality, animating in its picturesqueness, the reception was a composite view of the twentieth century civilization on dress parade. To review it in its entirety requires a look at the preliminaries. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt occupied the hour preceding the stroke of eleven in receiving and entertaining the members of the cabinet, and those especially invited to membership in the receiving party, in the library on the upper floor. Diplomats, judges, legislators and army officers gathered in conversational groups in the state dining room. The red coated marine band, on either side the entrance in the lofty lobby, with its white marble floor, furnished the stage setting for the receiving party. The red, blue and green parlors, forming connecting links between the state dining room on the west and the east room, were fragrant with cut flowers, effectively placed.

The Reception Begins.

It as in the blue parlor or state room that the receiving party took position shortly after 11 o'clock. Trumpeters heralded the approach of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt down the gray white marble stairs, and to the band's rendition of "Hail to the Chief," the reception began. Leisurely and with no semblance of formality those in the state dining room passed through the red parlor into the presence of the president. The receiving party formed the arch of a circle, filling the large bow window

A YOUNG BOY IS BURNED TO DEATH

In Fire at San Francisco Which Destroyed Six Flats.

San Francisco, Jan. 1.—Fire that brought death to Charles Figone, 8 years old, fatal injury to Louis Figone, 10 years old, and almost cost the lives of fifty others, broke out in a building in the coal yard of Antonio Figone, 1628 Stockton street, early today, and caused a loss of $50,000.

When the fire started, Mrs. Dominico Divinbenzi, who lived in the rear of the Figone home, was crowded out of a second story window by her daughter, Mary, and fatally burned and injured. The daughter is missing.

The fire spread rapidly and destroyed six flats on the corner of Filbert and Stockton streets, the property of Mrs. P. Ferrar, also a saloon belonging to Mrs. Bricca and three flats on Filbert street, the property of Ignatio Lassoll.

MURDERED BY BLACK HAND

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1.—The police are investigating what is believed to be a Black Hand murder.

John Bentivazna, a barber, was shot last night, the bullet passing through the window of his shop, in the heart of the Italian colony. He died an hour later.

In the dead man's pocket was found a threatening letter mailed in this city which contained reference to a quarrel in New York. In the letter was a rudely drawn sketch of a black hand, a dagger and a skull and cross bones. Above this was printed the warning:

This was evidently of recent receipt. The police are working on the theory that Bentivazna was tracked from New York by a man whom he cut in the face during a quarrel.

TRANSFER OF KEEPERS

Will Spend Summer Here for First Time in Fifteen Years.

The transfer of the Duluth canal lighthouse station, from Capt. James Prior to Capt. Alexander Shaw was made today. Capt. Prior, after twenty years' service at the Duluth canal lighthouse assumes charge of the government buoy station, established within the past year on the lower end of Minnesota Point, near Superior entry. Capt. Shaw has been in charge of the Passage Island light, near Isle Royale for the past fifteen years. He comes back to take charge of the station where he learned the business years ago.

"It will be somewhat of a novel experience for me to be in Duluth in the summer time," said Capt. Shaw this morning. "It has been fifteen years since I have seen the city when it was out of its winter clothing. I have, during that time, left my home here early in the spring before the snow was off and when I returned in the winter I found the ground covered with snow. Although a citizen of Duluth for so many years there are parks and places of interest to go to in the summer season that I scarcely know about.

"Passage Island light is one of the isolated stations in old Lake Superior, but it is with some regret that I leave it, even to stay in Duluth. Long association with the station work at that outpost, friendships formed with the vesselmen and the fishermen folk that ply their trade in that locality makes one feel that he is severing pleasant ties in quitting the station."

TRIED AND SENTENCED TO DEATH IN 30 MINUTES.

St. Francisville, La., Jan. 1.—If thirty minutes' trial the death penalty was yesterday passed on Robert Weston, a negro. On Dec. 21, he "shot up" a passenger train near Baton Rouge, killing A. K. Wridert, a student. The address of the negro's counsel, appointed by the state, was remarkable. Counsel said nothing about saving his client, but appealed to the jury to bring about prohibition to save other negroes from a like fate.

BROOKLYN HAS WOMAN AMBULANCE SURGEON.

New York, Jan. 1.—Brooklyn will have its first glimpse of a woman ambulance surgeon today when Dr. Mary Merritt will answer calls from the Williamburg hospital.

Dr. Merritt is a prepossessing young woman of 23, who won the post of ambulance surgeon after a competitive examination in which thirty-four men fresh from college entered.

Dr. Merritt is a resident of Nyack, N. Y., and a graduate of Cornell. During her college life she was known as an expert oarswoman.

CLEAR THE TRACK

New York, Jan. 1.—Pythagoras, the toad, took his first meal in 1,000 years yesterday at the Bronx Zoo. Four flies and an earthworm constituted the meal of the little black creature that had been buried for so many centuries in limestone rock 500 feet down in a silver mine at Butte, Mont. The ancient toad is slowly recovering his eyesight and the use of his limbs, and is gradually turning green again, as he was in the Middle Ages. He has already emitted several feeble sounds, but the croak has not come back.

REPORT OF CITY FUNDS

City Comptroller McCormick did a hurry-up job on his annual report for the year 1907 and completed it last evening. Every department of the city showed progress, greater receipts and more substantial balances than for 1906, according to the report. The service receipts of the water and light department showed an increase of $64,315.49; the municipal court, $2,431.39, and several other departments showed small increases. The balance on hand Jan. 1, 1908, is smaller than that a year ago, but this is largely on account of the retirement of $200,000 in bonds last July.

Following is the gist of the report:

ROADMASTER STRICKEN.

David Vannett, Old N. P. Employe, Dies at East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—While sitting in a chair in a local saloon last night, David Vannet of Fertile, for twenty years road master of the Northern Pacific, and a well known railroad man, fell over dead of apoplexy. He was 65 years old and is survived by his wife and several children among the latter being County Treasurer Vannet of Polk county.

CEMENT PRODUCTS.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Martin T. Roche of St. Paul was elected president of the Northwestern Cement Products association at the business session held at the Lexington hotel. This election came unanimously and was a worthy recognition of the efforts Mr. Roche has put forth in furthering the interests of the association and carrying on its work. The full list of officers chosen is as follows: President, Martin T. Roche, St. Paul; vice presidents, H. E. Murphy of Manitowoc, Wis., O. U. Miracle of Minneapolis, C. A. P. Turner of Minneapolis, A. H. Laughlin of Lisbon, N. D., Col. Lee Stover of Watertown, S. D.; secretary, J. C. Van Doorn, Minneapolis; treasurer, J. M. Hazen, Minneapolis.

Invitations for the next meeting of the association were received from Minneapolis, Fargo, N. D., Yankton, S. D., Watertown, and Mason City, Iowa. The choice of time and place was left with the executive committee with power to act. Inasmuch, however, as it had been planned to have the present convention at Minneapolis, and in view of the generous offer made by that city, the next gathering of the association will probably be held there.

Resolutions were passed thanking the officers of the association for their efficient service and also thanking the officers of the Cement Products Exhibition company for their generous assistance and co-operation.

Why I Lost My Job.

Reasons Why Thousands Like Me Cannot Satisfy Their Employers.

"I believe my fate is not unlike that of thousands of other workers who daily lose their places for reasons they do not know, and probably would not believe. When their last pay envelope comes along, it is usually "Your services no longer required." If the truth were known, the reason for their unceremonious removal would probably be that their usefulness was destroyed because of some mental worry, bodily ailment or general indisposition. These things, as we all know, are the most fruitful causes of failure in all walks of life. The battle of Waterloo was lost because of a headache. In this quick age our minds must be clear, rapid, active, and free from outside influence or worry, or else we go down to failure with the throng of "floaters" who go from one place of employment to another, giving no satisfaction to others or to themselves, constantly growing older and less useful, with no ambition, no will power, and no hope.

Every man requires from every other man the best that is in him. But no man can use or get the best that is in himself until he is first free from all fretful indispositions and worries.

That was my trouble. I was full of troubles. That's why I lost my job. My stomach in the first place was always out of order, and I was worrying about it and my mind grew cloudy, and slow. I made mistakes, and grew grouchy. That was the end.

There are thousands like me, going about with "quick lunch" faces, dyspeptic manners, and repulsive atmospheres. No employer wants such men's services.

Take my advice. A healthy stomach is half the battle, for it keeps your mind clear, and your face rosy. I have a healthy stomach now and hold a good position, and my employer is satisfied, and so am I.

I started in to take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which I was told were good for the worst cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. The first two tablets made a wonderful difference in my condition.

One ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digests 3,000 grains of food. The stomach doesn't have to work at all. The Tablets do all the work, no matter how heavy your meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure brash, eructations, burning sensations, bloat, irritations, loss of appetite, nausea, heartburn, lack of energy, loss of memory, and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry them around with you wherever you go and take them regularly after meals. Then you will realize what it is to be freed from stomach torment, and have a clear mind, a quick memory, a happy disposition, comfort and rest. Get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store for 50 cents a package.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

OLD MORTGAGE SATISFIED

In Which Samuel J. Tilden, Famous Democrat, Acted as Trustee.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A satisfaction of $1,800,000 railroad mortgage, given in 1865, and maturing Nov. 1, 1907, was filed in the office of the secretary of state yesterday.

The mortgage was given by the Winona & St. Peter railroad, now a part of the Northwestern system, and originally ran to Samuel J. Tilden, as trustee, who was afterwards governor of New York and Democratic candidate for president, against R. B. Hoyls. Mr. Tilden was successful as trustee by the Farmers Loan & Trust company.

The mortgage bore a revenue stamp of $1,800.

It is absolutely necessary to health that we give relief to the stomach promptly at first signs of trouble. Take something once in a while; especially after meals; something like KODOL For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Sold by all druggists.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NEW ROAD PROPOSED

It Will Run From Thief River Falls to Roosevelt.

Covering Distance of 83 Miles, Opening Fine Country.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. F. Hunt of Roosevelt, Roseau county, has been in the city several days agitating a scheme for a railroad from this city running in a northeasterly direction to Roosevelt on the Rainy river, some eighty-three miles from here.

A meeting was held at the Antlers club rooms, where expression was given to the plan as favorable and feasible. According to Mr. Hunt, such a road would tap a country immensely rich in natural resources and would be a paying investment from the start. His idea is to interest the Soo road, if possible, in the project, and failing in this to secure a free right of way from the farmers and landowners along the proposed route. Financial assistance has been offered the promoters, strange as it may seem in face of the financial conditions obtaining at the present time. This proposed road would cross the country covered by the recent geological surveys of the United States government and in which they have located some ditches. It is fairly well settled and would tap the only really new portion of the Northern state that is as yet unexploited. Immense quantities of pulp wood would be available over this route which cannot yet be marketed.

SAFE BLOWERS MAKE BIG HAUL

Braham, Minn., Jan. 1.—Special to The Herald.)—Some time Monday night bank burglars blew open the safe in the Farmer & Mechanics bank here and got away with $2,700 in cash. The boldness and daring of the crime committed within only about fifty miles north of the Twin Cities has astonished officers.

Nitroglycerin was used in opening the big vault in which the money was kept. The explosion was not heard and the robbers made their escape undetected.

A farmer's team was used in escaping. The horses and buggy were found later, after having been driven several miles toward Rush City. A posse is in pursuit of the safeblowers.

The agent at the station noticed two suspicious-looking men drop off the evening train and it is supposed they were the robbers.

IT CREATED STIR IN GRAFTON, N. D.

Grafton, N. D., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The dispatches from Chicago telling of the sensational elopement of Miss Faye McKenzie of this city, who has been attending school at Detroit, Mich., and her marriage with J. J. O'Brien of this city created a decided stir here, where both are well known.

Mr. O'Brien is at the head of the J. J. O'Brien Land company, while Miss McKenzie is the daughter of Judge William McKenzie, who for many years was the probate judge in Walsh county, and who formerly resided in Grand Forks. Mr. O'Brien is a widower, and is 28 years of age. He is a prominent business man of Walsh county, and is well known throughout this part of the state.

ASHLAND TELEPHONE GIRL DISCOVERS BOLD BURGLAR.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unknown man climbed to the roof of the Schiller shoe store building by means of a ladder early in the morning, and attempted to enter the Bristol block through a side window. It was about 3 o'clock and Miss May Swanson, one of the night operators for the Home Telephone company, hearing a noise, approached the window, and was confronted by the visage of a man looking in. She gave the alarm and he disappeared. A short time afterwards the police picked up an Italian from Pence, and he is held as a suspect. He gives his name as Anton Macklone, and says he was visiting his sister here. He was arrested near the Goeltz block corner. Miss Swanson partly identified Macklone.

FIRES GUN AT HUSBAND

Of Woman He is Alleged to Have Been Infatuated With.

Harvey, N. D., Jan. 1.—A shooting affair, which caused considerable excitement around town, occurred at the home of Alexander Schatz, when after a family jar, caused by the alleged infatuation of C. T. Lee for Mrs. Schatz, Lee took a shotgun and aiming at Schatz, pulled the trigger, with the result that the charge burned his coat slightly.

The shooting took place in the barn and it was only by a miracle that Schatz was not murdered outright. After the shooting Lee went over to the Schatz home with the evident intention of having trouble with Schatz, as claimed by the latter, but Lee claims that it was only his intention to stop the quarrel.

Lee was arrested on the charge of attempted murder and taken before the city justice, who bound him over to the district court, fixing his bail at $800.

HIS SKULL FRACTURED.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gus Wachholtz of Platt Lake was brought to the city Sunday and placed in St. Joseph's hospital Sunday. Mr. Wachholtz is suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries received from a falling tree Saturday. He has been unconscious ever since the accident and is in a serious condition.

BAD SPOONER FIRE.

Wisconsin Town Sustains Loss of About $10,000.

Spooner, Wis., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.) — The old year expired unpleasantly for the residents of this town as a damaging fire broke out about 8 o'clock last night in Dickinson & Co.'s women's and children's clothing store, and before it was extinguished, destroyed that concern and partially burned the shoe and jewelry store of Tollf Thompson. The loss will approximate $10,000, partially covered by insurance. The town being without fire protection citizens had to resort to the old time "bucket brigade" to prevent the total destruction of the town.

PAPER AT RANIER.

Ranier, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. J. Tiller of Bemidji is about to issue the first number of the Ranier Journal, a newspaper to be issued by the Journal Publishing company, composed of local people. It is expected the first issue will appear the latter part of the week.

WALKED TO PIKE'S PEAK.

Fox Lake, Wis., Jan. 1.—Robert A. Gillette, who died here Sunday, experienced during his life of seventy-three years many of the adventures that befall a pioneer. As a boy he traversed the state of Illinois on foot with his father, collecting hogs, which the latter bought and his son drove. When they had several hundred head they drove them to New York, where there was then a good market for them. When gold was discovered in the West he walked to Pike's Peak, but being disappointed in getting a fortune in the mines, he came to Milwaukee, where he lived for two years.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Brainerd—The temperature was 8 degs. below zero at Big Falls and International Falls, 6 below at Northome, Kelliher, Blackduck and Bemidji, and 4 below at Walker and 2 below at Brainerd Monday morning, according to reports at headquarters of the Minnesota & International.

Ramer—A force of men are at work erecting the water tank, the stone foundation for which was completed in the early part of the winter. It is located alongside the main track on the bridge approach, and near the river bank.

St. Paul—The Des Moines Life Insurance company of Des Moines, Iowa, has formally announced its intention of withdrawing from the state, thereby following the example of several other smaller insurance companies, which have recently filed similar announcements with the state insurance commissioner.

Moorhead—S. G. Comstock of Moorhead, is a candidate for the place of district delegate from the Ninth district, to the national Republican convention. Mr. Comstock has long been prominent in Minnesota business and politics, serving in the state legislature and in congress. His preferences in the matter of candidates have not been avowed.

Fergus Falls—A decided sensation has been created here by the commencement of a suit in the district court by John Hay, against Daniel S. Wemple, who has been engaged in the farm implement business in partnership with him for a long time past. Mr. Hay asks for a receiver to take charge of the business, and demands a division of profits.

Hastings—Mrs. Harriet Barbaras of Hastings, died Monday from heart failure after a brief illness. Mrs. Barbaras was a native of New York, born on March 8, 1831, and located here in 1851. Two daughters survive her, Mrs. J. P. Brandenbourger and Miss Julia A. Barbaras.

Cass Lake—G. G. Hartley has already shipped fifty carloads of box lumber from the Island farm and has 2,500 cords more all ready to load, which will be shipped as soon as room is made in the yards at the crate factory.

Brainerd—General Secretary J. C. Manville, of the local Young Men's Christian association, has returned from his holiday vacation in Iowa, bringing with him his bride, formerly Miss Bessie Morgan of Cedar Rapids.

Crookston—All but one of the Great Northern boilermakers working in the shops, as well as at the roundhouse, have returned to their old jobs and the one missing left the city several weeks ago.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Kenmare, N. D.—L. C. Nelson, a prominent farmer living five miles north of the city, was found hanging fro ma rafter in the barn, dead. The deceased had been in poor health for some time past, but refused to consult a physician regarding his condition. He leaves a wife and three children.

Wahpeton, N. D.—The funeral of Editor Fred Falley of the Globe-Gazette was held here Sunday afternoon. It was largely attended and there were many floral emblems, Masonic and others.

Fargo, N. D.—Dr. E. Folsom has been confined to his home since Saturday afternoon as a result of a fall on the glassy sidewalks near the Great Northern passenger station.

Minot, N. D.—Sixteen-year-old Josie Maix, who was placed on a train at Sherwood by Canadian parties and sent to Minot, presumably because they did not want to take care of the girl, will be returned to Canada, in all probability.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Chairman J. L. Cashel has sent out notices to the executive committee of the Democratic state central committee to meet at the Hotel Antlers on Friday, Jan. 3, at 2 p. m., to discuss matters that will come before the state central committee at a meeting to be called later, in regard to selecting delegates to the national Democratic convention.

Rapid City, S. D.—A gift of $25,000 by Andrew Carnegie toward the endowment of Dakota Wesleyan university, at Mitchell, was announced here Tuesday, by Dr. Nicholson, president of the university.

Pierre, S. D.—The supreme court has declared void the provisions of the state pure food law requiring patent medicine to bear the formula telling the composition of the medicines. The decision releases R. F. Brown, a wholesale druggist of Sioux Falls, who applied for a writ of habeas corpus in a test case.

Houghton—J. W. Wells, a lumberman, was seriously injured while on his way from the office of the J. W. Wells company to his home on Main street. Mr. Wells was struck by a carriage and was knocked unconscious.

Calumet—James Huddy, a blacksmith in the employ of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, received a serious accident to one of his feet yesterday, a heavy piece of iron falling on it. He will be incapacitated from work for some time.

Ontonagon—M. H. Harrington received on Christmas day, a greeting which he cherishes very highly. It was a letter from his brother, John Harrington, who is a former resident of Rockland, but who has been located in Australia for nearly half a century.

Lake Linden—The merchants of Lake Linden and Hubbell have agreed to close their establishments commencing with Jan. 2, four evenings each week, and from that date until April 1 the rule will remain in force.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Milwaukee—The verdict of $15,000 damages given by the jury to Charles F. Pfister, in his libel suit against the Free Press and H. P. Myrick, will stand Judge S. D. Hastings has denied the motion of the defendants for a new trial, and ordered that a judgment be entered in accordance with the verdict of the jury.

Racine—Frank K. Bull, president of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company and owner of fine carriage, driving, saddle and polo horse stables, is to dispose of all his horses. It is said that the horses owned by Mr. Bull, together with carriages, runabouts, traps and coaches, are worth $200,000.

Somerset—"Dr." Till, the famous healer, who was recently fined $50 and costs on a charge of practicing medicine without a license, denies the report that he will leave the state, and says that he will stay and fight all interference with his business to a finish.

Solon Springs—Bishop Schinner of Superior will dedicate the new Catholic church on Thursday, Jan. 2. Many clergymen from surrounding towns will attend th eceremony.

Eau Claire—The first New Year's resolution that has been made public is one made by a barber and a grocery man, who have solemnly promised not to indulge in profane language after Jan. 1. If one of them so far forgets himself as to yield to the temptation to use the name of the Deity on terms of long acquaintance, he will forfeit $5 to the other.

Ashland—Mrs. J. Scott Ellis was taken to Chicago some time ago for treatment. She was operated on Monday, and a telegram has been received stating that the operation was successful. It has been understood that her condition before the operation was very serious.

FREE LAND IN DEMAND

Government Acreage in Minnesota Will Soon be Exhausted.

Statistics of Land Office Show Only About 310,-000 Acres Left.

At the beginning of the past year there were approximately 550,000 acres of government land in the Duluth district open for filing. Of this area, about 155,000 acres were definitely and about 85,000 acres prospectively disposed of, leaving in the neighborhood of 310,000 acres yet subject to entry under the homestead or stone and timber laws.

Of this amount, 125,000 acres are in Cook county, 100,000 acres in St. Louis county, 75,000 acres in Lake county, and scattered tracts in Carlton, Itasca, Aitkin and western counties of the state. In addition to the above, something like 600,000 acres are temporarily withdrawn for forestry purposes, while one town, 65-15, is as yet unsurveyed. It is located in St. Louis county. Several towns in Lake county and two towns in Cook county have never been surveyed, but they are within the area of tracts withdrawn for forestry purposes.

In the ceded part of the Fond du Lac Indian reservation there remain about 4,000 acres yet open to entry. This lies in Carlton county, and is generally reputed to be very swampy. The government is now investigating the advisability of draining it and charging the cost to those who may choose to enter it under suc hrestrictions. There are also several thousand acres of what is termed "cut over" land in the same county that will be opened to settlement in the course of time.

The original homestead entries for the year just closed totaled 891, involving 85,458 acres. Original homestead entries on ceded Indian lands during the year took in 6,439 acres. Lands sold under cash entries, including commuted homestead and timber claims, totaled 104,884 acres, and brought $281,282. The cash receipts from the sale of Chippewa lands were $7,120, comprising 11,000 acres. Final homestead certificates covered 53,226 acres. During the year there were 1,588 applications for the purchase of timber, covering 165,000 acres of land.

EVERY FLAT HAS A CARD

Vaccination may nowadays save smallpox-infested families from quarantine, but the closed door policy is still being maintained with regard to diphtheria, as the tenants of the Hibbard apartments, at Second avenue east and Fifth street, can testify.

Every flat in the building is now flaunting a diphtheria card, near the front door. No youngster in the block has any advantage over the others in this respect. All the apartments have the sign and most of them have a ripe case or two of the disease to talk about.

But they cannot talk with the outside world much, because the health department has clamped down the lid.

The first case was reported in the flat nearest Fourth street, which is somewhat lower than the one on the corner of Fifth street. One day a blue sign, with inscriptions prepared by health department experts, appeared on the front porch of the lowest flat. By and by the next-door neighbors went in for diphtheria, and a nice new sign was pasted on their front porch. Then gradually the signs began appearing on each successive entrance to the building, until now they all have them.

It is said that the disease has been mostly communicated by the children of the different families, who were in the habit of playing together. The children are suffering now, though, for in little girl and boyland it is considered the extreme limit of ill-fortune to be sick during a school vacation.

LEAVES FOR THE PACIFIC COAST

Rev. Kirby S. Miller Tendered Farewell Banquet at Commercial Club.

A farewell banquet was given at the Commercial club last evening in honor of Rev. Kirby S. Miller, by some of his parishioners and other friends. Mr. Miller, who has been pastor of the First Unitarian church, was compelled to resign on account of ill health, and left this morning over the Northern Pacific for Medford, Or., where he will make his future home. He was accompanied by Mrs. Miller and the children.

Brief after-diner speeches expressed the regret of friends at his departure from the city, and Mr. Miller spoke of his pleasant associations in Duluth, telling of his dislike to bring these associations to an end. Those present were:

S. T. Harrison, H. V. Goetchius, H J. Grannis, John A. Keyes, Allen Brackenreed, H. J. Atwood, William Elder, William Burgess, L. C. Harris, Alfred Jacques and A. L. Agatin.

Mr. Miller proposes to engage in fruit farming in the West.

A Cure for Misery.

"I have found a cure for the misery malaria poison produces," says R. M. James, of Louellen, S. C. "It's called Electric Bitters, and comes in 50-cent bottles. It breaks up a case of chills or a bilious attack in almost no time; and it puts yellow jaundice clean out of commission." This great tonic medicine and blood purifier gives quick relief in all stomach, liver and kidney complaints and the misery of lame back. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores.

WILL MAKE THEIR WISHES KNOWN

Park Point Residents Start Active Campaign for Better Protection.

A special meeting of the Park Point Civic club will be held at the power house, Nineteenth street, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock to discuss the matter of adequate fire protection for the residents on the point and to appoint a committee to take the matter up with the city council.

Citizens residing on Park Point are quite insistent in their claims for better fire protection. They claim that the several losses which have occurred recently could have been prevented had that part of the city had the protection to which it is entitled. The people claim that a fire car operated by one man is not adequate protection.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT BEATTYVILLE, KY.

Beattyville, Ky., Jan. 1.—One of the most tragic events in the annals of Lee county was enacted here last night when Chief of Police Joe Davidson and Robert Evans, a merchant, shot each other to death. Davidson, it is said, was under the influence of liquor when he went into Evans' store and entered into a discussion as to whether Evans was his friend. Evans assured him he was, but requested Davidson to get out as he wished to close the store.

Evans unfortunate movement of his hand to his pocket to get the store keys was misunderstood, and Davidson shot him in the head. In an instant Evans fired twice, one shot entering Davidson's head, the other taking effect below the heart. Both men fell dead.

IS PRIVATE INSTITUTION.

Minneapolis, Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The University Athletic association is a private and not a state institution. This has been decided in a decision handed down by Judge Brown of the dstrict court, in the case of Edward E. George vs the University of Minnesota Athletic association, in which the plaintiff sought to recover damages because of injuries sustained in the college seats during a football game.

JAPANESE MAKE REPLY

To Suggestions of United States Concerning Immigration.

Couched in Friendly Terms and Will Avoid Fricton.

Tokio, Jan. 1.—The Japanese government last evening presented to Ambassador O'Brien a memorandum containing a reply to the suggestions offered by the United States government some weeks ago, whereby the American government sought a friendly way to assist Japan in perfecting plans for the future restriction of immigration, thus effectively avoiding a possibility of friction over the question.

While the contents of the memorandum are carefully guarded, both at the Japanese foreign office and American embassy, the Associated Press has reason to believe that the memorandum is couched in the most friendly terms, and that, while it accepts some of the suggestions, it declines others as incompatible with the dignity of Japan, and outlines plans for further restriction of immigration to America.

The memorandum has been cabled to Washington, from which it is said a counter suggestion will be forthcoming, but it is intimated that Japan thinks that the memorandum will form the basis whereon the two countries will be able to reach a final and satisfactory understanding.

Will Avoid Complaints.

Officials of the Japanese foreign office, talking to the Associated Press, have said that the system controlling labor emigration which will be immediately enforced would effectually avoid complaints which have arisen in consequence of the mistakes of administration of the regulations inaugurated last spring.

While not desiring to shirk the responsibility for the mistakes, the officials of the foreign office think that it would be foolish to charge the Japanese government with a willful breach of faith.

The Japanese government, having carefully investigated the details, has discovered the cause of the failure of former plans and now determine to demonstrate its ability to effectively prevent the emigration of laborers who are needed in the development of Japan. The consensus of opinion of American residents in Japan shows confidence in the sincerity of the Japanese government and its competency to control emigration as well as its desire to maintain friendly relations with America.

It is pointed out that its concessions to Canada limiting emigration to that country is a part of its entire scheme of control, because Vancouver afforded an opportunity for large numbers of Japanese to cross the border into America.

A prominent Japanese official said today to the Associated Press:

"Difficulties must arise in administration. Japan is now coping with a difficult situation, resulting from mstakes of its own adminstration in the past.

"We have discovered the mistakes and we think that America should allow us to show that we are willing and able to rectify them."

HIS SHIRT

The Pocketbook in Which Man Carries Fortune of $60,000.

New York, Jan. 1.—Afraid of the banks and fearful of investments, there is a man walking somewhere about Queens borough each day with $60,000 in bills pinned to his undershirt. He has carried the money about in that manner since the October financial flurry. Ignoring the advice of his friends, he carries the money about with him, believing that it is safe only under his eye, or, more literally, under his shirt.

"I hope some one will hold him up and steal his shirt and put the money in circulation," said one of his friends.

SKULL CRUSHED, BUT HE LIVES

With his brain penetrated and his skull crushed, Rudolph Beyer clings to life with a tenacity that is puzzling physicians and attendants at St. Luke's hospital. His skull was crushed by a falling tree last Thursday. When he was brought to the hospital it was not thought that he could live. His remarkable power of recuperation has given the physicians hope.

Young Beyer was clearing some timber on his mother's farm, near Rice lake, last Thursday. A tree was partly cut down and Beyer and his brother were placing a wedge in the cut when the wind blew the tree over on them. Beyer's brother escaped uninjured, but the heavy timber struck Rudolph Beyer on the head, a pslinter of timber penetrating his brain.

Yesterday he regained consciousness and some hope is held for his recovery.

It Does the Business.

Mr. E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve: "It does the business; I have used it for piles and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at all drug stores.

USED GASOLINE TO START FIRE

Mrs. William Andrews is Terribly Burned in Explosion.

Mrs. William Andrews, 60 years of age, 725 East Fourth street, is in a serious condition at St. Mary's hospital as a result of burns received from a gasoline explosion at her home. Her condition is reported serious and it is not expected that she will leave the hospital for at least a month.

Mrs. Andrews attempted to light a fire with gasoline. The flames suddenly leaped up, caught her clothes and before friends could extinguish the fire the woman was terribly burned about the lower part of the body.

The doctors say that her condition is critical and that it will be at least a month before she can be released from the hospital.

NO IMMEDIATE READJUSTMENT

Expected in Iron Prices, Although Minor Changes May be Made.

New York, Jan. 1.—The Iron Age says: "The report has been given considerable currency that there would become effective on Jan. 1 a lower range of prices on structural material plates, tubes, sheets and tin plates. The plans of the makers, as developed thus far, do not justify the expectation of an immediate readjustment of prices, although some change in sheets and tin plate may be made towards the middle of the coming month. The work now in sight justifies operations to the extent of close to 50 per cent of the capacity.

"The pig iron committee is in session at the present writing, all the leading interests being represented. During the past week inquiries have improved in all the principal distributing markets, but very little new tonnage has been booked, and in some quarters a weakening tendency has developed. Other makers, however, are holding aloof and are not meeting the lowest prices named, this being notably the case with some Southern producers, who decline to go below $13.50, Birmingham, for No. 2.

"No new rail orders have been placed, and outside of two or three moderate lots, one of them for Cuba, no tangible business is in sight at the present moment. Some business in structural material has been placed, in Chicago, and several good-sized lots are in sight in New York. Moderate orders have been booked for plates, and it is expected that some shipbuilding work will come out on the Delaware.

"In the cast iron pipe trade we note the placing of one 4,000-ton contract in New York, and there is some prospect for some heavy work for Boston.

"There have been no new developments in the markets for old material throughout the country, which remain in a very unsatisfactory condition from the standpoint of the sellers.

"There is a little better feeling in the copper trade, and electrolytic has sold up to $13.50. Lead, too, has hardened to $4.75, New York, with quite a good volume of business done during the past few days."

LANDLORDS LOWER RENT

New York, Jan. 1.—The systematic campaign for lower rents by thousands of tenants on the lower west side began to show material results yesterday, when many landlords announced that they were ready to make reductions. Some of the landlords are offering compromise propositions, but in the main the tenants are holding out for a material reduction. The rapidly increasing number of men and women out of work is an added argument, which the tenants are advancing for a new rent scale. The United Hebrew Charities association announced last night that it would send out $7,000 to aid in a measure, the army of unemployed people to pay their rents.

The work of organizing the tenants goes unceasingly on. It was stated at the headquarters of the organization that six hundred big tenement houses had already agreed to lower rents when the rent collectors call. As there are from twenty to thirty families to a tenement, and five persons on an average to a family, it means that the landlords already have over 75,000 people to contend with. Several labor organs have indicated their intention of aiding the tenants. It is generally agreed by the tenant organizations that when tenants are evicted for refusing to pay the old rent scale, they will be sheltered by tenants in the same house. The tenants demand reductions of $2 a month. There were several mass meetings of tenants last night to discuss the situation. The police do not apprehend that there will be any riots or disorders arising from the rent situation. The strike has been conducted quietly so far.

Special Notice!

Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, No. 78, will hold their first regular meeting in their New Hall 310 West First Street, Friday Evening, Jan. 3rd. All members will try to be present.

EDITOR SHOT.

St. Louis, Jan. 1.—Al. H. Spink, editor of the Daily World, author of "The Derby Winner," and several other plays, and formerly a sporting writer of national reputation, was shot and perhaps fatally injured last night by Victor Groves, an employe, following an altercation with William Spink, the editor's son. Mr. Spink was rushing to the scene of the quarrel when Groves whipped out a revolver and fired two shots, one of them entering the editor's left shoulder and penetrating a lung.

Mr. Spink, who is 53 years old, has been in the newspaper business many years, and has acted as special correspondent for the largest newspapers in the country in covering sporting events of national importance. He acted as referee at many prize fights. His play, "The Derby Winner," is said to have required more people and scenery than any ever produced and while it attained wide popularity, Mr. Spink lost $250,000 on the production.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 1.—Twenty-one new boats are scheduled to go into operation at the opening of navigation on the great lakes next spring. In general, the boats for 1908 will not have the capacity of the boats ordered last year and the orders are not so numerous. Out of the entire list of twenty-one there will be six boats built at Ecorse, near Detroit, and three at Toledo.

CAPUZZO GUILTY.

New York, Jan. 1.—Guiseppi Capuzzo, alias Charles Davis, who has been on trial for strangling Sophia Kehrer last July, was convicted yesterday of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to not less than twenty years in Sing Sing prison. Sophia Kehrer ran away from her husband in Buffalo and met Capuzzo in this city. The evidence shows that Capuzzo strangled the woman to death and fled.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

By torchlight Tuesday night the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient track-layers drove the last spike on the road that connects Wichita with the south fork of the Red river, a distance of 300 miles, and saves for road bond issue voted by Wichita, Kan., and Sedgwick county, Kan., of $110,000.

Charles N. Schmick, president, and his son, W. Harry Schmick, cashier of the defunct First National Bank of Leetonia, Ohio, were arrested at Cleveland Tuesday by the federal authorities on the charge of wrecking the Leetonia bank.

In charge of the sheriff, Steve Adams arrived at Telluride, Colo., Tuesday night to stand trial for the murder of Arthur L. Collins, superintendent of the Smuggler-Union mine, who was killed Nov. 19, 1902. Adams was taken at once to the county jail, and no one was permitted to talk with him.

The convent of the Sisters of Charity at Rimosky, Que., was destroyed by fire Tuesday night. At the time there were 309 children in the building, but they were all safely removed. The loss is placed at $100,000.

The first gun in the warfare for woman's suffrage in America was fired by Mrs. B. Borrman Wells of England, in Madison Square Tuesday. Only a handful of sympathizers heard Mrs. Wells. It was announced that another meeting would be held next Sunday.

SENSATION IN WADENA.

Wadena, Minn., Jan. 1.—Anton Adams, who recently filed a petition in bankruptcy, failing in the shoe business, with liabilities aggregating $25,000, was arrested Monday at the instance of E. Koch, proprietor of a local meat market.

Mr. Adams had borrowed many thousands of dollars from his intimate friends, Mr. Koch being one of them. He had loaned Adams $1,500. Mr. Adams is said to have given forged notes to secure money borrowed from his friends, signing his father's name to them. Mr. Koch holds one of these notes. He charges Mr. Adams with forgery. Most of this forged paper has been taken care of, the elder Mr. Adams coming to the rescue of his son.

The old man refuses, however, to assist his son further. Adams was released under bonds. His case will come up at the next term of the district court in June.

The Adams failure was the worst in the history of Wadena. The shoe stock was sold at auction last week to George Ioset for $6,600.

SWEDISH MINISTER OF WAR.

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 1.—Maj.-Gen. O. B. Malm, commanding the Stockholm division, was yesterday appointed minister of war. The war portfolio was temporarily assumed by Premier Lindman, Dec. 4, when Col. L. P. Tingsten resigned as a result of dissension in the cabinet, arising from Sweden's failure to become a signatory to the treaty assuring the integrity of Norway.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED.

Cincinnati, Jan. 1.—William Hay and Edward Ritchie were yesterday appointed receivers for the S. Wilberg Hanna Lumber company, one of the largest lumber firms in Cincinnati. The assets are $375,000 and the liabilities are $250,000.

The company is fully solvent. It is said the assignment is due to the pressure of creditors.

WILL MEET TUESDAY

County Board Will Hold Its Annual Meeting Then.

Many Matters of Importance Will Come Up for Consideration.

The annual meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held at the courthouse, Tuesday, Jan. 7. This is one of the two "official" meetings of the board during the year, the other being the semi-annual meeting in midsummer. All the other meetings of the board, the regular sessions held about the first of each month, and the special sessions held at any time during the year, are adjourned sessions of the annual or the semi-annual meetings.

On Tuesday next, the board will meet and adjourn sine die. Immediately after the annual meeting will be called to order and the commissioners will proceed to dispose of the business before it. The annual meeting is, of course, an important session for the reason that the board reorganizes, elects its officers for the year, awards the contracts for the county printing and supplies, makes the appointment of various officers, whose jobs and pay are provided by law, and disposes of any other business that may come up at that time.

At the next meeting of the board the commissioners will open bids and award the contract for the extension to the auditor's office and vault. This improvement will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000 or $3,500 and is planned to give the auditor additional office space, provide additional vault room for valuable county records and provide the county board a comfortable room for their monthly meetings. While the extension will not be a thing of beauty from an architectural standpoint, it is a necessity, if the county officials are expected to continue to do business with any degree of convenience and the county records are to be preserved in safety. It would be difficult to imagine how the present architectural beauty of the old courthouse could be damaged by the construction of one or many more "additions."

There will be no changes on the county board this year. All the members are "holdovers." No election of county commissioners will occur until next fall and even then, the new members, if such should be elected, would not take office until the annual meeting in January, 1909.

Commissioner E. M. Patterson has been charman of the county board for the past year, and it is pretty safe to say that he will be continued in that office. Commissioner Charles Kauppi of West Duluth is the vice chairman of the board, and he is pretty sure to be re-elected. These are the only offices within the organization that the county board members will have to fill. The board will elect a county inspector of mines and a county physician at the annual meeting next Tuesday. It will also make the semi-annual levy for clerk hire in the offices of the county auditor and the county treasurer.

The most gentle of Nature's laxatives put into candy form. That's Cascarets. Made to be taken in dainty doses, when you don't feel at your best.

For the cause of most of these troubles lies in the bowels. A Cascaret tonight means a cheery day tomorrow. Six bright days for ten cents. Are they worth it?

Don't think of Cascarets as a physic. They are candy tablets, as good as they are gentle.

Those who have learned what is best carry a box in the pocket. They take one as soon as they need it.

Don't have a bowel wash-day. Don't take physics in large doses and rarely.

You wash your face at the first sign of uncleanliness. Why not be as clean with your bowels?

You know by the symptoms when your bowels need help. One Cascaret right then puts a stop to them.

You can just as well avoid these little ills—just as well keep at your best.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and

RAVENOUS BUZZARDS

Attack Aged Man and Nearly Peck Him to Death.

Lewes Cross Roads, Del., Jan. 1.—Stricken with apoplexy while on his way to attend a Christmas dinner, Wesley Thomas of this place lay in the woods near here and was nearly pecked to death by ravenous buzzards before being found by passersby, after having lain by a deserted roadside nearly eighteen hours.

Thomas, who is about 66 years old, lives by himself in a cabin in the heart of the deep swamps near here. The lonliness of the man roused the sympathies of his nearest neighbors, five miles away, and they invited him to attend their Christmas dinner. The dinner was prepared and Thomas had not appeared. For nearly an hour the hungry family awaited his coming, and finally sat down to their turkey and cranberries, with a plate at the vacant place, expecting every moment for him to put in his appearance. Night came and still Thomas had not arrived.

At 7:30 next morning Clay Truitt, who was out gunning, noticed a large flock of buzzards flying around. The peculiar squawks of the buzzards convinced Truitt that something unusual was wrong. On making an investigation he was horrified to find Thomas lying near the ditch totally helpless and in an unconscious state as a result of his terrible experience. His face and neck were fearfully lacerated and blood flowed freely from the numerous wounds made by the sharp talons of the hungry scavengers. It was only after a severe battle with the buzzards, in which he himself was attacked, that Truitt managed with the aid of his gun to beat the hungry birds from the prostrate form of the man. Thomas is now confined at the home of George Willets and he is not expected to recover.

Rank Foolishness.

SWAPPING WIVES

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 1.—Miners and other workers in the Pittsburg industrial district have combined against the use and abuse of divorce laws in this end of the state, and have asked Robert M. Heath, a husky coal miner from Mifflin township, to stand for the state legislature on a "no divorce" platform. Mr. Heath has consented, and promulgated his unique platform.

"I have pledged myself to fight the present divorce laws tooth and nail if elected to the legislature, and will do it," said Heath. "I find that a man in Pittsburg who don't like his wife, or who rather thinks he likes his affinity better, can get a divorce for $65. This is too cheap, and this indiscriminate granting of divorces for the asking must be stopped, and will be stopped if I become a member of the legislature. Why, as matters are now, it is about as easy for a man to get rid of his wife and get a new one as it is for men in the South to swap horses. It is a crying shame and disgrace to the state, and must be stopped."

Mr. Heath specifies that in his bill he will make it obligatory on a man seeking divorce to pay his wife as much money per week as he formerly spent on her before his love grew cold, and that he shall at all times before and after be compelled to support and educate the children. It shall also be specified that the state or county furnish each woman with an attorney to fight her case if she cannot hire an attorney of her own.

ONCE MILLIONAIRE, IS NOW VAGRANT IN CELL.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 1.—W. S. Payne, the former slot mahine millionaire of Tacoma, is spending the holdays in the city jail, charged with vagrancy. When the slot machines first came into use Payne secured the exclusive rights for this city, and as there was a large sporting element, his income from the machines ran into enormous sums, there being days that it reached over $1,500.

At first Payne saved his money. In six years he had accumulated half a million dollars. Then he broke loose, built a fine hotel with an expensive suite of rooms for himself, bought fine horses, a steam yacht and his entertainments were the talk of the Northwest. The money kept coming in faster than he could spend it, so Payne took to grub-staking men, who wanted to go to Alaska. Grafters of all kinds flocked to his office, got a bunch of money and departed, but they never saw Alaska.

Payne kept up the pace for years, until one day when, like a thunderclap out of a clear sky, the anti-slot machine law was passed, and it was enforced in Tacoma first. With the source of his income cut off, he did not have the sense to stop spending, for he believed with a change of administration in local affairs, the machines would come into use again. But the day never came, and today Payne is a vagrant without a cent of money or a home.

RECORD OF PAST YEAR

Disasters Which Attracted Attention — List of Prominent Dead.

The past year was a financial year. In other respects 1907 can scarcely claim to be memorable, though it has been eventful. It is true that in the first month of the year the Jamaica earthquake and disastrous floods in the Ohio valley commanded public attention, but at the same time the interstate commerce commission was energetically prying into the railroad financiering methods of Edward H. Harriman and submitted to the senate a report reflecting upon the Standard Oil company's transportation deals.

The Thaw trial, the sinking of the steamer Larchmont and a little Central American war were the leading events of February, but in the same month E. H. Harriman appeared before the interstate commerce commission and candidly told of the upbuilding of his railroad empire.

In March the Fifty-ninth congress wound up its work, the Central American war dragged on, the Roumanian peasants grew turbulent, but on the financial side the San Francisco grafters were brought to bay and the Pennsylvania legislative committee found proofs of wholesale fraud in the furnishing of the new state house.

The Thaw jury failed to agree and Honduras fell before the army of Nicaragua in April. On the 13th of that month the Standard Oil company was convicted of receiving 1,463 illegal rebates, on shipments from the Chicago & Alton railway, and ninety-one business men and firms of Toledo, Ohio, were indicted for violation of the state law on combines.

May witnessed the announcement of Secretary Taft as a presidential candidate. In that month the chief of Frisco grafters pleaded guilty, and in the United States court at Indianapolis the firms constituting the drug trust pleaded guilty and dissolved their objectionable combination.

In June the disturbances created by the dissatisfied French wine growers nearly overthrew the French ministry. In that month Judge Landis ordered and in July compelled the presence of John D. Rockefeller in the federal court at Chicago. In July W. D. Haywood, secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, was acquitted of conspiracy in the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, and the cornerstone of the new Peace palace at The Hague was laid.

August is historic. On the 3d Judge Landis assessed fines aggregating $29,240,000 against the Standard Oil company, and on the 7th the telegraph operators' strike began.

During September a commissioner from the United States court at St. Louis held sessions in New York gathering evidence on which to lase a decision in the federal suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company.

September was rather uneventful. The second international peace conference at The Hague came to a close after what is regarded as a fruitless meeting of three months. In October, however, finance again came to the front. New York stock jobbers got into a tangle. The Heinze copper pool collapsed; Heinze, C. W. Morse and others were forced from positions of ascendency in New York banks; the Knickerbocker Trust company closed, and only the use of $50,000,000 of government deposits and the co-operation of several of the foremost financiers prevented a panic. As it was, a "money stringency" was caused by the scare, and this condition is prevalent throughout the country to some extent at the close of the year.

The November elections were not remarkable, except in the case of Kentucky. The old state fell completely into the hands of the Republicans, and even the choice of the next United States senator is in doubt.

The Sixtieth congress convened without undue commotion in December. The Pacific fleet sailed from Hampton Roads after a review by the president. The biggest event of the month was the Monongah (W. Va.) mine horror, in which nearly 350 miners lost their lives.

LOSSES OF POSTMASTERS.

Cost the Government $163,000 Last Year to Reimburse Them.

Washington, Jan. 1.—In the last fiscal year it cost the government $169,367.24 to pay for postage stamps and postal funds of various sorts that were stolen, burned, blown or washed away, eaten by rats or mice, or lost in other ways through which the postmasters were not at fault.

As a rule the man with the dark lantern and the jimmy wends his way to the postoffice when he strikes a village after nightfall. The government's local manager isn't as particular about caring for the treasure in his possession as the local banker. A postoffice "haul" may not yield the returns of a bank robbery, but usually it is an easier job.

In the last year the United States paid its postmasters $141,134.20 to reimburse them for stamps and postal funds taken by uninvited guests. Fire destroyed money and stamps worth $20,002.81, and stamps and funds to the value of $1,658.65 were lost in transit.

From miscellaneous sources the loss was $506.08. At Vasco, Va., the postmaster presented proof that the rats chewed up stamps worth $7.90. The postmaster at Bowen, Ark., Extray, W. Va., Fern, Ark., Harworth, Miss., and Wolf Creek, Ky., were allowed claims ranging from 90 cents to $15.69 for stamps eaten by mice. Rats and mice did not invade the Texas postoffices, but at Ariola, in the Lone Star state, a company of festive roaches had a banquet at the expense of Uncle Sam's postmaster. The postmaster presented a bill for $9.03 to defray the cost of the dinner, but the department disallowed it on the ground that the loss was due to the negligence of the postmaster or his employes.

There were losses from storms at Harris, Fla., Josie, Ala., Mon Louis, Ala., and Northup, Fla., and losses from floods at Dexter, Kan., Polkadotte, Ohio, Van Buren, Ky., Scottown, Ohio, and Shoemaker, N. M. The postmaster at Alex, I. T., had a pair of losses. A cyclone blew away $64.99, and then a burglar "blew in" and took away $102.21.

Finds us still making medicines, which our family has been doing for more than half a century.

It is our business to make medicines; and we congratulate ourselves, at the beginning of another year, that our painstaking efforts to make the best medicines have been, from the first, rewarded by an appreciative public.

Always pure, safe and beneficial, no changes have been necessary in Hood's Sarsaparilla or any of our other medicines to comply with the Pure Food and Drugs Act—practically anticipated by us years ago, in the origination of our formulas.

In merit, sales and cures, Hood's Sarsaparilla has far surpassed all other medicines, and the abiding confidence of the people in it is the strongest proof of its unequalled merit as a great blood-purifier, stomach, liver and kidney remedy.

After being before the public more than a quarter of a century, its wonderful power to cure all blood diseases, to create a good appetite and dispel that tired feeling, and the confidence of the people in its merit, are demonstrated by the fact that in recent years it has received more testimonials than ever before — 40,366 in two years, by actual count.

No other medicine has held so promihent a position in the medicine world for so long a time.

Grateful for your past patronage and soliciting a continuance thereof, we are, Very truly yours,

WAS HELD UP BY BANDIT

Stranger Stabbed Only Man Who Had Courage to Object.

To be confronted by a desperate bandit, armed with a long bladed knife and on murder bent, to be held up by him, and to know that one of the guests of the hotel had been stabbed while resisting the efforts of the highwayman, was the experience of A. S. Blake, a Denver mining man, who came down from the range this morning.

Mr. Blake was telling his experience to Manager Michaud at the St. Louis this morning. He was at Prescott, Ariz., Dec. 21, when the Brinkmeyer hotel of that place was held up by the lone bandit. In the Schuterman hotel one of the guests offered resistance and was almost literally cut to pieces by the highwayman. This example, says Mr. Blake acted as a blanket on any bravery that might have been lurking in any of the other guests, and the highwayman relieved twenty guests before he completed the round of the Globe, Cliff and Head hotels.

Mr. Blake was stopping at the Schuterman hotel, the first one to be visited by the bandit. He was sitting in the lobby when the man entered, brandishing a bowle.

"I want your money, and I want it d—n quick," was the introduction to the mission of he stranger. In rapid succession he relieved the guests of their money and valuables, only encountering resistance in a mining man named Lutely. The latter refused to hand over his money or valuables and was stabbed almost to death.

Mr. Blake lost his roll, his watch, and a wallet containing some valuable papers. He says he didn't question the motive of the dark-browed stranger in taking his papers, but gave his all, as di dthe widow her mite, with a sigh of relief. After seeing a man stabbed before his every eyes he did not possess the curiosity to question his motives.

Mr. Blake says the man made his escape. Whether he has since been captured he does not know, as he left Prescott the next day.

The town was wrought up over this ancient Western piece of daring. They organized a posse the next morning and started out after this 1907 protege of James' boys proclivities.

THE WISDOM OF SOLOMON NEEDED

To Solve Parentage of the Child of This Woman.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 1.—Not even the case which King Solomon was called upon to decide had such a maze of mystery as the marital relations of Mrs. Floerschinger - Moehring - Maulhardt - Meyer which the circuit court of St. Louis has been called upon to unravel. Furthermore, the parentage of a child is in question.

Joseph Moehring has sued Josephine Moehring for divorce and the custody of a 3-year-old girl, which he claims is his daughter. The woman says Maulhardt is its father, but he denies this, and insists that the little one had been taken from an institution when only a few days old.

The defendant married Joseph Moehring in 1896. Two years later they separated. In 1904 the woman sued for divorce, and while this was pending it cropped out that there was a former husband named Floerschinger, but this matter is hidden in mystery. On Jan. 12 Moehring and his wife became reconciled. Unknown to Moehring she was granted a divorce only a few days after the reconcillation. He learned of her secret, but she prevailed upon him to get a license and remarry her. He furnished a flat and intended to begin life anew, but the carpets were as yet not laid when she fell in love with Maulhardt, and they were married March 15, 1905. The two lived together, but it was not until some time later that Moehring decided that she had married Maulhardt.

When the latter was informed that she had promised to marry Moehring he left her. The mysterious baby then figured in the case, and Maulhardt was arrested for abandonment. He paid a fine of $50, but denies the child is his. Last summer she married Henry Meyers. Moehring now claims to be the father of the child, and expects to have the courts so decide, and also grant him a divorce.

JURORS TOSSED A COIN

When They Were Deadlocked and Gave Verdict of Guilty.

Lewiston, Idaho, Jan. 1.—Because the jury decided his case by tossing a coin, Robert Goucher, accused of selling liquor to the Indians, had a new trial and was acquitted.

Goucher's first trial resulted in his being found guilty. The jury in that case stood three for guilty and three for acquittal. To decide the matter, a coin was tossed and "guilty" won.

The facts came out a week after the trial, and Goucher's attorney secured affidavits from the jurors and asked for a new trial, which the judge granted, as there is a state law against such practices. The second trial cleared Goucher.

Warning to Parents!

Do you realize the danger that menaces your children when they play in the streets on which there are car tracks?

Do you realize the danger they court by sliding down the steep avenues and across the car tracks along which cars are running at frequent intervals?

Do you realize there is a city ordinance which expressly forbids that practice because of its danger?

Are you sure YOUR CHILDREN are not daily exposing themselves to the danger of a collision with a street car—in fact jeopardizing their lives?

Remember that children become so engrossed with their play that they do not, sometimes, note approaching cars and run heedlessly in front of them.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

FEATHERS IN THE RING

Abe Attell and Owen Moran Will Meet at Colma.

Attell is Picked to Win and is Favorite in Betting.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1.—At 2:15 this afternoon, Abe Attell and Owen Moran, featherweight champions of America and the British Isles, respectively, will step into the ring to decide the question of international supremacy. Not since Joe Gans and Jimmy Britt came together in the Goldfield pavilion has there been such interest in a fight under the lightweight class. Hundreds of sporting men from all over the country are in San Francisco to see the lieel fellows go and it is expected the space around the ring at Colma, this afternoon, will be crowded with supporters of the two boys.

The fighters will weigh in at 11:45 this morning, to scale 130 pounds. The weight is easy for Attell as he has been holding around 121 for over a week past. For Moran, it is none too easy, however, and he may make a fraction over the weight. If he does, the difference will not be great, as he has been constantly taking off weight during the past few days and he will not be weak at the figure.

Attell is a hot favorite in the betting, although the fact that Moran is an unknown quantity, to a great extent, has held up the odds and 10 to 7 is about the best the Moran backers can get. In his own class, Attell hasn't an equal in the United States. He has disposed of all featherweights handily, his principal assets being speed and a wonderful wallop for a lighter so light. He is shifty, clever and has shown ability to wear down his opponents by ligitning boxing.

Moran came across from England some months ago with a long record of victories and but three defeats. When he disposed of Frankie Neil he was picked as the one boy, who could wrest the featherweight championship from Attell. He has speed, boxing ability and something of a wallop, but none of them in as great a degree as Attell. Whether he has the stamina to hold out against the American is a question, which only the fight will decide.

Moran has a large number of backers, both among the Englishmen and Americans, who are here to attend the fight. Both he and Attell express confidence in their own ability to go the route.

PLAYER FREE AGENT.

Cincinnati, Jan. 1.—The National Baseball commission yesterday handed down a decision in the case of Thomas Asmussen, in which the player was declared a free agent, but the Eau Claire club of the Wisconsin league, which brought the case, was given the right to reopen the case at any time that it could produce the contract that Asmussen was alleged to have signed.

Asmussen claimed that he signed no contract, and defied the club owners to produce one, claiming that any contract that was produced must be a forgery.

THE FIRST BIG GAME

Y. M. C. A. Will Meet Nelson Dewey Alumni Team Friday Night.

Game Will Open Heavy Schedule for the 1908 Season.

With the opening of the New Year, the members of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team are preparing to start on the real work of the season. Their first big game will be pulled off Friday night with the Nelson Dewey alumni team of Superior at the local gymnasium. The Superior boys are reported to be stronger than ever this year. In Lemieux and Henderson, they have two of the best basketball players in Northern Wisconsin and the other members of the team are old and tried players.

For about two months past, the members of the Duluth squad have been practicing constantly in preparation for a hard schedule. From now on, they go into more rigid training, subsisting on training table diet and holding more strenuous practice. The squad is a large one and the material the best available in Duluth. On the form shown by the boys thus far, their supporters expect great things of them, but a more accurate estimate of their ability can be made after the game Friday night.

The game this week is the first of a series of big contests with Blaine, Nelson Dewey, Nelson Dewey Alumni and Superior Normal. The Benidji team will also be played and it is expected that games with teams from other parts of the state will be secured later in the season. Blaine will be met at Superior, Jan. 9 and the Nelson Dewey regular school team will be here Jan. 17.

Y. M. C. A.	Position.	Nelson Dewey
Dinham	center	Birchoff
Fenton	forward	Lemlux
Ballou, McLean	forward	Whitney
Smith	guard	Henderson
Skelton	guard	Bischoff

How Big Are You?

If you can wear a 33, 34 or 35-size overcoat or suit, come to the "Fitwell" Clothing Parlors at once. Any suit or overcoat in the house, in the above sizes, are now only $10, and there are some values among them that sold regularly for $30. Don't wait too long. The cheapest garment in the lot sold for $20, and most of them at $25.

NEW YEAR'S DAY SPORTS

Hockey Season to be Opened With St. Paul Seven.

Horse Racing, Curling, Skating, Skiing and Ice Boating.

Hockey, horse racing, curling, skiing, skating and ice-boating will give pleasure to their respective devotees of sport in Duluth today.

At the new open-air rink at Athletic park, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Northern Hardware hockey team will play its first big game of the season, when it will meet the National Guard team of St. Paul, playing under the name of the Mic-Macs. The National Guard team won the championship of the Twin City Hockey league last year, and is now considered the best seven in the lower part of the state.

The Northerns have been practicing hard the past few days. The cold weather has put the ice in excellent condition, everything has been done to insure the comfort of the crowd, and it is expected the hockey season will be fittingly inaugurated. The teams will probably line up as follows:

Northern.	Position.	St. Paul.
Deetz	center	Palmer
Steinback	right wing	Idler
Winters	rover	Taylor
Miller	cover	Foley
Furni	point	McGregor
Fenton	goal	Minser

On the ice track at the foot of Twentieth avenue west this afternoon lovers of horse racing will see two of the speediest ice events in recent years. There will be a free-for-all pace and free-for-all trot, in each of which some of the best talent at the Head of the Lakes is entered. In the free-for-all pace Tomango, 2:22½; Ole Boy, 2:10½; Kitty D., 2:22½, and Captain C., 2:21¼, will start for the Henderson trophy. In the free-for-all trot Luxon, Kitty Birchwood, Mount P. and Black Chief are entered. The first heat will be run off promptly at 2:30. Besides the two events, there will be a number of brushes between other speeders, which will be put on the track later in the season.

* * *

At both the Duluth and Western Curling rinks, games will be played on all rinks today. At the Duluth rink, play will progress in The Herald trophy and St. Louis Hotel trophy competitions, both of which have been begun. Thus far this season, play has been close and interesting in both of the competitions and some warm contests will be pulled off this afternoon and evening.

* * *

At the two curling rinks, the ball park and Twelfth avenue east rinks, on the bay and the boulevard pond, the skaters will hold forth in all the glory of firm ice and frosty weather. At both curling rinks, there will be music this evening for the skaters and both encloseures will be crowded. On the bay, there is very little snow and long stretches of clear ice, which will be utilized by the steel runner speeders.

* * *

Impromptu skiing will be the rule. The hill at Chester creek is in no condition yet for actual riding and the ski devotees must content themselves with any chance slides they may encounter around the elevations near the boulevard. On the top of the hill, there is enough snow for skiing, and some will enjoy the sport.

* * *

Ice boating has taken hold of a considerable number and the unwieldly speeders will be out today to be sent before the light wind.

DANIELSON WILL ACCEPT

Andrew Danielson emitted a merry "Ha Ha," when he read the challenge of Sten Walstrom, modern Goliath, in last evening's issue of The Herald. The belated sporting editor had barely arrived at the office, this morning, with a grouch acquired of a non-sufficiency of sleep, after waiting the old year out, when the telephone bell rang hysterically. Danielson hadn't lost any time about snapping up the challenge.

"He didn't, but he's willin'" replied the sportive scribe.

"Just as soon as he puts up the coin. I'll cover it so fast, it'll make his eyes blink. He throw me three times in an hour? Not much." With another audible smile, he jammed down the receiver.

It's up to Mr. Walstrom, elephantine grappler, to make good. He said yesterday, he's willing to agree to throw Danielson three times in an hour, or lose a side bet of $25. As soon as he posts the money with The Herald, Danielson will be hot on his trail for the match.

Danielson and Gilbert will probably come together in Superior some time next week. The men across the bay have unbounded faith in their cowboy wrestler and are backing him to the limit to beat Danielson. On the showing he made at the Met with Mauritz Harris, he can't beat the proverbial carpet, but his Superior friends think differently. Danielson is certain he can throw the Superior man and is keen for the match.

MINNEAPOLIS QUOTATIONS POSTED ON EXCHANGE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 1.—Tuesday, for the first time in several years, the quotations of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce were posted on the trading floor of the exchange. The fear of bucketshops being eliminated, the directors decided that it was safe to restore the figures where they can be observed by all in the room.

In large illuminated letters, under the clock appear the words "Quotations for Members Trading on the Floor Only." This is a warning to outsiders and buckeshops that by the decisions of the courts, the figures belong to the chamber of commerce exclusively and must not be taken for private business.

RAILROAD NEWS

STATIONS ARE CLOSED

Evidently the railroads are determined that they will not let the law providing for an 8-hour day for telegraphers increase operating expenses. The cut in hours will be met by closing smaller stations along the line, and taking the men from these places and putting them in the larger offices, in order to provide for three shifts, instead of two, as at present.

In Wisconsin a state 8-hour law becomes effective today, and the occasion is marked by closing several Wisconsin Central offices. It is understood that the Omaha, Northern Pacific and other roads running through the state will follow the example set by the Wisconsin Central. The national 8-hour law for railroad telegraphers does not become effective until March, but when it does go in force it is expected there will be a wholesale closing of small offices, in order that the requirements of the law may be met with and the number of employes kept at the old figure.

Official notice has been issued by the Wisconsin Central that, beginning today the following stations on the Wisconsin Central will be without railway telegraph service: Hurley, Iron Belt, Dorchester, Stetsonville, Westboro, Flield and Highbridge. The telegraph instruments will be taken out of these stations. Hurley has an independent Western Union office, but the other towns named cannot be reached by telegraph, beginning today.

This order is made in consequence of the new 8-hour law, which forbids railway telegraph operators from working more than eight hours per day. The company will put in three operators on 8-hour shifts, where two are now employed, at Ashland, Mellen, Phillips and Medford. It is said the Omaha will not close any offices, but will keep agents there, ony taking out the telegraph instruments and laying off the operators where operators and agents both are employed. Where an operator is also doing the work of station agent, he will be retained, it is understood, but hereafter will act only as station agent, with no wire work at all.

It is understood that telephones only will be used at Shell Lake, Clear Lake, Deer Park, Boardman and Stanton. At Ashland the Omaha, it is understood, will have only two operators, but they will work eight hours each, a night man being done away with entirely. At Washburn the same condition will hold true. The law is particularly disagreeable at this time, when the roads are trying to cut down expenses to the lowest possible notch.

PASSES CUT OUT.

The New Anti-Pass Law is Now Effective.

People who are accustomed to receive annual passes from the railroads are having a hard time adjusting themselves to new conditions. The anti-pass railroad law becomes effective today, and hundreds of men who rode on passes last year will have to pay cash in 1908.

The general public is not sure that the law will be strictly enforced, and scores of letters of inquiry are being received by local railroad officials. It may become necessary to get out a circular letter in answer to these numerous queries. A small number of people actually employed by railroads are still entitled to passes.

CHANGE IN SERVICE.

Northern Pacific Takes Off Dining and Sleeping Cars.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 1.—The Northern Pacific railroad has made a change in the dining and sleeping-car service in and out of this point. The dining car which came into Fargo from St. Paul on No. 7 and left here on No. 5 the next morning for Billings, returning to St. Paul on No. 6, has been discontinued, the last car going east on No. 6 Wednesday.

The standard sleeper which came into this place on No. 13 from St. Paul and was set out here, going west to Billings on No. 5 and returning on No. 6, has also been discontinued, making these trains without dining or sleeping car facilities.

The dining car and Pullman service on Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 will continue as in the past.

Railroad Men Dance.

There were two dances given in Duluth last evening by railroad men, and both were very successful ones from every standpoint. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen made merry at the Spalding, and the Switchmen's union held their annual dance at the Armory. The attendance in each instance was large.

Electric Line to Coast.

The latest electric road report is one emanating from Fargo, to the effect that the North Dakota town will be made one of the main points on a new third-rail electric line from the Twin Cities to Seattle. S. A. Phillips is promoter of the proposed line.

Office is Abolished.

The office of trainmaster of the Fargo division of the Northern Pacific will be discontinued at Fargo, beginning today. Fred Brasted, present trainmaster, will go back on the road as conductor. The change is in line with the policy of the road to cut down expenses.

SUPERIOR NEWS

CELEBRATE NEW YEAR.

The new year was ushered in at Superior last evening with numerous entertainments and celebrations. There were many private parties besides the public entertainments, and the occasion was a joyous one in every way.

The twentieth annual "hogmanay" of the Clan Cameron lodge was held at Agen hall, where a specially prepared program was rendered, followed by dancing and refreshments. James Bardon, who recently returned from a trip abroad, gave a talk on his travels in Scotland.

At Oddfellows' Temple a fine program was rendered by Harmony lodge No. 189, I. O. G. T. Several members of the lodge presented a farce comedy entitled "The Liquor Agent."

At Maryland hall the Trades and Labor assembly gave its annual New Year's ball. The hall was nicely decorated and the attendance was large.

May Leave Superior.

Dispatches from New York yesterday stated that Ogden Hammond of the firm of Stratton & Hammond will make his residence in New York in the future, and that the partnership will be dissolved. Mr. Stratton says that Mr. Hammond is in New York for the winter. Further than this Mr. Stratton declines to discuss the matter. The firm is one of the pioneer real estate concerns of the city. Mr. Hammond was married about a year ago to a wealthy young woman who resides near New York.

Taxes Are Being Paid.

About $11,000 more in taxes were paid into the city treasury in December last year than during the same month in 1906. There is $244,000 of the current taxes remaining unpaid. One of the largest single tax payments was made yesterday by Peter Truax of Eau Claire, who paid to the city $3,077.42. The street railway company's taxes are $5,000, and this amount was paid some time ago. The tax rolls will be turned over to the county treasurer March 15, at which time a 5 per cent penalty attaches.

DISSOLVES PARTNERSHIP.

The well-known firm of Johnson & Moe will dissolve partnership February 1st. Full particulars of this event will be given later. In the meantime a large sum of money must be realied. Tomorrow morning the big West end department store will begin a sale of seasonable merchandise that offers sensational values. A partial list of the good things appeared in last evening's Herald, but the full extent of the reductions can only be learned by a personal visit to the store.

WOULD SETTLE MONEY MATTERS WITH GUN.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 1.—A man named George Elliott' has been brought to the insane hospital in this city, having been committed from Todd county. Elliott's mental derangement appears to have been brought about by brooding over the recent financial crisis. He finally became possessed of the idea that he could settle the nation's difficulties if he had sufficient money, and going to the Bank of Staples demanded $20,000. Realizing that the cashier might not be willing to turn over such an amount, he informed him that unless the money was forthcoming, he would immediately blow up the whole institution. The cashier parleyed with him until assistance arrived, when he was taken into custody and conveyed to the county seat, where he was adjudged insane.

OFFICIAL STATE PAPER

Of Wisconsin American Society of Equity is Proposed.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 1.—The Eau Claire county branch of the American Society of Equity has chosen the following officers for the ensuing year: President, C. N. Luce; vice president, Fred Smith; secretary, George B. McLellan; treasurer, Frank Nix; delegates at large, George Cliff and E. E. Tobey; delegates to state convention, Otto Ness, C. W. Hale, John Ring, Clarence Sprague, William A. Cornahan, J. E. Larence, Charles Rabensdorf and Fred Copp.

An important matter to be considered by the American Society of Equity, which convenes here in state convention, Jan. 14, is the establishment of an official state paper. The membership in this section of the state is strong and most of the state officers are from this vicinity. The census of opinion here seems to be that the paper entitled Equity, published at Menomonie, be made the official paper, and moved to Madison, here it is proposed that the headquarters of the society be established.

MUCH STATE WORK

To be Contracted for by State Board of Control.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of control within the next two months will invite bids for construction work representing an outlay of about $350,000.

This includes equipment, the money for the work having been set aside by the last legislature. Bids on some of this work were called for last month and the month previous, but the offers proved to be so high that hey were rejected. All of them exceeded the appropriation. The bids to be called for are:

Feb. 1, model school, Moorhead; wing to Faribault school for deaf. Feb. 8, nurses' dormitory, Rochester; extension for main building, contagious hospital, Fergus Falls; plumbing and heating at Fergus Falls. Feb. 15, model school building, Mankato; tubercular hospital, St. Peter.

At a meeting yesterday the board approved plans and specifications for all these improvements.

EXONERATED FOR KILLING.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wallie Arnold has been exonerated by the coroner's jury at Missoula, Mont., for shooting George Morris, an Austrian. The evidence in the case showed plainly that the killing was done purely in self-defense, and it took the jury but a few minutes to bring in its verdict.

DIED SUDDENLY.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO SUFFERING MEN

From the Progressive Medical Specialists. They Have Cured 2,643 Men in the Past Year From Diseases, Many of Which Were Pronounced Incurable by Great Surgeons and Doctors.

This number of cured men is only a small fraction of the many thousand sick and suffering. Health is better than wealth, and we wish you both, but if you are sick it will pay you to consult the Duluth Specialists before you go elsewhere and spend money and time. Among those we have cured are many who have been in a most deplorable condition, covered with ulcers from top to toe—others with eczema crusts and crippled with rheumatism—and it is only through our advanced knowledge of the science of healing and the experience of years in the application of curative methods which has made us able to get the results of a cure, even in many of the most hopeless cases. Every day brings us letters from out of town patients thanking us for what we have done for them. These letters are here for your inspection. Remember, that among the 125 doctors in Duluth and Superior, we are the ONLY SPECIALISTS IN MEN'S DISEASES, and it stands to reason that, because our practice is limited to such a very small field of diseases that we know the ins and outs of men's diseases one hundred and fifty times better than others who handle all kinds of diseases.

Mr. Vail of Evanston, Chicago, writes: "My Dear Doctor—I want to let you know that ever since six months I have not had the slightest pain in my knee, thanks to your wonderful method of curing. As I told you before, I have been in bed most of the time for the last 10 years and spent almost all my money with doctoring till, as a last resort, I took my refuge to you, being advised by my friends to do so, and today I thank you next to God for my health."

We do not walk in the same old beaten paths of cutting and bleeding and pain. Thas is old, and today specialists are using the dissolving method and that of bloodless surgery. You can not cure by cutting, but you can cure by healing. Real diseases can only be cured by these methods, successfully, and we do it. We cure men down from syphilis to consumption, from stomach trouble to cancers—all without the knife—and you can be cured of any trouble no matter how long you have had it. Consultation is free and you are always welcome from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. No. 1 West Superior street, Duluth.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

In it the people of this country have passed from the heights of a too boisterous prosperity to the depths of a too exaggerated panic, and the new year finds them slowly but surely climbing out of the morasses of despondency and finding a firm foothold upon the high ground of renewed hope and assurance of continued prosperity.

As The Herald has said from the first, "it is not going to be much of a shower after all;" but it has been a lesson and a warning, and if it is heeded it will be worth every cent and every pang it cost. The drop from the top of the wave into the trough was inevitable, because the wave ran too high to keep it up. Upon a firm foundation of real prosperity, created by the production of real wealth from the natural resources of the country, we had built up a filagreed array of gingerbread architecture, beautiful but woefully insecure, by our gambling and discounting of the future. We did not call it gambling, but we might as well admit that that is just what it was. We "boomed" everything to the fullest extent of our capacity, filling the bubble with air until our lungs were empty. Then when it burst from over-expansion, and the ornate superstructure of speculation collapsed for the same reason, for a moment we feared that the foundations were harmed. But they were not; they are as firm as ever. In a short time we shall be building up that mass of fancy architecture again, and if we fail to remember our lesson of 1907, we shall build it so high and so vast that when it falls again it will weaken the foundation.

The black experience of the fall of 1907 was meant as a warning. If we heed it, and proceed with our new lease of prosperity conservatively and sanely, we can make it last indefinitely.

It has been a year of vast progress in the training of the public service corporations, in which the trusts must be included. We have shown them that we mean business; that they must serve the public and not seek to bring the people into servitude to them. We have shown them that no selfishly distorted idea of the "rights of property" will permit them to exploit the people for the benefit of a few. By their improvements, their elimination of wasteful competition and useless expenditures, they are saving money, and that is well; but the people mean to have their share of the benefits. The trusts are not to be permitted, by concealing their schemes behind watered capital, to absorb an undue share of the nation's prosperity. They are not to be permitted to debauch and corrupt the people's servants, for every last dollar of their expenditures must be open to scrutiny, for the benefit of the public as well as that of the stockholders who have been in the past little better off than the public. They are not to be denied fair profits on honest investments, but they are not to be allowed to collect exorbitant profits on watered capital. In short, they are to be made the servants of the people, not the masters of the people.

* * *

Even the weather has been strange in this late lamented 1907. The spring carried a breath of winter on late into the summer. The summer was short and fiercely hot. The winter, thus far, has been extraordinarily mild. The seasons have been marvelously mixed, and we had January in March, March in June, June in August, and October in December.

And 1908; what of the New Year that has just been born? No man may tear away the veil that hides tomorrow from today. All we can know is that we have stepped from the old year into the new, and that we face with hope and courage a future rosy with promise. We have that future, to a very great degree, in our own making. If our hope is high enough, our aims pure enough and our energy strong enough, we can make what we will of the new year. In Today we have the plastic material out of which we must fashion Tomorrow. We can live but one day at a time. Yesterday is gone forever; Tomorrow will never come. We have but Today in which to live, and by our manner of living in Today we shall shape the character of our Tomorrow.

Face to face with the New Year, therefore, let us go forward confident and unafraid; buoyed by our hopes, strengthened by the sincerity of our ambitions and made brave by the consciousness that our cause is just.

AN IMPORTED CUSTOM.

In the elaborate gaieties that marked the passing of the old year last night in New York and Chicago, it is worthy of note that for the occasion a number of fashionable cafes abolished their rule which forbids women to smoke in public.

Accordingly, in these restaurants, the amazed New Year looked for the first time in this country upon the public spectacle of fair women enjoying their after-supper cigarettes.

Of course the relaxation of the rule was for last night only, but it breaks the ice, and it is not at all difficult to foresee that in a very short time it will become a regular thing, as it is now in European centers.

Now if the women of this country wish to smoke, they will probably smoke. If they wish to smoke in public, that will probably come, too. If the women can stand it, very likely the men can get along. There is no particular reason why men should be allowed to smoke and women forbidden to enjoy the same vice, except that the men of this country have been in the habit of putting woman upon a lofty pedestal, and that they would rather she would stay there. If she wants to get down, that is her privilege. But she must expect to find the atmosphere changed for her after she does step down.

It is doubtful if any man ever saw a woman smoke, and failed to realize that she had dropped several degrees in his estimation. He may get used to it, but she'll never be the same to him again.

DULUTH AND THE NEW YEAR.

Duluth, standing firmly upon the foundation of natural advantages out of which she is making her future, looks into the New Year with courage and complacency.

The wave of temporary panic and depression that swept over the country in the fall only laved her feet with spent and harmless ripples. Like the rest of the country she paused for the moment to take breath and to shake off the obsession of speculation that had possessed her in common with the rest of the land. The experience has merely steadied her and proved her mettle, and now we know that she is fitted to go ahead and conquer in the year into which she has just stepped.

The coming twelvemonth holds forth glorious promises to Duluth. A great new steel plant, several new railroads, many new business houses and industries, handsome new buildings of all sorts and sizes, the opening of new territory to her industries, a quicker growth both in population and prosperity: these are the things that give her people courage and faith in the future.

In spite of the "panic" of two months ago; indeed, in part, because of the lessons it taught, Duluth never faced a new year with brighter prospects and greater assurances. The sky, lately dark with fear, is red with the glint of the sun of promise. In the new era of prosperity that is dawning Duluth will have its share, and will do its part in the work of uplifting and upbuilding.

GARBAGE AND POWER.

Chairman T. T. Hudson of the charter commission, in a communication published in The Herald last evening, replied to The Herald's criticisms of the proposed charter amendment reorganizing the health department to authorize the utilization of the power generated by the burning of garbage in the city incinerator.

He stated that the amendment does not authorize the proposed health commission to "generate power" as The Herald said, but to save the power already being generated, and to make it available for use. Of course that is what The Herald meant. It did not suppose for a moment that the health commission was to do anything more than utilize such power as the burning of garbage will provide. The only question involved is whether or not the prospects of profit from power generated in the incinerator are great enough to warrant the expense of experimenting with a plant to utilize that power. As to that The Herald is very skeptical. It may be that at some future time, when the city is much greater than it is today, the accumulation of garbage and street-sweeping will be great enough to produce in its incineration power in profitable quantities. It seems very improbable that this would be the case now or for some time to come.

The Herald certainly does not wish to be unfair in the matter. In its previous discussion it approved the commission plan proposed by the amendment. It believes thoroughly in this method of handling public utilities of whatever nature that are municipally owned; and it should be stated that the proposed amendment does not make the utilization of power from the incinerator compulsory; it leaves it entirely in the discretion of the health commission, and if that body should be constituted as similar bodies in Duluth are now, it would be in eminently safe hands. The amendment simply opens the door for an experiment which The Herald believes to be impracticable, but it provides that it shall not be attempted unless the commission deems it feasible and practical. It was the attempted combination of the commission plan with this doubtful experiment that The Herald criticised.

It is true that the board of public works does not collect garbage. Anybody that wants to try to make a living at it does that, and the most the board of public works can do is to see that those who deposit garbage in public thoroughfares dispose of it. As a matter of fact, the disposal of garbage is attended at present by no systematic control whatever, there being no method by which any authority can either let proper contracts for handling it, or by which the city can do the work itself. Not even the health department has effectual control over it.

Unquestionably it is desirable that this condition should be changed. In the interests of a clean city, the collection of garbage should be under some recognized and effectual control—if, indeed, the city should not do the work itself and make the profits upon it which a private contractor would expect. Whether the proposed amendment settles this problem, or provides a promising method of settling it, is a question for the voters to determine when they pass upon the amendment at the polls next month. It is far more important than the fanciful experiment of producing power by the burning of garbage.

THE FOOTPATH OF PEACE.

Take into the New Year with you a recipe for peace and happiness, a formula the use of which will make for contentment, courage and calmness—for health of body, mind and soul.

If you will commit to memory these words by Henry Van Dyke, one of the sweetest, sanest and healthiest writers living today, and will think of them every day during the coming year, they will give you a new and comforting peace of mind:

> To be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars; to be satisfied with your possessions but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them; to despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing except cowardice; to be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgusts; to covet nothing that is your neighbor's except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manner; to think seldom of your enemies, often of your friends, and every day of Christ; and to spend as much time as you can, with body and with spirit, in God's out-of-doors: these are little guideposts on the Footpath of Peace.

THE PASSING SHOW.

The fathers couldn't have been much afraid of "paternalism," or they never would have established the post-office service.

The class that objects to laws putting a limit on greed is the class that most devotedly adores laws protecting property rights.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The most popular idea of kangaroos, is that they are fairly large and cumbersome creatures, not generally cut out for dainty and lithesome house pets. So they are—some of them. But they also have a species in the land where Bob Fitzsimmons hailed from that are not much larger than the white mice that gambol on the floor of the summer kitchen.

Mice never gamble on anything but floors and green sward.

A. J. Phelps, a traveling man stopping at the Lenox, met a theatrical team, out in Frisco, that had a couple of kangaroos for cabin passengers on the return trip from the antipodes. The team, or that is, the members of it, were telling him of the cuteness of the little animals. He naturally asked what was to become of the kangaroos after they grew big enough to start mischief with the good fish in the front parlor, when the information came forth that there are several sizes and allotments of the strong tailed animals in the land of contradictions.

Some of the species, according to Mr. Phelps informants, grow no bigger than an ordinary kitten. They range from this size to the size one is accustomed to seeing in circuses and police vaudeville.

So according to the San Francisco theatrical team, who ought to know, for they walked through miles of country, they have sizes of the kangaroo starting from the large rat size and extending to the size that race railroad trains just for the sport of hanging a black mark on the genius of Robert Fulton.

They were young and sweet and—well, inexperienced. She was fond of good things to eat and he was fond of her. So, forsooth, he asked her to dine with him at one of the local hotels.

Their confidence and composure was not over par when they entered the dining room. When they almost simultaneously spied "canape caviar," and discovered that they could not pronounce the order, with perfect assurance of not being a little north of the correct accent, they both tried to look wise, and of course didn't succeed.

Menus are an awful stumbling block to social enjoyment. You have to yell for assistance at times.

Calfs' sweetbreads, breast of squab, and butter ball duck was all to the good, but "chicken Far Rockaway" was a trifle puzzling. They had both heard of Plymouth Rocks, down in Eau Claire, but Far Rockaways was a new one in the fowl register book.

Prime rib beef, au jus, went by without a challenge. They both ordered, for pronounceable dishes were scarce. Mashed potatoes, too, were placed on the dinner complement. They both longed for young turkey, but it had something attached to it that they were not sure of pronouncing, and rather than make a display of ignorance they gave appetite the go by.

Suckling pig with apple sauce is not hard to articulate, so that was also placed on the order list. "These 'ere French must like to eat," confided the young man, with a worried look in his blue eye; "for they have named most of the victuals on there 'ere bill of fare."

"Oh, yes," assented the young lady, "they have chosen a line of appetite queliers that I never did care for." This last was said with just a slight touch of superiority.

And so the dinner passed into history. They never sampled the Brother Jonathans, nor the essence of capon, nor the fillet of black flounder, Johnville, for they didn't trust their bearings in this fog of food.

So their ignorance of French kept the dinner down to East Aurora proportions. They had suckling pig, with apple sauce—you can get that back on the farm—and prime roast beef, sweet breads, mashed potatoes, coffee and ice cream and raisins. They were both just a trifle disappointed. If you went to the grand opera and Caruso didn't sing, wouldn't you be?

But at that they had a pretty good time.

Shucks!

Jim Smith's the most contrariest man
Wuz ever lickt;
Can't say a thing but what he's boun'
He'll contradict.
He wun't dispoot ye out 'n 'out,
But snorts ye back an answer 'bout
"Shucks!"
Jest "Shucks!"

I argy with him half the day
On politics;
Jim's 'way back yet in Jackson's time,
An' there he sticks;
I tell him things has moved since then;
He aims a squirt an' grunts again:
"Shucks!"
Jest "Shucks!"

I read him all the newest things
The paper quotes;
'Bout airograms an' subway ships,
An' flyin' boats.
I ask him: "Ain't it marvellus?"
But Jim, he chuckles with a cuss
"Shucks!"
Jest "Shucks!"

I bet ye when the summons comes From Gabriel
To gather all the folks aroun'
An' sort 'em well
If Jim's assigned a heavenly place
He'll growl, wi' onbellevin' face,
"Shucks!"
Jest "Shucks!"

The Monthly Examination.

Puck: Students at the college of poetry are required to answer correctly any five of the following six questions at the end of the first month's instruction:

1. Should auld acquaintance be forgot?
2. Where are the snows of yesterday?
3. Tell me where is Fancy bred?
4. Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
5. The boy, oh where was he? (b) And when the sun set, where were they?
6. Breathes there a man with soul so dead?

THE WEATHER.

The New Year started in as the old one ended—in perfect winter weather. It was colder, last night's lowest temperature being 2 degs. below zero, but it was still and bright and beautiful. The Northwest was dotted with below-zero marks this morning, and Duluth seems to have been at the southern extremity of a cold wave. The weather man says it will be a little colder tonight, when the thermometer may drop to 10 degs. below zero, but that it will be milder tomorrow afternoon, when the northerly winds will shift to easterly.

A year ago today it was dull and cloudy and snow was falling.

The sun rose this morning at 7:54, and set tonight at 4:30, making 8 hours and 36 minutes of sunlight. The afternoon is now 11 minutes longer than the shortest, and the day is 9 minutes longer.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Low temperatures are the rule throughout the Northwest this morning, attending an area of high barometric pressure central over Saskatchewan. The coldest reported was 23 degs. below zero at Battleford. The barometer continues low off the North Pacific coast. Temperatures have moderated somewhat over Western Manitoba and Southern Alberta. Light snow fell during Thursday or last night over British Columbia and the Upper Michigan peninsula. The outlook favors continued fair weather in this locality tonight and Thursday, with milder temperatures Thursday afternoon and night."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

Battleford	−25	Madison	14
Bismarck	0	Medicine Hat	−8
Calgary	10	Miles City	8
Devils Lake	−14	Milwaukee	18
Duluth	−2	Minnedosa	−28
Edmonton	−22	Moorhead	−8
Escanaba	−22	Pierre	0
Green Bay	4	Port Arthur	0
Havre	32	Regina	−20
Helena	18	St. Paul	6
Houghton	18	Swift Current	−14
Huron	−6	Williston	−12
Kamloops	20	Winnipeg	−12
Marquette	18

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Jan. 1.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Vermillion and Mesaba iron ranges—Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; slightly colder tonight with lowest temperature about 10 degs. below zero; rising temperature Thursday afternoon; north winds, becoming easterly Thursday.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Thursday: Upper Michigan—Generally fair tonight and Thursday, except snow near Lake Superior tonight; colder in north portion tonight.

Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; colder in east portion tonight.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; colder in southeast portion tonight.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; colder in south portion tonight.

Business Discrimination.

Northfield News: A serious blow has been aimed at the special privileges enjoyed by Twin City merchants and jobbers by the business men of Duluth which threatens a diminution of their profits and is liable to result in their being obliged to pay taxes on their stocks. It appears that it has been customary for the railroads to store for extended periods goods from the East consigned to St. Paul and Minneapolis importers without charge. The way this worked out was that the jobbers did not have the freight moved until it was needed for immediate disposal or until it was sold outright. The importers were thus not only relieved of the expense incident to maintaining warehouses of their own, but the goods, although remaining at the head of the lakes for months at a time were regarded as being in transit and thus escaped assessment for taxation purposes altogether. For a long time this unfair kind of competition has been a source of annoyance and loss of business to Duluth jobbers who had to pay their own storage and had no device for dodging the tax collector, but they saw no way of preventing it. Since the passage of the federal rate bill, however, a remedy has been found; and complaint has been made before the interstate commerce commission that the favors shown Twin City shippers by transportation companies are in effect a discrimination against men in other sections of the state engaged in the same business and, therefore, unlawful. Previous decisions in parallel cases leaves little room for doubt that ultimately Twin City importers will either have to warehouse their own goods or pay railroad companies a reasonable charge for storage privileges.

A Good Beginning.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Plain, practical common sense is a most excellent qualification for kings as well as for common folk, and Sweden is to be congratulated on the accession of a monarch who seems to possess this qualification in a marked degree. His majesty King Gustav V on his recent succession to the throne was importuned to make a grand demonstrative display, on the occasion of his coronation, for the honor and glory of Sweden. After due consideration his majesty has announced that he will not have any coronation. He says in effect that he has the crown and is permanently placed on the throne. He needs nothing to confirm his title or to validate his sovereignty, and, consequently, the coronation ceremony is unnecessary. To hold such a ceremony would be merely for show, and, while it might be made a very attractive show indeed, pleasing to the people and gratifying to royal pride, yet on the whole, he thinks it would cost more than it would come to. Sweden is poor just now; the universal depression in business has hurt her commerce and injured her industries, and the country cannot afford to indulge in a coronation pageant, which, however magnificent or however modest, would, under any circumstances, be very expensive, and expense merely for display his majesty regards as unjustifiable at this time. The sober and sensible people of the world will commend the king's prudence and wisdom, and his people will doubtless rejoice in the assurance that he is making a very good beginning indeed.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Mankato Free Press: Speaker Cannon's high-handed course is not helping the Republican party, and the quicker he is made aware of that fact the better will it be for the political organization which has advanced him to his present high position. The American people do not take kindly to one-man power, and some day they will rise up in their might and assert themselves and put a stop to Joe Cannon's czar-like actions in the house of representatives.

St. Hilaire Spectator: About the only way we will ever be able to get even with Joe Cannon will be to have him run for president.

Floodwood Broadaxe: Here's greetings of the season to the producers of our land, accompanied with our prayer that they may be saved from the snare of organized greed.

Roseau Region: The spread of prohibition in the South recalls the famous remark addressed to the governor of North Carolina by the governor of South Carolina. The governor's saying has a double significance today.

Virginia Enterprise: Thomas W. Lawson is the sponsor of a new political party, with Theodore Roosevelt and John A. Johnson as the chosen candidates for president and vice president respectively. With all due respect to the originator of the new faith without a name, we would suggest that the names be transferred.

Buffalo Journal: Thomas W. Lawson has sprung a new one. He declares a new political party will be launched, with Roosevelt and John Johnson as candidates for president and vice president. He says he does not care whether they accept or not, they will be nominated and elected. Properly managed, this would work out all right, as the people will vote for Roosevelt if they are given a chance, even if he was on an anarchist ticket.

Princeton Union: If we escape the lumber trust and the brick trust sharks by building our houses with concrete, then the cement trust sharks will get us.

Marshall News-Messenger (Rep.): We agree with Lawson that Roosevelt should be forced to succeed himself, and otherwise we are stronger than ever in the belief that John A. Johnson will be the next president of the United States.

Warren Sheaf: Thomas W. Lawson suggests a new party for the next campaign, with Theodore Roosevelt as the candidate for president and Governor Johnson of Minnesota for vice president. That looks very much like hitching a horse to each end of the cart. It is not likely that the voters will forget their political likes and dislikes to such an extent as to elect such a ticket, admirable though it may be.

An Apron String.

I'm a foolish little apron—
Lawn and lace, you know the kind—
With blue bowknots on my pockets,
And pert strings that tie behind;
But I wreak the deadliest havoc
That the heart of maid could wish,
When she wears me, superintending
Rarebits in a chafing dish.

Be it boys of gay and twenty,
Or grave widowers, twoscore,
Be it benedict, or even
The elusive bachelor—
When they meet my ways beguiling,
Oh, I chuckle while I win!
For they all say she is, somehow,
"So intensely feminine!"

She has given up athletics;
It's no longer worth her while
To acquire tan and freckles—
Golf meant many a weary mile!
I'm a foolish little apron,
But there's nothing that can vie
In man's heart with such a combine
As that chafing dish and I.

Do Your Share.

Brother, onward striving,
Do your share.
And without repining
Do your share.
Do the work you're called to,
And God will reward you.
Be it great or little,
Do your share!

Brother, help your neighbor!
That's your share.
Help your fallen brother.
That's your share.
Show a loving token
To a heart that's broken;
Reach to it a hand.
That's your share.

Then when your work is o'er
You'll be paid.
Yes, many measures more
You'll be paid.
Knows all—each inmost part,
A Judge who knows your heart
Will say, "your work is done!"
Then, you'll be paid.

MIRTHFUL REMARKS.

Brooklyn Life: The Professor—I want you children to go to my lecture tonight.

Robert—Couldn't you whip us instead, just this once, papa?

Houston Post: "How did pa act when you asked him for my hand?"

"Very gentle and courteous; it quite took me by surprise."

"I told him you used to be a pugilist."

Chicago Tribune: "I have always had a curiosity to know what horse meat tastes like," said the regular customer. "Have you any?"

"Not as such," emphatically responded the butcher.

Cleveland Leader: The Lady—Why didn't you speak to me on the car yesterday?

The Man—I didn't think you saw me.

The Lady—Why, I stick out my tongue, and made all kinds of faces at you!

The Man—Oh, is that what you were doing? I thought you were adjusting your veil.

Chicago News: "Darling," said old Moneybags, "I could just die kissing you."

"That being the case," rejoined his young and pretty fiancee, "we'll cut out the osculation until after we are married."

Philadelphia Press: "There was a time," said young Rakeleigh, who had gone through a fortune, "when people used to say I had more money than brains, but they can't say it now."

"Why not?" asked Peppry.

"Because I am down to my last dollar, now."

"Well, but you've got the dollar."

Chicago Tribune: "All that you are, my friend," said the lecturer, singling out an elderly man sitting in a front seat, who appeared to be deeply interested, "all that you are, I repeat, you owe to heredity and environment."

"Gosh!" exclaimed the elderly man, turning red with indignation, "I never had no dealin's with that firm in my life, and I don't owe them nor nobody else a blamed cent!"

Maxims From the Market.

Wall Street Journal: Look not too much in the face of the cares that crowd around you today. Nine-tenths of them can wait, and most of these will look different tomorrow or the next day, or next year. Do the work that has the next claim upon you, and do it without a divided thought as to what tomorrow will bring forth. The worth of your work will lie largely in conceiving of today's tasks as the best friends you have. The past has been. The future is not. THOUGHT HE WAS DEAD

Andrew Olsen Was Only Very Drunk When Arrested.

Three Vags of "Christiania Gang" Type Get Stiff Sentences.

The police thought Andrew Olson had drowned himself with booze yesterday. When Officer Roberg picked him up on the Bowery, shortly before 5 o'clock, he was all in. He was lying in the gutter on Michigan street, in a state of drunken coma, the officer came upon him, called the patrol wagon and carted him to the station. He was booked up as "John Doe," placed in the cell room and for four hours didn't come out of his stupor, when he was given a sentence of $40 and costs or thirty days. Andrew will open the new year by spending the first month in the county jail.

Fred Mauser, a Hermantown farmer, is a good judge of horse-flesh and a poor judge of whisky. His stable always contains some blooded steeds, and every time he comes to the city, his system is full of very bad booze. Fred is a jovial boy when sober, and a terror when drunk. Jailer Nelson encountered him on Garfield avenue last night, trying to resist the efforts of a $350 horse to carry him home. Sentence was suspended.

* * *

John Paulson, Albert Stean and Harold Anderson were said to have been working along the line of the "Christiania gang" on the Bowery. Peter Peterson reported the loss of $20 yesterday and believed the three got away with it, but couldn't prove his case. They were found with tickets to St. Paul and were arrested as vags. They pleaded guilty this morning and drew sentences of $50 and costs or sixty days in jail, each.

* * *

According to the story told in court this morning, Ben G. Armstrong tried to protect the waitress at a Superior street restaurant, from insult, about 4 o'clock this morning, and got into an altercation with Sam Johnson one of a gang hanging about the place, and both were arrested on a disorderly conduct charge. Both entered pleas of guilty this morning and Armstrong explained his quixiotic action in butting into a crowd to stop indecent language. Johnson denied using indecent language and the court ended their argument by letting them both off with the minimum fine of $1 and costs or three days. They had been out on bail this morning and paid up.

* * *

John Aleman and Harry Rappapur, two newsboys, made a night of it last night, strolling about the city. They had an argument over the Atrell-Marino fight about 6 o'clock this morning on West Superior street, tried to settle it by proxy, and were hauled in by Officers Hunter and Beckman on a disorderly conduct charge. Sentence was suspended.

was not contemplated by the law relating to trust companies that they should engage in the same business as banks. In practice, however, they have engaged in the banking business on a large scale and the moneys deposited with them are for the most part payable on demand.

"Whatever reserves, or other restrictions, may be deemed advisable with reference to demand deposits in the case of a bank should be equally obligatory with reference to the same sort of deposits in the case of a trust company."

The governor recommends that provision be made for liquidation of insolvent banking institutions under the supervision of the superintendent of banks.

Caution in Making Laws.

Extreme caution in making any changes in the present insurance law is urged by the governor. He says that while any suggestions of amendments should receive proper consideration, no changes should be made unless it clearly appears that they are needed to conserve the interests of the policyholders. He also suggests the advisability of providing for the liquidation under the supervision of the superintendent of insurance of insolvent insurance corporations in the same manner as is proposed for the liquidation of banking institutions.

The enlargement of scope of the public service commission's law proposed in the message would provide for the extension of the act to include telephone and telegraph companies in addition to the corporations already under supervision. Such extension of the act would bring the telegraph and telephone companies under regulation as to rates, service and other matters similar to that which obtains in the case of the corporations at present subject to the law. The governor recommends that the extension of jurisdiction shall take effect on Oct. 1, 1908.

Bovine Tuberculosis.

The question of bovine tuberculosis is referred to as one which requires serious attention. "The disease is spreading," says the message, "and we not only suffer from what may be called its natural increase, but the measures that are taken in neighboring communities for their own protection have made our state the recipient of a large scale of tuberculosis cattle which have been rejected elsewhere. Inspection of meat to ensure local protection, particularly with regard to the disposition of rejected animals, is a necessary supplement to federal inspection in connection with interstate commerce."

POISON FOR MEDICINE.

Calumet Woman Alleges her Husband Tried to Kill Her.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Jalo Kekoni has had her husband arrested on the charge of intent to kill. He was held in $2,000 bonds. It seems the woman had been ill and expressed a wish for some calomel. The husband secured pills and told her they contained the desired calomel. Mrs. Kekoni became suspicious and instead of taking any of the pills decided to have them analyzed. They were taken to a pharmacist, who found them to contain bichoride of mercury in such quantities that had the woman taken them she would have died from poisoning.

The couple have not resided in Calumet very long, having come here from Marquette. Mrs. Kekoni is a trained nurse.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The first evening meeting for the year of the Women's Christian Temperance union will be held tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Alfred Merritt of 2105 East Second street. The union holds two evening meetings during the year to which the public is invited. "Manual Training in Our Schools" will be the subject of tomorrow evening's discussion and the leader will be Mrs. Ida Merritt. Anyone interested is cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Out of Town Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Patrick have as their house guests Rev. Dwight Hillis of Brooklyn, Miss Mary Pratt of Elkhart, Ind., Mrs. Charles Moyer of Rockford, Ill., Ernest D. Patrick of Marengo, Ill., Mrs. A. P. Hanchett and W. Mac Hanchett of Council Bluffs, Iowa, who are here to attend the wedding of Miss Patrick, and Mitchell F. Jamar, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Jamar and Warren Jamar of Chicago are also in the city for the wedding.

KROJANKER-FREIMUTH.

Pretty Ceremony Takes Place at St. Louis Hotel.

A wedding of much interest among the Jewish society circles of the city took place last evening at the St. Louis hotel, when Miss Rosalie Krojanker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krojanker, became the bride of Morris Freimuth. The parlors, where the ceremony took place, were decorated in American beauty roses. The service was read at 7 o'clock by Rabbi Lefkovits before 200 guests. The bride was unattended. She wore a beautiful gown of white chiffon over silk. Her long veil was caught with real orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. Freimuth had as his only attendant his brother, David Freimuth.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper and reception was held. The tables were decorated in baskets of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Freimuth left for a wedding trip. The bride's going away gown was of brown cloth with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Freimuth will be at home after Feb. 1 at 712½ East Fourth street.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. L. Loewus and daughter of New York, Mrs. Abeles and Miss Michaels of Minneapolis, Julius Schiffman of Chicago, Misses Esther and Alice Levy of Minneapolis and Miss Ethel Idzal of Minneapolis.

Bridal Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pugh were hosts at a bridal dinner last evening at their home, on South Fourteenth avenue east, in honor of Miss Rosamond Patrick and M. F. Jamar, Jr., whose wedding will take place this evening. The table centerpiece was a graceful basket of white roses, the handle of which was tied with bows of yellow satin ribbon, carrying out the color scheme to be followed at the wedding. Covers were laid for the the members of the bridal party.

Dancing Party.

Mr. and Mrs. William Prindle entertained at a most delightful New Year's eve dancing party last evening at their home on Branch street. The affair was in compliment to their niece, Miss Eleanor Merrill of Minneapolis. Thirty guests were entertained.

Shakespeare Class.

The Morning Shakespeare class of the Twentieth Century club will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the club room of the library. The reading and discussion of "Richard III" will be continued, tomorrow's meeting to be the last one devoted to this play.

Events of Interest.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Killorin were dinner hosts last evening at their home on East Second street.

* * *

A sleigh ride and informal dancing party was enjoyed last evening by a number of the high school students and alumni of the school. The drive to Arnold occupied the earlier part of the evening and at the hall there a hot luncheon was served and a few hours of dancing enjoyed. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Coffin and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Derby.

* * *

opening to the south. They faced a wide door to the corridor and lobby, thus viewing and in view of the scenes and throngs there. Introductions were made to the president by Col. Charles S. Bromwell, superintendent of public buildings and grounds and to Mrs. Roosevelt by Capt. Frank R. McCoy, military aide to the president. Leaving the blue parlor, the route of exit was through the green parlor, the east room, down the stairs to the "social annex" and the east gate.

Numerous changes in the diplomatic corps have occurred during the year, so that for quite a number of the foreign representatives in Washington it was their first New Year's experience at the White House. Death, the rotation in office followed by some foreign nations with the members of their diplomatic corps, and the vicissitudes of political life were responsible for the absence of familiar and the presence of new faces. Of those who attended last year's reception, the most notable absentee today was Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, now returning to Japan, and that nation was represented by the members of the embassy staff with Baron Tsuneiro Miyaoka, the counsellor, at the head of the line. The familiar figure of Chekib Bey, the former Turkish minister, also was missing, having been succeeded by Mehmed Ali Bey. China likewise changed her minister during the year, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng having been recalled, and the former minister, Wu Ting Fang, having succeeded to the position.

Tszchi Represents China.

The latter, however, has not yet arrived in Washington, and Mr. Chow Tszchi, the first secretary, headed the legation from China. Death has made a vacancy in the legation from Norway, C. Hauge, the minister, having died on Dec. 12 at his home in Europe, and in his stead was O. Skyback, the secretary of the legation and charge d'affaires.

The diplomats who were making their first appearance at a New Year's function at the White House included Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain; Senor Don Ramon Pina, the Spanish minister, and T. A. Coromilas, the minister resident from Greece. Although appointed ambassador from Mexico a year ago, Senor Creel had not presented his credentials to the president at that time, so that today was his first appearance at a New Year function, in his official capacity. Senor Don Anibal Cruz, the minister from Chili, also was present for the first time today and this applied alike to Minister Mejia of Salvador and Minister Ugarte of Honduras.

Three members of the recent Central American peace conference, who still remain in the city, were specially invited guests, W. W. Rockhill, United States minister to China, also was in attendance. Assistant Secretaries Bacon, Adee and Wilson occupied themselves actively in entertaining the diplomats.

Many From Army and Navy.

There was a good representation from the army and navy and marine corps, all the officers on the active list and many who have been retired, paying their respects to the president. Those on active duty were in full dress uniform, lending color to the already brilliant spectacle presented by the diplomatic corps in the full insignia of their rank, and standing out in strong contrast to the civilian dress of most of the guests. Among the prominent retired army officers were Lieutenant Generals Bates and Corbin, while general officers on active duty included Major Generals Bell, Duvall and Ainsworth. Admiral Dewey, who has just passed his seventieth birthday, headed the naval contingent and was heartily greeted by the president. Behind the high officers of the army, navy and marine corps came those of lesser rank, until all had paid their respects to the chief magistrate and Mrs. Roosevelt. After passing "before the line" the officers mingled with the diplomatic corps and other guests before departing to make the round of calls on friends throughout the city. The officers of the District National Guard, headed by Brig. Gen. George H. Harries, were among those invited to the White House today.

HANSBROUGH STILL SURE

sentiment expressed by noted speakers at the big chamber of commerce dinners. One speech by a lawyer, who is getting $100,000 a year from a corporation, if judicially painted in the great dailies of the country, will make a whole lot of public sentiment, too frequently of an unhealthy kind. In this way a great many people have been made to believe that President Roosevelt is directly responsible for the recent commercial and financial troubles. Unfortunately the great body of the people do not look closely enough into these things until after it is too late. The campaign against Roosevelt policies has a powerful support, and for that reason must be carefully watched if its dangers would be avoided. If the people should fail to sustain Roosevelt policies at this time, all that has been gained for them during the past few years is lost. There must be no backward step."

Taft as Candidate.

"How about the Republican nominee?" was asked. The senator replied: "No doubt the president has expressed himself as favorable to Taft, and at once the president's critics find it difficult to conceal their anger. They declare the president is attempting to dictate who his successor shall be. If the president should say to me that Taft is a progressive Republican, I would have reason to think that his secretary of war would make a suitable candidate—one who would stand for the restoration of equity between the many and the few. I have no doubt but what this is precisely what Taft does stand for. Already the interests opposed to Roosevelt policies have discovered that Taft once rendered a decision adverse to the interests of the laboring men. Whoever heard of the corporation claims being solicitous in behalf of labor?"

"Under the next president there must be a readjustment of tariff schedules, and there should be a strengthening of the anti-trust laws now.

Currency Legislation.

"How about currency legislation? Well, there should be some positive currency legislation at this session. The policy of the so-called conservatives is to go slow. It is this 'going slow' that is responsible for many of our present difficulties. Conservatism in a growing country has never been able to make commerce and industry stand still. If this could be done, we might get along for a while under our present antiquated financial system. It is a paradoxical policy which favors progress in trade and manufacture and opposes a suitable adjustment of our currency.

"The bank that now seeks to take out emergency circulation must pass through the circumlocution office, and be most humble in its demeanor. The secretary of the treasury looks upon the accommodation as a personal favor. Thus it is that the big fellows in Wall street have the advantage. How much better it would be if we had an official bank, separated from Wall street influences, where all bankers could go with their securities and get currency accommodations without begging for them, and without delay? This is the underlying principle of the central bank scheme."

BROOKS NOT EXCUSED; MUST ATTEND TRIAL.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Fred C. Brooks of Minneapolis, who has been appointed to sit in place of the chief justice of the supreme court in the proceedings brought to disbar Francis B. Hart of Minneapolis, has written Frank A. Day, private secretary to Governor Johnson that he is about to leave for an extended trip that will make it inconvenient for him to be in St. Paul on Jan. 2, the date set for the hearing.

Mr. Day informed Judge Brooks that he would not be excused under any circumstances.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Dry killed bananas.

Omar, who is in immediate danger of becoming a very great bore, simply from over-zealous quotation, was one of the very early, if not the original swearer off. That his experience was like unto your own he makes evident in one masterly phrase. "Now," he begins, "the new year reviving old desires." How one touch of New Year's makes the whole world revert to old desires. You may resolute to your heart's content, but upon New Year's day smoking tastes better than it ever did before, you would rather sleep late that morning than upon any other during which you drew breath or hope to draw breath. The brand new resolutions are all right, but the desires are the same, old, compelling, irresistible, enjoyable desires.

All of which is to say that there is nothing in the market.

TIMIDITY IS TO VANISH

And Finance and Trade Will Soon be on Conservative Basis.

Volume of Business for Past Year Broke All Records.

New York, Jan. 1.—The net results of the past week are very encouraging for better times during the first quarter of 1908 than has been witnessed during the last quarter of 1907.

Whatever complaints the brokers and the speculators may have to make of 1907 the fact remains indelibly marked upon our commercial history that 1907 was a banner year in the aggregate volume of combined trade and commerce. Our exports and our imports aggregate for the year far above all others, and the disturbances in financial and industrial circles for the last three months, while they lessened business, did not change the position of the year as the greatest of our series of record breakers.

It is estimated that in this port alone the gain of the calendar year 1907 over that of 1906 in the foreign commerce exceeds $116,000,000. The majority of our ports show gains as well as that of New York, and there is no doubt the home trade is hundreds of millions ahead of last year. Our people have much to be thankful for in 1907, and have very good prospects for 1908. Every person has done so well for the past few years that even three months of depression or slackening in the pace of business seems serious and many become most doleful in their views and prognostications.

There Is a Difference.

People fail to realize the difference in all conditions now as compared with 1893 and 1873, and they entirely overlook the great difference in the world and the nation's production of gold, which metal is the specific for financial panics. In 1893 this country's production of gold did not permit of more than $25,000,000 going into currency after the arts were supplied. This year, with a greater supply going to the arts, fully $80,000,000 will be added to the currency of the country direct from the gold taken from our own soil.

The production of gold by the entire world in 1893 did not permit of additions to the entire world's currency of more than $125,000,000, yet in 1907 more than $300,000,000 of gold will go into the world's circulation of money. This is the great primary reason why depression cannot last. The world's supply of new gold will relieve and restore business in far less time now than it was able to do in the times of prior depression.

Every day is increasing the amount of new gold money in every country under the sun. Every student of finance knows it is accepted as sound banking to have 33 per cent of gold to redeem paper issues. It is considered safe to have 25 per cent as a reserve in normal conditions, but 33 per cent is up to the solid line and above danger line.

Could Banish Panic.

Our own native gold increase being fully $80,000,000 in 1907, a paper circulation of $160,000,000 additional money could safely be carried, and panic would be driven far from our shores by our own available resources.

We have shown ourselves, in addition to the above, to be able to command more than $110,000,000 in gold from Europe, and that great sum has been poured into this country since Oct. 1. Panic really has already fled.

Timidity will follow next in departure and by April of 1908 business will be moving safely and soundly under conservatism in finance and trade.

The jolt was needed, and it has been one that will be productive of good. We will continue to prosper, but will prosper less rapidly, with greater permanent results.

Our working men will not be idle, and their wages will not be scaled to any great degree.

Congress is alive to the fact that additional currency can restore good times, and if times keep bad, political changes become kaleidoscopic. The members of the house and the senate realize that speedy action alone can save the present organization, and they have no desire to vacate their positions. Times would improve slowly from now on if they did nothing, but times would not return to the standard of the spring of 1907 before the next election without action by the lawmakers.

For More Elasticity.

When congress reconvenes, therefore, there will be speedy legislation looking to greater elasticity and permitting a greater volume of paper money. No one doubts the value of any of our dollars, and, as shown above, many millions can be added annually to our paper issues solidly based upon our new gold.

We can increase safely now every year our paper currency $200,000,000, and we can surely count on $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 increase in our gold money each year from our own mines. Panic cannot exist under these conditions. Those familiar with the mines of the United States feel positive that before five years pass by, say by 1912, the gold product of the United States will be up to the $200,000,000 mark.

There is much to do in developing the world. Not a country upon the earth is anywhere near its maximum of development. Not a people in the world are as well supplied with either necessities, comforts or luxuries as they would like to be. Our own country, scarcely yet rid of its savage aborigines, leads the procession of advanced civilization, and what decades of progress we have yet before us! The royalty and nobility of the older lands are far behind our wealthy citizens in the modern improvements of homes and residences.

More Than World Peers.

Our public buildings and our great hotels are unequaled in the world in their advanced utilities. The standard of comfort set by our wealthy people is the standard desired by our own people and hoped for by foreigners.

Both at home and abroad there is and will be continued and sustained effort to accomplish this, and the money earned, the money gained will be constantly circulated to build up to that end.

From the Arctic circle to Terra del Fuego on our continent there is a steady progress. Constant effort for better food, better clothing, better habitations, better church edifices, better schools. The Esquimaux, our own Indians, the Mexican peons, the Indians of the South American pampas and the natives of Patagonia have all been inoculated with the idea of progress, their earnings are growing greater and their wants increase with their contact with the outer world. We have today with the people of our own continent a greater commerce than Europe had with Asia and Africa combined fifty years ago. We have now a far better opportunity for building up a commerce with every other continent, with all the other continent than we have ever enjoyed. The American people are too resourceful to permit manufactories to be idle at home and abroad.

They are too energetic to be limited by financial conditions readily changed and they are too wise to suffer from lack of currency when they know that their legislators can regulate so they can have an ample supply. It is up to congress to provide instant relief.

IDLE ARMY OF GREAT BRITIAN

London, Jan. 1.—While it is not expected that there will be any change in the ministry before the end of January, and, therefore, no general election, it is likely that by-elections may be required in a few districts by reason of the usual distributions of peerages at the first of the year, and these appeals to the people are greatly dreaded by the Liberals because of the prevailing business depression which is likely to react on the party in power.

There is an ominous shrinkage in the textile and iron and steel trades, and there are many indications that the American reverses and the German uncertainty have seriously affected British trade. The dismissal of a thousand men meh from the Clyde shipyards and the large increase in the number of unemployed in London are ominous signs. It has been a bad year for the stock exchange, where an expert writer in the Bankers' Magazine estimates the total shrinkage of values in 287 stocks as £342,000,000, or about 9 per cent. Consequently, while there have been fewer failures and the number of bankrupts has fallen off, the shadow of hard times is settling over the land. Even farmers have felt the pressure, especially in the North, where Lord Roseberry and other large landlords are making liberal reductions in rent in recognition of the failure of crops.

In Ireland the situation is even worse, since cattle driving has imperilled the grazing industry and interrupted the transfer of land from owners to tenants, and Mr. Birrell does not yet know what to do, although the courts have imprisoned a member of parliament and the nationalists are still faction rent, with John Redmond negotiating for peace with Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon.

The Liberal ministry is also hampered by the pre-election promise to establish old age pensions, for at least $35,000,000 would be required as a basis with the age limit fixed at 65, which Mr. Asquith deems too low and the labor leaders too high.

Bound up with the pension project is a recasting of the outworn poor-law system. Today England's paupers are, to a greater extent than ever before, able-bodied persons.

The casual wards are crowded with men and women who ought to be compelled to work in labor colonies. No adequate pension scheme can ignore this feature.

Incidental to pension proposals and poor-law reform is the regulation of the public house system by a logical licensing law.

"The public houses are the chief factors for the making of pensionairies," declared Dr. John Clifford, the nonconformists preacher. "Put them under restraint and our paupers and poor will diminish."

BEST YEAR IN THE COAL TRADE

Chicago, Jan. 1.—The Black Diamond, the official organ of the coal trade, says: Coal trade activity for the year 1907, which amounted to a production of close to 450,000,000 tons, all classes considered, and the very satisfactory prices obtained, these being higher than the average of recent years, made the year the best in the history of the coal trade.

The enormous production of coal is directly traceable to the steady employment of manufacturing concerns, the increase in the number of electric lighting plants consuming coal, the unusually cool weather for the entire spring and the early summer, and the enormous industrial activity which required the erection and operation of new industrial concerns. A factor of considerable importance was the anticipation of a coal shortage this winter at all points, especially those furthest removed from the mines and the consequent storing up of coal to offset this shortage. When the reaction in business came, toward the end of the year, these stocks had to be worked off and consequently intensified the reaction, which affected the coal trade. But even at that the business done for the year was so enormous that the reaction had but very little effect either in the volume of business or the prices obtained.

All classes of coal, from anthracite to lignites, shared in the prosperity of the year. Anthracite coal was consumed so late in the spring that the stocks were almost exhausted and there was danger of a shortage in the winter because these stocks could not be replenished. The same, practically, is true of the bituminous coal, which moved by the lake route in such volume that the tonnage increased by four million tons. The South took so much bituminous coal that the river routes were not able to supply the demand and all-rail shipments were necessary.

The domestic consumption was so enormous that through the inability to obtain miners and through the shortage of transportation facilities anthracite and bituminous producers were compelled to refuse foreign demands, which would have entailed the shipment of about 750,000 tons to foreign markets. One thing that favored the coal trade was the abfavored the coal trade was the absence of labor difficulties and the conditions have changed so materially that it is hardly probable that fears of a strike will annoy the trade even for the ensuing year.

NEVER HEARD OF GOD

And Boy Did Not Know His Age or Birthplace.

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 1.—The most startling case of ignorance ever devloped in this city came to light here during the hearing of a lawsuit in the local courts. Fourteen-year-old Adam Burroughs was on the stand and the lawyers brought out the facts that he did not know his age, could not tell when he was born, had not heard the name of the state, county or township in which he lived, had never heard of God and had but a faint recollection of one Christmas.

The lad had never been to school until he ran away from home, because of mistreatment by his father. Picked up by John Lamoreaux, he went to school and is now being educated with boys less than half his age.

OLD COINS FOUND OF MUCH VALUE

One Worth $1,000 When Bond Offered It for Sale.

New York, Jan. 1.—A special from Worcester, Mass., to the Times, says:

Edwin W. Bond is $99 richer today than he thought he was yesterday. Bond had a collection of old coins about the house and thought the best way to raise a little holiday change would be to realize on the discarded money, so he sought out an exchange for the purpose.

Many of the coins of long ago were worth but little more than their face value, and a few even less. He finally dug up a silver dollar, made in 1804. The exchange clerk looked at it and then handed it back, answering Bond's query as to whether it was good enough by saying:

"Oh, yes, it is good enough, only we haven't money enough in the place to buy it, as it is worth $900."

Bond took the coin home, as he has learned that he can realize at least $1,000 on it, as there are but four other genuine 1804 dollars in the world.

"I was totally unaware of the value of the old 1804 dollar until Joseph G. Williams, an authority on coins, told me when I went to his place to dispose of my collection of old coins.

"For some years past I have laid aside coins of various denominations that struck me as being out of the ordinary. I am not a collector, and never made a practice of collecting rare or valuable coins, which accounts for my ignorance of the value of the old dollar.

"When searching through some of my father's effects, several years ago, I came across it, as bright and shining as it came from the mint. I put it into my miscellaneous collection, and there it has remained for years. Mr. Williams tells me I may get $1,000 for it, and I will try to do so."

Williams last night pronounced Bond's coin genuine. He says there are but four genuine coins of that kind in existence, and adds:

"If Bond had not carried it for a pocket piece for the last few years, and thus worn it down considerably, it would easily fetch $1,500. It is worth all of $1,000 as it is."

RIDER OF HIGH FAME.

Ex-Champion Jockey of Germany Seeks Place as Stableman.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 1.—Once Germany's foremost gentleman jockey and member of Kaiser Wilhelm's household, as chief of the emperor's private stables, Herr Charles von Shreber, a nobleman and ex-captain of the Dresden Hussars, is now seeking employment as a stableman.

Herr Shreber arrived in America from the fatherland five days ago. He left there when his father died. His grief made the old scenes unbearable. He gave up a luxurious home, position, and all for the new land that was to make him forget his grief.

When he arrived in New York friends told him that Cleveland offered opportunities for a man of his skill in handling horses. He found rooms at 2514 Franklin avenue N. W. Unable to speak much English he has met with many difficulties. He is accomplished in other languages and speaks French, Spanish and Hungarian fluently.

In Germany Herr Shreber has won a score or more gentleman jockey races in Berlin, Dresden and Hamburg. His efficiency as a trainer and rider won attention from the kaiser, and he placed him in charge of his private stables. His many medals and tokens tell of his prowess as a horseman and hunter. His appearance bespeaks the long training he received during his twelve years as an officer in the kaiser's service.

NEW YEAR IS GIVEN NOISY GREETING IN DULUTH

The old year of 1907, with its hey-days of copper stock prosperity and its subsequent tidal wave of cashier's checks, has gone and the year of 1908 has begun.

Master 1908 arrived at 12 o'clock last night and was royally welcomed by nearly every citizen of Duluth, some of whom stayed up considerably later than is their wont just to greet the new year. At the stroke of 12, when leap year arrived, there was a great din in the city. Whistles blew, bells rang and everyone who was able at that hour, made all the noise possible with the idea of doing something appropriate to the occasion.

In the local churches, the new year was ushered in with religious services and in the down-town cafes, less staid individuals drank toasts with brimming glasses, to the glad young year and wished for it a prosperity never equalled in the history of the nation. The same sentiment was expressed, in a different way, in the churches and homes.

New Year's eve was a time for many social functions of one kind and other. A multitude of little family and other informal gatherings were held at different homes, friends meeting to watch the waning of the old year and the advent of the new.

Several more formal gatherings were held in the city. Young people danced dreamy waltzes or lively two-steps while the old year went and brand new one came.

It seemed that the wee hours this morning saw more persons on the streets than ever before at such a time. They were not, for the most part, noisy revelers making a tedious way home after an evening with flowing bowls, but more sedate citizens, on their way home from watch night services at church or from the New Year's eve party given at the home of friends or relatives.

In the Churches.

The watch-night services held at the different churches were attended by many persons. Some of them began exercises as early as 9 o'clock and continued them until after midnight, while others did not start until later.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, the congregation assembled at 11 o'clock, when Rev. Harry Knowles, who formerly had a charge in this city preached a brief sermon. At 11:30, the pastor, Rev. M. S. Rice, delivered a New Year's sermon.

Rev. R. S. Read, assistant rector, delivered a sermon on "The Old Year," and Rev. A. W. Ryan, the rector, on "The New Year" at the watch-night services at The services began at 11:15. A male choir St. Paul's Episcopal church last night, sang.

Holy communion was celebrated at 10 o'clock, this morning, at St. Paul's church, and at 10:30 at St. Luke's church.

There was low mass at 7:30 and 9 o'clock this morning, and high mass at 10:30, at the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart. Vespers will be celebrated this evening.

A New Year's eve entertainment was given last evening at St. John's English Lutheran church. A number of musical numbers, vocal and instrumental, were given. Miss Blanche Fleming sang several vocal solos. Rev. Mr. Gable of Superior, and Rev. J. L. Murphy, pastor of the church, gave addresses. A social hour followed the program, and from 11:30 until the new year, religious services were held.

New Year's services were held this morning at 10:30 at Trinity Norwegian Lutheran church, Fourth avenue east and Fifth street. They were conducted by the pastor, Rev. P. Nelson.

At the First Swedish Lutheran church, the program last evening was in charge of the Young People's society. The program began at 8:30 and was followed by refreshments. Religious exercises were held from 11:30 until 12. Services were also held this morning, and this afternoon the annual meeting of the church will be held.

Many churches in the West end held watch night services. The First Swedish Methodist, the First Swedish Baptist, the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist and Zion Norwegian Lutheran churches, were the scenes of special observances, beginning with musical numbers and selections of a light nature and terminating at the approach of the new year, with serious religious exercises.

Outdoor Sports.

It is impossible to say how many New Years resolutions were made last night, and how many of them stand intact now. Resolutions or no resolutions, Duluthians propose to spend a happy New Year's today.

The weather man's predictions for a glorious winter's day, not too cold yet cold enough for the winter sports, materialized and many persons are spending a considerable portion of the day out of doors.

Duluth's slippery hills are attracting hundreds of young and old. Little tots with tiny sleds and parties of their elders, manning good-sized "Bobs" are having a gay time of it. Although there is hardly enough snow yet for successful skiing, many enthusiasts over that Norwegian sport were attempting it today.

The theaters offer a happy New Year program. At the Lyceum, "The Royal Chef" holds the boards afternoon and evening and "The Thoroughbreds" frolic festively twice today at the Metropolitan. Vaudeville is offered this afternoon and twice this evening at the Bijou and the cheaper theaters anticipate good crowds.

Skating on ice and on rollers, is being enjoyed by thousands. The hockey game at the Athletic Park rink is attracting crowds this afternoon and both this afternoon and evening, the city's available sheets of skating ice will be well cut up. No less a popularity is in store this afternoon and this evening for the roller rinks. They expect the receipts today to break all previous records.

At the curling clubs, the skips and their rinks are having a lively, enjoyable day of it.

Many social organizations will keep open house all day and there is expected to be the usual number of New Year's calls in the city.

Few people are laboring down town. This morning, some workers to whom the first of the month is always a time of great stress and the coming of the new year an additional rush, worked on their books and so forth but there were not many of them who did not find it possible at noon, to hang up their office coats and call it off until tomorrow morning.

The board of trade had no session and, of course, the banks were closed. So were the municipal, county and federal offices. Holiday hours were observed at the postoffices. In the wholesale district and on commission row, no business was transacted and the big stores along Superior street were closed.

FAT SPELLS DANGER.

Outward fat is generally accompanied by fat inside—and this inward fat is responsible for fatty heart. If you are in this condition you should reduce your weight, but not by dangerous exercise or fasting. Take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, of one-half ounce Marmola, one-half ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, three and one-half ounces Syrup Simplex. This simple home mixture is absolutely safe and a rapid and sure fat reducer.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLVES

J. B. Cotton—"I have resolved to work harder than ever for the new steel plant that is to be established in Duluth."

* * *

George H. Crosby—"I resolved to keep right on boosting Duluth, as I have for the last twenty years."

* * *

Weather Observer Richardson—"To make people be as kind in their thoughts of the weather man as possible."

* * *

Mart Adson, general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway—"I have resolved to make no New Year's resolutions. What's the use?"

* * *

W. E. McEwen, secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor—"Resolved, that if it is in the power of mortal man—and it certainly is—that the National Manufacturers' association and other opponents of organized labor shall be taught a lesson they will not soon forget as a result of present labor troubles in Duluth."

* * *

Ed McConville, president of the local branch of the Telegraphers' union, referring to recent strike difficulties—"Resolved, that the next time I stick I will not get stuck."

* * *

H. V. Eva, secretary of the Duluth Commercial club—"Resolved, to contribute my mite toward making this a banner year for Duluth in a commercial and industrial way."

* * *

T. E. Blanche, general agent of the Northern Pacific in Duluth: "Resolved, that I shall stick by Duluth, the best town on the map, until death or high-up officials do us part."

* * *

Superior street saloon keepers: "Resolved, that we will carry step ladders in the procession headed by the water wagon."

* * *

E. L. Millar, publisher Duluth Trade News: "I have nothing to resolve. I am leading the exemplary life now."

* * *

J. C. Fisher, manager Armour & Co.: "I haven't quit anything yet."

* * *

Attorney John R. Heino: "I have nothing to resolve. I made all my resolutions before the new year began."

* * *

Deputy Clerk of District Court Alexander Hamilton: "I have no new resolutions to make. I made them all a year ago."

* * *

Emil Tessman, Democratic candidate for mayor—"I resolved to win out at the coming election if I can do it by fair means and by a clean campaign."

* * *

R. D. Haven, Republican candidate for mayor—"I resolved to get as many votes as I can by fair means in the coming campaign."

* * *

"Central"—"I resolved to quit visiting on the line, so I can't talk to you."

* * *

Swan Olson, "drunk" in city jail—"Ay never drink no more. Ay go back to woods and work until spring when ay get out."

* * *

City Comptroller McCormick—"I resolved to quit smoking and this morning got a present of a box of cigars."

HELD FOR MURDER.

James O'Brien Admits That He Killed Arthur Le Claire.

Nech. N. D., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The coroner's inquest into the killing of Arthur Le Claire, the young railroad man whose body was found in the river here, has resulted in James O'Brien being held for the crime. O'Brien, it appears, has confessed, despite reports to the contrary. In his confession, he says he and Le Claire had been drinking, and a dispute arose as to which was the "best" man. O'Brien says he armed himself with a hatchet, and when Le Claire knocked him down he (O'Brien) struck him with the hatchet.

Continuing, the confession says: "I hit him with a hatchet, and after I saw what I had done, I hit him again and took his pocketbook and threw it in the river. After I realized what I had done, I threw the money in the river.

"I threw the body over the bank, and followed the body down the bank. I think I had hold of him by the collar, and dropped him right in at the head of the dam in the river."

HORSES ARE MISUSED

West Duluth in Need of a Deputy Humane Officer.

Animals Left Standing for Hours in the Cold.

Recently there has been no little complaint made by people in West Duluth regarding the thoughtless manner in which some drivers in that part of the city treat their horses and there is a general feeling that the western end of the city should have a humane officer of its own to see that the animals there are not misused.

The Humane society is not criticised, for it is understood that there is only one officer to look after all the neglected animals in the city.

"What we need," remarked a prominent citizen of West Duluth this morning, "is to have a deputy appointed to see that the animals in this part of the town are not badly treated. Some one who, from humane interests, would be willing to take the position for a nominal sum, could doubtless be found. It is a crime the way in which horses are left standing out in front of saloons all day in the cold without being blanketed. Why, the other day a horse shivered and suffered out in front of a barroom on Central avenue from 9 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon, when a policeman took compassion on the beast and got it under shelter. Some people are also very careless about having their horses properly shod for winter work on these ice-covered streets.

"Now, if someone who lives in West Duluth and is about town a good deal would take this job, and be endowed with the proper authority, all this indifference on the part of the masters toward their animals could be stopped and kept stopped."

Miss Beulah Dass, 508 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, who has been seriously ill for some time, is much better.

According to the monthly report of the West Duluth police department there have only been twenty-seven arrests made during the month of December, which is a much smaller number than was made in the three previous months. The charges were, on the December blotter, 15 drunks; 2 arests for robbery; 1 for assault; 1 for disturbing the peace; 1 for permitting gambling, and 1 for blind pigging. The last two law-breakers were William T. Stewart and Louis Vokes, respectively. Each was fined $100 by Judge Flack.

C. C. BARKER LOSES LIFE IN WYOMING

Tower, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. C. Barker of Portland, Or., secretary of the Tower Lumber company, who is also interested in lumber companies in Wausau, Wis., Detroit, Minn., and on the Pacific coast, was killed by a train in Wyoming yesterday, according to a brief dispatch received from Green River, Wy., Mr. Barker was on his way from Portland to his old home in Bay City, Mich., when killed. His son, who accompanied him, will take the body to Portland for interment.

Mr. Barker was about 67 years of age, and one of the best known lumbermen in the Northwest. He was here and in Duluth only about three months ago, and appeared to be in his usual health.

VIRGINIA EVENTS.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Mollan, who a few months ago purchased a half interest in the Bijou theater here, has sold out to Frank Michan, the musician and leader of a local orchestra. Mr. Mollan will engage in some other line of business after a brief vacation.

Charles A. Bernick, one of the pioneers of the range, who in the early days was a member of the general merchandise firm of Kitto & Bernick at Biwabik, but who has been residing for several years at Cold Springs, Minn., in the vicinity of St. Cloud, recently arrived in Virginia and has entered the employ of the Virginia Brewing company. He has been traveling for two years past for the brewery at Cold Springs.

The decision of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Railway company to use the depot of the Missabe road for its passenger trains, beginning today, was received with general satisfaction by the business interests of Virginia. The new arrangement will prove a great convenience to travelers on the new line.

The local Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will give their second annual ball on Friday evening, Jan. 15, at the Fay opera house. Steller's orchestra from Superior will furnish the music.

J. P. Chalmers has given up the lease of the Fay opera house, and Frank Klink, the owner, will probably manage the house in future, although he may lease it to some other party.

NEW LUMBER CAMP

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia Lumber company recently established a new camp on the Sand Lake branch, a short distance west of Belmont, where about ninety men will be employed during the remainder of the winter. About forty men are already at work. Within two or three weeks log hauling on the Sand Lake branch of the Rainy Lake road will be resumed after a suspension since the mills were closed down. It is understood that the logs from this camp will be shipped through to Duluth.

CAPT. COWLING WORSE.

Well-Known Mining Man Reported Near to Death's Door.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nick Cowling, wife of Capt. Cowling, the well-known mining man, has left for California, in response to a telegram stating her husband, who went to that state about a month ago, in search of health, was considerably worse, and might not survive. Capt. Cowling has for a long time been superintendent of the Zenith, Sibley and Savoy mines of the Oliver Mining company.

HIBBING CELEBRATED.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The old year was given a good send off last night, while the new year got a royal welcome at midnight. Many people were up and about as the old year departed, and the new arrrived, and there was the usual celebration. There were numerous parties, while large crowds were at the rinks and other public places. A dozen couples enjoyed a pleasant dance, given by the Jake and Josh club, at Close hall.

NEW SCHOOL OFFICER HAS REACHED BIWABIK.

Biwabik, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. H. H. Gray, the new superintendent of the Biwabik schools, has arrived and assumed charge. He is arranging for the resumption of schools Monday. By that time it is expected that several rooms in the new high school will be ready for use.

Insane Patient Has Money.

Frank Arseneau, who was committed to the state insane hospital, after an examination in the probate court, yesterday afternoon, has $700 in gold and imagines that everybody is after it. He was taken into custody at Mt. Iron a few days ago and brought to the county jail to await examination. While in the jail Arseneau wrote to his brother at Jacobville, Mich., stating that he had been arrested for the murder of a brother and was to be tried at the coming January term of court. He wanted to know his age and asked many other absurd questions. Arseneau, when under examination, was rational in his answers. Except for his shifty glances and odd stare he would never have been picked out of a crowd as being insane. A guardian will be appointed to take care of his money.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

New York, Jan. 1.—Charles Frankelyn Reglid, former actor, more recently a wealthy whip and automobilist, who came into prominence about ten years ago, when at the age of 32 he married Mrs. Adele Ronalds, then 70, and widow of Thomas A. Ronalds, a New York society leader, died yesterday at his country mansion, Avenal, at New Rochelle. His death was due to typhoid fever.

St. Paul, Jan. 1.—Simeon Pearl Folsom, the first city engineer of St. Paul, died of old age yesterday afternoon at the age of 88. Mr. Folsom was born Dec. 27, 1819. He graduated from Maine Wesleyan seminary in 1837. When the boundary dispute arose between Maine and New Hampshire, he was appointed a major on the staff of the Maine commander. In 1840 he came West to Prairie Du Chien, Wis. He came to St. Paul in 1847, and when the town was incorporated in 1854 he was elected city surveyor.

St. Louis, Jan. 1.—After a long illness, Mrs. Charles Gibson, 78 years old, widow of Hon. Charles Gibson, died at her home here Monday night. The late Sir Charles Gibson was decorated with orders of merit from the German government, once by Emperor William I and again by his grandson, the present emperor, for the valuable services rendered the German government.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 1.—Judge John W. Barr, a distinguished Kentucky jurist, died yesterday of pneumonia at the age of 82. He occupied the federal bench here for nineteen years.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADJUSTMENT OF FINAL ACCOUNT AND FOR FINAL DECREE OF DISTRIBUTION.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In the Matter of the Estate of Samuel F. Brooks, Deceased.

The petition of Ada M. Brooks as representative of the above named decedent, together with her final account of the administration of said estate, having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that she has fully administered said estate, and praying that said final account of said administration be examined, adjusted and allowed by the court, and that the court make and enter its final decree of distribution of residue of the estate of said decedent to the persons entitled thereto, and for the discharge of the representative and the sureties on her bond;

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard, and said final account examined, adjusted and allowed, by the court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in the City of Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 13th day of January, 1908, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., December 18th, 1907.

JOHNSON'S STRENGTH

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Governor Johnson will be a promient figure in the Denver convention, despite his positive assertion that he is not a candidate for the presidency, and his declaration that he is in favor of Bryan's nomination," said Capt. M. N. Goss, former chief of police of St. Paul, Minn., at the Raleigh last night. "While I am not of the same political faith, I am familiar with the situation among the Democrats in Minnesota, especially regarding Governor Johnson, and it is my opinion that the delegation that goes from Minnesota will be instructed to vote for Johnson and, if not instructed, that it will vote for him anyway. The governor is not a candidate for the vice presidency, and I do not think could be prevailed upon to take it, although one can never tell what a man can be forced to do sometimes. Roosevelt was not a candidate for vice president, you remember. I do not doubt that Johnson's friends have aspirations for him. They believe that he is presidential timber, and if not nominated this time, he will make a strong candidate a few years hence. His popularity among Democrats and Republicans alike was shown in the last national election, when Roosevelt carried the state by 161,000, yet Johnson, a Democrat, was elected by over 6,000. A year ago Johnson was re-elected by 76,000. Any man who can accomplish that is strong with the people, and if he was nominated, I am inclined to believe he would carry Minnesota and other states in the West.

"It is hard to tell at this early date how the Republicans stand in the matter of a choice for the presidency. There is a strong sentiment for Taft, and this was strengthened by his visit to the state. His recent speech in Boston will also help him, I believe. Of course, if the president were a candidate, he could get the Minnesota delegation, but it would not be an easy thing for him to control the state for some one else."

COKE OVENS ARE TO BE REOPENED

Seven Thousand Frick Ovens to Resume Within Ten Days.

Pittsburg, Jan. 2.—It is expected that fully 7,000 ovens of the H. C. Frick Coke company, in the Connellsville and Lower Connellsville regions, will be put in operation again within ten days.

Owing to the large number of coke plants that have been closed, it is believed that the operators will not have trouble in securing workmen.

Ford City, Pa., Jan. 2.—The Pennsylvania Plate Glass company has resumed operations. It will run both day and night. The department employs from 1,200 to 1,500 men, and there is general rejoicing as a result of the resumption. The other departments, employing 1,500 men, will also resume in a few days.

ITALIAN HALL, CALUMET, BURNED

Cigar Starts Fire That Destroyed $26,000 in Property.

Calumet, Mich., Dec. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire destroyed the Italian hall, on Seventh street, about 4 a. m. today. It was a three-story building, with lodge rooms on the third floor, a dancing hall on the second and the Croaton building office and saloon on the first.

The St. Joseph Austrian society was celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary with a band concert when the fire caught from a cigar. The loss is $26,000; insurance, $14,000.

MEETING OF SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

Boston, Jan. 2.—Men representing all phases of Sunday school service throughout the country met, at a meeting of the executive board of the International association, here, today. The leaders of the schools of many foreign countries were also present. The topic for discussion is, "How Can We Improve the Lesson System?"

The international lesson committee, prompted by the action taken by the meeting in Rome, in July, was discussed, and the lesson helps to the various departments. While various meetings have been held by the several branches of the association, this is the first time in the history of the organization, which was founded in 1875, that the four great branches of the work have been represented at such a meeting.

GOVERNMENT ATTORNEY INTIMATES THAT WITNESS IS NOT TELLING TRUTH

Closely Questioned on Testimony in Grain Company Case.

Constant Objections Made to Examination by Defendant's Attorneys.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Now, Mr. Kimball, don't you know you are lying?"

These words, addressed by Assistant United States District Attorney Ewert to Byron Kimball, former secretary of the Superior Board of Trade Clearing House association, and one of the government's own witnesses, brought to a climax a warm discussion in which the witness and opposing attorneys in the trial of the United States against L. A., G. W., F. B. and L. C.

CAPT. J. F. PILLSBURY,

HONEST MAN GETS 12 CENTS REWARD

Atlantic City, Jan. 2.—Douglas Gibson, a cart pusher, found a pocketbook on the board walk containing $500 and jewelry worth several thousand dollars. He was just counting the money when the owner, a woman, appeared. She praised Gibson for his honesty when he turned her property over to her and said he should be rewarded. She carefully counted the bills and then gave Gibson two nickels and two pennies as a reward.

COURSE IS TOO LONG

Doctors Object to Putting In Eight Years' Study.

Pittsburg, Jan. 2.—An important meeting of leading medical men and educators of the country convened here today in the hall of the Carnegie institute. Presidents of colleges and universities of the country and medical men, both professors and practitioners, representing the American Academy of Medicine, are in attendance. The meeting here is a meeting of the academy, but the work of the council, as it is termed, will furnish the leading thoughts for the annual convention of the American Academy of Medicine to be held the second week of June at Chicago.

Two Great Questions.

Two great questions, probably the most important from a sociological and eduactional viewpoint, will be discussed and the influence of this meeting carries to nearly every state in the Union to bear fruit. First, realizing that four years in college and four years in a medical school are too much of a man's life to ask in preparation for his profession, the Academy of medicine proposes to so arrange the college courses and the medical courses that six years only will be required.

This question will be discussed from the viewpoint of the college by President Jacob G. Schurman of Cornell university, David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university, James D. Moffat, president of Washington and Jefferson college, and other leading educators.

Would Change Laws.

Second: State medical examination laws. Each state requires a state medical examination before a doctor can practice within its borders. The academy proposes that a uniform examination be held in every state, and that a doctor who has passed this examination in one state may be admitted to practice in any other without again taking an examination.

BONAPARTE SILENT.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Attorney General Bonaparte, when questioned as to the truth of the statement that suit would soon be begun to dissolve the relationship between the Union and Southern Pacific railroads, known as the Harriman system, would only say that the matter was under consideration, but he was not prepared to either affirm or deny the report.

RECEIVERS ARE NAMED

To Take Possession of Sea Board Air Line Property.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 2.—Judge Pritchard of the United States circuit court, entered a decree today, naming S. Davies Warfield of Baltimore, and R. T. Lancaster Williams of Richmond, as receivers to take immediate possession of the property of the Sea Board Air Line railroad. The bond of each was fixed at $50,000.

Baltimore, Jan. 2—R. Lancaster Williams and S. Davies Warfield, who were appointed receivers of the Sea Board Air Line railroad at Richmond, today, are bankers of this city, Mr. Williams being a member of the banking house of Middendorf, Williams & Co., and Mr. Warfield president of the Continental Trust company.

Mr. Warfield, who is a director of the Sea Board, was chosen to represent the majority interests in the property, while Mr. Williams will look after the affairs of a considerable minority, led by his brother, John Skelton Williams of Richmond.

Effect Is Far Reaching.

The effect of the receivership for the Sea Board Air Line will be far reaching in Baltimore, where the securities

BANK OF ENGLAND LOWERS ITS RATE

Improved Financial Conditions Drop Discount to 6 Per Cent.

London, Jan. 2.—The directors of the Bank of England today lowered the minimum rate of discount to 6 from 7 per cent, which rate was established as a result of the recent American financial crisis.

Improved financial conditions in America, coupled with a better monetary situation in Germany, assisted the directors in their decision to remove the stringent rate of discount, which had been handicapping trade and speculation in the past seven weeks. The effect of the reduction, however, already had been largely discounted on the London stock exchange, as the absence of New York competition, gold arrivals and a sharp drop in discount rates foreshadowed nearly a decline in the rate of discount.

The market this morning opened quiet. Consols improved three-sixteenths on the announcement of the reduction of the official discount rate, while American securities recovered from early weakness. There was not much business transacted.

COLLISION WITH A TROLLEY CAR

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six persons were injured early New Year's day at Riverside, when an Inver Grove street car and a bob sled, in which a dozen people were riding, came into collision. The injured are:

Fred Scofield, 135 West Lucy street, scalp cut and back wrenched; Charles Larson, Sr., South St. Paul, back and chest injured; Miss Rosanna Duncanson, West side, teeth loosened and body bruised; Mrs. Charles Larson, Jr., South St. Paul, leg and hip hurt; Charles Larson, South St. Paul, back hurt; Mrs. E. Carlson, Stillwater, leg bruised.

The party was returning from Inver Grove, where they had gone as guests of Mr. Scofield, and the bob sled was being driven on the street car tracks. The driver saw an Inver Grove car approaching, but claims he could not get out of the way in time. The bob sled was overturned, and the twelve people were thrown in many directions.

ATTORNEY HART DEFENDS HIMSELF ON CHARGE OF INSULTING HIGH COURT

To Consider Recommendation of Disbarment of F. B. Hart.

The Defendant Addresses Court in Justification of His Charges.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The special supreme court appointed by Governor Johnson to consider the recommendation of the state board of law examiners, that Attorney Francis B. Hart of Minneapolis be disbarred because he insulted the supreme court, met in the chambers of the supreme court at the capitol today for a hearing of the case. Mr. Hart appeared on his own behalf and addressed the court, contending that he had done nothing to merit disbarment.

Mr. Hart reviewed all the circumstances of his sensational attack upon a member of decisions by the supreme court, and contended that at all times he had been strictly within his rights.

CARS RUNNING AT MUNCIE, IND.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 2.—Cars were started today on the City Street railway lines on their regular schedule, with each car manned by from seven to nine strike-breakers. No trouble or interference resulted. The local authorities have disarmed all strike-breakers, and say they fear no further trouble.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 2.—Three companies of the Indiana National Guards are under arms at the barracks and are being held in readiness. Companies at Winchester, Kokomo, Greenfield and Lebanon have been ordered by Governor Hanley to be ready to move at once, in case of further trouble on account of the strike at Muncie, Anderson and other places along the line of the Indiana Union Traction lines.

SMOKING BY WOMEN TO BE ENCOURAGED

New York, Jan. 2.—So successful was the permission to women to smoke New Year's day in the restaurants that another of the famous Broadway eating places has adopted it. It is said that several more will fall in line soon, but big hotels and the Fifth avenue restaurants will not, so the managers say, follow such rules, for the present at least. Until last night no first class restaurant in New York has permitted women to smoke in the public room.

HIGH RECORD IS REACHED

United States Steel Corporation Had Very Prosperous Year.

Net Earnings Will Probably be in Excess of $160,000,000.

New York, Jan. 2.—Despite the marked curtailment of production in some lines of finished and semi-finished steel products during the last four months of this year, as a result of the falling off in the demand from railroads and some other classes of consumers, the United States Steel Corporation expects to report for the year 1907 a record-breaking output of iron and steel, as well as unprecedentedly large gross and net earnings and surplus. This remarkable showing now is looked for in the face of gigantic appropriations for new con-

HARDEN SICK.

Court Which is Hearing His Case, Adjourns Temporarily.

Berlin, Jan .2.—Maxmilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, who is now being tried a second time on the charge of having libelled in his paper, Count Kuno Von Moltke, was unable to appear in court today on account of illness. The court was adjourned while officials proceeded to his residence to ascertain whether he is capable of appearing before the court today to give his testimony.

TRANSFERS LUNGS OF ONE CAT TO ANOTHER.

New York, Jan. 2.—Experiments have been made at the Rockefeller institute for researches which have resulted in the successful transference of vital organs from the living animal to another. Cats were used in the exprimments, and Alexis Carrel, the experimenter, transferred the lungs of one cat into another.

He said it may be possible to transfer the vital organs from an animal's body to that of a human.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

Niles, Mich., Jan. 2.—James McQuirk, aged 60, was shot through the heart and killed yesterday while seated at his dining table eating his New Year's dinner. The shooting, which was purely accidental, occurred in a double house. Fred Schumacher, aged 21, was handling a gun in the other half of the house, when it was accidentally discharged, the bullet passing through the wall and hitting McQuirk in the back.

DULUTH IN THE LEAD

In Tonnage of Lake Vessel Arrivals During Past Year.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Traffic movements on the Great Lakes during November, as measured by the volume of shipments from the various lake ports, totaled 8,970,748 net tons, compared with 8,594,533 net tons shipped during November, 1906, and 7,402,114 net tons shipped during November, 1905. The only item showing a large increase over the corresponding 1906 figures is coal, all other classes of merchandise showing but slight increases or even decreases. This is particularly true of lumber, the shipments of which were 33 per cent below those reported for November, 1906.

Wheat shipments for the month, mainly from Duluth, Superior, Chicago, and Milwaukee, 14,256,311 bushels, show a large increase both over the October figures as well as the November, 1906, figures. The total for the season, 58,600,423 bushels, of which over 93 per cent is credited to Duluth, Superior, and Chicago, are about 40 per cent larger than the corresponding 1906 shipments. Corn shipments, practically all from Chicago, totaled 1,688,928 bushels for the month and 44,163,602 bushels for the month and 44,153,602 bushels for the season, compared with 2,683,524 bushels and 43,076,878 bushels for the corresponding 1906 periods. Barley shipments for the month, 2,354,569 bushels, mainly from Superior and Milwaukee, and 12,736,366 bushels for the season ending November, show lower totals than the corresponding 1906 figures of 5,633,881 for the month and 16,634,453 bushels for the season. BUILDING UNIONS SIGN CONTRACTS

New York, Jan. 2.—There is little chance of strikes this year among the building unions. The employers have signed agreements with the large number of men, and in cases where agreements have not been concluded arrangements are under way. The following statement was issued in behalf of the employers' association:

"Many of the unions are satisfied to renew their agreements at the old wage rates, hoping that in the new year matters will improve in the building industry. At present the outlook is bad. We may have a poor building season this year. The mechanics, like the employers can only hope that the stagnation will not last long. The arbitration agreement having proved effective in the matter of the prevention of strikes, the employers have decided not to reduce wages. The workers, as well, are desirous of the continuance of further harmonious conditions in the industry. The arbitration plan has reduced strikes to a minimum and both sides feel that the arbitration agreement should remain permanently in force.

ANDREW CLUEN BURIED.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Andrew Cluen, who died at St. Mary's hospital, in Duluth, was held yesterday afternoon from the Catholic church, at the same time as the funeral of Peter Junke, Jr. Cluen was 28 years old, and was employed as a miner at the Spruce and the Troy mines. He has been ailing for some time, and went to Duluth for relief. He is survived by his wife, whom he married two years ago, but no children. His funeral was in charge of the Eveleth lodge, No. 94, Holy Family of the N. H. Z. The lodge marched in a body to the graveyard at Virginia.

MANAGER OPTIMISTIC.

Says the Smelters of Colorado Will Not Close Down.

Denver, Jan. 2.—Franklin Guterman, general manager of the American Smelting & Refining company, when asked today regarding the truth of the dispatch from Helena, Mont., last night, that the smelters of Colorado were to be closed down or wages reduced, said he was perfectly optimistic over the situation. He says it will not be necessary to either cut the wages or reduce the working forces as his latest advices indicate the demand for lead will be sufficient to keep the smelters running in this state on the same basis as at present.

WOMAN SWIMS IN OCEAN WITH ZERO TEMPERATURE.

HIS BLISS IS ENDED

Union of December and May Was Not Lasting.

After ten months of wedded life, Douglas A. Petre has petitioned the district court for a decree of divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. Mrs. Petre has made answer to the complaint, in which she admits some of the allegations, denies others and prays that the court may grant her husband the relief he asks.

The divorce case is of more than usual interest owing to the circumstances that attended the union last March.

Mr. Petre, who is alleged to be the scion of English nobility, and who is 55 years old, married Ethelwynn Dean, aged 20 years. Mr. Petre took his bride to Chicago, where the marriage ceremony was performed within the jurisdiction of the state of Illinois.

The complaint, which was filed with the clerk of the district court this morning by J. B. Richards, attorney, contained many sensational allegations. The answer, filed by H. G. Gearhart, attorney for Mrs. Petre, is scarcely less interesting.

Mr. Petre alleges that they were married in Chicago March 12, 1907. He claims that he was induced by false statements of Mrs. Petre, prior to their marriage, to believe that she had previously been married to and divorced from one L. R. Gibson, which statements the plaintiff found out to be untrue. Mr. Petre claims that he knew his wife had been a mother previous to his marriage with her, but supposed it was in lawful wedlock.

Had No Love for Him.

It is claimed by Mr. Petre that immediately after his marriage he discovered that his wife had no love or affection for him, but had married him merely for financial support. He claims that she has frequently made statements to that effect to third persons to his great humiliation and distress, as it has made him an object of ridicule to the general public and among his acquaintances.

The husband claims that Mrs. Petre's conduct was such, while they resided in one of the local hotels, that the proprietor finally requested them to get out.

Mr. Petre further alleges that last October his wife wilfully and secretly purloined private letters and memoranda that were of considerable value to him, and has ever since refused to give them to him.

It is alleged that Mrs. Petre's associations since her marriage have been bad and humiliating to her husband, that she has associated with men of bad reputation and under circumstances that are generally considered improper. Mr. Petre claims his wife has dined with strange young men at local restaurants where liquor was served in private dining rooms or booths and where the tendency was toward hilarious and boisterous conduct.

In her answer Mrs. Petre, to use street parlance, "stands pat." She admits that her conduct has not been considerate to her husband's feelings, but alleges that he brought it on himself by his treatment and his attitude toward her.

Mrs. Petre claims that she made no representations to Mr. Petre with reference to whether she had or had not been previously married. She admits that she had no wifely love for him when she married him and has had no such regard since.

Mrs. Petre alleges that she consented to marry the plaintiff only by reason of constant importuning and the fact that he had been kind to her for several months prior to their marriage and had offered her a home and financial support.

She alleges that the disparity in their ages has resulted, naturally, in a great dissimilarity of tastes and that Mr. Petre's conduct toward her has been one of a "stern mentor."

Rules for Her Conduct.

Mrs. Petre claims that her husband promulgated for guidance in her conduct, innumerable rules, petty and otherwise, that were intolerable to her. She claims that he objected to the visits of her young women friends and insulted them when she persisted in inviting her friends to see her. It is alleged that Mr. Petre refused to permit his wife to have the amusements and associations that appeal to one of her age and that he undertook to prescribe for her what friends she should have and what she should eat, wear and think.

Mrs. Petre accuses her husband of watching her in secret to find out if she broke any of his rules, and that he made a mass of memoranda while "playing detective." It is admitted by Mrs. Petre that she seized many letters and memoranda belonging to her husband and kept them, but she claims that this constitutes the "evidence" that he claims to have collected against her and which he threatened to make public.

In her answer Mrs. Petre declares that "the dissimilarity of their tastes has resulted in one continuous matrimonial jangle" beginning at the time of their marriage and continuing to the time the plaintiff is alleged to have left her. She claims that as a result of her husband's conduct "any affection that she might have had for him has been eliminated and she has for him a distinct aversion amounting sometimes to a positive hatred." She asks that the court grant her husband the relief he asks for.

FIGHT OFF OFFICERS

Wilson, Russell and Johnson Didn't Like Being Arrested.

Sergeant Gillon and Officer Link had a strenuous time with Richard Russell, Louis Johnson and Charles Wilson about 2 o'clock this morning in a house on St. Croix avenue. The three men started to clear out the place but the two officers were too many for them and they were finally carted to the station. This morning they drew $20 and costs each, or thirty days.

Wilson claimed that he lost some money in the house and the officers were called. They started to investigate and were about to search Johnson and Russell, who appeared willing, when a row started. Sergeant Gillon threw Johnson, who is a slight lad, into a corner, and grappled with Wilson, while Link took care of Russell. The two men are powerful lumberjacks and they made things lively around the hallway for a time until the patrol wagon arrived on the scene.

On the way to the station, Wilson made a flying leap from the wagon and escaped, only to be captured a little later. Inside of his clothes, down near his shoe $37 was found, when he was searched at the station and his howl about a robbery was evidently unfounded.

Wilson and Russell pleaded guilty this morning. Johnson was given a trial and found guilty, and all three were given like sentences.

As a result of the robbery of Fred Wilkins at the rear entrance to the Ideal beer hall early last evening, James Walker and Charles Aiken were in court this morning on disorderly conduct charges. According to the testimony given, when Frank Rowe returned to the pool room shortly after Wilkins had been held up, he and Walker had some words and Walker struck Rowe. He was found guilty and fined $20 and costs, or twenty days. The man who identified Walker for the officers, was the subject of Aiken's wrath, and the victim's story makes it look dark for Aiken. It is said after Walker had been taken in charge, Aiken assaulted the man and pulled a knife on him. The case will be given further consideration this afternoon. Aiken pleaded guilty to the disorderly conduct charge.

"Ven a man can't valk right on sidevalk and fall down, den Ay tink he's drunk," said Emil Peterson this morning. He pleaded not guilty to a drunk charge and vehemently protested that he had only consumed a few glasses of beer, some whiskey and pure alcohol, and could successfully steer himself out of the old year into the new. The court thought differently and Peterson drew $15 and costs or twenty days.

Frank Clarence, a gray-haired veteran, likes the county jail. He smilingly admitted the fact when Judge Windom asked him about it this morning and smilingly accepted a sentence of thirty days. Judge Windom thought Clarence's desire for a month's free board shouldn't be gratified, but as he would keep the patrol wagon on the run during the month, anyway, hauling him to the station, he will not trouble the police for at least thirty days.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Yellow was the color chosen for the beautiful appointments of the wedding ceremony of Miss Rosamund Elizabeth Patrick and Mitchell F. Jamar, Jr., which took place last evening at the home of the bride's father, F. A. Patrick, on East Superior street. The rooms were decorated in a profusion of yellow roses and the same color predominated in the gowns of the bridal party. The ceremony took place in the living room of the home. At 8 o'clock the wedding music was played by A. F. M. Custance at the organ and the wedding party entered. From the newel post of the stairway, at one end of the room, yellow satin ribbons were caught with clusters of yellow roses, and the ushers, Joseph T. Harrison and Warren Jamar of Chicago entered, first marking off an aisle for the bridal party with the ribbons leading to the improvised altar at the other end of the room. The altar was in white with yellow roses and the only illumination at that end of the room was from candles held in the seven-branch candelabra. The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Patrick and Miss Mary Pratt, followed, and next came the maid of honor, Miss Isabel Patrick, immediately preceding the bride with her father. Mr. Jamar, with his groomsman, Walker Jamar, awaited them at the altar, and the Episcopal wedding service was read by Rev. A. W. Ryan of St. Paul's church. Rev. Dwight Hillis of Brooklyn, an uncle of the bride, who was to have read the service, was detained in the East because of illness.

At the informal reception which followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick, and Mr. and Mrs. Jamar of Chicago, parents of the groom, received with Mr. Jamar and his bride. Mrs. Patrick wore a beautiful gown of apricot satin, embroidered in silver, and Mrs. Jamar wore a gown of silver gray silk, trimmed in duchess lace and panne velvet. Assisting about the rooms were Mrs. A. M. Marshall, Mrs. F. L. Gilbert, Mrs. F. B. Spellman, Mrs. W. J. Olcott, Mrs. G. C. Stone and Mrs. E. T. Buxton. At the punch bowl Mrs. John T. Pugh presided, assisted by Miss Larue Sellwood and Miss Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamar left for a wedding trip last evening. The bride's going away gown was a dark blue tailored suit with a hat trimmed in roses of pastel shades. Mr. and Mrs. Jamar will be at home in this city after their return.

Among the out of town guests for the wedding were: Mr. Jamar's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Jamar, Sr.; Warren Jamar of Chicago, Mrs. E. D. Patrick of Marengo, Ill.; Mrs. H. P. Hanchett, Mr. W. Mac Hanchett of Council Bluffs, Iowa; Mrs. Charles Mover of Rockford, Ill., and Mrs. Thomas Stephen Darling of Winnipeg.

HOLIDAY RECEPTION.

Mrs. Clark Ring Entertains For Son and His Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Merrill Ring, whose wedding in this city was one of the beautiful affairs of the late autumn, were the guests of honor at a large New Year's reception yesterday at Saginaw, at which Mr. Ring's mother, Mrs. Clarke Ring, was the hostess. The affair was a most beautiful one, the guests being received last evening from 6 to 10 o'clock. Mr. Ring and bride are expected in the city the latter part of the week to be the guests of Judge and Mrs. Page Morris for a week. They will then go to their home in the West.

Events of Interest.

Browning Lecture.

"Sordello" will be the subject of the lecture tomorrow morning by Rev. J. W. Powell, Jr., before the members of the Twentieth Century club. The lecture is the first of a series of six to be given at the club room of the library. The time of the meeting is 10 o'clock and at 10:10 the doors will be closed and remain closed during the lecture. The committee has decided that it is unfair to the lecturer and the prompt attendants to be disturbed by stragglers during the entire lecture and this year this new rule has been adopted.

Living is at quite a high price. Grape fruit is at a mark where the great common people can not enjoy it for breakfast every morning. Perfectly fresh eggs are also rather a luxury, so is milk and butter and head lettuce and other necessities of life. A real effort was made this morning to discover something cheap. Potatoes are only 65 cents a bushel, parsnips are 30 cents a peck, pig's heads can be bought for 7 cents a pound, but who wants pig's heads or a bushel of potatoes or a whole peck of parsnips?

POWERS' FATE IN HANDS OF JURY

Georgetown, Ky., Jan. 2.—The jury in the trial of Caleb Powers, former secretary of state, charged with complicity in the murder of William Goebel, at the time the latter was contesting the gubernatorial vote, began the consideration of the case this morning. Arguments were closed, late yesterday evening, and the jury retired, but the members decided to postpone consideration of a possible verdict until today.

Before the jury retired to the jury room, Judge Morris specially charged the jurors to maintain the utmost secrecy. Powers, accompanied by his mother and sister and attendant friends, was in court early. Arthur Goebel, brother of the murdered man, and his nephew, William Goebel, sat near State's Attorney Franklin.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

HAS MARKS OF HOLD-UP

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—That H. Garrity and Robert Wade, who were arrested Monday evening while visiting a "plant" of revolvers and cartridges, under the grand stand at the ball park, near the Northern Pacific depot, were connected with a gang of train robbers, who had intended holding up the southbound Northern Pacific passenger, the same evening, appears from later developments.

When the Northern Pacific passenger train arrived at Harold station, six miles east of here, where no agent or operator is located, on Monday evening, Section Boss Carlson, who was standing in the small shed in which the hand car is housed, noticed three men get off the blind baggage. They appeared to be looking for some one, and after the train pulled out, gave several shrill whistles, then started back towards Crookston, on the railroad track.

Two miles and a half south and east of Crookston the Northern Pacific tracks crosses the Great Northern, and all trains stop there. The sewer pipe culverts are four feet in diameter and Section Boss Bergstrom, who runs between here and Harold station, on Tuesday noticed fresh tracks leading to the culvert, and investigating, found a bed made of hay inside the culvert, and which had been recently occupied.

On Monday evening no tickets were sold from here to Harold station, and the conductor took none up for that point, so that it is certain that the three strangers, who were seen to get off the blind baggage, had boarded the train at the crossing, and had intended co-operating with their pals, who were arrested here, and when the latter did not show up, they drilled back to the city to see what had happened.

Yesterday three strangers were seen hanging about the Great Northern depot by Agent Bell, and he reported the matter to the police, but when the police put in an appearance, the men were gone, and as the train for Fargo had just pulled out, it is thought they headed in that direction. Garrity and Wade will be given a hearing today, but the case will undoubtedly be adjourned in order to give time for further investigations.

Another clue was the finding, yesterday, of a copy of a freight bill, made out at West Union, Iowa, or Decatur, Ill., and which Agent Handy says is a part of the office records there, and must have been stolen. The bill was dated June 12 last. It was found tied around the branch of a tree, near where the Colts revolvers were planted, and being a large piece of paper, made a very noticeable signal, and is believed to have had some significance to some members of the gang of robbers. Garrity and Wade were put in the sweat box, and both closed up like clams, refusing to say a single word of any kind whatever.

SPOONER AND BAUDETTE

Furnished Plenty of Entertainment During Christmas Week.

Spooner, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Good Templar lodge of Spooner had a bazar Christmas week at their hall, for the purpose of raising money for the building fund.

The second floor of the hall was devoted to several schemes for obtaining money, such as miniature bowling alley, shooting gallery, country store, fortune-telling and many other novel money-making devices.

Christmas tree exercises were given to the children of Beaudette by the Commercial club of the place. Two beautiful Christmas trees decorated the stage. An interesting program was given by the school children, under the supervision of Misses Imsdahl and Zabes. Every child who attended was remembered with a Christmas token, which were distributed by St. Nicholas.

The Knights of Pythias of Spooner lodge, No. 186, entertained the children of Beaudette, Spooner and the adjacent country last Friday evening. The following program was given:

Reading—"Damon and Pythias"..... George E. Ericson.

Song—"Lullaby"..... Eight Girls.

"Pantomime"..... Stanford Noble.

"Christmas Star"..... Six Girls.

"Christmas Fairy"..... Catherine Montroy.

The fairy with her magic wand brought brownies on the stage, and finally Santa Claus appeared upon the scene. Each woman, man and child was presented with a box and bag of candy. The boxes were made to order, bearing the emblem of the order.

NATIONAL GUARD TO DISCUSS LAWS

Minot, N. D., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officers of Company D, North Dakota National Guard, are making arrangements to enterfain the delegates to the annual convention of North Dakota National Guard accociation, which will meet in Minot, on Jan. 21, 22 and 23.

The delegates to the convention will consist of three representatives from each company and the officers of the state association. Adjt. Gen. Poole will undoubtedly be present and many other prominent military people.

Various questions of interest to the guard will be discussed. Among these will be proposed legislation of the state to federal laws. The convention will be one of the most important ever held in Minot, and the citizens will join with the members of the local company in entertaining the delegates.

SHORTAGE $3,000.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the preliminary hearing of F. E. Dunlop, former cashier of the local Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway before Judge Miller, it was brought out that his shortage will be close to $3,000 and possibly more. The fact that Dunlop was neither checked into the office or his predecessor checked out, was brought out and it is possible that this may play an important part when tried in the district court. It was learned that Dunlop has served time in Bismarck penitentiary for stealing an express package from the Great Northern Express company at Larimore. Wine and women are conceded to be the cause of his downfall here.

Testimony was presented showing that the books showed in Dunlop's handwriting that an express package of $1,000 had been received for transmission to Chicago, but had not been received at the Chicago office and one local express agent testified that he had not sent the package and it is expected that other agents will present corroborating testimony tomorrow. A similar course was pursued with respect to another express package of $542. Testimony was also presented showing that the local office is short in cash about $1,200, making the total shortage about $2,700.

WAGES ARE REDUCED; MONTANA EMPLOYES QUIT.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty-five men, who were working on the government irrigation ditch at Billings, Mont., passed through Fargo yesterday on No. 6 of the Northern Pacific. They stated that the wages of laborers were cut from $2.50 per day by the government contractor to $1.80 per day and they struck. Their places were filled within an hour. The work day is nine hours on the irrigation ditch. They report a plethora of laborers in that vicinity.

BOBSLED OVERTURNED

While Loaded With Young People and One is Badly Injured.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Ethel Carroll is suffering from painful injuries sustained while coasting with a number of companions in West Houghton. A party of ten young people were enjoying themselves bob sleighing, and when going over some of the jumps erected by some boys, the sleigh overturned, and the members of the party were thrown in all directions. Several of the girls were somewhat bruised, but none was seriously injured except Miss Carroll, whose back was hurt so badly that she was unable to walk.

SPOONER, MINN., SCORCHED; LOSS SEVERAL THOUSANDS.

Spooner, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire destroyed Dickinson & Co.'s store building, including household goods and fixtures; also Thompson's shoe store, adjoining. The total loss on Dickinson's building was about $5,500, insurance $4,500. Thompson's shoe store, total loss is $800, no insurance.

INJURED WHILE COASTING.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—While coasting in Drummond, Melvin Josephson fell off a sled and broke his leg very badly, sustaining a compound fracture. He was brought here to Rinehart's hospital, where his injuries were given medical attention. The injury to his leg was quite severe.

FERRIS KILLED HIMSELF.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. P. Ferris, a brakeman, found dying Tuesday evening in the hallway of a flat building at 315 East Fourteenth street, saying that he had been given knock-out drops, was the victim of a bullet. He shot himself in the abdomen with suicidal intent.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

St. Paul—The Minnesota Association of Naval Veterans of the Civil War, Port of St. Paul, has elected the following officers for 1908: Captain, Louis Dunn; commander, John Verger; lieutenant commander, John Carter; senior lieutenant, Robert McBride; lieutenant, M. Sutton; surgeon, H. Brackett; paymaster, W. B. Floyd; engineer, P. Devine; chaplain, Theodore Robinson; secretary, J. C. Gregg.

Wabasso — A team owned by George Parsons became frightened and ran away. The horses headed for the H. J. Huske residence and ran into the front of the house, one horse going through the large storm window into the house. The buggy was badly smashed and the animal received a large gash from the glass.

Ada—The auditor's force has just finished the assessment books for the year 1907 and finds that the taxes for Norman county amount to $160,665.78. Of this there are $20,883.24 ditch taxes, $39,144.82 special school tax, $6,621.57 local mill school tax, and $84,626.15 general taxes. Ada contributes as her share $16,407.56.

Parkers Prairie—Aaron Madrou of Milton celebrated New Year's day under the care of physicians. While chopping down a huge tree it fell on him, breaking his leg in two places and seriously injuring his head and shoulders.

Wasca—Young Martin Lehan, for whom the police have been on the watch since Sept. 20, came into town and gave himself up. The charge against him is the alleged robbery of Frank Miller, who was knocked down and robbed.

Calumet — The public schools of Calumet will reopen next Monday after a two-weeks' vacation. All of the teachers who are spending the Christmas holidays with friends and relatives are expected here Saturday.

Houghton—The worn down wheels of the Houghton street cars which have been causing so many jolts and bumps of late are being replaced with new ones as fast as the changes can be made.

Hancock — William Grosse of West Hancock was the victim of a painful accident in fracturing a leg by falling on a slippery walk while leaving his home.

Ishpeming—Axel Lindberg, aged 27 years, died Sunday at the home of his brother, Victor Lindberg, on Cleveland avenue, consumption being the cause. The deceased had suffered from the disease for more than a year past and for some time prior to five weeks ago he was confined to a hospital in Minneapolis.

Marquette — Mr. and Mrs. Albert Greene, who were married here last July and who have been living at Chickasha, Okla., are to return to the city this week.

Hancock—Governor Warner will appear in the Copper country to witness the inspection of the naval reserve. He will be accompanied by Inspector General Wagner. Capt. Standish will not come.

Lake Linden—The remains of Eugene Perrault, drowned in Torch lake while skating Sunday afternoon, were recovered from the lake Monday. The body was taken to the home. The funeral took place Thursday morning from the Catholic church.

Calumet—James Chynoweth, the new managing director of the Hermina Mining company, has assumed his new duties. Joan Jacka, a well known Calumet mining engineer, has accepted a position under Capt. Chynoweth.

Hancock—Mrs. Hugh Campbell died at the family home near the Isle Royale mill Monday morning. Heart disease was the probable cause. Mrs. Campbell was found in an unconscious condition in the cellar of her house Sunday afternoon, and she remained in a comatose state until death came.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Prairie du Chien — Joseph Hazen, a Philippine veteran, died suddenly in this city. He ate a hearty supper, and then told his folks he was going upstairs to die. They laughed at him, but shortly afterward found him dying, and before a physician could be summoned he was dead.

Milwaukee—Architects Van Ryn & De Gelieke of Milwaukee were authorized to advertise for bids for the La Crosse normal school to be opened Jun. 15, at a meeting of the executive committee of the board of normal regents held here.

La Crosse—The young woman who died at the Hotel Fortney, Viroqua, after, it is alleged, an operation by Dr. D. F. O'Brien, was not a sister of Louis Olson of this city, as first stated. She was not related to the La Crosse Olsons.

Ashland—City Treasurer Nohl reports that the collection of taxes is coming in very rapidly. He has received up to date in cash about $32,000, which is $5,000 more than was received on the same date a year ago and last year's record seems to have been the best made in the collection of taxes up to that time.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Grand Forks, N. D.—In the case of Waldo vs. J. B. Streeter company a district court jury brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $654.87. The plaintiff sued to recover $2,400. The case involved grain and other deals which followed the leasing of some land by the plaintiff from the defendant.

Bowbells, N. D.—Twelve in a family residing near Bowbells are critically ill with black diphtheria. Two children of the family have died.

Mandan, N. D.—William McHenry, judge of the county court for Morton county, died Monday morning. While he has been more or less ailing for a year or two, he only had to suspend his duties a few days ago. He was born in Scotland in 1854 and thoroughly learned the trade of blacksmith.

Valley City N. D.—There is a movement on foot to secure an Elks lodge for Valley City. As soon as the Pettibone Directory company had completed their new directory and the city council adopted the figures 5,686, as the population of the city, a few members of the B. P. O. E. got together and named a committee to solicit membership.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The body of Michael Ryan, who died recently in Colorado Springs, Colo., arrived in the city Monday evening, accompanied by the wife of the deceased, who was with him when the end came. The funeral was held Wednesday morning at 10:30. Father E. J. Conaty conducted the services.

Fargo, N. D.—Charged with theft of a set of nopples valued at about $25, Mike Splan was arrested in Moorhead and brought to this city by Capt. Dahlgren Monday evening and landed in the city jail, where he admitted his guilt. Complaint was made by W. H. Doyle, who suffered the loss.

Minot, N. D.—There is a dispute on between the Minot bus and hack drivers over places at the Great Northern depo As a result of the dispute R. J. Barra, driver for Hotel Horrill, was arrested on complaint of J. A. McGregor, who charges Barron with molesting his property.

TO MAKE IT PERMANENT

Civic Committee On Open Shop Will Not Disband.

Will be Associated With Advisory Committee of 100.

Following is a statement of the civic committee on the open shop conditions:

"The movement for the open shop in Duluth has gained strength as the days have passed, and enters the new year well along. Contractors believe, from what they know of similar movements in the past, that it is several weeks ahead of what could have been hoped for when it began, when the Building Trades' alliance struck on the Sellwood and Clyde Iron works jobs. On account of the lack of work elsewhere this winter, and the general feeling everywhere that work will be quiet during the coming spring and summer, it has not been hard to get all the skilled men needed, and every job under way in Duluth is on the open shop idea. This does not mean non-union, nor reduction of wages. Take the Sellwood building, for instance, the union bricklayers are working steadily in conjunction with non-union men in other crafts, and all on a union scale. The open shop does not necessarily imply non-union. It does mean unrestricted production; a chance for any man to work, even if he cannot afford the money to join the union ranks and pay union fees and dues, or does not care to do so, and it also means that there is no wall of ill-feeling built up between the men and their employers. The open shop, in short, means just this:

"No closed shop.

"No restriction as to the use of tools, machinery or material, except such as are unsafe.

"No limitation of output.

"No restriction as to the number of apprentices and helpers of proper age.

"No boycott.

"No sympathetic strike.

"No sacrifice of independent workmen to the labor union.

"No compulsory use of the union label.

"And it is a notorious fact, known to every person in Duluth, that the closed shop means just the opposite in every respect.

"The executive committee on the open shop, composed of nine members, three each from the Commercial club, the Real Estate exchange and the Builders' exchange, has become associated with an advisory committee of 100, which is composed of men who believe in the open shop and are willing to act in an advisory capacity, and which is composed as follows: Messrs. W. C. Agnew, Ward Ames, C. W. Andrews, H. R. Armstrong, J. H. Barnes, G. G. Barnum, W. T. Bailey, C. H. Bradley, E. L. Bradley, John H. Bayly, E. T. Buxton, A. B. Chapin, A. M. Chisholm, B. C. Church, H. W. Coffin, C. C. Cokefair, W. H. Cole, C. S. Carpenter, W. H. Cook, J. H. Cook, George H. Crosby, D. G. Cutler, George H. Claypool, T. J. Davis, J. H. Diglit, C. A. Duncan, A. W. Frick, H. Hubbell, D. T. Helm, H. Hurdon, A. C. Jones, E. R. Jefferson, J. F. Killorin, S. G. Knox, C. J. Lesure, L. W. Liethhead, C. A. Luster, Ray T. Lewis, J. O. Lenning, J. J. LeTourneau, W. H. Magie, W. E. Magner, R. N. Marble, C. Markell, W. P. Mars, A. M. Marshall, L. Mendenhall, E. W. Matter, T. D. Merrill, John Miller, J. C. Mullory, John McAlpine, W. J. McCabe, Alex McDougall, C. H. Munger, A. R. Macfarlane, J. H. McCarthy, John Megins, Watson S. Moore, Jesse Norton, F. A. Patrick, Martin Pattison, H. H. Phelps, W. I. Prince, F. M. Parsons, George Rupley, C. R. Rust, J. T. Rose, E. A. Schulze, Joseph Sellwood, R. M. Sellwood, W. B. Silvey, B. G. Seagog, George Spencer, George C. Stone, Percy Shaw, A. D. Thomson, Henry Turrish, G. A. Tomlinson, J. A. Todd, Morris Thomas, A. L. Warner, Herbert Warren, A. B. Wolvin, C. S. Wilson, W. C. Winton.

"It has been decided to make the organization of the civic committee permanent, and this organization will be perfected as soon as possible. Its object will be, in general, about as follows:

"To promote and protect the interests of the people of Duluth; to unite its members upon all matters where concerted action seems desirable; to secure for employer and employed freedom of contract in the matter of employment; to discourage all unreasonable demands and unjust or illegal methods of enforcing them, on the part of either employer or employe; and to promott on a fair and equitable basis industrial peace and prosperity in the community and the steady employment of labor."

Disturbed the Congregation.

The person who disturbed the congregation last Sunday by continually coughing is requested to buy a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar.

SOUVENIR HUNTERS STEAL EVERYTHING.

New York, Jan. 1.—Souvenir hunters were out in force New Year's eve and every hotel and restaurant lost great quantities of glass and silverware, the guests carrying away everything from small coffee spoons to silver wine goblets and salt cellars.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"The Royal Chef."

Two big holiday audiences witnessed the production of "The Royal Chef" yesterday afternoon and evening.

Most of the music of "The Royal Chef" has been whistled until it has lost all its freshness, and this fact kept the company from creating the impression it otherwise would. William J. McCarthy, the comedian of the company this year, is a laughmaker of more than the average ability, and one of the best singers of topical songs ever seen in Duluth.

The company is fully up to the standard of those presenting musical comedies in their second season, and the two audiences yesterday apparently derived a full measure of enjoyment from the production.

The song, "My Blue-Eyed Sue," which is sung by the Thoroughbreds during the action of their entertainment, at the Metropolitan this week, and which is the song hit of the show, was written by Sam Schiller, the musical director of the company. He wrote it last summer, which he spent at his home on Long Island sound. He has written a number of other pieces at different times, and some of them have attained a great popularity.

DOUBLE ELOPEMENT

Quimby, Iowa, Jan. 2.—A double elopement of high school students of tender age has put irate parents on a frantic but fruitless search and caused a sensation in this town. The young people are William Gilmore and Miss Grace Baumgartner of Quimby, and Raleigh Bollin and Miss Byrd Casey of Silver township.

In high glee the quartet left here Saturday in a two-seated carriage, telling their friends they were going to Cherokee to a dance. They have not been seen since, despite the fact that the fathers of the girls are leaving nothing undone in their search.

The young people are members of prominent families, and they are all under 17 years of age, except Gilmore, who is 21.

Mr. Baumgartner had forbidden Gilmore to have anything to do with his daughter, but they carried on a clandestine courtship for some time.

FIVE PERSONS HURT

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 2.—Five persons were injured and two street cars were riddled with stones here, late yesterday afternoon, in a riot that followed an attempt of the Indiana Union Traction company to run cars manned by strike-breakers. The strike followed the refusal of the company to re-sign the wage schedule that has been in effect for five years.

Realizing that the local police force was unable to cope with the situation, Mayor Guthrie, last evening, appealed to the governor to send troops to Muncie, but the governor replied that he will send Col. Harry B. Smith to look over the situation, and he would act as the latter's report guided him.

Repeated efforts by the sheriff to swear in deputies were frustrated, as not a man would act.

Shortly after 2 o'clock two cars were started through the business section, but a mob had gathered, and a shower of stones filled the air. Every window in the cars was shattered, and Jesse Williams, a Chicago strike-breaker, was badly cut. The men manning the cars retreated, and were removed to the police station. Clarence Shipp was struck by a stone. Three other persons, whose names are unknown, were hurt. The company has 150 strike-breakers housed for the night.

COMPROMISE

Between Taft and Foraker Forces May be Made in Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 2.—The Republican state central committee meets this afternoon to select a date for the state convenion, which will name a state ticket and delegates-at-large to the national convention. It is said that Senator Dick and Mr. Vorys of the Taft bureau will have another important conference during the day regarding the arrangements for the state convention, and possibly some compromise between the Taft and Foraker forces, insuring harmony.

Senator Dick said today that he is for a convention in March and not in February, as some of the members are advocating.

"CISSY" LOFTUS ILL.

New York, Jan. 2.—Cecelia Loftus, the actress, is in a serious condition in a private hospital, as a result of an operation for appendicitis performed yesterday. The operating physician looks for her recovery, but admits her condition is grave.

CIVIC PRIDE AWAKENED

City Engineer McGilvray Proposes Many Municipal Improvements.

Suggests That Citizens Work for Beautifying of Duluth.

NEEDS OF DULUTH.

Public abattoir.
Public baths.
Children's bathing ponds on Park Point and in West Duluth.
Paved boulevard for entire length of Park Point to Superior entry.
Roads on 3 per cent grade from center of city to top of the hill.
New highway between West end and West Duluth.
Widening of Michigan street, between Eighth and Thirteenth avenues west.
Construction of cement walks by city employes, instead of on contract system, all walks to be constructed in order to authorization by council, to be of uniform width and quality.
Paving of Third and Fourth streets.

City Engineer McGilvray has had his thinking cap on as the old year, with its completion of municipal improvements and planning for more extensive steps in progress, passed away, and the new year presented itself to allow the consummation of some of the plans under consideration by Duluth citizens for the beautifying and improvement of their city. He crystalized some of his dreams into definite suggestions this morning, and recommended that Duluth people think seriously of them and bring them about, if possible, or such of them as they may see fit during the present year.

"Some of the suggestions have come to me in my day-dreams, and I will probably never recommend them in definite form to the city council," he said. "But I consider most of them of great moment and worthy of the consideration of every citizen of Duluth. They may not be brought about for years, but it is well for every citizen to think of the progress of his city in civic beauty and stability. Duluth has many needs, some pressing, others not so much so, and not until those needs are supplied, will the city be 'The Pittsburg of the West;' a city in which it will be a pleasure to live, and one in which outsiders will find joy in visiting. I speak now of municipal improvements, not of industrial advances, which must come from a direction other than the governing body of the city.

"The public abattoir, public baths and children's bathing ponds need no arguments as to their desirability. They are necessities in any city the size of Duluth. The abattoir stands for cleanliness and sanitation in the slaughtering of animals. The public baths and bathing ponds would be of benefit to more people than one would think, unless he knew conditions. The ponds would keep the children out of more dangerous places and put them under the protection of attendants, where they would be safe.

"The paved boulevard on Park Point is not a new scheme, but it, is one which will bear consideration. How nice it would be for us to take out visitors around the boulevard and show them the city from the heights and then down on the Point, where they would see the shipping at first hand, the manufacturing and wholesale district spread out before them and the opposite view of the city.

"The roads on a small grade to the top of the hill are pets, which I have proposed to the council many times. In case of fire they would be invaluable, as well as for ordinary traffic. The Heights are at present too nearly inaccessible for the city's good and the plan might be taken up with good effect.

"The new highway to West Duluth and the widening of Michigan street are also old projects. Third street is too narrow on account of the street car tracks as an avenue for traffic between the West end and West Duluth. The Jenswold street subway is too restricted and a new highway is badly needed.

"At the present time the street sprinklers are filled from the hydrants. The valves for that purpose are within the reach of children, are tampered with, rendered leaky, and, at times, useless. I would recommend the installation of standpipes, or cranes, for the filling of the sprinklers, where the valves would be out of the reach of everyone, except the man on top of the sprinkler. They would cost about $50 each and sixty of them would be needed. The $3,000 expended would be well spent.

"The present plan of constructing concrete walks doesn't make for uniformity in quality or workmanship. If the city employes had charge of the work they could take it up in the regular order, the old sidewalks would not be torn up for weeks in advance of the construction of the new, and the arrangement would be more satisfactory. The other projects I speak of have been discussed before and the people might well think of them for action during the coming year."

PILLSBURY TO BE CHIEF OF NAVIGATION BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 2.—After a conference with President Roosevelt today, Secretary Metcalf announced that Capt. J. F. Pillsbury had been selected as chief of the navigation bureau of the navy department. Capt. Pillsbury participated in the conference between the president and the secretary just prior to the announcement.

INJURED MEN ASK DAMAGES

Aggregate Claim of $35,000 for Loss of a Leg and a Foot.

Two damage cases aggregating $35,000 in claims for injuries, were started in the district court this morning by J. De LaMotte, attorney for the plaintiffs.

Peter Desaman demands $25,000 damages from Butler Bros. for the loss of a leg under a car at some stripping operations carried on about three miles from Hibbing last August. Desaman claims that while employed as a brakeman on the train running to the steam shovel, he was compelled to work for thirty-six hours at a stretch without rest or sleep and that while he was on a sidetrack waiting for another train to move away from the steam shovel, he became overcome from exhaustion and tumbled on the ground, his leg falling across the track. He claims that while he was in an unconscious state and unable to take care of himself, the train was moved and his leg was crushed under the wheels.

John Nering demands $10,000 damages from the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company for the loss of a foot crushed under a big chunk of ore while he was cleaning an ore car.

MANY WOODSMEN ARE IN THE CITY

The streets were filled with men today. Many of the laborers who did not get down for Christmas were in town yesterday, and today the local labor offices are beseiged with men who are looking for employment.

Heavy orders for men were received from the woods this morning. The demand for men is the biggest since the big orders before the stringency. Some of the camps will start operations again this month, and at labor offices it is said that the demand for men will probably steadily increase.

All of the employment offices were in receipt of orders to send laborers to the camps. Some of the camps are re-employing men, others are hiring additional men, and still other orders represent the starting of a camp that was closed down in the first week of the money stringency.

While the wages being offered are below those in effect before the money stringency of last October, some of the firms asking for men are offering good wages. Today's orders are the most encouraging since some of the big firms decided to let out men.

PASTOR MET DEATH BY POISONING.

Eureka, Ill., Jan. 2.—Examination of the stomach of Rev. Gilbert Gish, pastor of the Christian church at Chambersburg, Ill., reveals that his sudden death recently was due to poison. The state's attorney last night began an investigation to determine whether the minister was murdered. While preaching at Adrian, Mich., several months ago Rev. Mr. Gish is said to have received a note threatening his death. The missive purported to be from a near relative.

PETITION DISMISSED.

Washington, Jan. 2.—In the supreme court of the District of Columbia, Justice Gould dismissed the petition of Conrad H. Syme, a taxpayer of the District of Columbia, who sought to restrain the commission from erecting a statue of Gen. Grant in the United States botanical gardens, in this city, upon the plea that certain historic trees would be destroyed thereby.

RAILROAD NEWS

TRACKAGE ARRANGED

Wisconsin Central Will Use Duluth Union Depot Temporarily.

Trains Will Run Over the Northern Pacific Tracks.

In view of the fact that the Wisconsin Central will not have its Duluth depot and terminals ready under about two years' time, it will be necessary for the road to come to some agreement with another line entering Duluth for trackage and depot privileges, and it is now understood that this arrangement will be made with the Northern Pacific.

The Central expects to have trains running into Superior next spring, and the present plan is to establish connections with Duluth at the same time. It has not been officially announced as yet, but it is reported on good authority that the Central trains will enter Duluth over the Northern Pacific tracks, and that they will use the union depot until the completion of the company's own depot here.

As a matter of fact, the union station is the only one that is open to the new road, for the Omaha, being a rival line, would hardly agree to let the Central lines use its Duluth depot. Anyway, it is the policy of the Omaha to have its own depots, and to devote them exclusively to their own trains.

C. N. Kalk, chief engineer of the Wisconsin Central, was in Duluth yesterday, and said the track into Superior would be ready for use about the first of June, corroborating reports which recently appeared in The Herald. Finishing touches are now being put on the bridge across the Nemadji river, a short distance south of Superior. This bridge will have the longest steel span of any along the line.

THE STRIKE IS SETTLED

Boilermakers and Northern Pacific Come to an Agreement.

All the Old Men Will Soon be Given Places.

The boilermakers' strike is settled.

The men employed by the Northern Pacific road, at Brainerd and at other shops on the system, will return to work today, it is stated.

There are about six men in Duluth affected by the strike.

The Great Northern trouble has not yet been adjusted. The Superior shops are affected by the strike of the Great Northern men. It is expected that they will shortly follow the example of the Northern Pacific men and come to an agreement.

According to the best information obtainable, the settlement was on a basis of 17½ cents an hour. No discrimination will be made against any of the strikers, and on the other hand, the company has made no promise to discharge any non-union men now employed by it. The matter of rehiring the old men will be left largely with the heads of the shops.

All the strikers cannot be given places at once, but it is said they will all be taken care of within the next few weeks.

A good many of them have taken up work in other districts, and are not now in search of employment. This will make it better for the men that are left. It is understood that in Duluth there are only two or three of the strikers who are in such a position that they want their old jobs back, and it is thought they will be given places this week, although no nonunionists will be discharged to make room for them.

The terms of settlement appear satisfactory to local boilermakers. At the beginning of the trouble the employes of ten roads agreed to stand together, but when it was found that no settlement could be secured on this basis, it was voted by the unionists to let the employes of each road deal directly with the companies for whom they worked, and the Northern Pacific had no trouble in coming to a satisfactory agreement with its men.

BOTH USE DEPOT.

Missabe and Rainy Lake Trains Use Virginia Depot.

The Wuluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road yesterday began using the Duluth, Missabe & Northern depot at Virginia jointly with the Missabe. This will make it much more convenient for passengers between Duluth and the border, for it will mean only a few steps from one train to the other.

The Rainy Lake line is enjoying an excellent patronage, both in its freight and passenger departments. A rapid development of the tributary territory is looked for next summer, for the line taps a region rich in agricultural possibilities, and as soon as the timber is cut off, the farmers will be ready to begin operations.

TRAIN ROLLS OVER BANK, BUT PASSENGERS SAVED.

Barrie, Ont., Jan. 2.—The southbound Penetang express on the Grand Trunk railroad was derailed about seven miles north of here last night. The whole train, with the exception of the locomotive, rolled down a forty-foot embankment and made three turns before it reached the bottom.

A stove in the second car set the train on fire and it burned. All the passengers, of whom fifteen were injured, were taken out safely. The injured were brought to a hospital here, where it is understood their injuries are not serious.

MAY ABANDON AMERICAN PLAN

It looks as if Duluth will have all its hotels adopting the European plan next spring. The St. Louis will adopt the European plan early in the spring, when the new cafe is finished, while the proprietors of the Spalding and the Lenox are contemplating cutting out the American dining room in the near future. If these hotels decide to dispense with the American plan, it is certain that the McKay will follow the lead. This would leave Duluth without an American plan hotel.

All of the local managers say they can't make money under the American plan. The average man, for men invariably order more than women, say the managers, eats too much for the price charged for the meal. The managers say that if people were eating on the European plan they would not eat nearly as much. The bigger the meal the more dishes required, and the more dishes required the more help it takes to wash them. Taken all together, managers say, that more help is needed under the American plan, less returns are gained on a bigger outlay of expense, and that they have about decided to cut it out.

After this, the person who orders dishes that he does not want after he gets them, will have to pay for this extravagance.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Denver, Colo., Jan. 2.—James B. Westhaver, A.M., Ph.D., professor of physics at the University of Denver and author of a text book on that subject, died yesterday at St. Luke's hospital in this city, aged 45 years.

Kansas City, Jan. 2.—James Stowe, consul to South Africa in 1890, one of the best known ministers in the United States, died at his home here today, aged 63 years. Col. Stowe came of an old English family and was a brother of Baron Stowe, founder of the famous Stowe library of London.

Leavenworth, Kan., Jan. 2.—Rev. William N. Page, the oldest Presbyterian minister in this city, died, at his home here, Monday, aged 72 years. At the recent Los Angeles general assembly of his church, Rev. Page was elected vice moderator. He was a school mate of Secretary of State Elihu Root.

Wichita, Kan., Jan. 2. — Marshall M. Murdock, editor and proprietor of the Wichita Eagle, father of congressman Victor Murdock, and one of the best known newspaper men in the United States, died, yesterday morning, aged 70 years.

Hillsboro, Or., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Mary Ramsey Wood, died, here, yesterday, at her daughter's home, aged 119 years. Mrs. Wood was a native of Tennessee.

Mr. Woodford is Here Again.

Probably the most popular accident policy that has ever been sold in Duluth is that special $1,000 policy issued by the Great Eastern Casualty & Indemnity company of New York, costing but $3.00 a year, which Mr. C. W. Woodford of St. Paul has been writing here for the past four years. Mr. Woodford is now in the city and will renew policies as they fall due or write you a policy if you do not now carry it. Registrations have heretofore been made with the American Registry company of Washington, D. C., but all future registrations will be made with the Western Registry company of St. Paul, a home institution, with double the capital of the former, adding thereby greatly increased value to the insurance. But one policy of this firm can be carried at that price by any one individual. Do not fail to renew or secure a policy when the agent calls.

PRICES NOT LOWERED

The announcement, at Minneapolis, by the Northern Pine Manufacturers' association of a cut of from $1 to $3 per thousand feet on everything in the white pine list is not looked upon by Duluth lumber interests as having any special significance. In fact the action of the association is said to have had no effect here.

It is claimed that locally lumber is being sold cheaper now than in Minneapolis, even at the lower figures that are claimed to have been promulgated.

"The announcement of the cut in prices does not mean, necessarily, that the individual members intend to live up to the new list. In my opinion, and in the opinion of others at this point, the announcement has been made simply to give the Minneapolis manufacturers the opportunity of doing a little dickering with the trade. They will not, as a matter of fact, sell any more lumber at the reduced price, or, if it were cut even more, but with the knowledge that the association has given them leeway, they will be in a position to dicker.

"Lumber is being sold cheaper in Duluth than in Minneapolis even were the reduced figures obtainable. The conditions are not quite the same in the two markets. The Duluth manufacturers, as a rule, figure on disposing of their entire cut along the line of certain dimensions to one purchaser, while in the Clouquet and the Minneapolis markets, the purchaser can buy any quantity that he wants.

"There is no reason, with the present market conditions, for a curtailment in the lumber production this year. There may be a little curtailment in the log output, but not in the lumber production. The mills at Clouquet could curtail their log output one-half and still have just as large a lumber production this year as last because the companies have such a large quantity of logs on hand from their logging operations of last winter and the winter before."

More Gold From Europe.

This headline has appeared so often in our papers lately that we are all more or less familiar with it. Millions of dollars in gold have been sent us from Europe, and while many reasons have been given for same the one most generally accepted is that it was imported as a means of relieving our money stringency. Passes 23,000 Mark.

The files in the district court of St. Louis county turned the 23,000 mark this morning. This means that over 23,000 civil cases have been started in the district court since the Eleventh Judicial district was organized years ago. At the rate new cases have been filed during the last year it will not be long before the 24,000 mark is reached. To preserve the files for this immense number of cases requires a considerable amount of vault space. Many of the papers are now being filed under the jail as the clerk's vault cannot begin to accommodate the files.

Papers Are Filed.

Papers in the case of Otis H. Dyer against Frederick Weyerhaeuser, the Northern Lumber company and the Northern Pacific Railway company, were filed in federal court today. The plaintiff claims the right to purchase from the government, certain lands which, it is claimed, are within the Northern Pacific land grant. It is charged that the patent for the land issued the railway company was under a mistake in law.

Postal Cards Seized.

The local postoffice still is receiving thousands of postal cards mailed in transparent envelopes, contrary to law. Many of these cards even have the stamps under the paper, where they cannot be cancelled. Even where there is an opening for the stamp it is unlawful to send such cards through the mails. One thousand cards were seized yesterday by the Duluth officers.

Claims Wife Is Cruel.

Herman Stebner has petitioned the district court for a divorce from Matilda Stebner on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. They were married in this county in 1899 and have two small children. Stebner claims that his wife has developed hatred toward him, that she has destroyed the food and provisions that he took home and threatened to poison him. He claims he is afraid to live with her any longer for fear of his life.

Infant Dies.

Stansgana Dickowski, the eight months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Dickowski, died this morning. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Funeral Monday.

Jacob P. Pulski died this morning at St. Mary's hospital after several weeks' illness. He was 35 years of age. The funeral will be held Monday morning from the Polish Catholic church with interment in Calvary cemetery.

Dies at Winona.

Word was received, this morning, by C. E. and Henry Van Bergen, of the death of their mother, at Winona, Minn. They left this afternoon, on the 1:55 train for Winona.

Swung From Fence.

For half an hour this morning an intoxicated lumberjack hung helplessly suspended across a fence at First street and Fourth avenue west. His head and shoulders remained in a dangling position, while his legs and the lower part of his body, acting as a counter-balance, swung near the ground and kept him from toppling over from his perch.

A gathering crowd of pedestrians watched the vain efforts of the inebriated man to free himself from his position. Finally the owner of the house, whose front fence the jack was using for a swinging pole, appeared and succeeded in getting the reeling man started on his way.

Appeals Case to Supreme Court.

Notice of an appeal from the district court's judgment in the case of Frank Erickson against the estate of Mary Erickson, and Neil McInnis, administrator, has been filed in the district court. The appeal is taken by Erickson, whose claim against the estate was turned down by the probate court. The district court afterward affirmed the ruling of the probate court. The testimony showed that Erickson and the decedent lived as man and wife for some years and accumulated considerable property held in Mary Erickson's name. She had been previously married in the old country and was never divorced. The court held that her property should go to her children by her legal husband, Erickson being cut out from participation in the property rights.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

A most interesting session of the Morning Shakespeare class of the Twentieth Century club was held this morning at the club room of the library. The meeting was the first since before the holidays and the reading and discussion of "Richard III" was completed. Miss Laura Frankenfield, a former member of the class, was present and gave much pleasure in her readings from the play. Miss Frankenfield also gave an informal talk on the play and the characters. The reading of a scene of the play by Miss Shesgren and Miss Kathleen Watterworth was another delightful feature of the morning. The discussion was of unusual interest.

The next play to be studied by the class will be "The Comedy of Errors," with Mrs. Mary Nelson as leader. The first meeting will be held Thursday morning, Jan. 16.

New Year's Ball.

An impromptu ball was held last night in the dining room of the St. Louis hotel. The dance was given by members of the Royal Chef and their friends, after the close of the performance last night. The tables in the dining room were cleared away by the hotel force, augmented by the masculine members of the company, and some of the musicians of the company were pressed into service. Soon everything was running as smoothly as if the dance had been planned a week ahead.

The impromptu ball did not start until nearly midnight. It lasted well into the morning and everyone agreed that the hastily organized affair was a huge success in every detail.

WALSH TRIAL RESUMED.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The trial of John R. Walsh was resumed today, the juror on account of whose illness the trial was postponed last week having recovered. The first witness summoned today for the defense was E. H. Pfaffling, civil engineer on the Southern Indiana railroad, one of the Walsh properties, who told of the condition of the railroad.

STATE BANK INSURANCE.

Oklahoma, the first state in the Union or, indeed, in the world, to try the experiment of real popular government, is also the first state in this country to provide for the state insurance of deposits in state banks.

The first Oklahoma legislature passed a "bank deposit guaranty law" which is now in effect, and a copy of which has been received by The Herald. It provides for the creation of a state banking board, composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, president of the state board of agriculture, state treasurer and state auditor.

This board is required to levy an assessment against the capital stock of each state bank, at the rate of 1 per cent of the bank's daily average deposits less the deposits of state funds properly secured. This assessment will produce what is to be called the "depositors' guaranty fund," and it is to be maintained at 1 per cent of the average daily deposits of all the state banks. Whenever it is depleted, from any cause, special proportionate assessments are to be made to restore it to its proper level. Banks organized subsequent to the enactment of this law are to pay into the guaranty fund 3 per cent of their capital stock.

National banks may, if they desire, avail themselves of this protection by complying with the law, provided that if a federal law of similar nature is provided, they may withdraw from the state guaranty fund.

Whenever a bank fails, the state bank commissioner is to take charge of its affairs and pay depositors in full. If the bank's funds will not meet the requirements, the state banking board will draw enough from the guaranty fund to make up the deficit, so that depositors will always be paid promptly and without waiting to liquidate the bank's assets. After they have been paid, the state has a first lien upon the bank's assets and upon the liability of officers, directors and stockholders, the lien to be enforced for the benefit of the guaranty fund.

After the deposit guaranty law is in full swing, the bank commissioner is to deliver to each bank a certificate that such bank has complied with the laws of the state for the protection of bank depositors, and that the safety of the depositors is guaranteed by the depositors' guaranty fund of the state of Oklahoma. This certificate is to be conspicuously displayed in the bank, and the banker may print on his stationery the fact that its depositors are thus protected.

Surely it ought to have some effect in steadying confidence if, when depositors start a run on a bank, they find a placard assuring them that the state is back of the bank and ready to guaranty that they will get their money. And if national banks could assure their depositors that the government stood in the same position as to them, it would be still better.

AS TO "KNOCKING."

The Hibbing Tribune, with great good sense, says that the newspapers of the iron ranges ought not to "knock" Duluth merely because it is big, and points out that though Duluth prospers when the range towns prosper, on the other hand, Duluth's prosperity helps the range towns. So it ought to be, as the Tribune says, a case for mutual admiration and mutual help instead of "knocking."

The Herald does not believe that there is any spirit of hostility to Duluth on the ranges, even among the range newspapers. Some few of these, maybe, in shrill barking chorus, occasionally take a fling at Duluth, but they are proud of Duluth and Duluth is proud of the ranges, and the greatest good feeling exists all around.

But now comes the keen-cutting Hibbing Mesaba Ore, in answer to the Tribune, to say that the reason the newspapers "knock" Duluth is that "the Duluth newspapers are so unfair in their treatment of the iron ranges." "The Duluth newspapers," says the Ore, "should be more temperate in the accusations and language directed toward the iron range towns."

This must include The Herald, but if it does it is very mystifying. The Herald does not recollect ever making any harsh accusations of any sort against the range communities, and it certainly has never harbored any feeling except that of warmest good will toward them. It must, therefore, plead not guilty to the charge, and as its right is as a defendant, would respectfully request the Mesaba Ore to furnish a bill of particulars, stating when and how The Herald has ever erred in failing to accord strict justice to the range towns or in refusing to deal with them courteously. Such a bill of particulars must in all fairness be supplied, or the charge against The Herald should be withdrawn.

A PLEA FOR WALLACE.

When The Herald, merely by way of allowing the public to share in its own amusement at a petty and pitiful fraud, recently told how Representative Robert Minor Wallace of Arkansas got permission to have some speeches printed in the Congressional Record instead of actually delivering them on the floor of the house, it had no idea it was participating in a vast burst of hilarity that was breaking out all over the country.

But it was, as the exchanges that have come in since make very evident. Most of the newspapers of the country seem to have spotted the deception, and they have made merry with Mr. Wallace and his printed speeches, particularly with the fact that he carefully noted, at the conclusion of each, that it was heard with "prolonged applause" or "loud applause."

Now since The Herald was one of the first to smile over this absurd deceit, perhaps it is not fitting that it should rise to the defense of Mr. Wallace of Arkansas. But in the case of The Herald, there is some excuse. This newspaper is printed a long way from Arkansas. Its circulation in that state is very limited, which may have something to do with the fact that Arkansas is not so progressive as Minnesota. So there was small chance that the admiring constituents of Mr. Wallace, who are about to be regaled with printed extracts from the Congressional Record showing how their hero spoke to a charmed house which returned to his efforts their meed of appreciation in the form of "prolonged applause," would have their confidence in their champion shaken by The Herald's expose of the fact that he never addressed the house at all.

But some of the newspapers that have chuckled over the joke on Mr. Wallace's constituents—and on the nation that has to pay the printing bills—are dangerously near to Arkansas. There is grave peril that the voters who reside in the Seventh Arkansas district will get hold of some of those newspapers and learn the secret of their guilty congressman.

So it is only proper to state that though it has been Mr. Wallace's fortune to be the subject of the widest publicity that ever attached to one of these Congressional Record "fakes," if the gross but fitting expression may be pardoned, he is neither the first nor the worst offender. Perhaps he was a little more frank about it than most, but it is done every day, and not alone by statesmen from Arkansas, but by statesmen from Maine and Massachusetts and New York and Pennsylvania—yea, even by statesmen from Minnesota.

It is not fair that Mr. Wallace should be inundated by the whole volume of scorn that should be distributed among all who similarly deceive, without forgetting that the absurd system that permits it, and that increases the printing bills and makes the Congressional Record a most unreliable transcript of the proceedings of congress, is entitled to its full share of obloquy.

TARIFF THE ISSUE.

Governor Johnson of Minnesota cleared the political atmosphere amazingly when, in his review of political questions in Sunday's New York World, he said that revision of the tariff is the "paramount issue" for the coming presidential campaign.

It IS the leading issue, and no amount of subterfuge and wool-pulling can subordinate it.

Somebody says that the trusts form the leading issue. What do you propose to do with them? Kill them? It can't and shouldn't be done, if by "trusts" is meant the combinations of industry that should, theoretically at least, reduce wasteful competition and cheapen the processes of production. They can no more be abolished than the substitution of machine-labor for hand-labor can be destroyed. The thing to do is to curb their greed and regulate their operation so the people will get their due share of the benefits of their existence.

And the first step toward that is a reasonable revision of the tariff. The theory of protection has always been, as any Republican national platform will prove, that the tariff ought to cover the difference in labor cost so as to protect American labor from the competition of cheaper foreign labor. When a tariff schedule goes beyond that, and builds up a barrier against the importation of a foreign product, it invites the American producers to form a trust and raise their prices accordingly. That has been done, and that is why prices have been so oppressive that the households of the nation have suffered.

WHO IS THE GOVERNMENT?

Who is the government of the United States?

Theory has it that the people are the government, since this is a republic, and the nation is supposed to be blessed with popular government.

Some folks say that President Roosevelt is the government, since he has actively supported and vigorously advocated a tremendously long list of plans for the improvement of society.

Others say that congress is the government, because no laws can be passed without it; though more often it looks as though congress believes that its function is to avert legislation rather than to enact it.

Still others assert that the courts are the government, because they claim the right to declare unconstitutional and void the laws demanded by the people and enacted by congress.

But—

It is related in Washington that Speaker Cannon has packed the house committee on postoffice and post roads so as to kill the postal savings bank bill and the parcels post bill.

It is further related that he has organized the agricultural committee to insure the defeat of the White Mountain forest reserve bill, the gypsy moth appropriation and the agricultural school bill.

He has arranged the committee on the District of Columbia so as to defeat the proposed bill barring the sale of liquor from the District.

The committees on judiciary and labor have been fixed so that they will not approve of the anti-injunction bill and the eight-hour bill.

The committee on merchant marine has been framed up against the ship subsidy bill.

Now some of these arrangements are in the interest of economy, and will have the approval of many people. There will be no great alarm among the people because the speaker has shelved the ship subsidy bill.

But that has nothing to do with the question of whether the speaker of the house has the right to plot against legislation. He as the right to hold his own opinions upon any pending measure, but he has not the right to prevent any measure from receiving the consideration of the house. And the reports from Washington mean that he has selected his committees so that these several measures will not be reported out for the consideration of the house of representatives.

In short, one man, by virtue of his assumed power, presumes to dictate to congress and to say what measures shall be considered and what shall not be considered. And congress, willingly or not, is helpless.

If you'll practice writing it "1908" it will come easier.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

W. A. Smith is from Indiana. He is at the McKay Hotel. Naturally, coming from a state that has produced two national committee chairman, he thinks and talks of politics. Naturally, being from Indiana, he wants to see Fairbanks land the nomination. Speaking about Fairbanks brings up the subject of cocktails. There's where you ring the gong for Smith's conversational spar. He says that Fairbanks never did drink those cocktails, as the papers said; only had them at the Indianapolis love feast for the others. He said that Fairbanks quenched his thirst on jersey milk, which puts quite another complexion on our national politics. People from Indiana generally like to talk about their state. They like to talk about George Ade, who finally admitted he came from Indiana. Then they tell you about the two chairmans of the national committees, Tom Taggert and Harry New. That kind of drives the loyalty of the citizens of the state. If Tom or Harry were alone in their proud eminence, or if it were a case of the other dear charmer being away, it is most likely that Indiana would give a heavy vote to the party which one of her sons was steering through a sea of political shoals. But seeing that both parties have chosen national committee chairmen from the Hoosier state, and seeing that Mr. Fairbanks is quite likely to cut a swath in the convention proceedings, even if he doesn't win the nomination, the Republican party is likely to have the best of it down in Indiana. Mr. Smith says the state will support Fairbanks as the man deserving the nomination. He really thinks that Charles has a chance, too. He states that Indiana will send a delegation to the national convention instructed to vote for Charles Warren Fairbanks first, last and all the time. They think, according to Mr. Smith, that it is about time that Indiana sent someone to the White House. Harry New has informed the Hoosiers that he can send Mr. Fairbanks to the White House and they seem to think that Harry has the right hunch, although Tom Taggart has informed the Democrats of the state that his party is sure going to send a Democratic president to the house up on Pennsylvania avenue. So between what Tom and Harry have said, the citizens of the state are filled with radiant hope. No matter who is elected, a native son will have had a hand in pulling out the victory. If Mr. Fairbanks receives the nomination of his party, the Republicans of the state will be overjoyed. If he is not elected, they will take the matter in a philosophical light. They are longing for a native son down there, though, and will be put out if Fairbanks doesn't get the nomination.

J. H. Harris, at the St. Louis, has been down at the Panama canal for a business trip, and reports that the work under the United States engineers is progressing satisfactorily. He says that conditions have improved to such an extent that Panama is now almost as free from disease and sickness as any American city. He also says that the laborers are more contented with their lot than were the men first sent out to work on the ditch. American ideas have changed the aspect of the work according to Mr. Harris, and the work of digging has, after many experiments, been placed on a practical basis. He says in an undertaking of the magnitude of the digging of the canal there are bound to be many impractical things done. They have made blunders in many of the ideas attempted down at Panama, says Mr. Harris, yet out of the confusion attending the starting of the work, there has come method and a definite and precise supervision of the work. Mr. Harris says that now, after the experimenting stage has passed, real progress is being accomplished and that the work of digging the canal is going along at a rate that will atone for many of the errors and mistakes made at the opening of the work.

Mr. Harris believes that most of the credit for putting the work on the canal on a satisfactory basis belongs to Engineer John Stevens, who has resigned from the government work to enter upon some private enterprise. He says Mr. Stevens placed the work upon practical lines and brought the large force of labor up to an efficient degree before he turned the work over to the government engineers.

Hope for the Bald.

New York Sun: To the Editor: Nixey for mine on those squawks and snorts about no chance to prevent premature baldness! Listen and get wise.

For years I fell for remedies to stop my hair from coming out and so on, till "I took four bottles of your medicine for catarrh, now I have a banjo," was my case precisely. Here's the dope:

Belief and Disbelief.

Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus's Magazine for January: Belief is hard to some and easy to others, but when we consider that belief or disbelief never affected any fact in this world—though both have been the cause of much bloodshed and cruelty—it is easy to perceive the source of the Farmer's serenity. In the world about us, we measure the truth by our own experience, and at the most it is a dreadfully short measure. But it hurts, not the truth, but ourselves; it is really a measure of ourselves, and compels us to be narrower than our birthright gave any promise of. All this we shall discover at the proper time, and perhaps we shall make other discoveries calculated to persuade us that all that we really know is a myth, while the reality is waiting for us with hospitable arms.

THE WEATHER.

Those who make the weather their leading subject for conversation must have worn it quite out by this time, as there has been, for a solid month and more, almost uniformly fine winter weather, with a few very mild cold snaps to relieve the monotony. This morning it was clear, mild and pleasant. Last night's lowest temparature was 6 degs. above zero and yesterday's highest was 16 degs. above. The weather man says the fine weather will continue tonight and tomorrow, without much change in temperature.

The sun rose this morning at 7:54 and sets tonight at 4:31, making 8 hours and 37 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The barometer continues high in the Rocky Mountain states and low over the North Pacific and North Atlantic districts. Some rain fell over extreme Southern states during the past twenty-four hours, otherwise the weather was fair throughout the country, except that light snow or rain also occurred at widely separated sections in the North. Temperatures have risen somewhat as regards the Northwest, but zero weather continued last night over most of Western Canada and the Eastern Dakotas. Continued fine weather may be expected in this locality tonight and Friday."

The Great Simile Maker.

New York Evening Post: Attorney General Bonaparte is the great simile maker of the administration. His mouth he cannot ope but out there flies a trope. It was he who explained that the Republican method of tariff adjustment was to grow a few big pigs, instead of letting a lot of little ones get up to the trough. Last summer, he had changed the figure, and was talking about a "covey" of wicked millionaires, into which he could not fire without bringing down at least one. By the time he made his speech on Saturday at Chicago, another set of animals had swum into his ken, and his talk was all of wolves, sheep and watch dogs. It is apparent that he has failed to follow so elusive a fabulist; but when he drops his moral tales and takes to language without metaphors, we can see that he is filled with the idea of enforcing the law without fear or favor.

The Path to Honor.

New York World: Governor Broward of Florida says that he appointed William James Bryan United States senator for the late Mr. Mallory's unexpired term because of the ability Mr. Bryan has shown "in prosecuting the ice trust and by his vigorous enforcement of all of the laws of the state that it has been his duty to enforce."

Governor Folk of Missouri won his high place in the public regard of his state and of the nation by his fearless prosecution of the St. Louis boodle ring.

Ethan Allen Hitchcock gained in the department of the interior a fame of which any American might well be proud by pushing the government cases against public land thieves.

The liveliest public interest is taken in the activities of men like Francis J. Heney, who prosecuted government land fraud cases and who also camped on the trail of San Francisco grafters; like Attorney General Hadley of Missouri and Frank Kellogg, the government's attorney in recent actions, and Judge Landis of Chicago, who in their several ways have powerfully attacked the great problems of trust monopoly.

There is no surer, shorter road to usefulness and honor than that of the man who devotes zeal and ability to enforcing public rights against private greed and illegal monopoly and to the punishment of the crimes of "high finance."

Right Living.

Washington Star: Loss of fortune, according to the news of dispatches, has prompted another man of prominence to end all by suicide. Ernest G. Stedman of New York is the latest name to be added to the red roll. The list of "panic suicides" is a long one. Most of these men seem to have "given up," not so much because of their own funds were lost or diminished as because the funds of friends were involved. It is much easier for the normal man to stand his own losses than to stand responsibility for the losses of others.

There is one reflection which is apt to come to men when they contemplate the accounts of financial suicides. When a man takes his life because good luck deserts him, or chance goes against him, and he finds himself reduced from wealth to comparative poverty, all the world hears about it. It is emblazoned on the news sheets. Little note, however, is taken of those victims of abject and long-standing poverty who are ever passing out in an unending line. These cases are too common to attract notice. Improper or insufficient food, insanitary tenements and workshops, and the diseases due to dirt and dissipation are causes that send more human beings to the grave in a day than financial losses send in a century.

Deplorable conditions are being slowly improved. They are not so deplorable as they were a generation ago. People are learning more and more of the advantage of proper feeding, cleanliness, ventilation and correct living. A man does not have to be rich, or even well-to-do, to live a clean and wholesome life.

Fell Among Thieves.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The American eagle on the new $20 gold pieces may have dropped its pantaloons in Wall street.

Influence and Circulation.

Facts: If I were an advertiser instead of a solicitor, I would consider Influence next to Circulation in estimating a newspaper's value as an advertising medium. By influence I mean the hold that a newspaper has on its readers.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce the special order of business, a proposed appeal from the decision of Judge Sleeper in the mandamus suit regarding a tax levy for the salary of a city statistician, otherwise the secretary of the chamber, was discussed at length. It was decided to postpone action pending efforts to settle the matter satisfactorily otherwise.

John G. Howard has been for some time past at work on a new sawmill, about three miles north of New London, on a branch of Lester river, and in the center of a large and easily accessible tract of pine. It will be a winter mill, and will cut from 25,000 to 30,000 feet daily. Mr. Howard now has about fifty men and twenty teams at work there.

Engineer Morris Hafey of the fire department has returned from a holiday visit to Chicago.

Wesslay G. Wahl, for six years connected with the firm of H. F. Williamson, left today for his home in Eau Claire, where he expects to remain permanently.

Simon Clark of the well-known firm of Clark & Matter, leaves tomorrow for a few month's visit to his old home in Scotland. He will take over his young son and bring back his daughter, who has been in Scotland a year.

A trainload of copper from the Calumet & Hecla mine, which left St. Ignace the first part of the week, made the run through to New York city in forty hours, just four hours longer than it takes the fastest express train to make the same distance.

There are now in store in Duluth elevators 6,578,527 bushels of wheat, 211,842 bushels of corn and 67,699 bushels of oats, a total of 6,858,086 bushels of grain.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Fergus Falls Globe: The nomination of Governor John A. Johnson by the Democratic party this year for president is as sure as anything can be in politics. We suggest Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, Ohio, for vice president on the same ticket. Tom is many times a millionaire, and as money is always needed, Tom will be mighty important to have along.

Pine River Sentinel: The talk about an elastic currency sounds fine. But why not an elastic ton of coal, or a barrel of flour, or an elastic credit, for a change? Huh!

Le Sueur Sentinel: Many of the newspaper brethren in this section seem either too modest, too indolent or too busy to write their editorials, and as a result the same ready-made paragraphs appear simultaneously in a number of sheets, posing as original with the editor.

Little Falls Herald: Cannon is a reactionary, opposed to salutary reforms, against the president's policies. So Republican papers say. Why is he chosen by Republicans for his great office?

St. Peter Free Press: Tom Shevlin is credited with the statement that there is any amount of timber to last 20 years, and it is growing as fast as used; and further, that the prices for lumber will go down as soon as the corner on same is busted and the lumber trust gets a few raps on the knuckles. Mr. Shevlin has been, and probably is now, one of the largest lumber dealers in the Northwest, and his admission of the existence of a lumber trust, in the face of the denials that such a combination exists, is rather significant.

Royalton Banner: We'll wager that there are a lot of men who served in the last legislature who view their record of last winter with anything but equanimity as the campaign approaches.

Virginia Enterprise: We note that one or two of our range exchanges would thus early open a discussion for legislative candidates. Some people are never happy without a fight on their hands.

Sauk Center Herald: The interstate commerce commission's investigation, at St. Paul, brought out the fact that the Pullman company pays its porters $25 a month. It doesn't take a high-priced mathematician to figure out who does the rest.

Detroit Record: The Brainerd Tribune states editorially that "in 1896 Mr. Bryan carried but one county in New York, and the majority against him was $268,469." Are we to understand that this is an insinuation that the opposition barrel was larger than Mr. Bryan's, or was the "$" mark merely a typographical error?

Crookston Times: Our reporter has a new suit of clothes and a new spotted vest, which is more than ye editor can have until those that owe can pay up. Hurry!—Karlstad Advocate.

But ye editor should consider the responsible position before the public which the reporter holds. All that ye editor has to do with the paper is to make it pay.

Knocking Duluth.

Hibbing Tribune: It sees to be the fashion of the country press of St. Louis county to knock Duluth upon every possible occasion and a good deal of bitterness is displayed in the process.

Just what moves the country editor to this insane procedure it is hard to say—his reasons probably are various. But when one stops to think about it, what a senseless proceeding it is. Every block that is put in Duluth's pathway is a block in the pathway of every other community in St. Louis county—in Northeastern Minnesota for that matter. The bigger Duluth grows, the bigger the rest of us will grow, and the faster Duluth grows big the faster the rest of us will grow big. If we were to use any common sense about the matter we should boost Duluth in every issue and knock never.

Doubtless the people of Duluth will get our business away from us if they can, but what one of us does not get Duluth's business away from it if we can? That's the law of life. When we knock Duluth for that, we knock it for the very thing we do ourselves at every opportunity.

We ought to be proud of Duluth. She is a great city and she is going to be greater, and there is nothing more certain than that the welfare of Northeastern Minnesota is indissolubly bound up in the welfare of Duluth. What helps Duluth helps us, what hurts her hurts us.

Who Was the Man?

Life: While walking down an unfrequented path I met an aged man who was carrying two lighted lanterns. Recognizing him, I cried:

"Ah, Diogenes, isn't it about time you gave up your search for an honest man?"

"Friend," answered he, "I am often tempted to desist; but you mistake the object of my quest; I found an honest man several centuries ago. I am hunting now for an absolutely truthful woman."

And he passed on, weeping; for he had far to go.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

Baltimore American: "That millionaire takes great pride in saying that he is a self-made man."

"Ah! That accounts for his manners not being finished."

Harper's Weekly: Clarice—I think Mr. Gunson is dreadfully stingy.

Clarence — Stingy? Why, that man wouldn't even tell a story at his own expense!

Washington Star: "Yep," said the neighbor, "my boy's pretty smart. I reckon he'll be in congress one o' these days. I've got 'im in training for it."

"Whereabouts is he trainin'?" asked Farmer Comstossel. "In a library or a gymnasium?"

Cleveland Plaindealer: According to Ernest Thompson Seton, musquitoes do not bite frogs.

It takes a grand, sweet truth of this kind to arouse in the calloused heart a desire for a closer contact with nature.

Philadelphia Ledger: Oklahoma offered Bryan a senatorship if he would move over there.

"Thank you," responded the Nebraskan, "but my habit of running for something every four years is fixed."

However, they elected another blind man.

Catholic Standard and Times: "Pa, complained the boy, "so long as I go to the same school with Tommy Tuff I can't be a Christian Scientist."

"What?" cried the pillar of the new church; "why can't you?"

"'Cause it's hard to believe that a punch in the jaw is all my imagination."

"Shucks! Doan' yo' knew somebody done stole that tuckey?"

"Co'se I does! But did yo' joy it?"

"I will tak' it at that," said Donald; "but och, man, Dougal, I am awful surprised at you doin' business on the Sawbath." "Business!" exclaimed Dougal. "Man, sellin' a sheep like that for 50 shillin's is not business at all; it's just charity!"

NO PARTICULAR CLASS BLAMED

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual election of officers of the Virginia Commercial club was held at the regular meeting last evening in the council chambers, with the result that the following were chosen by unanimous vote: President, Ransom Metcalf; vice president, J. S. Southerland; secretary, Frank Hughes; treasurer, J. L. Kimball. The new officers will take their seats at the next regular meeting in February, unless in the meantime the president shall call a special meeting.

Previous to the election of officers, a motion was carried that the outgoing president and secretary of the organization, Messrs. E. M. Tredway and Albert E. Beckford respectively, be chosen as delegates to represent the club at the proposed state convention of commercial bodies to be held in St. Paul on Jan. 16, and $50 was appropriated from the treasury to pay their expenses.

A report by Secretary Beckford showed a balance of $72 in the club treasury.

On motion, it was declared to be the sense of the club that no armory should be built in Virginia at the expense of the general taxpayers. However, those interested in the forming of a militia company will ask the new council to grant the company use of the room in the city hall formerly used by the fire department, claiming that this will meet the requirements of the state law. In case this request is granted, the project of organization will be proceeded with.

A communication from the Eveleth Business Men's association concerning blind pigs on the range, and asking the Virginia club to take action similar to that of Eveleth, blaming the existence of these blind pigs on the brewing companies, was read and placed on file. No action was taken, but a general discussion revealed the fact that the general sentiment of the club was in favor of permitting those most vitally interested to look after the blind pigs, and against placing the blame for their existence upon any particular class of business men.

The committee that has in charge the matter of establishing free mail delivery for Virginia was asked to again stir up the Washington officials and find out if possible why the matter is delayed.

Secretary Beckford reported that, as instructed, he had tabulated the rates charged for light and water in surrounding towns as compared with those of Virginia, and the table was ordered placed on file.

POISON FAILING, JUNKE USED GUN

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Peter Junke, Jr., was held yesterday from the home at 2:30 p. m., Father Bilban of the Holy Family church officiating. Interment was made in the Virginia cemetery. There was a large attendance.

No inquest was held, as Deputy Coroner Gleason did not deem it advisable.

Before shooting himself, Junke is said to have tried to commit suicide by taking lye. Failing in this, he secured some other poison, but this did not relieve him, so as a last resort he got his 38-caliber revolver and shot himself in the abdomen. He did not die instantly, but lingered for an hour in agony.

Various theories have been advanced as to the cause of Junke's act. Close friends of the dead boy, who was only 18 years old, say that he has always acted queerly since he fell off a moving train near the Gilbert mine last summer. There is also a theory that he was in love with a girl who did not return his advances.

BOVEY SKI CLUB HAS ELECTED ITS OFFICERS.

Bovey, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The New Year's eve dance given by the Ski club was a great success.

The club has elected the following officers: S. P. Plummer, president; H. L. Koontz, vice president; A. S. McCollough, secretary; E. Johnson, treasurer; H. C. Dudley, John C. Greenway, M. W. Scott, F. Provinske, Charles Peterson, A. H. Grimpo, M. McCambridge, directors; Olaf Jannum, captain; Westgard, assistant captain.

EVELETH REDMEN'S BALL

Held in Vail Hall New Year's Evening, Was Success.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual Redmen's ball at the Vail hall last night was thoroughly enjoyed. The hall was decorated in a most appropriate manner.

The various committees were: Arrangements, Past Sachems Thibaut, Backus and Prince; floor, T. P. Ferry, S. Dorris, J. Frazonovich, V. Prince, Jr., J. Papic, D. Coffey, E. LaSarge, L. F. Myers, W. Paul, M. Preltuer and M. J. Doyle; reception, V. Prince, M. C. Palmer, E. Finch, J. Backus, P. Dolan, J. Thibaut, F. Wright, E. Skeel, G. W. Scott, J. Farley and T. P. Ferry. Many out of town people were present, the majority coming from Virginia, Hibbing and Duluth.

STRUCK BY BOARD.

Employe of Brude Sawmill Sustains Fractured Arm.

A loose board in some way came in contact with the saw and flying through the air struck the unfortunate man a terrific blow across the arm and chest. He was rendered unconscious for thirty minutes, but came to at the end of that time and was taken to Hibbing.

HELD FOR MURDER.

John Botto Alleged to Have Caused Fatal Shack Explosion.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Botto, after a preliminary hearing, has been held to the grand jury on the charge of murder in the first degree, in causing the explosion, in a shack at the Canisteo mine at Coleraine, that resulted in the death of three Italians. The charge is that he killed Augustine Palenbello, one of the seven Italians sleeping in the shack at the time, of whom three lost their lives. It is expected that George H. Spear, attorney for the accused, will apply to the district court for a writ of habeas corpus to test the sufficiency of the evidence upon which Botto was held.

The state showed that the accused had dynamite and caps in his possession, and that there had been ill-feeling shown by him against one of the Italians who was killed. There was some conflict in the testimony, but County Attorney Thwing believes that on the whole he has made out a strong case. The examination of Botto's wife, who was also arrested accused of complicity in the crime, will be held later.

NEW YEAR'S BLAZE

Destroys Family Effects and Damages Eveleth Pharmacy.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first fire of the new year occurred at the home of Fred Lavigne, over the Eveleth pharmacy's store, on Grant avenue. The loss to Lavigne will be about $500. He had no insurance. Mrs. Lavigne is in the More hospital. All the family possessed was destroyed, and they are practically destitute.

Water damaged the furnishings of Ole Munson, a neighbor. The biggest loss will come to the Eveleth pharmacy as, at least, a ton of water fell onto the stock as a result of the extinguishing.

Mr. Lavigne was awakened by his child's crying that there was fire.

The fire caught from the range.

Chief Silver had his hand cut by falling glass and J. J. Farley had his head cut from the explosion of chemicals so that a few stitches had to be taken in his head.

JEWISH CEREMONIES.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the local synagogue last night, the congregation was presented with a new scroll of the law by the local Jewish women. Appropriate services were rendered by the congregation. After the services a supper was served. The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Levant and Mrs. S. Sax.

FINED $25 FOR ASSAULT

Also Made to Pay Doctor's Bill of His Victim.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tony Fritz, who was arrested for assaulting Mike Mojer, was fined $25 by Judge Prince. Mojer was seriously injured, requiring $35 worth of medical attendance, which amount was added to the fine. Fritz objected strenuously to paying for Mojer's medical attendance, but his objections were not heeded.

DULUTH WEATHER MAN

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jurres in the district court continue to return verdicts against the city for damages to property growing out of the high water of last September. A jury has found for the following: Charles Soderberg, $282.70; Hermina R. Anderson, $186.50; Charles W. Cullen, $275.

In their complaint to the city council shortly after the storm last fall the plaintiffs asked for damages as follows: Soderberg, $500; Anderson, $310, and Cullen, $410.

The jury gave them more than they asked the council for. A large amount of evidence was offered by both sides, the city calling Mr. Richardson, the Duluth weather man, to tell the jury the rainfall of Sept. 19 was the heaviest in the records of his office. There are still thirteen cases to be tried, but they will be completed by Jan. 24 or may go over to the June term.

Taxpayers are criticising the action of the juries in reporting such heavy damages and will urge the city council to appeal the cases.

EVELETH IN BRIEF.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Lennon of Hurley, Wis., is in town looking over the field before joining the list of local lawyers.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Jenkins.

Miss Jennie Siegel, who has been ill with the grip, has improved sufficiently to leave the house.

Miss Anna Milavetz has returned from an extended stay in Virginia.

A. Levant has returned from a business trip to Duluth.

Electrician Hayes has been succeeded at the Gilbert mine by Charles Adams, who has been employed in a similar capacity at the St. Paul mine, near Keewatin.

Max Cohen of Biwabik, was in town yesterday, visiting friends.

ANOTHER STEAM SHOVEL.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Fayal pit preparations are being made to put another steam shovel to work at the paint rock stripping. One is working now, but it will require another to take care of the work properly.

The married men have in all cases received preference. The crews on the steam shovel have been kept intact by having them work in the machine shops.

NASHWAUK EVENTS.

Nashwauk, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The home of John Anderson is quarantined; one of the children having diphtheria.

Mrs. Fegueraid and children left Tuesday for Eveleth, where they are spending the holidays.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Aurora—The statement of the State bank of Aurora, shows the bank to be in excellent shape. Its total cash assets is $12,247.01, of which $8,382.49 is cash on hand. The amount deposited which is subject to check is $37,166.03.

Two Harbors—The Lady Maccabees entertained their friends at a dance at the Grand Opera house Sunday night. It was one of the most successful social events of the season, over 150 couple being present and danced the old year out and the new year in. An orchestra from Superior, Wis., furnished the music.

Aurora—The Miller mine closed down Dec. 24 for repairs on the main level, and will remain closed until the first of the year. The mine has in its employ some 200 men, most all of whom will be laid off, only enough being kept for the repair work.

Biwakik—H. H. Salmon is attending to the justice of the peace work in McKinley while Judge Keeler is spending the holidays in the Twin Cities.

of the company are more largely dealt in and held than in any other trading center, not even excepting New York. The bond issues placed on the property since it has been merged into one system aggregate $33,785,000, of which amount it is estimated nearly $25,000,000 is held here. Bankers declare that there is no necessity for nervousness on the part of the bondholders over the receivership action. If they will take the announcement coolly and quietly and await developments, it is declared it will be much more to their advantage than to rush into the market now to sell.

Persons close on the inside of the property are outspoken in the opinion that the security holders, both stocks and bonds, will benefit. These say no holders of any of the underlying bonds need feel the least alarm over the safety of the security, nor have any fear of default at any time in the interest.

One of the assets of the Sea Board is the Baltimore Steam Packet company, better known as the Old Bay Line. The operations of this line, it is said, will not be affected by the receivership.

Lumber Shipments Lower.

Lumber shipments for the month, 126,-119 M feet, were about 33 per cent below the corresponding 1906 figures; the season total, 1,365,179 M feet, also shows a heavy decline as compared with the corresponding 1906 total of 1,731,721 feet, shipments from Duluth alone falling over 190,000,000 feet short of 1906 shipments.

The amounts of package freight shipped during the month and the season—843,970 net tons and 6,735,712 net tons—show considerable increases over like 1906 figures. The largest amount of package freight shipped for the season to Dec. 1 is credited to Buffalo—843,189 net tons—Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth, and Sandusky, following in the order of importance.

Figures of coastwise arrivals at lake ports during November, 6,968 vessels, of 10,555,747 net tons register, indicate a smaller vessel movement than during November, 1906, when 7,132 vessels of 9,682,998 net tons were reported; though the tonnage of these vessels is over 9 per cent in excess of the corresponding November, 1906 total. Vessel arrivals for the eleven months of the year, 72,249 in number, and comprising 97,129,232 net tons, show a considerable increase over the corresponding 1906 figures of 74,982 vessels of 90,548,825 net tons. It seems likely that the total tonnage of lake vessel arrivals for the 1907 season will exceed the 100,000,000 mark, and of this total almost 45 per cent will stand credited to the six ports of Duluth, Chicago, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Superior, and Cleveland in the order of their importance.

Wood, and Charles Kelly and Paul Foss, alleged officers of the Wisconsin Stock & Grain company were involved.

They had no sooner been uttered than there was a storm of protest from attorneys for the defense, and from the witness. Then Judge Morris quieted things by declaring that he thought the question entirely out of place and directing that the trial proceed, and the query passed unanswered. Mr. Ewert made his sensational charge at the close of a period of questioning and cross-questioning interposed with some rather acrimonious remarks on the part of the opposing attorneys. Yesterday afternoon when court convened, Mr. Kimball was called to the stand for cross-examination by the defense. After he had testified regarding the organization of the clearing house association, of which he was president, stating that while there were a number of members of the Superior board of trade who were not members of the clearing house, it was essential that every member of the clearing house should be a member of the board of trade, some of the clearing house account books, which had been admitted as evidence, were brought to his attention.

Questioned as to Books.

He was questioned particularly in regard to the stub books and some of the vouchers. Judge Luce, for the defense, brought out the fact that he did not always pay by check the balance due each firm at the close of each day's business on the Superior board of trade. There were certain firms which kept on deposit with the board their balance for the day, which was frequently credited to their account in place of being paid by check.

This deposit was also drawn upon by the clearing house, so the check stubs did not show an accurate account of business with the clearing house.

Then, in the face of continual objections from Attorney Ewert, who held that it was not proper cross-examination, Judge Luce questioned the witness regarding entries in the clearing house books, in an effort to throw discredit on the books which had been introduced by the government as evidence.

He first asked the witness if he did not have other duties to perform on the trading floor besides keeping track of the various trades there, and Mr. Kimball replied in the affirmative. He then questioned him regarding entries made with reference to the Hammond Grain company, in an effort to show that these had been made irregularly.

Constant Objections.

Both Attorneys Houpt and Evert for the government objected to this line of questioning saying that as they had not gone into this line, it was not proper to do so in cross-examination. They stated further that the books had been introduced merely to show the amounts paid out by the clearing house. Judge Morris sustained their objection after the attorneys on both sides had argued the matter at some length.

Judge Luce tried hard to get an answer to the question put in another form. He stated that he wanted to show that the stub books did not show the total amounts disbursed by the clearing house between dates covered by the books as had been stated at the morning session of the court.

Denied by Witness.

At this point Attorney Ewert, after conferring with his colleague, Attorney Houpt, suddenly asked the witness if he had not conferred with counsel for the defense during the noon recess of the court. Mr. Kimball indignantly denied having done so. He was then asked where he kept the record of the amounts paid from the deposits which he had testified various firms kept with the clearing house. He stated that he kept a memorandum of the withdrawals and additions to the deposits on slips, which he placed on a spindle in his desk.

"Didn't you keep these records anywhere else than on a spindle in your desk?" asked Mr. Ewert meaningly. On the witness replying in the negative he made the sensational charge that he was lying. While objecting to this, ex-Governor Lind, for the defense, said he wished to object to the insinuation made by Mr. Ewert to the effect that Judge Luse had conferred with Mr. Kimball during the noon recess. He said that it was an insulting reflection on Judge Luse to charge him with such a gross piece of professional ethics, and that he knew the charge was incorrect, as he had been with the judge during the recess.

After Judge Morris had cautioned the district attorneys, the excitement subsided and the trial proceeded quietly and rather monotonously.

FOUND A WAY

To be Clear of the Coffee Troubles.

"Husband and myself both had the coffee habit and finally his stomach and kidneys got in such a bad condition that he was compelled to give up a good position that he had held for years. He was too sick to work. His skin was yellow, and I hardly think there was an organ in his body that was not affected.

"I told him I was sure his sickness was due to coffee, and after some discussion he decided to give it up.

"It was a struggle, because of the powerful habit. One day we heard about Postum, and concluded to try it, and then it was easy to leave off coffee.

"His fearful headaches grew less frequent, his complexion began to clear, kidneys grew better, until at last he was a new man altogether, as a result of leaving off coffee and taking up Postum. Then I began to drink it too.

"Although I was never as bad off as my husband, I was always very nervous, and never at any time very strong, only weighing 95 lbs. before I began to use Postum. Now I weigh 115 lbs. and can do as much work as anyone my size I think.

"Many do not use Postum because they have not taken the trouble to make it right. I have successfully fooled a great many persons who have drunk it at my table. They would remark, 'You must buy a high grade of coffee.' One young man who clerked in a grocery store was very enthusiastic about my 'coffee.' When I told him what it was, he said, 'why I've sold Postum for four years, but I had no idea it was like this. Think I'll drink Postum hereafter.'"

IS SLUGGED AND ROBBED

Fred Wilkins, a lumber inspector for a Michigan concern, complained to the police, last night, that he had been knocked down and robbed of $45 while emerging from the rear entrance of the Ideal Beer hall, on Superior street, early last evening.

Two young men, giving their names as Frank Rowe and John LaTour, were arrested a short time later by Detective Irvine, but they denied any knowledge of the robbery, although admitting that they had been drinking with Wilkins. They were held on suspicion, but no money was found on them.

Wilkins said he had been drinking with the two young men, and Rowe proposed that they go out and see a friend. They went down through the basement and, Wilkins says, just as he was stepping through the door, he was struck on the head and felled to the ground. One of his assailants kicked him in the face, he says.

He was unable to identify the two young men as those who robbed him, as he was struck from behind and did not see his assailants. This morning Rowe and LaTour were charged with robbery, and they will be given a hearing this afternoon.

NEW TERM OF COURT

The January term of the district court opened at 10 o'clock this morning, with the call of the calendar, there being 181 cases noticed for trial. Several other cases will be moved to the calendar, so that the total jury and court cases to be tried up to the March term will be in the neighborhood of 195. The majority of the cases noticed for trial are for the jury.

Judge Cant will preside over the calendar this term. All the criminal cases will be tried before him in courtroom No. 1, and he will assign the cases to the other judges, who will officiate in the other courtrooms.

The grand jury assembled at 11 o'clock this morning, but there was no quorum, and an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon. The first report is likely to be returned tomorrow. There are some fourteen or fifteen cases for the grand jury to investigate.

The petit jurors will assemble Monday morning, at which time the trial of the jury cases will begin.

Tomorrow the three judges will hear the divorce cases.

CASE AGAINST SALO DROPPED

The case against Richard Salo, the Superior saloonkeeper charged with grand larceny in the second degree in attempting to pass a check for $100 and signing another man's name will be dismissed, the story of the rightful owner of the check, or the man that was the owner, clearing up the tangle to a certain extent.

Matt Makkanas purchased the check at the Northern Wisconsin Bank of Ashland, to put his money in the form of a draft for convenience in carrying it. He landed in Superior and evidently went out on a rampage, for he endorsed the check and tried to cash it in one saloon, but the saloonkeeper was skeptical and refused. He presented it again at Salo's place, and Salo agreed to advance him $20 on it, the other $80 to be paid later.

When Makkanas came around, he thought he had lost the check, and notified the Ashland bank, where payment was stopped on it. He noticed that Salo was in trouble over the check, and it was discovered in that way.

It appears that, after Makkanas did not come back for his $80, Salo came to Duluth, purchased some goods in a clothing store on the Bowery, signed Makkanas' name to the check again, and presented it in payment. The proprietor of the place called up the Ashland bank, was told that the check had been lost, and brought about Salo's arrest.

Makkanas agrees to take the other $80 and leave the check to Salo, and the whole matter will be dropped, as no case can be made out against him.

MANITOBA GOVERNMENT BUYS TELEPHONE SYSTEM.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 2.—Announcement is made by the provincial government that the Bell telephone system in Manitoba had been purchased by the government. The price paid was $3,300,000. The government will assume control on Jan. 15, and the system will be operated by a commission. The present officials of the company probably will be retained.

When in doubt, vote with the president.

SIX HUSBANDS CLAIM WOMAN

Disguised in Overalls and Sweater, Gives All the Slip.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 1.—Six different husbands are looking for Mrs. Carolyn Edna Hoyt-Stanley-Beckwith-Perry-Thornton-Carlson, declared to be the most married woman in the world.

The disappearance of this woman from the home of John Carlson, at Alberta, Canada, and his subsequent journey to Des Moines to find her, has disclosed the most remarkable romance in the history of the Middle West.

For Carlson was met in Des Moines by John Edward Perry of Newton, Iowa, who declared that Mrs. Carlson is also his wife. And these two men, in their efforts to locate the missing woman, have crossed the trails of at least four other husbands, and perhaps five, for it is not known whether her maiden name was Hoyt or whether Hoyt was husband No. 1.

And, most extraordinary to say, each of these six husbands say they married Carolyn within the past five years.

It is an unusual story, a story almost past belief. Mrs. Carlson, as her last husband is named, is large and decidedly striking in appearance. Moreover, she has charming manners, and that is why she has had such success in turning the heads of men, and in afterwards escaping from them with many of their shekels in her purse and fine clothes purchased at their expense.

Before leaving Iowa, Carolyn Edna purchased a pair of overalls and a sweater, and, of course, her husband thinks she is disguised as a man. Reports of her appearance in St. Louis, Chicago and Denver have been received by local officers, who are joining in the search with a vigor. It is apparent, however, that she was not seen at all three places.

"HEALER" FALLOWS HAS CURED SELF OF GRIP.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Having cured himself of the grip, Bishop Fallows will make his debut as a healer Thursday, when, in the vestryrooms of his church, he will treat a number of patients who already have applied for his services.

Bishop Fallows then will prove the curative value of "Christian Psychology," his theories upon which subject surprised his congregation Sunday.

"This is different from Christian Science in that we recognize the existence of matter," explained Bishop Fallows. "Matter must be reckoned on and we do it."

DULUTH HEARING BY RAILWAY COMMISSION.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The railway and warehouse commission will sit at Duluth Jan. 14, when it will inquire into the merits of a complaint made by Joseph W. Reynolds relating to the rate on ties and other forest products charged by the Great Northern. It is claimed that the regular lumber rate is charged for ties and poles when the rate should be much lower.

MRS. WRIGHT ASKS DIVORCE

"Rasty" Wright's Domestic Troubles End in the Court.

"Rasty" Wright's wife has started suit for a divorce. Judge Dibell has granted temporary alimony of $6 per week and $50 attorney's fees.

"Rasty" has been serving time in the county jail for the non-support of his family. He will be released from jail Jan. 16. It is understood that "Rasty" will not oppose his wife's petition for a divorce, but he will contest the property division, as he is said to have some valuable holdings in the East.

The Wrights have five children, three boys and two girls. Mrs. Wright blames a young woman now residing in Superior for all her domestic trouble. "Rasty" and the young woman were arrested on a statutory charge some months ago. The young woman was driven out of town, but Mrs. Wright claims her husband followed her.

EXPERIENCE AN EXCITING ONE

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tate in a California Train Hold-Up.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tate, who returned yesterday from a wedding trip to the West, were passengers on a train which was boarded by a gang of hold-up men in California. They suffered no financial loss as a result of the affair, for the robbers were driven away before they had a chance to do much damage.

The Duluth people were awakened at about 3 o'clock one morning by a succession of shots at the front of the train, and realized at once that a hold-up was in progress. The incident was over so quickly that no one had time to dress and get out of his berth. A number of shots were fired, and then three men ran through the sleepers, tearing down the berth curtains as they ran, but disappeared through the car doors without taking any valuables. Guns in the hands of the train crew frightened them away.

Mr. Tate says the San Francisco labor market is flooded, and that many of the laboring men out there are in hard circumstances.

MANY PRISONERS FED DURING 1907

Prisoners to the number of 1,939 were fed in the county jail during 1907, according to the records of Sheriff Bates' office. At the present time there are 114 prisoners in the county jail, including three women.

During the month of December the jail business was the heaviest, from 290 to 342 meals being served from the jail kitchen daily to persons confined in the jail, at a cost of 10 cents per meal.

Besides the prisoners that are serving out sentences imposed by either the district court or the municipal court of Duluth or the range towns, there are a number of persons awaiting the action of the grand jury, which will assemble today.

ATTACKED BY ANGRY JAPS

Vancouver, Jan. 2.—Allen Anderson, a fireman, is dying and two other young men, also members of the fire department, are badly wounded as the result of a fight yesterday in the Japanese quarter with an overwhelming number of subjects of the mikado. The fight was the worst in the city since the September riots.

Anderson, accompanied by J. Frost and T. McDonald, were passing a Japanese store when Frost stumbled and fell hard against the plate glass window front. The glass smashed and the fragments were still rolling on the sidewalk when a score of Japanese appeared from the inside and rushed at the trio of whites. The firemen were in uniform with brass buttons and official caps, but the Japanese knifed them furiously. Within three minutes there were dozens of Japanese in the fight, all trying to get at the white men. The latter were borne to the ground and cut and slashed until the sidewalk and front of the store were covered with blood.

Only four arrests were made, as nearly all the Japaneses scattered at sight of the policemen.

Anderson's companions thought Anderson dead and had been fighting over his prostrate body when the police came. Anderson's face was marked with many slashes up and down and from one side to the other. From the back of his ear to his shoulder was a slit two inches deep that only missed the jugular vein by a fraction of an inch. His body also was stabbed in half a dozen places.

The other two men were cut and bleeding from wounds on their faces and arms. All were taken to the hospital. Three doctors worked over them for hours sewing up their wounds.

EXCITEMENT AT FIRE CAUSES MAN'S DEATH.

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—Fire early today destroyed the large four-story building at Cadwalader and Berks streets, this city, occupied by Kerr, Saylor & Co., manufacturers of carpets, and the Pennsylvania Gas Fixture company. The loss is estimated at $150,000. Milton Hoagland, aged 50 years, the owner of a stable adjoining the building, dropped dead from excitement while removing horses from his place.

LEGISLATURE OF MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, Jan. 1.—The one hundred and twenty-ninth great general court, as the legislature of Massachusetts is formally known, was convened today, and orders were adopted for the inauguration tomorrow of Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., and Lieutenant Governor Eben S. Draper.

The senate this year is composed of thirty-two Republicans and eight Democrats, while in the house there are 175 Republicans and sixty-five Democrats.

An unusual amount of business already awaits action by the legislature. Five bills opposing the mergers of the Boston & Maine railroad with New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad have been filed with the secretary of state, and other measures bearing on the same matter are anticipated.

In addition half a dozen commissions authorized by the last legislature, which have been sitting since last summer on questions of taxation, labor, insurance, industrial education, commerce and industry, and savings banks, will submit reports and will suggest numerous modifications of the present laws.

BLUSHES AND SHYNESS

New York, Jan. 1.—Eighty-four marriage licenses were taken out yesterday at the office of City Clerk Scully, and judging by the atmosphere of shyness, tenderness, hesitancy, blushes and dual perseverande under perplexity, there was a romance in every license.

Beginning today it will be impossible to get married in this state without a license. The Association of City Hall Reporters on Monday sent President Roosevelt a telegram saying that nearly all of the men applicants for licenses intended to name their first born boys for him.

Yesterday the president sent the following to the association:

"Telegram received. Glad to hear good news about New York's population. Happy New Year to the City Hall Reporters' association.

GIRL PLEADS FOR FATHER.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—A little 9-year-old Portia appeared before Judge Newcomer yesterday. Her childish plea swayed the opinion of the court and won her father's freedom. Edward Wells admitted the theft of three brass journals from the Illinois Central railroad, pleading that his family was hungry.

The judge was interrupted by a childish voice:

"Mr. Judge," she said, "this man you are saying those things about is my papa. Please don't send him to jail, for I know he never will steal again. My mama is sick at home and we only live in a basement."

The Pure Food Law.

Secretary Wilson says: "One of the objects of the law is to inform the consumer of the presence of certain harmful drugs in medicines." The law requires that the amount of chloroform, opium, morphine, and other habit forming drugs be stated on the label of each bottle. The manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have always claimed that their remedy did not contain any of these drugs, and the truth of this claim is now fully proven, as no mention of them is on the label. This remedy is not only one of the safest, but one of the best in use for coughs and colds. Its value has been proven beyond question during the many years it has been in general use. For sale by all druggists.

ONLY TO LOCAL COMPANIES.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney General Young has ruled that the Minnesota law prohibiting the issuance of both participating and non-participating policies by the same insurance company applies only to Minnesota corporations, and is not applicable to outside corporations.

TRAIN WRECKED.

Sunbury, Pa., Jan. 1.—The Pennsylvania express which left Buffalo at 9 o'clock last night and which was due in Philadelphia at 7:32 a. m., today was wrecked at Montandon, ten miles west of here early today and more than a dozen passengers were injured.

Notice is hereby given, that whereas judgment was rendered and entered in the above-mentioned District Court on November 30th, 1907, in the above action in favor of the above-named plaintiff for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage, described in said judgment, of the interest hereinafter described, and the sale of said interest by the undersigned sheriff of said St. Louis County, or his deputy, and adjudging that the amount due on said mortgage, together with the costs of said action, was $2,429.25, and a duly certified transcript of said judgment has been delivered to me, the said sheriff, with instructions to enforce the same, and by which said judgment I, or my deputy, was directed to sell all the share and interest of William L. Banning, Junior, and Evangeline R. Banning, his wife, defendants above named, in the property devised and bequeathed to the said William L. Banning, Junior, by the last will and testament of William L. Banning, deceased, as described in said judgment, which said share and interest is an undivided one-fifth of all the real estate and personal property so devised and bequeathed to him, and hereinafter described, subject to the trust described in said judgment, and power of sale in the trustee thereof, as therein described.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of and in accordance with said judgment and certified transcript thereof, I, the said sheriff of said St. Louis County, or my deputy, will, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Duluth, in said St. Louis County, on Saturday, the first day of February, A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock A. M., sell, at public auction, to the highest bidder, as an entirety, all the said share and interest of the said William L. Banning, Junior, and his said wife, in the said property so devised and bequeathed to him as aforesaid, that is to say, an undivided one-fifth of all the following real and personal property, namely:

The following described real estate situated in said St. Louis County: Lots two hundred sixty-five (265) and two hundred sixty-seven (267), Lake avenue, Upper Duluth, and lots two hundred sixty-six (266) and two hundred sixty-eight (268), Lake Shore, Upper Duluth, and lots thirty-six (36), thirty-eight (38), forty (40) and forty-two (42), and the west half of lot forty-four (44), all in block one hundred nineteen (119), Duluth Proper, Third Division; lot twelve (12) in block one hundred forty-five (145) of Portland Division; lots four hundred twenty-four (424), four hundred twenty-six (426) and four hundred twenty-eight (428), in block nine (9), Duluth Proper, Second Division, according to the plat of said additions respectively on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of said St. Louis County, and the following real estate situated in Carlton County, Minnesota, namely: Lots one (1), two (2) and three (3) in block twenty-five (25) of the Village of Thompson, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Carlton County, and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of Section five (5), township forty-eight (48), range sixteen (16), in Carlton County, Minnesota, and the following described personal property, namely: The sum of three hundred forty (340) dollars in cash and the following securities, all payable to Mary A. Banning, as trustee of and under said will, namely:

(a) A mortgage made by Harry L. George, dated July 12th, 1907, on lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4), in block thirteen (13), and an undivided half interest in and to lots thirty-one (31) and thirty-three (33), in block twelve (12), all in Bayfront Division of Duluth, First Rearrangement, situated in said St. Louis County, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said St. Louis County on July 23rd, 1907, in Book 115 of Mortgages, on page 23, together with the two notes of said mortgagor of thirty-seven hundred dollars each, secured by and described in said mortgage.

(b) Mortgage made by Rupley J. Mullen, dated June 20th, 1907, on the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of Section fifteen (15), township forty-nine (49) north of range fifteen (15) west, situated in said St. Louis County, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said St. Louis County on July 22nd, 1907, in Book 115 of Mortgages, on page 22, together with two notes of said mortgagor of two hundred (200) dollars each, secured by and described in said mortgage.

(c) Mortgage made by Joseph J. Alworth, dated June 14th, 1907, on lot one hundred seventeen (117) in block twenty-three (23) of Duluth Proper, Third Division, situated in said St. Louis County, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds, in Book 115 of Mortgages, on page 21, together with two notes of said mortgagor for six hundred twenty-five dollars each, described in and secured by said mortgage.

(d) Six certificates of indebtedness for five hundred (500) dollars each of the City of Saint Paul, dated June 15th, 1907, due one year from that date, and numbered 1471, 1472, 1473, 1495, 1496 and 1975, and in all other property which may become a part of said trust, to satisfy the amount due as aforesaid, with interest and the costs and expenses of sale.

ATTELL AND MORAN DRAW

San Francisco, Jan. 2. — Owen Moran, champion featherweight of England, made a draw fight of twenty-five rounds with Abe Attell, champion of America, who was thought to be invincible at his weight. Moran was strong and aggressive, quick as a flash and kept on top of Attell all the time. Attell had plenty of opportunity to show his boasted cleverness in keeping away from the rushes of the little Englishman.

Attell found it difficult to land a vital blow. Moran's eye was blackened and his nose bled, but the punching rips to the stomach and the swings to the jaw were missing. Moran's game was to lead with either right or left and then close in. In the clinches he fought viciously, but did not do much harm.

The final round was most exciting. Moran seemed to take on a new lease of vigor and with head down butted in swinging rights and lefts. When the gong rang for the close both men kept on fighting fiercely and big Jim Jeffries had to separate them. Jeffries' decision of a draw was received with a round of cheers.

There came near being no fight owing to the fact that Moran was two ounces over weight. Attell did the Shylock act and had to be paid $25 for the surplus two ounces before he would consent to go on.

Moran's manager stated after the fight that the boy had found it difficult to get down to weight, and at 11 o'clock yesterday was compelled to do two miles of vigorous road work.

While interesting, the contest did not come up to the standard of a championship contest. Between 7,00 and 8,000 persons witnessed the contest. Referee Jeffries said after the fight that the fight was so close that he found it difficult to give a decision in favor of either man. He thought that Attell had slightly the better of it on points, but not sufficient to guarantee a decision in his favor.

The fight was under the American interpretation of the Marquis of Queensberry rules namely: Fight with one arm free and to protect themselves in the breakaway.

CARL AHLROTH BARRED OUT

Minneapolis, Jan. 2.—The skating races yesterday were won by Charles Fisher of Milwaukee. His superiority over the other contestants was so marked that the result of any race in which he was entered was never in doubt, and he was entered in every race except the novice. This was won by William Rudstrom of this city.

Carl Ahlroth of Duluth had been entered in some of the races, but the other participants protested against him on account of professionalism, and he was compelled to withdraw. The races resulted as follows:

Novice, one mile—Rudstrom, first; Sandy, second; Hanson, third. Time, 3:12.

Half mile—Fisher, first; Karlson, second; Vedeler, third. Time, 1:29.

Mile—Fisher, first, Coe, second; Karlson, third. Time, 2:59.

Two-mile—Fisher, first; Coe second; Krulson, third. Time, 6:09.

Five-mile—Fisher, first; Karlson, second. Time, 17:40.

The first big race matinee of the year on the half-mile track on the ice at the foot of Twenty-first avenue west yesterday was a complete success, over 2,500 spectators watching the sport. Though the air was chilly the spectators were enthusiasts and nearly everyone remained until the last heat had been run and decided.

Four heats were necessary to decide the free-for-all pace for the Henderson trophy. Tomango, owned by C. R. Rust; Kitty D., owned by L. Duplaise, and Capt. C., owned by W. McCullough, were entered. Tomango won the first heat, Capt. C. the second, Kitty the third and Tomango took the fourth and decided the event. Luxon took the first heat of the free-for-all trot, but Black Chief broke into his stride in the next two heats, won them handily and took the race.

Free-for-All Pace.

BIG CROWDS AT CURLING RINK

New Year's Celebrated by Curlers and Their Families.

Members of the curling club and their families crowded the rink all day yesterday.

The curlers were busy throughout the day, and the ice was in use from early in the morning until late at night.

Most of the games played yesterday were impromptu affairs, only two of them being match games. These were played in The Herald trophy event, the Oldham rink winning from W. B. Dunlop's and the George F. Smith rink winning from G. P. Stillman.

In the evening the skating rink presented a gay sight, being decorated with Japanese lanterns. La Brosse's band furnished music for the skaters, and a large number of young people enjoyed the sport.

W. N. Hart,	W. C. Sherwood,
J. G. Ross,	W. Spalding,
R. Bradley,	Dr. Staacke,
J. M. Oldham, skip—11.	W. B. Dunlop, skip—10.
H. P. Gowan,	W. Dinham,
R. T. Meads,	H. B. Haroldson,
J. C. Tresise,	Dr. Milne,

NORTHERNS ARE VICTORS

Strong Mic-Mac Team of St. Paul Defeated 8 to 5.

Crowd of Spectators Converted Into Enthusiasts by Exhibition.

Playing with stronger defense and more speed on the forward line, the Northern hockey team defeated the Mic-Macs of St. Paul yesterday afternoon at Athletic park, by a score of 8 to 5. The game was the first big contest of the year, and the fair crowd of spectators were converted into strong enthusiasts. They warmed up as the game progressed and the hold, which the sport took on them, is a fair indication of its possibilities in Duluth.

The Mic-Macs were placed under a handicap by the fact that the game was played under Eastern Hockey association rules, while they have been accustomed to the old O. H. A. rules. They picked up the new style of play, wonderfully, however, and were guilty of infractions of the rules, but few more times than the locals.

The game was closely contested and fiercely played, without being rough. There wasn't a serious incident of roughness in the entire game, only two men being punished for violations of the rules in that respect. Both teams mixed furiously at times, but they played the puck almost entirely, checked closely and used their sticks legally.

Speed won the game. The Mic-Mac forwards were speedy, but they didn't have any system of organized play, which the local men couldn't break up. Once in a while, one of them broke away for a long individual rush, but he was checked by the Duluth defense so often that there was little danger of a defeat for the Northerns.

The local boys showed improvement over their form of last week. They had a better knowledge of organized play, checked their opponents closely, took every opportunity to break up organized play, and broke into good combination play at times.

The Northerns took the lead at the start, Deetz slapping the puck in the net in less than a minute after play had begun. Two more goals followed in quick succession, before the Mic-Macs landed one. Duluth made it four and the Mic-Macs added one more before the half ended, the score standing 4 to 2. In the second half, the play was fierce for a time. The Northerns scored one again in less than a minute after play had started and another shortly after, and Winters netted another two minutes later. Palmer added one for the visitors, and a few minutes later, a fluke by Ray Fenton gave them another. Play eased up toward the latter part of the game, each team scoring once.

For the visitors, Palmer, Taylor and E. Misner showed speed on the forward line, with Foley starring on the defense. Misner played a strong game in goal. All of the local boys played in good form, with a little too much individual starring, though there was combination play enough to show that a few weeks of practice will put the team in good shape.

The teams lined up as follows:

Northerns.	Position.	Mic-Macs.
Fenton	goal	W. Misner
Furul	point	McGregor
E. Cummings	cover	Foley
Winters	rover	Taylor
Deetz	center	Palmer
Steinback	r. wing	Miller, Reiher
Al Cummings	l. wing	E. Misner

Goals, Deetz, 3; Winters, 4; Al Cummings, 1; Palmer, 3; Riefler, 1; Taylor, 1. Time of halves, 30 and 25 minutes.

Last evening, the visiting team was entertained at dinner at the St. Louis hotel, after which the members of both teams attended the Lyceum in a body.

"Open House" Enjoyed by Many People on Holiday.

The Y. M. C. A. kept "open house" in its quarters on East Superior street, yesterday, and many members and their friends attended the festivities held during the day.

The reception in the evening was very largely attended and the elaborate program, in charge of Assistant Secretary H. C. Ballou, was much enjoyed.

During the early part of the day, athletics and games held full sway. There were things doing in the gymnasium, Prof. Frey, the physical director, having arranged a number of stunts which interested the assembled athletes and the spectators as well.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Dr. D. H. Day entertained a large company in the parlor with stories and recitations. From 4 until 6, more gymnastic events were held, including a lively basketball game between the first team and the "all stars."

Refreshments were served from 6 to 7 and shortly afterwards the evening's festivities began. The following program was given:

WILL ASK FOR NEW TRIAL.

New Evidence Claimed to Have Been Discovered in Giangarello's Case.

Next Saturday William Marx, attorney for Angelo Giangarello, the Italian who was convicted of manslaughter, will ask the district court for a new trial, on the ground of newly discovered evidence that is said to have an important bearing on the case. Giangarello was convicted for shooting and killing Basilo Romano in a saloon at Eveleth, July 4, 1906. He fled to the Pacific coast and was not captured for over a year. It is claimed that a man has been found who heard Romano threaten Giangarello's life. Self-defense was the plea made by Giangarello, but at his trial there was not enough evidence to substantiate his statements to the effect that his own life was endangered.

CLERGYMEN TO HOLD SESSIONS

Duluth Deanery of Episcopal Church Will Meet Here.

The Duluth deanery of the Episcopal church will hold its Ephiphany meeting Monday evening and Tuesday of next week at the Church of the Holy Apostles at West Duluth. All the Episcopal clergymen in this deanery will attend and take part in the program for the two days.

The meeting will be opened Monday evening at 8 o'clock, when Rt. Rev. J. D. Morrison, bishop of Duluth, will preside. The speakers will be Rev. E. Spencer Murphy of Grand Rapids, Minn., and Rev. R. S. Read, assistant rector of St. Paul's church, Duluth.

At the session Tuesday morning at 9:30 Bishop Morrison will preach and papers will be read by Rev. Frank Coulbaugh of Cloquet, Rev. Frank Durant of Hibbing and Rev. Albert Carswell of Virginia.

All Episcopal people in Duluth are invited to the services.

CAUSE OF THE PANIC OF 1907

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2.—After a thorough review of the general conditions responsible for the panic of 1907, Clark Williams, superintendent of the New York state banking department, in his annual report submitted to the legislature, yesterday, says the particular causes contributing largely to the failure of the ten financial institutions in New York city were:

A lack of proper supervisory power; too great interdependence between corporations; a lack of association for mutual assistance, and corporate abuse. The forms of corporate abuse principally contributing to these failures says he, were:

A general disregard of law; lack of conservatism and disregard of duties of directors, and improper use of corporate credit for personal advantages.

He recommends numerous changes in the banking laws to remedy these abuses and with a view to giving the sperintendents of banking a much wider scope over the activities of certain classes of institutions under their jurisdiction. He states that the weekly bank statement issued by the New York Clearing House association does not reflect the aggregate financial position of the banking institutions of the city at large, since one-half of the banking power does not report to this association, and announced that he will require an average summary statement of the condition of the banking institutions of the state at the close of business on Friday of each week, and that these statements will be prepared at the New York office of the department.

DULUTH MEN ARE IN NEW CONCERN

Uniform Stave & Package Co. Acquires Ontonagon Plant.

Ontonagon, Mich., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—As soon as some necessary repairs can be made, the plant of the Ontonagon Stave & Veneer company, which has been leased by the Uniform Stave & Package company, will be placed in operation.

The deal was closed by M. J. Bell of Bellwood, Wis., general manager of the company.

The plant has been leased for five years, with the privilege of buying it at any time before the expiration of that time.

About $5,000 will be spent in repairing and enlarging the plant.

Repair work has started under the supervision of Mr. Kerr, who has been in Ontonagon during the past few weeks in the interest of the company, and will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

The Uniform Stave & Package company is a strong concern. It has an authorized capitalization of $400,000, and its officials are men who are experienced in the timber industry. The officers are:

President—P. A. Brewer, Duluth.
Vice president—J. J. Russell, Minneapolis.
Secretary and general manager—M. J. Bell, Bellwood, Wis.
Treasurer—M. W. Alworth, Duluth.
Directors—M. H. Alworth, F. A. Brewer, C. A. Duncan, M. W. Alworth, J. J. Russell, Stoddard Field and M. J. Bell.

The company is operating at Ashland a plant of the same character as the Ontonagon plant, has another one under option and owns the machinery of a similar plant at Tomahawk.

THE PROSPECTS FOR 1908 SEEM FAIR, SAYS GIBBONS.

Baltimore. Jan. 2.—Cardinal Gibbons yesterday expressed his opinion of the outlook for next year in the following words:

"The prospects for 1908 appear very fair. The most reasonable way to judge of the future is by the lights of the past, and we find that if Almighty God has inflicted upon us some trials, the blessings He has vouchsafed have always exceeded them. This has been the experience in the years gone by, and, I think, we may rely upon the same goodness and protection in the one upon which we entered today. There may be some things that will probably appear to certain minds discouraging, but under the will of Divine Providence I am sure we may hope for the best."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Agnes Petterson, aged 25, and Otto Huglin, aged 26, were drowned, Wednesday, at Wyandotte, Mich., breaking through the ice while skating at Ford slip.

The most notable feature of the first day of prohibition in Georgia was the refusal of Judge Newman in the United States circuit court to grant an injunction pending litigation which would prevent the putting into effect of the prohibition law.

Patrolmen Mike Wrenn and C. I. Jarnagin were shot and killed, Wednesday night, while trying to arrest Ernest Wells on a trival charge, at Knoxville, Tenn. Wells wrenched loose and shot the officers several times before they could draw their revolvers. Wrenn died instantly and Jaragin in a few minutes.

The Cumberland Presbyterian church and three store buildings were destroyed and several other buildings were damaged by a fire, at Coal Center, Pa., Wednesday night. The loss is $50,000 with small insurance.

Two men were killed and thirteen others were seriously injured by an explosion in converter No. 3 of the Edgar Thomson plant of the United States Steel Corporation, at North Braddock, Pa., Wednesday. The dead: Paul Kurisick; Stephen Doviah.

Charles Hopkins is under arrest and his wife is though to be dying from a fractured skull, as the result of a religious argument the couple had on the street at Boyne City, Mich., Wednesday. Hopkins is charged with striking his wife on the head with a rock. He objected to her being identified with the Salvation Army.

AGRICULTURAL PROSPERITY

Of Minnesota Makes Finances of State Very Sound.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a report he has prepared for publication in the Financial Age, Anton Schaefer, state bank examiner, says that the cereal crop of 1907 in Minnesota and the Dakotas was marketed at a cash value estimated at $60,000,000 above the value of the big crop of 1906, while the aggregate value of farm, dairy and live stock products surpassed that of 1906 by $75,000,000.

"This agricultural prosperity," says the report, "gives Minnesota banking a solidity that no speculative flurry in distant money centers can shake or disturb."

The output of the iron mines, according to the report, was 30,000,000 tons, or more than one-half the total iron ore output of the United tSates and one-fourth of the world.

"The reflection of this general industrial prosperity of the state upon financial operations is seen in the bank clearings of the Twin Cities, which break the record with a total of $1,650,000,000 as the year's volume of business," says the bank examiner, "an increase of $120,000,000, or 18 per cent over 1906.

"Today the banks are handling a volume of commercial paper never before known. Not only leading Twin City jobbers and manufacturers, but Chicago firms are floating in Minnesota country banks at 6 to 7 per cent a large volume of paper which formerly has gone to Chicago, New York and other Eastern cities."

EQUITY SOCIETY AT NORTH BRANCH

Annual Convention of Chisago County Union Saturday.

North Branch, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Members of the American Society of Equity in this county will be here in force next Saturday to attend the annual convention of the Chisago County union, to begin at 11 o'clock. It will be a big meeting and an excellent program has been arranged.

An election of officers for the county will be held, after which the Equity question will be discussed in all its phases by representative speakers. The present officers, whose terms expire, are: President, J. A. Rystrom, North Branch; vice president, Robert Stryker, North Branch; secretary, K. O. Warme, North Branch; treasurer, T. W. Malcolm, Rush City.

W. E. McEwen of Duluth, secretary of the state federation of labor, will be the chief speaker, and there will be other good numbers on the program It is just possible that Mr. McEwen will not be able to attend, however, in which case he will send a substitute.

SEVERS AN ARTERY.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Dase, who has been employed at the Lakeshore hotel, was splitting wood when the ax slipped and the blade cut a deep wound in his leg. The wound bled very profusely and an examination showed that he had severed an artery. The wound was dressed and the flow of blood stopped. Dase was taken to the poor farm, where he will remain until he recovers.

GLIDDEN TO SOAR.

New York, Jan. 1.—It is stated that Charles J. Glidden, the motorist, is to attempt a balloon flight next summer, from Omaha, Neb., to Boston, about 1,800 miles. Mr. Glidden will make the flight in the hope of capturing the Lahm cup.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Tone is Stronger After the New Year Holiday.

Flax Has a Good Advance in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 2.—Wheat was stronger in the American markets, after the New Year's holidays, and the closing prices showed a gain of more than a point over Tuesday.

Offerings were light and the foreign situation was very strong. Liverpool showed a big bulge, partly induced by increased confidence caused by a reduction in the discount rate by the Bank of England.

Liverpool closed 2d to 2⅛d higher; Berlin, 2⅜c higher, and Budapest, ⅞c lower.

The May option closed 1⅝c higher in Duluth, 1¼@⅜c higher in Chicago, 1⅜@½c higher in Minneapolis, 1¼c higher in New York and 1c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1⅜c higher in Duluth, ⅜@½c higher in Chicago, 1@⅛c higher in Minneapolis, ⅞c higher in New York and 1⅜c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed 1¼@⅜c higher in Chicago and ⅞d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—There was a strong undertone to the speculative wheat market at the start, and values showed an advance of 1⅛d. Offerings were extremely light and shorts nervous, stimulated by the firmer American cables on Tuesday and the fact that Argentine offerings were lighter and 9d dearer. Further strength developed as trading progressed, and an additional avance of ⅜d was made before mid-day. There was an improved continental demand, with bad reports from Russia, cold weather in Europe, and a reduction of 1 per cent in the bank rate, which tended to increase confidence among traders. At mid-day the undertone was strong, with prices 1⅛d to 2d higher than Tuesday.

"Corn was firm and ⅜d higher at the opening, gaining an additional ¼d during the morning. Strength was the result of the better American cables, cold weather in Europe and an improved demand for spot. Spot wheat was strong and corn firm. Wheat cargoes were strong, holders asking 3d to 6d advance."

Primary receipts of wheat were 679,000 bus, last year 808,000 bus. Shipments 241,000 bus, last year 324,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 1,250,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 707,000 bus, last year 1,098,000 bus. Shipments 510,000 bus, last year 546,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 463,398 bus.

Wheat trading was rather quiet in the Duluth market. May wheat opened 1⅝c higher at $1.14¾, went off to $1.14½, rallied to $1.14¾, declined to $1.14½, reacted to $1.15¼ and ranged between that and $1.14½ until the close, which was $1.14¾, a gain of 1⅝c over Tuesday. July wheat opened late at $1.15½ and closed at $1.15¼, a gain of 1⅜c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 4½c under May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet. May flax opened ¼c higher at 1.21¼, advanced to $1.22½, went off to $1.22, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at that price, a gain of 2⅝c over Tuesday. July flax was inactive and closed at $1.24½, a gain of 1⅞c over Tuesday.

Oats closed ½c higher than Tuesday and the other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Quite Strong on an Active General Demand.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The wheat market opened strong on an active general demand based to a large extent on a second advance at Liverpool. A liberal decrease in receipts in the Northwest also induced heavy purchases. Offerings came chiefly from holders. May opened ½@⅝c to 1½@1⅝c higher at $1.06½@1.07½, and for a time held within that range. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 306 cars against 526 cars last week.

The market held steady all day. The high point for May was $1.07⅞. The close was strong with May 1¼@1⅜ cents higher at $1.07¾.

Firm cables and the strength of wheat had a bullish effect on corn. Demand was quite general and offerings were light. May opened ⅜@⅝c higher at 60¾@61c and sold up to 61⅝c. Local receipts were 131 cars with 5 of contract grade.

Prices gained in strength throughout the session. May selling up to 61⅝c. The close was strong with May at 1⅛c higher at 61⅝c.

Oats were strong on active demand by shorts with strength of wheat and corn was the principal bullish influence. May opened ¼c higher at 54⅜c, sold at 54½c and then advanced to 55¼c.

Local receipts were 111 cars.

Provisions were strong owing to the strength of grain, a 5-cent decline in live hogs apparently having little effect. May pork was up 10 cents at $13.20. Lard was up 7½c at $7.92½, and ribs were also up 7½c at $7.12½.

Close: Wheat, May, $1.07¼; July, 99¼c; September, 95¾c. Corn, May 61⅝@¾c; July, 60⅜c; September, 60⅜c. Oats May, old, 54⅞c; May, 53⅞@⅛c; July, 46⅝c. Pork, January, $12.65; May, 13.32½. Lard, January, $7.85; May, $8.05. Ribs, January, $6.80@6.82½; May, $7.22½@7.25. Rye, cash, 80@88c. Barley, cash, 86@96c. Clover, March, $17. Timothy, March, $4.70. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—There was a big speculative trade in wheat. The opening was strong and higher. There was only one good reaction during the morning. Liverpool came very strong and Berlin and Antwerp were higher. Foreign strength appeared to be based on lighter Argentine offerings and higher prices asked for cargoes. Even with perfect weather and plenty of cars, Northwest wheat receipts were down to 256 cars. Kansas points are reporting reserves lower than for years. A private cable claims considerable damage to wheat from recent torm in one of the smaller Argentina provinces. There is little doubt that the bull leader who sold out so much wheat Monday was buying it back today. The world's wheat position is strong and all that buyers need to do is to wait for a reasonable reaction before taking hold.

Corn—There was an improved spot demand. Local receipts very light. This sort of movement will not meet current demands. Railroads are reducing rates between points in Nebraska to enable feeders to get corn from surplus sections. Illinois is supplying Chicago and advices from many of the points in this state say that farmers are very slow to sell. There is a big short interest in the market and it is not safe for those who wish to get in to wait for very much of a setback.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Jan. 2.—Millers marked up prices 2 cents a barrel today in line with the stronger wheat prices. The demand as a whole is moderate. Buyers are conservative and not disposed to make more than hand to hand commitments. Shipments, 42,322 barrels. First patents, $5.70@5.80; second patents, $5.60@5.70; first clears, $4.30@4.40; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Quiet prevailed in the produce market today. The day following a holiday is invariably a dull one on commission row. Receipts will pick up tomorrow and next day, however, and the market resume a normal basis. The effect of the holiday business was not reflected so much in prices, because the market was steady within the present range, but it had an effect nevertheless.

Prices are unchanged today.

THE RECORD IS BROKEN

Receipts of Grain for 1907 Largest in History.

Receipts of all grains at Duluth for the calendar year of 1907 broke all previous records of this market, the total being 88,409,428 bushels.

The next largest calendar year in the history of the board of trade was 1898, when the total receipts of all grains for the twelve months amounted to 85,842,000 bushels. The total receipts for the calendar year of 1906 were 81,784,000 bushels.

The big gain of the past year was in wheat. Receipts of wheat for 1907 took in a portion of two crops, of course, and amounted to 55,299,825 bushels, as against 41,558,151 bushels for 1906.

Shipments of wheat were 49,207,734 bushels for 1907, as against 39,109,354 bushels for 1906. The shipments include the grain destroyed by fire. Local flour mills took 3,000,000 bushels of wheat off the tracks for their own consumption during the year, in addition to the grain in store they secured from the elevators.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Started Easy, But Brisk Rise Occurred in Afternoon.

New York, Jan. 2.—The opening stock market today ignored the influence of the higher prices in London caused by the reduction in the Bank of England's official discount rate. First prices showed sharp recessions. The depressing factors were the application for a receiver for the Seaboard Air line and reports of an intended government suit to dissolve the Harriman Pacific railroad combination. Union Pacific declined 1⅜. Southern Railway preferred and Southern Pacific 1¼, Southern Railway, St. Paul, Great Northern Ore certificates and American Smelter 1 and Northern Pacific, Atchison, Pennsylvania and U. S. Steel preferred large fractions. Granby Mining rose 1¾ and American Tobacco preferred 1.

Prices continued to give way on light offerings. The acute weakness displayed by the Harriman roads and Southern group of stocks discouraged general buying. Central of New Jersey sagged, 4; Union Pacific and Westinghouse Electric, 2 to 2¼; Northwestern, 1¾; United States Steel preferred, 1¼, and Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, 1.

A substantial rally reduced declines materially and lifted a few active speculative stocks over Tuesday's closing level. American Sugar gained 1¼ and Northern Pacific, Reading and Illinois Central, 1. Additional declines were Wheeling and Lake Erie second preferred. Minneapolis, S. Ste. Marie, 1½, and Iowa Central and American Car, 1. Bonds were heavy.

There was quite a brisk rise in the afternoon in Reading, Northern Pacific and Northern Central. Northern Pacific rose 3; New York Central, 2; Great Northern preferred and American Smelting, 1⅝; Union Pacific, St. Paul and American Copper, 1. The market closed strong at top prices. Advances in the final hour continued until sales by room traders to take profits interrupted. Federal Mining preferred was carried up 4; Reading, 3⅜; New York Central and Reading, 3; American Smelting, 2⅜; Union Pacific, 1⅛; Anaconda and Colorado Fuel, 1. The profit-taking caused only fractional recessions and prices rose again.

Stock Gossip.

New York to Walter W. Carr: After a rather weak market early today the stock market took a turn for the better and rallies of from one to three points took place throughout the general list. The easier tone at the start was due to the appointment of receivers for the Seaboard Air line and further reflection of the Atchison statement, published Tuesday, and the announcement from Washington regarding the taking of action against the Harriman lines. The bear party was quite active early testing the strength of the market, but was to route later, resulting in the general improvement. The buying of Reading and Hill stocks was the feature causing good upturns in these stocks and imparting strength to the general list. The reduction in Bank of England rate was somewhat of a surprice, but was offset by developments on the side over the holiday. The London market was affected by the news from this side, but rallied on the curb following the upturn here. Call money reached 20 per cent but eased off to 6 and 8 per cent. The close of the market was firm at about the best of the day.

New York Money.

New York, Jan. 2.—Close: Money on call firm, 5@20 per cent; ruling rate, 18 per cent; closing offer, 19 per cent; time loans firm and active; sixty days, 8 to 10 per cent; ninety days, 7 to 8 per cent; six months, 6 to 8 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 8@10 per cent. Sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers bills at $4.84.75 for demand and at $4.79.75@4.79.80 for sixty-day bills. Commercial bills, $4.79.50. Bar silver, 54⅛c; Mexican dollars, 43c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds steady.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Cattle—Receipts, about 11,000; market steady to a shade higher; beeves, $3.60@6.20; cows and heifers, $3.45@4.50; westerners, quiet at $6; stockers and feeders, $3.25@4.30. Hogs—Receipts, about 31,000; market a shade lower; light, $4.15@4.55; mixed, $4.20@4.60; heavy, $4.20@4.62; rough, $4.20@4.30; pigs, $3.60@4.50; bulk of sales, $4.45. Sheep—Receipts, about 13,000; market strong; native, $3@5.30; western, @5.25; yearlings, $4.60@5.60; lambs, $4.80@7; western, $4.75@5.

St. Paul Livestock.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 100; market steady, unchanged. Hogs—Receipts, 2,000; market steady, little change; range, $4.30@4.45; bulk of sales, $4.35@4.40. Sheep—Receipts, 100; market steady.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 2.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 6@16 points and increased the loss to a matter of 15@20 points and increased the loss to a @20 points during the early session under active selling for both accounts. After the first break business became less active and while the market continued very nervous during the middle of the morning, prices were up a point or two from the lowest.

Although the heavy selling was caused by reports of difficulties in one of the large railroads, while others believed that it reflected bearish estimates as to the amounts of cotton ginned to Jan. 1.

After the first big break the market ruled much less active and rather steadier with prices recovering 3 or 4 points of the loss although prices still showed a net decline of 14@17 points at midday. Spot quiet; middling uplands 11.75; middling gulf 11.95.

Spot closed quiet; 40 points lower; middling uplands, 11.40; middling gulf, 11.65; sales, 29,000 bales. Futures closed steady; closing bids: January 10.51; February, 10.61; March, 10.70; April, 10.72; May, 10.73; June, 10.72; July, 10.70; August, 10.54.

Copper Gossip.

"The Hoatson shaft has reached the 1,200-foot level and has cut in all 60 feet of solid ore. In the twenty-third cross-cut went into 13 per cent ore yesterday. Junction at the 770-foot level has cut to date 35 feet of ore. The shaft is in 14 per cent ore at present."

* * *

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: After a weak opening the shorts tried to cover and found the market bare of stocks, and prices advanced easily. Amalgamated will be one of the leaders in the up-swing and will be closely followed by Copper Range and North Butte. Good buying was in evidence in Allouez and Old Dominion, and these stocks will jump up fast, also Centennial. La Salle is also a favorite. The metal is looking better every day, and we expect a sharp advance in the price within a few months.

Martin Rosendahl sold 20,000 shares of Butte & Superior on orders from Butte. The seller was a holder who was forced to realize to protect other interests.

DULUTH IN THE LEAD

Although figures have not been compiled to show the number of recruits secured at the local United States office, sufficient data is at hand to show that the office made a record that will surpass in number of men enlisted any of the records made in the eight years the office has been established here.

In point of securing desirable men, the Duluth office holds a record that cannot be surpassed by any office in the country. The men are the largest, best physically and their morals higher than those of the majority of the recruits secured in the large cities. In the slum district of New York, for instance, men are secured that cannot compare with the average recruit secured from this district. The mental and physical attributes of the average man enlisted in the district controlled by the Duluth office rank among the highest in the United States.

Most of the men recruited are laborers. Many of them are woodsmen. Lieut. Hall says that he has never seen a finer lot of men enter the service. The men enlisted the past year represent as fine a body of soldiers as have been secured in any recruiting district in the United States. This is saying a great deal for the Duluth district, but figures obtained from other offices show that the men recruited are physically splendid specimens.

While the recruiting has been rather slow of late, if the pending bill for the increase of the soldiers' pay becomes a law, Lieut. Hall looks for a heavy increase in the number of enlistments. Many old soldiers in Duluth, who have left the military to enter civil life, have told the officers that they will re-enter the army, should the bill pass.

It is probable that many of the old sergeants that have left the army will be drawn back into military life should congress pass the increased pay bill. Lieut. Hall believes that if the bill is passed there will be no trouble in securing all the recruits desired. He says that men hesitate to join the army at the present scale of wages. If the pay were raised there would soon be a great increase in recruiting all over the United States.

The word has gone out from Washington that the bill is not likely to pass. In military circles it is said that Speaker Cannon is holding the bill back. It is said that the Republican party does not want to be charged with extravagance. According to the army papers the soldiers will be compelled to wait at least another year for the hoped for increase.

Special Announcement Regarding the National Pure Food and Drug Law.

REPEATED FAILURES

Follow Efforts to Discover Identity of Murdered Woman.

Newark, Jan. 2.—Repeated failures to discover the identity of the woman who was murdered at Harrison, Thursday night, have left the police with no apparently good clue to work on. The work of the police has been greatly hampered by the misleading statements made by many persons who have attempted to identify the body as that of some missing friend.

The talk of employing the hounds owned by the New York police department in an effort to trace the movements of the murderer has been abandoned.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second day of the State Educational association's meeting found a most gratifying attendance, resulting in enthusiasm in all of the departments.

Matters pertinent to various sections were discussed. The discussion following the reading of the leading papers was participated in by a large number of teachers.

Emphatic differences of opinion marked the proceedings this morning of the elementary schools in the public chamber at the old chapel. The subject considered was especially vital: "How Can the Moral, Literary and Historic Values of the Bible be Brought Before the Public School Children?" K. Allen of Minneapolis, the president, occupied the chair. The secretary was Margaret Quilliard of Duluth.

SEVERAL INJURED IN RIOTING AT MUNCIE.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 2.—Rioting was resumed today on the streets of Muncie between sriking employes of the Indiana Union Traction company, which owns the street railway and interurban lines, and the strike-breakers. Shots were fired and stones and other missiles were thrown. Nine persons have been injured.

The injured: Morris Maley, bullet wound in groin; John R. Cline, shot in the leg; William Finan, slight flesh wound, caused by bullet; Joseph Walling, hit with a stone; Harry T. Auginbaugh, struck on leg with stone; Orville Shepp, injured with stone; James Rutledge, leg and head cut with stones or brick; Harry Gardner, beat severely; John Lwellen, struck with brick.

DOUKHOBORS START OUT WITHOUT CLOTHES.

Fort William, Ont., Jan. 2.—Twelve Doukhabor pilgrims started out yesterday without clothing, in the cold northwest wind, for one of their strange marches through the streets. They were finally rounded up by the police. Seven men and five women were in the party, and they marched a half mile in scanty attire before being stopped.

NO POISON FOUND IN MRS. CLAYTON'S STOMACH.

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 2.—When Prof. Erastus Smith, the chemist of Beloit college, makes his formal report on the analysis of Mrs. Clayton's stomach, he will state that no poison or trace of poison was discovered. He completed his exhaustive examination yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Edden and Dr. Gibson found Mrs. Clayton's heart and lungs in a normal, healthy condition, and in the absence of any signs of violent agitation, hold to the murder theory.

struction and repairs, by means of which the corporation has increased its productive capacity during the past year by about 10 per cent, and the largest payroll which it has had to meet since its organization.

According to all present estimates, the total production of the steel corporation for 1907 will reach a new high record, approximating 20,500,000 tons of iron ore, 12,500,000 tons of blast furnace products and 14,500,000 tons of steel ingots. It likewise is expected that the corporation's total sales will amount to 11,500,000 tons, or approximately 900,000 tons more than the total sales for 1906. Calculations on the corporation's gross receipts generally point to a sum approximating $750,000,000, compared with $696,756,926 for the previous year. These gross earnings will be larger than those of any railroad in this country except the Pennsylvania.

The corporation's net earnings, it is thought, will be in excess of $160,000,000, compared with $150,624,273 for 1906, which hitherto has been considered the banner year. Its total balance of surplus on Dec. 31, 1907, probably will reach about $110,000,000, or about $13,000,000 larger than that on Dec. 31, 1906, when $97,720,714 was recorded.

Appropriations will run close to $60,000,000, compared with $50,000,000 for 1906, and actual expenditures for new construction will approximate, and may exceed, $50,000,000, compared with $32,155,146 in the previous year. These additional expenditures for new construction will swell the grand total so expended since the corporation's organization to $200,000,000, equivalent to $55 a share on its $360,000,000 of preferred stock.

Expenditures for extraordinary replacements and ordinary repairs probably will run close to $50,000,000; inventory valuations will approximate $110,000,000; the average number of employes will exceed 200,000, and exports of steel will be in excess of 1,000,000 tons.

The corporation will record for 1907 the highest wages paid in any year since its organization and also the largest aggregate payroll. In spite of this fact, it will show cash on hand as of Dec. 31, 1907, far in excess of that recorded last year, and it also is expected that its working capital will be materially larger than that at the close of 1906.

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

REPORT OF J. B. FLACK

Justice Has Tried Sixty Criminal Cases in Seven Months.

Collects Over $500 in Fines Since Office Was Opened.

Justice of Peace J. B. Flack of the West Duluth justice court today issued a report to the city council of the cases that have been tried before him from May 1, 1907, when the West Duluth court was first endowed with the power to try criminal cases, until the first of January, 1908.

Each month Judge Flack is required to submit a report to the city council and deliver the money received from fines during that month to the city treasurer. The report he sent in today is a summary of those monthly reports, and is not required by the city. It is just to show the council what has been done by the West Duluth justice court during the past eight months.

Since Judge Flack has had the power to try criminal cases, there have been sixty cases, mostly assault charges, brought before him, and the court has received in fines $559. The number of cases tried before the court each month were as follows: May, 2; June, 5; July, 14; August, 7; September, 1; October, 10; November, 10 and December, 3.

MAKE CLAIM OF FRAUD

Prominent Mining Men in Lawsuit Over Iron Ore Property,

Alleging that Athol Morton Miller, Jr., and A. B. Coates, by false representations and reports as to certain exploration work on section 24, 58-17, caused them to relinquish a valuable option contract, J. D. Lamont, James H. Flinn, D. W. Freeman and John Costin, Jr., have started an action in the district court to recover $160,000 damages from Messrs. Miller and Coates and the Mariska Iron company.

According to the complaint, which was filed in the district court this morning by W. G. Bonham, attorney for the plaintiffs, James H. Flinn secured an option contract on the land from the fee owners, and took J. D. Lamont into the deal with himself. It is alleged that for a bonus of $5,000 on each forty acres under option, Lamont and Flinn sub-optioned the property to Freeman and Costin, and the latter two lessees, in turn, assigned their option to Miller and Coates, the understanding being that Miller and Coates were to pay the $5,000, and that certain benefits from the operation of the property, should it turn out an ore producer, should go to the parties holding the original option.

It is alleged that under the agreement the sub-lessees were to furnish accurate monthly reports of the exploration work.

The plaintiffs claim that Messrs. Miller and Coates explored the property with diamond drills, and found a large ore body, but that they represented to the plaintiffs that no ore had been found of an appreciable value. It is alleged that by reason of such reports the plaintiffs permitted their option to expire, and that Miller and Coates secured a long lease from the fee owners on a royalty basis, and then assigned the lease of the property to the Republic Iron & Steel company for operation.

The plaintiffs further allege that for the purpose of carrying out the deception, Messrs. Miller and Coates formed the Mariska Iron company, in the name of which their lease was taken.

Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer represent the defendants.

SUPERIOR NEWS

FUNCTION A SUCCESS.

The charity ball given at Hotel Superior last evening was a very successful affair. Several hundred couples attended the affair, which is considered the largest society function of the winter season.

The ballroom was handsomely decorated with the national colors, with white and purple streamers across the ceiling and chandeliers. The corners of the room were banked with evergreen, the orchestra being hidden by this means.

The arrangements were in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. L. C. Barnett. The members of the committee were directors of the Children's home society. The proceeds of the ball will be turned into the Children's Home fund.

Ask for More Ammunition.

The members of Company I are ardent marksmen. They claim that the 6,000 rounds of ammunition allowed them by the state are not enough to carry them through the year's practice, and pressure is being brought to bear on Governor Davidson of Wisconsin to act favorably on the recommendations as to the supplies and other allowances of the national guard during the coming year. The infantry organizations in the national guard wish an increased allowance of 3,000 rounds of ammunition.

Saloonkeepers Were Easy Marks.

Three Superior saloonkeepers are claimed to have been "stung" yesterday to the extent of $50 by two men, who worked off bad money on the saloons and got drinks and good money in exchange. Pat Farrell, a stranger in the city, is in custody on suspicion of being one of the two men that passed a $10 Confederate bill on the "Q. P." saloon on Third street. Similar bills of $20 each are said to have been passed in two other saloons. The police are searching for the other man supposed to be implicated in the fake game.

Inspecting Grain.

The new Wisconsin grain ispection laws went into effect this morning in Superior, and all the officials appointed under the new law took up their duties.

KILLING LOOSE DOGS.

Aitkin, Minn., Jan. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word having been received from the state board of health stating that the examination of the head of the dog that last week bit Frank Carman of Hazelton township, showed that the dog had a pronounced case of rabbies, the authorities of the town are taking vigorous measures to prevent any spread of the contagion. Chairman Hazelton of the board of supervisors, has issued orders to have all dogs killed that are found running loose, and has also advised all people owning dogs to keep them chained until the danger is passed.

Mr. Carman is now at the Pasteur Institute in connection with the State university at Minneapolis, where he is undergoing treatment.

A dog belonging to Fred Halbkat at Cedar Lake, developed signs of rabies Monday, and was shot before doing any harm.

WALSTROM POSTS MONEY.

Sten Walstrom, the giant wrestler, who is anxious to meet Andrew Danielson in a handicap match, he to throw Danielson three times in an hour, this morning posted $25 to go as a forfeit and side bet for the match.

"I think I can throw Danielson," he said. "And there's the money to back me up. I may be heavy, but I'm not slow and can give the West end man a good under handicap." Walstrom weighs only 332 pounds, while Danielson goes 168.

NIGHT RIDERS DESCEND ON KENTUCKY TOWN AND DYNAMITE WAREHOUSES

COUNTESS OF YARMOUTH,
Who Was Miss Alice Thaw, a Sister of Harry Thaw, Has Applied for a Divorce From Her Husband.

Tobacco Concerns at Russellville, Victims of the Outrage.

Russellville, Ky., Jan. 3.—One hundred night riders swooped down on Russellville, Logan county, early today, and after overpowering the policemen and providing against the giving of an alarm, dynamited and burned the two independent tobacco concerns in the city and several other establishments, and rode about the city. Three men were wounded and the telephone girls and police were held prisoners for nearly three hours. The following buildings were destroyed:

Frank G. Work, tobacco warehouse, building and contents, loss $15,000; the American Snuff company, factory and contents, loss $15,000; Town planing mill, loss $12,000; Alfred Underwood, grocery, loss $2,000; King & Proctor, stable; Joshua Knowles, cottage.

Chief of Police Overpowered.

Capt. W. R. Bruce, the chief of police, as soon as he heard the report of the dynamite explosions, hastened to the fire tower, where he attempted to sound an alarm, but was overpowered by four of the masked night riders.

McLean, who is proprietor of a grocery store, and Mosley, owner of a dry goods store, were shot by the night riders because they did not hurry into their homes as fast as the "night riders" desired.

Dr. Roberts of Evansville, Ind., a guest at the Forest House, heard the confusion, and thinking that the raiders had departed, ran out to see what had happened. He came face to face with a group of the departing mob, and as he started to run, was shot and seriously wounded. It was said that the mob came to Russellville from the direction of Cave Springs, near where the members are said to have had their rendezvous. The mob seemed to be well organized. All the men were mounted and wore white capes, false beards and masks. Their chief purpose seemed to be the destruction of the two tobacco houses.

This is the third raid which has been made by night riders in Western Kentucky, and followed closely the announcement by the governor that disorder must cease. A court at Hopkinsville is investigating a similar raid made on that city several weeks ago. Troops are now on guard in Hopkinsville.

SISTER OF HARRY THAW

Estrangement Results Largely From the Famous Trial.

London, Jan. 3.—The countess of Yarmouth, who was Miss Alice Thaw of Pittsburg, has begun proceedings for the nullification of her marriage with the earl of Yarmouth.

The Yarmouth case is entered in the defended list for trial at the coming sittings of the divorce court. It will be heard in camera.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 3.—The news from England today that the countess of Yarmouth, formerly Miss Alice Thaw of this city, had begun proceedings for the nullification of her marriage, did not create much surprise, as it has been known here for some time that all was not well between the couple.

It is said that the estrangement results from two causes. The first cause is said to be the action of the earl of Yarmouth during the first trial of Harry K. Thaw, a half brother of the countess, who is to be tried, Monday next, for the second time, for the murder of Stanford White at New York.

Yarmouth Fled to Egypt.

It is said when the trial was about to begin Yarmouth went to Egypt and lived in seclusion in the select colony of English folk who reside there during the winter months. The second cause is said to be the action of the Thaw family in determining upon an insanity plea for Harry Thaw.

From reports received here from London during the past month, it is said that Yarmouth obected to insanity figuring in the case of Harry Thaw on the ground that it would have a direct influence on the succession of the Yarmouth estate in the event there was an issue from the marriage.

It is also said the earl's parents used every influence to prevent the institution of proceedings to nullify the marriage.

Yarmouth and Miss Alice Thaw were married in Pittsburg two and a half years ago. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. L. McEwan of the Third Presbyterian church, the family pastor, who also married Harry Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit.

COMPLAINT FILED

Against North Dakota Official by Canadian Government.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 3.—Secretary of State Scott has written to Washington asking the United States government to investigate the alleged illegal action of a North Dakota official who recently held up the Canadian farmers on the boundary line at Emerson and forced them to cross over into the United States territory, and, on threat of keeping them in jail, compelled one of them to sign an affidavit implicating him in an attempt to smuggle wheat across the boundary.

Secretary Scott declares that the action of the Dakota officers was contrary to international law, and has asked that if an investigation bears out the contention of the complainants that the United States government compensate them for damages sustained.

CROWE'S BROTHER BANKRUPT.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Stephen A. Crowe, formerly proprietor of the Revere house, and brother of "Pat" Crowe, who was accused of kidnaping the son of Millionaire Cudahy of Omaha, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday. The liabilities are given as $5,920, while the assets are but $25. Most of the debts contracted are for supplies furnished the hotel.

RECEIVERS IN CHARGE

Take Formal Possession of All Sea Board Properties.

W. A. Garret is Named as Chief Executive Officer.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 3.—W. A. Garrett, president of the Sea Board Air Line railway, which was yesterday placed in the hands of receivers, has been appointed 'chief executive officer of the receivers," and in the general notice by the receivers today, notice is given that they have, in pursuance of court decrees, taken possession of all the properties, rights and franchisse of the Sea Board Air Line railway and its underlying, constituent or controlled companies. The notice further said:

"Until further notice, W. A. Garrett of Norfolk, Va., is appointed chief executive officer for the receivers; and, subject to his control and direction, all the other officers and employes of the Sea Board Air Line railway, its underlying, constituent and controlled companies are hereby appointed officers and employes of the receivers for the said companies.

MAY DISSOLVE RECEIVERSHIP

Plan to Restore Westinghouse Company to Stockholders.

Pittsburg, Jan. 3.—A plan was made public here today whereby the receivership for the Westinghouse Machine company may be dissolved and the business for the company restored to the stockholders. There seems no doubt but that the plan will be successful.

The arrangement contemplates, in brief, that the company shall issue three year 6 per cent notes for its existing indebtedness. These notes are to be secured by the company's bonds at 85 per cent of their face value, as collateral, and are to be in denominations of $500 or multiples thereof. Claims of less than $1,000 are to be paid in cash. On claims exceeding $1,000 the creditor will receive three-year 6 per cent notes to the amount of the nearest multiple of $500 that is not in excess of the claim, the balance being paid in cash.

A copy of the plan is being sent to each creditor urging its acceptance.

SWALLOWED HER FARE.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 3.—A young woman shopper, who attempted to board a street car with a nickel held tightly between her teeth came to grief, and incidentally was mainly responsible for the abolition, after two days' trial, of the Pittsburg Railways company's new "pay-as-you-enter-the-car" rule.

Mrs. Hattie Fearen was laden with two arms full of bundles when she hailed a car in the shopping district at noon. She carried the 5-cent fare in her mouth. When the conductor stopped her on the platform to collect her fare she endeavored tell him where to get his money and swallowed the coin.

As a result of the new rule fights and blockades were frequent. That night the company announced that the rule had been withdrawn.

THE ENTRIES WERE FALSE

Bookkeeper of California Trust Company Makes Confession.

Items Were Placed on Books to Deceive Examiners.

San Francisco, Jan. 3—Another sensational chapter was added to the California Safe Deposit & Trust company scandal, yesterday, when H. L. Storrs, one of the bookkeepers of the concern, broke down under a merciless cross-examination and confessed that the false entries in the books were in his handwriting, and had been made under orders from J. Dalsell Brown, the imprisoned manager of the bank, and J. D. Robertson, the fugitive assistant secretary.

The confession made by Storrs was complete in every respect, and established the fact that nearly $1,000,000 had been falsely added to the assets of the bank, in order to deceive the state commissioners. More than $500,000 had been fraudulently added to the Walter Bartnet and the Brown accounts alone. In order to balance the books, sums had been charged against the depositors.

POWERS JURY TELLS COURT THAT IT CANNOT AGREE ON A VERDICT

Judge Refuses to Accept Report and Sends Men Back.

Foreman Says They Are Farther From Agreement Than Ever.

Powers Has Been Found Guilty in Three Previous Trials.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 3.—A telephone message from Georgetown at 11 a. m. stated that the jury in the Powers case had reported that they could not agree. The court, however, sent the twelve men back to their room with instructions to deliberate further.

"We are further from a verdict now than ever," said Foreman Price in reporting to Judge Morris. It is not known how the jury stands.

Last Chapter of Famous Case.

Georgetown, Ky., Jan. 3.—The last chapters in one of the most tragic events in the legal history of Kentucky was completed today. Powers was indicted eight years ago for the murder of William Goebel. It has been one of the most stubbornly contested criminal trials in the history of American jurisprudence. The present trial has covered more than seven weeks with forty-six actual days of court proceedings. There have been 177 witnesses examined, seventy-six

BLUNDERING EXECUTION

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 3.—Clarence Sturgeon, 19 years old, was executed today for murdering Ira Bruner, James Blackerly and Wilfred McMichael, a year ago.

The execution was delayed and rendered extremely painful for those present by reason of a failure of the mechanism of the gallows to work properly, and a consequent delay of several minutes while the condemned man stood rigidly awaiting the end. Sturgeon was so light that he did not break his neck on the drop and was not pronounced dead for seventeen minutes.

Sturgeon was calm when he went to the scaffold. Even the last interview with his aged father and mother, and farewells to his seven brothers and two sisters failed to affect him.

OUTCASTS FED BY BANKER.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—To feed the hungry and bring comfort to the hopeless, Malcolm McDowell, now a banker, but formerly a Chicago newspaper man, stood for three hours without an overcoat in the open air at West Madison and Jefferson street. He fed every homeless person who chanced to pass along the thoroughfare, from 11 p. m. to 2 a. m. Hundreds of men and several women partook of his bounty, and then went on their way rejoicing.

He "served" from a wagon which he hired earlier in the day a cup of hot coffee and two rolls to each waif who approached him. It was his "good resolution" for 1908.

A DOZEN POISONED BY EATING CHEESE.

Wharton, Ohio, Jan. 3.—A dozen persons were seriously poisoned today by eating cheese. The families poisoned are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bell and three children; Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Crider and two children and the family of L. F. Logg. Mr. and Mrs. Bell and family are reported to be dying.

FELL OFF BRIDGE.

New York, Jan. 3.—After falling 150 feet from the Blackwells Island bridge into the East river, yesterday, Henry Smith swam ashore not seriously harmed by a fall which ordinarily would have been fatal. Smith was at work on the bridge and tumbled off one of the great beams. Turning in the air he struck the water feet foremost.

JAPS MEANT TO MURDER

The Three Firemen Whom They Attacked New Year's Day.

A Bitter Race Feeling Again Aroused at Vancouver.

CALEB POWERS,
Who Has Been Tried for the Fourth Time for the Murder of Governor William Goebel. The Present Jury Has Reported That It Cannot Agree.

Portland, Or., Jan. 3.—The Oregonian today prints the following dispatch from its Vancouver, B. C., correspondent:

While at no stage did the fight between the three city firemen and the Japanese early New Year's morning reach anything like the dimensions of the September riots, the incident has revived the bitterest feeling. After all the explanations and apologies made, both civic and governmental, Vancouver did not believe it possible that an attack such as occurred could be made. All three victims are still alive, though at least two are disfigured for life. Young Frost, a fine-looking athlete, had his nose sliced off by one of the sword-like knives of the Japanese. The other men, though fearfully injured, are recovering. McDonald was removed to his home yesterday, while Anderson is still in the hospital with Frost.

The three men, all Canadians, and for half their lives residents of Vancouver, were the only white participants in the fight. They had been attending a dance and were returning to their station when the trouble occurred. One of the three was undoubtedly under the influence of liquor, but the other two were perfectly sober. Frost jocularly pushed McDonald against the glass front of the Japanese house and then the trouble started.

Japs Tried to Kill Them.

"There were knife blades flashing everywhere in the dark," said McDonald, in telling of the fight. "It was no fault of the Japanese that we were not killed. They tried to kill us for we were only three against a score, and they knew very well that we were not armed. We simply fought back with our lists with the blood spattering around until we were blind.

"Frost was first knocked to the ground, and it was while he was helpless that the Japanese carved up his face. It was merely an accident that they did not cut off his head, for they tried hard enough. I broke free finally and ran toward the alley at the police station. There I met a sergeant and

TO SEE ECLIPSE FROM PACIFIC

Washington, Jan. 3.—In order to observe the eclipse of the sun today, which appears as a total eclipse in the tropical Pacific ocean, C. G. Abbott, director of the Astro-Physical observatory of the Smithsonian institution, has been sent to Flint Island, 400 miles northwest of Tahiti. The eclipse is to be between 11 and 12 o'clock today in that longitude which corresponds to between 4 and 5 o'clock Washington time. Mr. Abbott's observations comprise an examination with the Langley bolometer of the sun's corona, especially toward its inner part, to help decide what is the most probable cause of its luminosity. It was proposed also to observe with instruments the peculiarities of sky light before the day of the eclipse so that even if clouds should obscure the eclipse, there would still be something of value brought back from the trip.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Union Man Tells What the Unions Have Accomplished.

To The Editor of The Herald:

The present industrial unpleasantness existing between the Structural alliance and the Builders' exchange is but the natural and inevitable outcome of the class struggle between labor an capital, and must be considered from but two positions, that of capital and that of labor, for in this struggle there is no neutral ground.

Since a man's economic views are prompted by his economic position, we as wageworkers draw our conclusions from the standpoint of labor.

To resist the encroachments of corporate greed, it became necessary for labor to organize. While the unions may not be perfect in each and every detail, yet the unprejudiced observer will at once recognize the following as some of the results of the progressive influence of organized labor: A higher state of efficiency, the public thereby receiving a direct benefit. In our craft, the plumbers, through organization, prevent an unscrupulous employer from sending out a "handy man" whose unsanitary work may result in bringing disease and possibly death to the home of the unsuspecting customer. The shorter work day is also a point that was not secured through the gracious benevolence of the capitalistic or employing class. The shorter work day allows labor more time for mental and social betterment, in that way inuring to the benefit of society in general by a higher citizenship. It is also true that his services during an eight-hour day will be of a higher and more satisfactory order than if worked to the limit of a ten, twelve or possible fourteen-hour day.

A. M. Simons, a Socialist, writing in "Class Struggles in America," states as some of the results of the labor movement as follows: "It demanded universal suffrage, abolition of capital punishment and imprisonment for debt, reform of the existing militia system, election of members of the legislature by districts, exemption of a minimum of property from execution for debt, simplification of legal procedure, establishment of a mechanics' lien law and perhaps the most important of all, 'the extension of public education.' Mass meetings of workers in New York, Boston and Philadelphia placed general education as foremost among the demands of the working class."

Again, in referring to the early labor movement, he says: "Every platform of the workingman's political parties of that time contained a demand for the formation of a public school system, and it is as certain as a casual relation ever can be, that to this early labor movement more than to any other one cause we owe the great educational revival of the '20s and our common school system of today. It is to these early working class rebels that we owe to a larger degree than to any other cause, not only our public school system, but abolition of imprisonment for debt, the mechanics' lien law, freedom of association, universal suffrage, improvement in prison administration, direct election of presidential electors, and in fact nearly everything of a democratic nature in our social and political institutions."

You of the unearned increment idea, the real estate speculator, upon what grounds do you base your right to dictate to labor? Is it not upon the prosperity of labor that you depend? Those deals you profit by are each and all paid by the product of labor—are in their last analysis paid by those who toil. The above applies to bills of each and every kind and nature. Now, erring brothers, we entertain no ill-will towards you as individuals in this struggle; far from it, for the interests of your class designate you as but a spoke in the wheel of society under which we now live and which we know as capitalism.

Labor and capital are now working out, unconsciously though perfectly, the reallization of the co-operative commonwealth as the next order of society.

A PLUMBER.

Duluth, Jan. 2.

DREAM WORTH TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Paris, Jan. 3.—A case of a dream being worth $20,000 has just come to light at 6 Rue Trugent, Toulon, in which town lives a commercial traveler named Edouard Cholet. Twelve months ago M. Cholet was advised by the office of the local treasurer general that the city of Paris debenture bond which he held had come out at the drawing at par ($500). Thereupon M. Cholet surrendered his bond for its face value. Late Tuesday night his wife dreamed that the bond which her husband had held, No. 348,764, had really drawn $20,000.

She urged her husband to make immediate inquiries, and M. Cholet, though very skeptical, went to the treasurer general's office, where, on search being made, it was discovered that a mistake had been made, and that the bond supposed to have been drawn at par had in reality been drawn for $20,000.

PREPARING BILL

To Change Boundary of the Minnesota Forest Reserve.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Officials of the forestry bureau are preparing a bill to change the boundary of the government forest reserve in Northern Minnesota. This bill will be in accordance with an agreement entered into between the people of Cass Lake and Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry, whereby something like 50,000 acres of land, now included in the forestry reserve will be thrown open to agricultural settlers.

The exact boundaries of the new forest reserve have not yet been finally determined upon. The land thrown open will probably be east and north of Cass Lake and take in the stations of Cuba and Schley. Senator Clerk will introduce the bill soon after congress convenes.

RAILROAD TEMPERANCE.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 3.—Probably the largest temperance movement any one business concern has ever known, culculminated Wednesday on the Northwestern railroad, when a temperance pledge signed by 25,000 employes became effective. An effort is being made to have every employe sign. The movement originated among the employes themselves.

Three months ago, when the Northwestern began cutting its force to a winter basis, every man discharged was a drinking man, the teetotalers being retained in their positions. It was announced that the road had inaugurated a policy of always retaining the non-drinking men.

As a result, the drinking men who remained with the road have decided to quit, and during the last month pledges have circulated all over the 7,000 miles of the system.

The monster pledge will be sent to the president of the road as soon as all the parts are assembled.

MARRIES CHORUS GIRL.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The Inter-Ocean says: Another Pittsburg millionaire steel king is reported to have followed the example of William E. Corey and to have married a chorus girl.

Word was received from New York last night that William Laughlin, of a rich Pittsburg family, was secretly married to Frankie Douglas, a New York girl, and that they were in Chicago on their honeymoon. The couple were apparently located at the Stratford hotel Wednesday night. Inquiry of the clerk there resulted in the statement that Mr. and Mrs. Laughlin had been guests of the hotel the past few days, but had left during the day for Montreal.

The clerk who gave the first information said that Mr. and Mrs. Laughlin had been accompanied by a nephew of the young millionaire by the name of Sullivan.

Further efforts to secure information about the young couple were suddenly blocked. Mystery seemed to surround their movements from the time that they came to the time that they left.

SENATOR FA FOLLETTE

Washington, Jan. 3.—Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin made a decided impression at the New Year's reception at the White House. He was pointed out by everyone who knew him to everyone who did not. He brought his wife and children with him, and there were some smiles at the charming democracy of the Wisconsin senator when his party of seven—four adults and three children—emerged from one carriage on the White House portico. They were all most cordially received by President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

"Little Boo" is not as well known in the official society of Washington as he might be. The former governor, who was such a great power in Wisconsin politics, has effaced himself almost completely since he has been in Washington. He was snubbed by the senate, as all new senators are, and was given an extremely unimportant committee when here last year. He took an apartment a long distance from the center of things, and there has never been any attempt on the part of the Badger candidate for the presidency to put himself into the limelight, either officially or socially.

NOT FOR VACATION USE.

Youth's Companion: It seemed to Bobby that there was no end to the advice and instructions his mother gave him when he was starting off with his father for a week's trip.

"Now I want to be sure you have everything you need," she said, opening his bag in spite of his assurances that it held all a boy could possibly require. "Why, Bobby, where is your hairbrush? You were forgetting it!"

"No mother, I wasn't forgetting it," said Bobby, looking desperate. "I thought you said I was going on a vacation."

FARMERS CELEBRATE

People of Meadowlands Have Real Old Fashioned Christmas.

Bard of Meadowlands Wakes Up to the Occasion.

The farmers in the town of Meadowlands, on the Bovey branch of the Missabe road, west of Alborn, never do things by the half. They have just celebrated the Christmas season in a good old-fashioned way that should bring a feeling of envy to every other agricultural community in the county.

The celebration this year is a pretty good indication of the growth in population during the past year in that lively little agricultural community. A year ago there were only two Christmas trees in the township, and these in private families. This last Christmas there were eight trees in private families, besides two big public entertainments with Christmas trees.

The fact that two of the men who attended one of the entertainments walked ten miles through a driving snowstorm to be present well illustrates the interest that the people who are settling up the township show in meetings or festivities that are arranged for their benefit.

A Christmas tree entertainment was given at the schoolhouse in Meadowlands Christmas eve at 8 o'clock. There was a packed house, and the program rendered by some of the twenty-two pupils attending the school was very much appreciated. Santa Claus, for some reason, missed connections, being busy in other places, so, after the program, the curtain was drawn from before the tree and the presents were distributed by the teacher, Miss Sarah Utter, and her assistants.

At 7 o'clock Christmas night eighty-seven guests, all from the town of Meadowlands, gathered at the Christmas tree entertainment given by Miss Harriet Arnold at Whiteface lodge, on the Whiteface river.

Miss Hazel Tidd read the following poem to Santa Claus, composed for the occasion by E. C. Speece, the "Bard of Meadowlands:"

"Dear Kris Kringle, God of Christmas,
In the lodge along the Whiteface,
On the gently winding Whiteface,
In the land of goodly meadows,
Many hearts are waiting for you.

"We have come from all directions
To the land of Minnesota,
Where the fierce and warlike Huron
Fought and scalped the wild Dakotah.

"But the warwhoop of the savage
Will be heard again no more,
And the time and things that fit him
Have been banisher from our shore.

"And the hum and whir and bustle
Of a safer, better way,
Takes the place of old conditions,
Looking toward a brighter day.

"Santa Claus, thou Prince of Christmas,
While we wait here, don't forget us;
Don't forget our Great Chief Johnson,
Don't forget our Chief of Nation,
Don't forget the poor and needy,
Don't forget the widows, orphans,
Homeless, hungry, sick and poor.

"Don't forget the one that planned this Feast and tree and joy galore;
Don't forget to visit on her,
And shower blessings round her,
Fill her heart to running o'er.

"May we plan so in the future,
And the proper thing to search,
That when Christmas comes next winter
We will meet you and will greet you
In our splendid, grand new church."

After the poem there was a ringing of sleighbells, and downstairs came Santa Calus, with his pack filled with candy and attended by a lively little colored assistant. Everybody received candy and presents.

As soon as the last string of popcorn had encircled some happy child's neck, refreshments were served and Santa Claus and the guests dispersed.

The sweetmeats and fruits for Miss Aruold's Christmas tree were contributed by friends, including some twenty large candy canes from Mrs. A. M. Marshall of Duluth.

MANY TEACHERS ARE ATTENDING

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 3.—The attendance at the annual meeting being held here of the North Dakota Educational association is large, about 500 being present, and it is one of the best attended in the history of the organization. The program is an unusually good one and interest in the proceedings is keen. The session will end this evening. Many noted educators of the country are in attendance. Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston delivered a memorable address on "Developing Personality."

At the session of the department of elementary education, the language problem was discussed at length. Miss Mary Wambheim of Hatton, Miss Honora Sutton of Fargo, Miss Anna McLean of Devils Lake, G. R. Davies of Amenia, and Miss Francis Merrill of Jamestown participated.

President Vittum of Fargo college, President Earl Burch of the State School of Science, Prof. J. G. Holland of the agricultural college, and Prof. Charles Andrews of the Valley City Normal school, participated in the program of the higher education department.

There is a lively fight promised over an amendment to the constitution which will permit the association to choose any city in the state considered to have the facilities for the annual meetings. The constitution at present provides that the meetings shall alternate between Grand Forks and Fargo. Notice of an amendment to the constitution was given a year ago and President George A. McFarland of the Valley City Normal school gave notice that he would call the matter up for a vote today.

MAJOR RETIRED

Because He Was Unable to Ride Horse in Recent Test.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Maj. Joseph T. Crabbs of the quartermaster's department was placed on the retired list of the army yesterday on account of disabilities incurred in the line of duty. While stationed at the military academy at West Point, several years ago, Maj. Crabbs was thrown from his horse and fractured his leg. The accident made him a partial cripple, and he was disqualified at the recent riding test at Fort Meyers. He has the distinction of being the first officer to be retired as a result of President Roosevelt's horsemanship requirements.

AGAIN EXAMINED.

Mrs. Hull Sticks to Second Story of Identification of Body.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 3.—Mrs. Hattie Hull of New York, whose alleged identifications have exasperated and mystified the police, returned within the jurisdiction of New Jersey courts and last night for four hours was under examination by Recorder Branegan and the coroner. Mrs. Hull stuck to her last identification in which she claimed to recognize the body as that of her sister, Minnie Jeannette Gaston of Servilla, Tenn.

Mrs. Hull first identified the body as that of a Manhattan woman, who subsequently was found to be alive. When confronted with that Mrs. Hull dramatically declared that she had recognized her own sister in the dead woman, but rather than that the memory of Minnie should be sullied by a scandal, she had deliberately deceived the police. The latter were so disgusted that they told Mrs. Hull to leave the state. On further consideration, however, they concluded there might be something in Mrs. Hull's second story and she was induced to return to Harrison last night. She will be further examined.

Millinery at HALF!

The phrase of the hour—Half, Half, Half—everything is sold at Half Price. The question is, whether or not the prices formerly charged for these so-called "Half Price" goods were so exorbitantly high that the present "Half Price" Sale is just about the proper figure, so the values are not so great after all.

The Millinery Half Price Sale

at the Consignment is different, however. Our prices on Millinery throughout the season were just and within reason, so that when we say HALF PRICE—it means that you get Hats worth twice the price we ask—for instance:

$3.00 HATS—NOW.....$1.50
$4.00 HATS—NOW.....$2.00
$5.00 HATS—NOW.....$2.50
$6.00 HATS—NOW.....$3.00
$6.50 HATS—NOW.....$3.25
$7.00 HATS—NOW.....$3.50
$8.00 HATS—NOW.....$4.00
$9.00 HATS—NOW.....$4.50
$10.00 HATS—NOW.....$5.00

Price tickets remain on Hats the same as before. Pick any Hat you want and pay JUST HALF.

GRAND JURY HAS REPORT

Two Men Are Indicted and Two Men Are Freed.

Not Enough Evidence to Warrant Prosecution of Metralovich.

The grand jury made its final report this noon to Judge Cant. Two indictments were returned. No true bills were found against two persons held in custody, Joseph Bennock and Eli Metralovich, and they were discharged.

Bannock was held to the grand jury on the charge of grand larceny. He was formerly employed by a local express company and was alleged to have appropriated $85 of the company's funds. Metralovich was held to the grand jury on the charge of shooting and killing a fellow countryman in a boarding house near the Adams mine at Eveleth a few weeks ago. There was practically no evidence to show that Metralovich made any assault on the deceased and the grand jury decided to let him go.

James Gordon Bell was indicted for forgery in the second degree. Bell is one of the young men who recently passed some bogus checks on a Bowery dealer.

Philip Whiterock, the young man who, it is claimed, attempted to victimize the Oak Hall Clothing company with a bogus check, given for some clothing, was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree.

TWO APPLICANTS GET DIVORCES

Statutory Provision Permits Wife to Gain Her Freedom.

Mabel Stewart was this morning granted a legal separation from Robert Stewart by reason of a provision of statute, her husband being an inmate of the state reformatory at St. Cloud. They were married at Virginia in 1905. In 1906 Stewart, in a fit of jealousy, attempted to kill his wife. He fired two shots at her, wounding her in the face and the breast. He pleaded guilty to an assault charge, and was sent to the reformatory. They have one child, about 2 years old.

In the divorce case of Rylander against Rylander, the court this morning granted the husband a decree on the ground that his wife is an inmate of a house of bad repute. Rylander, who formerly ran a saloon on the range, sold out last fall and went to Goldfield, Nev., for six weeks. On his return he found that his wife had deserted his home and entered a house of ill repute. Several witnesses testified that they saw in her such a place.

PLAN COAST RANGE.

War Department Will Attempt to Provide for Sailors.

An official notice sent out by the war department states that arrangements are being perfected for the securing of a rifle range on the Pacific coast, as the order states that the president believes that the sailors should keep up their rifle and big gun practice, no matter where they are.

This applies more directly to the fleet that recently left for the cruise of the Pacific.

The notice contains the information that the Rancho Del Encinal, in Chispo county, Cal., will probably be purchased by the government for use as a rifle range, a bill to that effect having been introduced at the present session of congress. The bill authorizes the expenditure of $500,000 for the desired range.

Sufficient space will be available for 1,000 yards target ranges, for big gun and rifle practice. The range will also be fitted with landing docks, which will give the troops the advantage of embarking and disembarking and joint naval and military drill.

The president heartily supports the plan, says the notice.

CIRCULAR ON DIPHTHERIA.

Health Department Issues New Rules for Regulation of Families.

A revised set of regulations for people under diphtheria quarantine has been issued from the health department, and it shows some changes in the regulations. The new set contains five paragraphs, instead of six, as in the former, the paragraph relative to fumigation and care following recovery being omitted, as having no bearing on the actions of members of the family.

Rule II is made to read: "All persons are forbidden to leave the premises bearing a diphtheria placard, unless the patient is kept all the time in a room away from other members of the family, and then only after such arrangement has been approved by the health department." The last clause was added by the health department to make sure that such arrangements, as made under the rule, would be sufficient.

In the circular, the health department agrees to furnish physicians with the means of a test for diphtheria and advises tests for everybody afflicted with any form of sore throat.

STORK BUSY IN NEW YORK.

New York, Jan. 3.—The stork made 125,126 visits in New York city during 1907, according to statistics prepared by the commissioner of health. This is an increase of 13,354 over the previous year, when 111,772 births were reported. The new figures give New York a higher birth rate than London, and a lead of more than 40 per cent over Paris.

SOCIETY WOMAN TAKES TOO MUCH STRYCHNINE.

New York, Jan. 3.—That Mrs. John Van Ness Roberts, well known in New York society, is dying of an overdose of strychnine, self administered, was reported to the office of Coroner Acritelli today. The coroner went to Mrs. Roberts' apartments at 227 Riverside drive and found two physicians attending her, but she was unconscious and believed to be dying. Whether the overdose was taken with intent to commit suicide, the doctors could not say. It was reported that Mrs. Roberts had suffered from financial losses.

JACOB PULASKI DEAD.

His Case Was a Puzzler for Local Physicians.

Jacob Pulaski, for the past fifteen years employed as pressman by the printing firm of J. J. LeTourneau & Co., and considered one of the best men in his line in this part of the country, died yesterday at St. Mary's hospital, after an illness of several weeks. Pulaski's complaint puzzled local physicians, and if the consent of relatives can be secured, a post-mortem examination will probably be made to ascertain the exact cause of death.

Mr. Pulaski was in good health up to a few weeks ago, when he was obliged to lay off on account of illness. He seemingly recovered and returned to his work, only to be obliged to give it up again a few days ago, when he went to St. Mary's hospital. There he died.

Mr. Pulaski was unmarried, but he leaves several brothers and other relatives here. He was the owner of the large, square, white house on the hilltop above Fifth avenue west, and which can be seen from almost any part of the city. He is mourned by a large circle of friends.

The funeral will take place Monday.

WITNESS WAS DRUNK

Failed to Appear When Assault Case Was Called.

Both He and Prisoner Are Fined by Judge Flack.

Both the accused, John Sullivan, proprietor of the Phillips hotel, and his accuser, Joseph Kingsland, once well known as a hanger-on in West Duluth barrooms, but of late a stranger, were arraigned before Judge Flack of the justice court this morning on the charges of assault and drunkenness, respectively, and were each handed a $10 fine by his honor. In Kingsland's case, he being unable to pay, the fine took the form of a term of fourteen days on the rock pile.

It seems that New Years' morning, Joe walked into the Phillips' bar and had a drink on his nerve, having no money about his person. It worked so easily that he decided to take his New Year's dinner also on the house. But here the proprietor, in the bulky form of John Sullivan, interfered, and according to Kingsland's tale, treated him all too roughly while putting him out, to which the victim's blackened eye and cut up face plainly bear witness. When he found himself out in the street, Kingsland made his way to the police station, where he filed a complaint of assault against his forceful ejector. But yesterday afternoon when Sullivan appeared before the court, there was no one to prosecute him, and he pleaded not guilty. Judge Flack sent an officer out to look up Kingsland, who was found in a very intoxicated condition in one of the saloons along Central avenue.

Kingsland was put in a cell at the station house to sober up over night and this morning he and Sullivan were arraigned before the justice. Sullivan was found guilty and fined $10 which he paid, and was released.

Kingsland, when question as to where he obtained all his money for drinks, for he had been drinking all the day before and still had money when arrested, although on New Year's day he was flat broke, admitted it had been given him with the understanding that he was not to appear at court against Sullivan, but he refused to remember who it was that gave it to him. As no case of contempt of court could be proven he was fined $10, failing to pay which, he was taken to the county jail, where he will have fourteen days of hard labor.

No Relatives Here.

Alexander Radzezewski, who, a few days ago, was complained of to the authorities, by his neighbors, as showing signs of insanity, was found insane in an examination, held yesterday before Judge Middlecoff of the probate court, and will be committed to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls.

Radzezewski has no relatives in West Duluth, and only came there five months ago to work on the docks. Only a little over a week ago he began to act strangely, said he wanted to give what little money he had to the church, made mystifying remarks about some murder that he seemed to think himself complicated in, and alluded to robberies as if he had had a hand in them. The man's condition of mind, his friends claim, is due to a combination of money troubles, disappointed love and cigarettes.

A HEARING THIS MONTH

The Interstate Commerce Commission Will Take Up Duluth Complaint.

Jan. 13 Date for Hearing on Free Storage Matter.

The complaint of the Duluth Commercial club against the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Omaha roads, based on the free storage facilities granted Twin City jobbers in local railroad warehouses, will be heard before John H. Marble, a member of the commission, Jan. 13, in Duluth.

The date for the hearing was first set for last month, and Duluth was selected at the place, but later the place for holding the hearing was changed to St. Paul. Local business men objected to the change, and their request, through the Commercial club, that the hearing be in Duluth, even if the date had to be changed, was granted.

Duluth asked for the hearing, in an attempt to remedy the injustice that is being done the local wholesalers and jobbers by the railroads named in granting local free storage facilities and other special privileges to Twin City business houses. The three lines have made it their custom to make no storage charge on goods consigned from eastern points through to Minneapolis and St. Paul, holding such goods here until spring, if desired, and then forwarding them on to the Twin Cities, or to any other point designated by the Twin City interests, without extra charge in the way of switching, handling, etc., where Duluth firms have to maintain their own warehouses, pay taxes, etc., and stand the expense of switching and drayage charges between their warehouse and the railroads, putting Duluth jobbers and wholesalers at a disadvantage in competing with the Twin City interests.

POULTRY IS VERY HIGH

Chickens Are Up in Value —Strawberries Are Here.

Poultry of all kinds is flying mighty high.

The scarcity of fowl has been the most enlivening thing that has happened on commission row this week. Otherwise, the market has been pursuing the even tenor of its way, although a holiday broke up the week somewhat, causing a stiff demand for some things Monday and Tuesday and a calm quiet the rest of the week.

The New Year's demand sent the price of turkey sky-high, and many people who were anxious to buy the birds were unable to get the quantities they desired, even at the best prices.

The passing of Christmas found the poultry market with stocks sadly depleted, and receipts continued very light. The result was that when the demand for New Year's consumption began, the market was practically destitute of turkeys.

Prices soared to 18 cents a pound, and more than one anxious buyer was scurrying madly about commission row, seeking some birds at that price, even willing to pay more if he could get them. Some people did pay more than 18 cents, but that figure was market price, and still is. For there are no more birds to be had now than the first of the week.

The demand for chickens has been very fine too, and receipts very light. Prices have advanced from 10c to 12c for springs and hens, to 12c to 14c a pound.

Not only Duluth, but the Twin Cities and Chicago, have felt the effect of the shortage in the poultry supply. Those cities were paying as much for foul this week as local dealers.

* * *

Strawberries, fresh from Florida, are in the market now. They may be had on Michigan street for 65c a quart, which is considered a low price for this seasonn of the year.

If you wish to get into the strawberry shortcake game early, you can do so if you like, or if you can afford it

* * *

The orange market, which has been easy for the past two or three weeks, is a little firmer now. Receipts are keeping up on the same basis, and the market is expected to remain about unchanged. The firmer feeling is caused by a slight curtailment of packing in California because of previous large shipments.

California navel oranges are now quoted at $3 to $3.25, instead of $2.75 to $3.25. Florida oranges are unchanged.

* * *

The butter market has been a little firmer during the week. Receipts are rather light. The same may be said of eggs.

* * *

The market in nearly all lines is rather light now. The demand is not great, but receipts, on the other hand, are not heavy, so that prices are being maintained on the same level.

OLD TIMERS LINE UP.

They Are Planning to Beat the Younger Curlers.

The old-timers of the Duluth Curling club are waiting impatiently for Saturday afternoon and evening, when they will line up against rinks composed of the "kids" in the club. Near the close of last season, the "kids" beat the "hasbeens" and the old-timers are planning to turn the tables this time. The line-up of the kids' rinks can be found on the sporting page. The old-timers announced their line-up late this afternoon, as follows:

WOMAN'S DREAM

That Salesman Was Dead, Followed by Letter From Him.

Marion, Ohio, Jan. 3.—After he had been given up by his friends David Grove, a salesman, who mysteriously disappeared four years ago, has been located in California. He was believed to have met with foul play.

Yesterday, Mrs. J. B. Gunder told her husband, Grove's former employer, that she had a dream the salesman was dead. A few minutes later a postman left a letter written from California by Grove. He asked for information regarding certain friends, but the persons he named are dead.

CONSUMPTION

Coughs, colds and grippe are now prevailing generally, and, because treatment is delayed, frequently develop consumption and cause death.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup

is the very best cure for colds and coughs as so many of the sufferers who might have gone to an early grave gratefully acknowledge. Consumption can be prevented by taking Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in time.

Trial Bottle Free.

We have absolute confidence in Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and to convince you that it will cure, we will send a trial bottle free to all who will write us and mention this paper. A. C. Meyer & Co., Baltimore, Md.

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup can be given with perfect safety to the youngest child. It is absolutely pure. Guaranteed under the National Pure Food and Drugs Act; serial No. 226.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The first of the course of lectures for the third year of Browning study by that department of the Twentieth Century club was held this morning, at the club room of the library, with Rev. John Walker Powell, Jr., again the lecturer. Nearly one hundred of the club members were present for the meeting, and listened with intense interest to the lecturer. "Sordello" was the subject of this morning's study. Mr. Powell prefaced his discussion of the poem with a short comment on its difficulties, and the criticisms heaped upon it.

"Sordello," said Mr. Powell, "is the bete noir of the Browning student. It is the poem about which there has been made the most newspaper jokes, and in truth its difficulties have not been much exaggerated. It is the most obscure, and most Browningesque of the poet's work. And there was reason for it, in part. It was published in 1840, after 'Paracelsus,' which the critics could make nothing of. It was diffuse, they said. It was metaphysical, it was not poetry; it would not do at all. In 'Sordello,' Browning made answer to them, and by that answer he has been puzzling his readers ever since. The critics said 'Paracelsus' was diffuse. 'Sordello' is condensed without a doubt. It is so condensed that the signs of infinitives and antecedents of relative pronouns are omitted. There is a compactness of style that many find too compact. In the poem the author expands illustration until you forget the original thought. From the richness and luxuriousness of Browning's imagination is poured forth a beauty of imagery that confuses us. Then, too, 'Sordello' deals with an almost forgotten period of history, the dawn of the Renaissance. Browning was so familiar with that time of the world's history himself that he takes it for granted that his reader may be. Then, too, his psychological method is not one to promote clearness. He deals with the development of a soul, and episodes and facts which other writers will take ten pages to relate he tells in an epithet, in a few phrases or sentences. And yet, with all its difficulties, 'Sordello' is a mine of rare worth. There are passages that cannot be excelled in English poetry. It is a masterly delineation of a period in history and episodes, and incidents of that period, that is of marvelous interest. It is in spite of its defects a great poem."

Mr. Powell told the story of the poem at length. The next lecture in the course will be given Friday morning of next week.

Costume Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ketcham entertained at a costume party last evening at his home in St. Elmo flats. A most delightful evening was enjoyed. Among the guests were a lively Teddy bear, a bashfully awkward Sis Hopkins and a silent Indian Maid. Those present were:

Misses—
Cora Hendricks, Charity Jones,
Lelia Sparks, Helen Majo,
Florence Winchester, Dale Montgomery.

Messrs.—
Robert Johnson, Earl White,
Philip Holgate, Frank Falk.
Putman,

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

At the meeting of the W. C. T. U., which was held last evening at the home of Mrs. Alfred Merritt of 2105 East Second street, an interesting talk on "Manual Training in Schools" was given by W. H. Lippold. Miss Effie Brotherton gave two readings that were heard with pleasure, and Miss Jessie Merritt sang. An informal social hour followed the program.

ST. PAUL WEDDING.

Event of Interest to Many Duluth People.

The following society notice of Miss Boardman to Neville Craig Davison from the St. Paul Dispatch of yesterday, will be of much interest to local society as the bride is well known here:

"Miss Jessie Rice Boardman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Boardman, and Neville Craig Davison of Pittsburg, were married last evening at the House of Hope church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Henry C. Swearingen, pastor of the church.

"Palms, wreaths and scarlet bells were used for the appointments of the church, making a very artistic and handsome decoration.

"The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Frances Boardman, as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Rosina Boardman of New York; Miss Leslie Mitchell and Miss Eleanor Mitchell of St. Cloud, and Miss Margaret Routh and Miss McKibbin of St. Paul. Robert Reed of Pittsburg acted as Mr. Davison's best man, and the ushers were: Winthrop Noyes, Marshall Coxe, Julian Kirby and Edward Young of St. Paul; Worthington Telford of Duluth, and Cyrus Brown of Minneapolis.

"The bride wore an empire gown of ivory satin, trimmed with duchesse lace. Her veil, which was of tulle, was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried lilies of the valley.

"Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of Mrs. Charles P. Noyes of Virginia avenue. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reed of Pittsburg and Mr. and Mrs. George Barnum and George Barnum, Jr., of Duluth.

"Mr. and Mrs. Davison left last evening for a wedding trip, and after their return, which will be Feb. 1, will be at home at 4614 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg.

For Miss Welch.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cotton were hosts last evening at an informal evening at cards in compliment to Miss Welch of Brooklyn. Bridge was played at four tables and the favors were won by Miss Elizabeth Morris and Miss Annie White and Paul Welch. The guest favor was presented to Miss Welch. The guests were:

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Hubbell.

Misses—
Hubbell, Richardson,
White, Effie Smith,
D'Autremont, Elizabeth Morris.

Messrs.—
Welch of Brooklyn, Paul Hale,
Paul Welch of Brooklyn, A. W. Taussig,
Andresen, Spencer,
Ned Congdon.

Saturday Club.

The Saturday club will resume its meetings after two weeks' vacation tomorrow afternoon, the meeting to be held as usual at the club room of the library. "Irrigation" will be the subject considered for the current events' half hour, with Miss Julia M. Barnes as leader. The leader for the regular study of Italian literature will be Mrs. W. A. Kaake and the outline is as follows:

Pietro Bembo, 1470-1547—Favorite of Leo X. Admirer of Lucretia Borgia; not original but attained perfection in style. Poem, Asolani. History of 1487-1513. Miss Mayme Davis.

Benvenuto Cellini—1501-1571. Wrote an autobiography giving a vivid delineation of the sixteenth century. Mrs. W. D. Williams.

Guicciardini, historian, sent on a mission. Ferdinand of Spain, given service by Leo X. Miss Ethelyn Abbott.

Class Reunion.

The class of 1907 of the Duluth high school enjoyed an informal reunion last evening at Steinway hall. A banquet was served early in the evening and the decorations on the table were the class colors, maroon and gold. An informal dancing party followed the spread and a few guests were entertained. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Warner and Mrs. N. F. Hugo and eighty guests were present.

Evening Lecture.

The evening department of the Twentieth Century club, of which Mrs. L. A. Larsen is chairman, has arranged a lecture to be given Monday evening, Jan. 10. The speaker for the evening will be Prof. Herbert Blair of the normal school, and his subject will be "A Pedestrian Tour Through Germany." Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Trinity Social.

The members of the Trinity Social chapter of the pro-cathedral have issued invitations for the second of a series of socials to be given during the winter. This second affair will be a dime social and will be held at Trinity Guild hall Wednesday evening of next week.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Carey have returned to their home at Minneapolis, after spending the holidays with Mrs. Harriet L. Carey of London road.

* * *

Mrs. J. Lindsay Smith, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Edward Hazen, returned today to her home at Minneapolis.

Taste is a queer thing. Everybody has so much of it, but for the queerest of all tastes you are commended to the half-grown boy. A person in his senses would never begin to even try to explain the whys and wherefors of people's taste. There are people who really like "The Holy City" on a talking machine. But to return to half-grown boys. The distracted mother, who will see her cherished son turn from a tempting dinner of roasted turkey and dressing, and rich brown gravy and creamy mashed potatoes and cranberry sauce, and other finishing touches, to regale himself on large, round, pale-colored buns, between which repose four or five "weenies"—who can blame her if she thinks a changling has been left on her hands. This is not a taste of what might be called the lower classes. It crops out in the best families, and to hear the tone of pleading with which the son and heir implores, "Could we have weenies!" only emphasizes the statement with which this harangue or homily or whatever was begun—taste is a queer thing.

BACHELOR WHO DIED

Paris, Ky., Jan. 3.—By the terms of his will, John H. Hamilton, a prominent farmer of Bourbon county, who died at his home near Millersburg, leaves his entire fortune to the education of poor girls between the ages of 12 and 20 years, in that county.

Hamilton was a bachelor and lived alone on a fine blue-grass farm. He died in the same room in which he was born sixty-four years ago.

Hamilton's estate will approximate $40,000, and is the most liberal local benefaction since the death of William Garth, who was drowned in Lake Michigan in 1859. Garth's estate was used in the education of poor young men of Bourbon county. Hamilton had often contributed from his purse to help poor girls secure an education. The fund will be known as the Hamilton educational fund for young women.

MAY MARRY MME. GOULD

Helie de Sagan, in the Rue de Chateau. The two men are cousins. Count Boni was recently divorced by his wife, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York, and Prince Helie is credited with having been attentive to Mme. Gould.

Count Boni is quoted as declaring his cousin to be outside the pale of society, and he reiterates the statement made yesterday that it would be impossible for Prince Helie to procure acceptable seconds, even if he desired to challenge to a duel.

Prince Helie de Sagan, when seen by the Associated Press at noon today, was propped up in bed smoking cigarettes. He declared that after conferring with his fencing master and other friends, he saw no reason to change his decision not to send a challenge.

"If Boni had struck me in the face with his glove, I would fight him," sai dthe prince. "By attacking me with his brother, two against one, and striking me when I was down, he has placed himself outside the laws regulating affairs of honor. Moreover, I have decided upon the advice of my attorney, should the public prosecutor not act in the matter, to bring a charge of criminal assault, coupled with a demand for one franc damages, in order to be able to prove the deliberate character of the attack."

Intimates He May Marry.

Asked about the report published in Le Journal that his engagement to Mme. Anna Gould would be announced in a few days and that the marriage would follow in Germany, Prince Helie replied that the public had been satisfied by the denial of Mme. Gould and himself. As Mme. Gould's divorce only becomes definite at the end of three months, any marriage now is impossible, the prince said, and it was hardly likely in any event that Mme. Gould would marry before a year had elapsed. Then, after a pause, the prince added, smiling: "At the end of that time I do not know what may happen."

Continuing, Prince Helie spoke frankly of the friendship that had existed between himself and the Count and Countess de Castellane, and his frequent visits to their residence. The two men were great friends, Prince Helie having organized the famous Cary fete, with which the count and his bride made their bow to Paris society. This fete cost a fabulous sum, and was the talk of Paris for months.

Count Boni is ten years younger than Prince Helie and considerably smaller in stature. Both men are good sportsmen.

AGED COUPLE MARRIED AFTER 40 YEARS' WAITING.

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 3.—Jeremiah O'Meara, 70 years old, and Helen Naughton, 65, were married here yesterday afternoon after a wait of forty years. They were sweethearts when the Civil war broke out and O'Meara enlisted. It was only a short time ago that they found each other after forty years' waiting.

PLAN RESCUE WORK HERE

International Uplift Society May Enter Local Charitable Field.

Frank M. Darst, secretary of the Minnesota branch of the International Uplift society, a society organized under the state laws, with a capital of $50,000, and which has to do with rescue work among inebriates and persons addicted to the use of drugs, reached the city this morning with the object of starting a branch of the society here.

When seen at the Lenox this morning Mr. Darst said that he was arranging with Congressman Frank M. Eddy for a series of lectures in connection with the work of the society, and that plans would immediately be started for the organization of a branch of the society in this city.

The work of the society has been highly successful in Minneapolis, where the Minnesota branch has its main office. The officers of the society go into the police courts and receive permission to care for men and women whom the police, as pursuing the only course open to them, would be compelled to send to jail. They care for these people, lending them money and securing them work after their course of treatment. The idea of the work is to cure cases of drunkenness and addiction to drugs that are not absolutely hopeless.

The work of the society is national in its scope, as its name indicates. They have branches in almost all of the principal cities, working under the state laws. Mr. Darst will attempt to secure the co-operation of the ministers of Duluth. The society is nonsectarian and attempts to interest all ministers irrespective of creed.

A branch office will be started in Winnipeg in the near future. The Minneapolis office is attempting to branch out and cover the state as thoroughly as some of the more thickly populated states are covered by the society workers. Mr. Darst will be in the city several days in the interest of the society. He is a former newspaper man, working on papers in Chicago, Washington and Minneapolis before taking up the uplift work. He served as a lieutenant with a Southern regiment during the Spanish war, being wounded during one of the engagements.

¼ and ⅓ OFF High-Grade FURS!

"Half-price on Furs" isn't always so attractive as it sounds—after you've investigated. The point is—What were the original prices? To those who've made a study of the situation 'tis well known that our prices on furs of equal quality are always 20 to 30 per cent lower than others' hereabouts. And so these reductions of ¼ to 1-3 off on our stock of fine furs are really giving you better values than the questionable "half-price" offerings of some houses.

Extra Special!
Tomorrow morning we continue to offer a magnificent assortment of Scarfs, Stocks and Ties, in fox, natural and blended squirrel, opossum, brook mink, etc., choice shapes and styles in beautifully matched skins — very stylish and effective — former prices up to $7.75—choice

THE WEST END CLOTHIER

Is still attracting crowds of customers. We do not believe there has ever been a sale in Duluth, in a store of our size, where as much goods was sold in nine days as we sold from the beginning of our sale, Dec. 14th to Christmas Eve. This goes to prove that it pays for a merchant to live up to his advertisements and also that the people have been given

A Rare Treat in Bargains

Our stock has been greatly reduced, but we still have thousands of dollars' worth of Men's and Boys' Suits and Overcoats, Children's Clothing, Hats, Caps, Gloves, Mittens, Underwear, Hosiery, Lumbermen's Supplies, Men's, Ladies' and Children's Shoes and Rubber Goods to choose from, and remember that every article in the store is to be closed out at and below cost. Nothing reserved—everything goes. Many goods are selling for one-half off regular prices.

Come and see our stock and judge for yourself. You do not need to be an expert in order to see that you can buy goods for less than you ever bought them before.

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE

Of Seven Shipwrecked Sailors Rescued in Mid-Ocean.

New York, Jan. 3.—Seven shipwrecked sailors, believed to be the only survivors of the crew of sixteen of the Norwegian bark Germanic, were brought here today by the oil tank steamer Hothan Newton. They were picked up in mid-ocean on Dec. 17, in a terrible condition from exposure, eight days after their vessel had been abandoned. Another boat, which contained eight men, has not been found. The captain of the bark, who remained on board until all the men found places in the small boats, went down with his ship.

The seven men who were rescued tell a story of fearful suffering before they were picked up by the Newton. Obliged to leave their ship in the midst of a storm which had twisted and opened the seams of the big bark, their little craft was tossed helplessly about by the waves. The scant store of provisions which they had succeeded in getting together was in constant danger of being ruined by the salt water, which poured into the boat, and their cask of drinking water became tainted.

Were Without Food.

For many days they had nothing to drink but rain water, which they caught in tarpaulins. The supply of food allowed each man was held down to the lowest possible even from the first, but even then it became exhausted after several days and the men had been entirely without food for more than twenty-four hours when they were picked up by the steamer.

They were in a terrible condition when taken on board the Newton. Their bodies were covered with sores, from the constant contact of salt spray which had swept over their little boat, and they were so weak from exhaustion and lack of nourishment that they were scarcely able to stand. It was several hours after they had been taken on board before any of the members were able to tell the story of their plight.

From their story, it appears that the Germanic had bad luck from Nov. 23, when she sailed from Weymouth, N. S., for Fleetwood, Eng., until she went down in mid-ocean on Dec. 9. The bark ran into a gale soon after leaving Weymouth, and the winds increased until it was blowing with hurricane force. Pounded about by the tremendous seas and buffeted by the fierce wind, the Germanic sprung a leak, her decks were burst open, the cabins washed away and she became waterlogged. When it was seen that she could not long remain afloat, the order to take to the two small boats was given. It was almost too late, however, and there was scarcely time to stock the boats with food and water, and for the men to clamber in. In one of the boats were eight men, and in the other seven, the captain remaining on board until all the men had found places in the boats.

Careful housekeepers usually keep a supply of Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts, as they know they are to be depended upon for perfect results.

TELEGRAPHING IS ABANDONED

By Railroads in Many Wisconsin Towns on Account of Law.

Stanley, Wis., Jan. 3.—In order to comply with the new law regarding the eight-hours work for telegraph operators, the Wisconsin Central line is doing away with the telegraph instruments in many of their stations, and among the towns in this vicinity which will hereafter have no telegraph service are Thorp, Withee, Boyd and Cadott, making Stanley the only telegraph station between Chippewa Falls and Owen.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 3.—As a result of the adoption, Jan. 1, of the new eight-hour law for telegraph operators in Wisconsin, telegraph stations have been abandoned at the following small places on the St. Paul road: Nashotah, Ixonia, Watertown, Marshall, Windsor, Arlington, Poynette, Richwood, Elba, Fall River, Doylestown, Wyocena, Lyndon, Melvina, Westby and Cashton.

Elopes With Judge Henry's Grandson—Parents Bless Marriage.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 3.—Wilmont Henry, the 20-year-old grandson of Judge W. H. Henry of Bradford, who will inherit a fortune in his own right in less than a year, left two days ago, it is said, with Miss Elsie, the 17-year-old daughter of Barton Lloyd Little, vice president and manager of the United Steel company at Canton, Ohio, and the marriage of the couple at Wellsburg, W. Va., has just been announced. Young Henry lives with relatives at Grafton, a Pittsburg suburb, where the Littles are neighbors. The young couple are back home, and have received the parental blessing. They will leave on a honeymoon trip East.

WEST END

PASSERBY ENDS FIRE

Rushes in and Carries Blazing Tree to Street.

If a passing pedestrian had not seen a Christmas tree ablaze, through the parlor windows, Oscar Strom would probably not have a residence today at 2726 West Fourth street.

Even since Christmas, the gaily decorated tree has reposed in the parlor of the Strom home and for the edification of the children of the household, it was lighted every evening.

New Year's night it was to be lighted for the last time before it was dismantled and thrown into the back yard. The candles seemed to burn as brightly as ever and the general enthusiasm over the looks of the tree was as great as ever.

Then all the family went to the back part of the house, leaving the Christmas tree lighted. For the moment, it seemed, everyone forgot all about the tree.

While the family was absent, however, one of the candles tipped over. In a second, the entire tree was in a blaze. Mr Carl saw the burning tree from outside. He rushed into the house, grabbed the blazing tree and carried it out of doors before the Stroms had really realized what had taken place.

The fire did some damage to the interior of the house, but the loss is nominal. If Mr. Carl had not come to the rescue, the house would probably have been badly damaged and perhaps totally destroyed.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

First Swedish Baptist Church Holds Its Annual Meeting.

John F. Fredin, Nils Paulson and Oscar Lingwall were elected trustees of the First Swedish Baptist church at the annual meeting of the congregation held on the afternoon and evening of New Year's day.

A. Thoren was re-elected vice president of the church. The pastor, Rev. A. Edstam, is president. Mr. Thoren was also re-elected superintendent of the Sunday school.

August Wiren was re-elected church secretary and Nels Paulson was named again to serve as church treasurer.

The reports of the church officers and those of the auxiliary societies showed the congregation to be in good financial condition. No action was taken about the project for the new church.

ONE DAY EACH YEAR

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 3.—Mrs. Julia Barney McCoy, daughter of the late Edward T. Barney and the present owner of Jamestown Island, has filed a sensational suit for divorce here against her husband, Jay P. McCoy of Ohio, Illinois and New York. She alleges failure to support, and that he visited her only one day per year on an average since their marriage. They were married on June 25, 1903, in Dayton, Ohio, by Rev. Maurice Wilson. Her husband took her immediately to live with his family at Hillsdale, Ill., where they remained until Oct. 19, 1903. Mrs. McCoy is the mother of 3-year-old twins, Jay Pennock McCoy, Jr., and Julia Perrine McCoy.

BISHOP BEGINS HEALING.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Bishop Fallows began last night, at St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church, his demonstration of the efficacy of psychology as a cure for human ills. He was so overwhelmed with applications for treatment that in place of giving individual treatment, he was compelled to treat his "patients" in a measure en masse. More than 130 persons appeared at the hour appointed for his demonstration.

SEVEN CENT FARE GIVEN

Compromise Offered by Traction Companies Opposed by Civic Club.

Members Want Universal Transfers and Better Fire Protection.

A 7-cent fare from Park Point will be put into effect as a result of an agreement reached between the Duluth Street Railway company and the Interstate Traction company.

Under the new arrangement, a passenger desiring a transfer from any of the Duluth Street Railway company's lines to the line of the Interstate Traction company, will pay an extra 2 cents, and a passenger desiring a transfer from the Park Point line to the Duluth Street Railway company's lines will pay the same amount.

This makes it possible to ride from any part of Duluth to the end of the Park Point system for 7 cents.

At a meeting of the Park Point Civic club, held last evening, however, it was decided to go ahead with the fight for the nickel fare with universal transfers. The committee was instructed to push this campaign as energetically as possible and to report at the next regular meeting of the club.

* * *

The matter of better fire protection for the Point was also taken up, and all the members were urged to be present at the conference in the city hall this afternoon with the members of the board of fire commissioners. An effort will be made to secure two men for the Point, to be employed by the city and to be kept constantly ready to answer alarms.

The club will also endeavor to secure some alarm system for the Point. With two men to man the fire car, and with an alarm system, the residents of the Point believe that they would be in fairly good position to protect their homes.

QUESTION IS UNIQUE

Petition for Annulment of Marriage Reveals Peculiar Situation.

O. F. Lundgren Claims He Married a Common-Law Wife.

Does a prior common-law marriage invalidate a subsequent civil marriage contract, when there has been no legal separation and all the parties concerned are living?

This is a somewhat unique question raised in the district court this morning when the case of Oscar F. Lundgren against Agatha Lundgren, his wife, came on for trial before Judge Cant on the plaintiff's petition for an annulment of the marriage contract.

Lundgren claims that his wife was the common-law wife of one Joseph W. Goggins before she married the plaintiff in Two Harbors six years ago. He claims that Goggins is still living and that neither he nor his alleged common-law wife were ever divorced.

Mrs. Lundgren, who is hopelessly insane, and who has been an inmate of the state hospital at Fergus Falls since 1905, was represented in the case by Judge S. F. White, her guardian.

Lundgren was represented by George Spangler.

Mr. Spangler, in the support of his contention that there was a previous common-law marriage with Goggins, introduced certified copies of the circuit court records of Douglas county, Wis., showing where Joseph W. Goggins and Agnes Goggins swore that they were man and wife in proceeding for the adoption of a child.

George B. LaGrange, a local letter carrier, testified that he met Mrs. Lundgren in 1904 when she was living in the West end with Goggins and passing herself off to the public as his wife. The witness said he saw her shortly afterward when she told him Goggins was dead. LaGrange says that when he first met her as Mrs. Lundgren he accused her of being a former Mrs. Goggins and she denied that she ever saw him before, but finally admitted her identity.

The marriage license record in this county showed that the license issued to Lundgren gave his intended wife's name as Agatha Goggins. Lundgren testified that he knew before he was married that his wife had formerly lived with Goggins as the latter's wife, but he supposed until last spring that Goggins was dead.

After all the evidence was in, the case was submitted to the court on briefs to be prepared by the attorneys.

Rank Foolishness.

"When attacked by a cough or a cold or when your throat is sore, it is rank foolishness to take any other medicine than Dr. King's New Discovery," says C. O. Eldridge, of Empire, Ga. "I have used New Discovery seven years and I know is is the best remedy on earth for coughs and colds, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. My children are subject to croup, but New Discovery quickly cures every attack." Known the world over as the King of throat and lung remedies. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

The January Sale of Lady-Like Undermuslins

Most all undermuslins look well as you see them folded in their tissue paper—but unfold them—that's the test that tells—our garments are cut in generous proportions—you could run in the night gowns if the house were on fire—and the sewing is good! Look at the stitches—note that the seams are sewed as your own seamstress would sew them! Then look at the dainty styles—then you'll know why women are buying here who usually have thought it necessary to make undermuslins at home.

BUY HERE NOW!
Save Time! Save Money!

Yesterday and today have been days of triumph for our undermusiin department! Thank you, women of Duluth (and your neighbors) for the way you have expressed your appreciation of the garments we've had made for you—we knew you didn't like the ordinary store underwear and we had our stock made the way we thought you'd like it—of good materials—cut extra full and extra long—and sewed with care—and trimmed with rare good taste!

THE RIGHTS OF PROPERTY.

The coal railroads, whose emissaries are now before congress asking relief from the new law prohibiting them from owning or being interested in the coal mines, are entitled to no sympathy, and they will get none.

They have had nearly two years to comply with the law, but it appears that no steps have been taken to that end. Instead of making preparations to comply with the law, they have awaited the session of congress, and are now asking that body to either remove the penal clause of the law or to repeal it altogether.

They ask that the penalty be remitted so that they can test the provision in the courts without being subjected to severe fines if they do not succeed in defeating the law there. To repeal the penal clause of the law is to make it thoroughly ineffective, and it might better be repealed. The coal trust would pay little attention to a law forbidding the ownership of the mines by the railroads, if that law did not provide an adequate punishment for its violation.

The provision which is so interesting to the coal-carrying railroads was adopted as a part of the Hepburn railroad rate law, being added to that act by the senate. The devil should be given his due, and the senate deserves credit for this action, in which the house readily concurred.

The prohibition is based on sound public policy. The coal trust has been made possible by the fact that the railroads owned or controlled the coal mines. The trust has been greedy and exacting, and the people have suffered from its oppressions. Therefore any move that will break it up is a move in the interests of the people.

Naturally, the members of the coal trust do not like it. Very likely they regard it is an unconstitutional attack upon the sacred rights of property. According to modern ideas of owners of great wealth, humanity has few rights that property is bound to respect. No matter how much human misery and suffering and deprivation a condition may entail, if measures for relief touch property rights, there is an immediate rally to the defense of property. The relief measures are condemned with horror as being "unconstitutional" and "paternalistic." When the defender of property rights and the scorner of the rights of man has said that a measure is both "unconstitutional" and "paternalistic," he has, in his own mind, dealt a crushing blow.

The trouble with this theory of property rights is that its beneficiaries have become so few and so arrogant, and its victims so many and so impatient, that there is grave danger that the revolt which is in progress will go to such lengths that the many who are contemptuous of property rights, having no property, will fail to deal out justice to the few who have property but have failed to give proper consideration to the rights of humanity.

MAKING PEOPLE GOOD.

Prohibition, in its giant strides, covered two more states with the coming of the New Year, when Georgia and Oklahoma joined the band of waterwagon commonwealths, and bade farewell to the sizz of the siphon, the rush of the growler, the sparkle of the champagne, and the throat-rasp of the forty-rod.

Maybe it's only a temporary obsession, but the craving for making other people good is giving a wide sweep to the cause of prohibition, and it is quite certain that other states will follow where Iowa, Maine, North Dakota, Georgia, Oklahoma and Kansas have led. Alabama has decided to follow, but postponed the date when its law goes into effect in order to give its people plenty of time to fill up for a long drouth.

There are not only strong moral reasons back of this movement, but strong economic reasons as well. In the South the race question admittedly weighs heavily, the negro being none the better for it when he can get drunk. So in most of the states local and county option prevails, and many states not yet under state-wide prohibition laws have most of their territory guarded against the liquor traffic by the use of these devices. And when the greater part of a state is dry, it is only necessary to give the people a chance to vote on the question to inaugurate complete prohibition. Indeed, it would probably go through in most states if the legislatures would give the people a whack at it.

In this connection a discovery just made in Georgia is interesting. Last year liquor licenses were sold by the state or its subdivisions to 850 liquor dealers. A report from Washington shows that the government did better, as it collected license fees from 1,820 liquor dealers, or more than twice as many as the local authorities discovered.

CONGESTED IMMIGRATION.

In the annual report of the commission of immigration, there is some mild jubilation because the beginnings of a diversion of the human traffic to the South, where it is needed, and away from the North, where it is not needed, are noted.

Yet these beginnings are scarcely visible to the naked eye. Out of the 1,285,349 foreign immigrants who landed in the United States in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, Georgia got 779, Arkansas 677, North Carolina 390, Alabama 2,077, Florida 8,456, South Carolina 948 and Tennessee 914.

On the other hand, New York received 386,244, Pennsylvania 230,906 and Illinois 104,156.

This is a start, indeed, for the South, but it is a very small one, and serves only to point the need of greater efforts to bring about a fair distribution of the incoming stream of immigration. In the interests of the immigrants themselves, who suffer when they create an oversupply of labor; in the interests of the North, whose native labor must suffer in common with the imported when there is an over-supply; and in the interests of the South, which needs this imported labor for its development, it is highly important that greater attention should be paid to directing the flood of immigration where it belongs and where it is needed.

At present, it is as though an irrigation ditch, built to redeem arid lands, poured all its waters into an area that had been already redeemed, that was blossoming like the rose, and that was threatened with disaster by floods; while an adjoining area, still dry and unproductive, got only a trifling overflow and a few splashes of the needed moisture. It is not quite that bad in the South, because the South has some native labor, but it serves to illustrate the condition.

The tendency is wrong, of course, but the immigrants shouldn't be blamed. They don't know where to go, except that those that have preceded them have gone to New York and Pennsylvania and Illinois and Minnesota, so they suppose they ought to go there, too. They do not know that the labor market is fairly well supplied in these states, that it is sometimes distressingly overstocked, and that at the same time there is a wide field in the South simply crying out for labor to make it fruitful.

Somebody must tell them where to go. No power is better equipped to do it than the government of the United States, which now has control of immigration insofar as the laws permit it. The government should undertake this work, and its efforts to direct the immigrants should begin on the other side of the water, instead of attempting to distribute them after they arrive here, when perhaps they have formed plans which they would object to having somebody else change.

"STANDING BY THE TICKET."

Says the Anoka Union: "Wanted—75,000 Republicans who will stand by the ticket in 1908."

It is Minnesota's glory and pride that it is very doubtful if 75,000 Republicans could be found in the state who would agree to "stand by the ticket in 1908" or in any other year without knowing something about it first.

There was a day, not very long ago, when in Minnesota and in all other states the bosses could count not only on 75,000 Republicans, but on at least 75 per cent of the nominal party membership, to stand by the ticket no matter how it was formed or who formed it. That made easy picking for the bosses. They formed partnerships with the selfish interests who were able to pay them well for betraying the people into their hands, and in an atmosphere of complacency and self-satisfaction corrupt politics and corrupt business went hand in hand, to the bitter cost of a sleeping people.

But it's different, now. Instead of enthusiastically demanding to be furnished a ticket, any kind of a ticket, which they can follow and be glad, 75,000 Republicans—and many more than that—are saying to the Republican party: "You'll have to show us."

No Hill-Heatwole-Shevlin-Minneapolis Journal-Pioneer Press ticket can command the respect and adhesion of the awakened voters, now and henceforth.

WILLFUL IGNORANCE.

In his statement of views upon public questions to the New York World, published in The Herald Tuesday evening, Governor Johnson said among other pertinent things:

> Farming taxes before the French revolution was no more iniquitous than our present tariff system.

The Minneapolis Journal professes not to be able to understand this proposition. It says:

> Farming taxes was in ancient and medieval times a short road for the kings to put themselves in funds. They took their support in a lump from the tax farmer, or he stood ready to redeem the monarch's notes on demand, and recouped himself out of the farmership. The tariff system of the United States is a scheme of indirect taxation whereby the federal government raises a portion of its revenues by valuing imports at the dock and charging a tax upon them before they are allowed to enter. The government transacts the business direct. The comparative iniquity of these two systems cannot be found in any relationship between them. They are, in fact, opposites—one a direct tax, the other indirect; one collected by a private person who made a profit on the deal, the other by the government itself.
> It is difficult to understand what Governor Johnson means by his comparison of things that do not compare, unless he means merely to say that all systems of taxation are iniquitous, ergo, these two are iniquitous.

The Herald does not believe that the Journal is quite so stupid as it wishes to make itself out to be. It usually has an alert eye and a keen comprehension for things that it wants to understand, and for matters that suit its peculiar political vagaries. For instance, it was amply able to appreciate Governor Johnson's good qualities in 1904, when he was running against Bob Dunn, but was utterly blinded to them in 1906, after he had made good in a two-year term as governor, but when it chose to support the Republican candidate.

If the protective tariff, when it becomes practically prohibitive, and when it gives a trust 50 per cent more protection than it needs, it is not an exact equivalent of farming out the taxes, The Herald does not know what it is. The only difference is that the king, when he farmed out the taxes, got something out of it because the tax farmer paid him a lump sum, and the people of the United States, after the necessary revenue has been received for the support of the government, get worse than nothing. They are obliged to build up a fat surplus in the treasury which ought to be in the pockets of the people or in their banks as a foundation for credit, the life blood of business, and at the same time they are placed at the mercy of the trusts.

The trusts, shielded from foreign competition by iniquitous tariff schedules many times greater than are needed for revenue and for covering the difference in labor cost, hoist their charges accordingly. The tariff is a warrant to them to tax the people for their own selfish benefit, and that they have done it every householder knows to his bitter cost.

Indeed, while there is a difference between the French farming of taxes and our system of farming taxes out to the trusts, the difference is ntirly in favor of the royal method. The Journal quibbles when it speaks of the tariff as an indirect tax collected by the government, because the fault is not so much with that as with the criminal direct tax which the protected trust levies upon the consumers of the land.

Mr. Rockefeller has given a couple of millions more of our money to the Chicago university. We have dealt most generously with that institution.

The Republicans of Ohio will vote their choice between Taft and Foraker Feb. 11, which shows that the presidential campaign is coming on apace.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Alas, what a change time has worked in the conventions and ethics of dear old Philadelphia! Modern conditions have indeed handed the old city rather a set back from those things held dear by Benjamin Franklin and other simple men who did so much to create the spirit that gave the city a distinct name in a literary sense. In those old days men could be seen carrying rare old editions to work with them; today many of the citizens carry copies of the Marquis of Queensbury rules in their pockets. These, you understand, have relation to the noble art of prize fighting. In the old days the citizens were wont to wear their hair in flowing curls and carefully cultivated plaits; today, thanks to the example of "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien and the members of some of the leading ward Republican clubs, the fashion has swung to the other extreme and many of the leading citizens are affecting the short cut that aforementioned Jack O'Brien has done so much to popularize in the city of his adoption.

Richard Moe, at the Spalding, admits these changes in the ear marks of the city, with a sigh. His eyes do a pathetic little upward turn in the sockets, that is suggestive of an acrobat doing a standing somersault, when he admits the getting away from the spirit of things so lovingly planted in the city of brotherly love by Benjamin Franklin. How shocked would the old inventor and publisher be to return for a brief visit and discover that prize fights had become the popular diversion of the day, while rules and regulations and the records of the heroes of fistiana had supplanted the ancient Satuday Evening Post and those other forms of literature in the popular mind.

How painful it would be for Mr. Franklin to learn that the question as to the relative ability of Noah Brusso, more popularly known as Tommy Burns, and Jack O'Brien, as to proficiency with the padded mitts, was one that had quite thrown any question of literary tendencies or higher art into a quiet nook of the amen corner for the time being, at least. It is safe to say that the fight clubs outnumber the print shops by a good margin. Where the city once made a name for itself by turning out rare editions and books characterized by a high literary sense, it is now turning out a crop of bum mitt maulers and a crowd of politicians that have made the city and state known far and wide for its corrupt political conditions. They have, of course, some literary clubs and people who are still fond of the old traditions of the city, but it is safe to say that those citizens who know the record o feitizens Jack O'Brien safely outnumber those who can savvy the difference between Michael Angelo and Reubens. They are strong on records, but most of the record dope runs in one way. If Reubens and Michaelo Angelo are not in the records of fistiana, that lets them out for some of the present day record delvers.

Mr. Moe believes that eventually the old order of things will return. A defeated prize fighter is in some respects like an exploded roman candle; he is of little use and makes a very poor ornament. Citizen O'Brien is a defeated knight of the padded mitts, whose popularity cannot be expected to increase. Of course, to, they have placed a very strong bar to the future convings of some of the erstwhile popular politicians. Thus with lodging house colonizing and barroom political codes losing caste simultaneously with men of Citizen O'Brien's calling, there remains some hope for the return to prosperity of the print shops, the rare edition and the general morale that in some instances, in the old days, conspired to give the city the reputation of being slow and sleepy. Rather, Mr. Moe believes, it was because the citizens were immersed in the study of abstract subjects and problems of occult nature. Since then some of the citizens have taken to the study of jabs and swings and the most effective way to pad the vote of a ward, still others putting their time to a practical course in criminology. The old name of being sleepy has gradually been lifted from the town, and now Philadelphia can boast of some of the finest little cutups in municipal history. But things have promised to change. Several authors have sprung up in the city; some of the mitt artists have been hopelessly beaten by outside talent; and several indications have given rise to the hope that there will be a return to the old days, when "Philly" used to race Boston to the wire for the distinction of being the most cultured city in the United States. Philadelphia had a little on Boston before the eclipse of John Lawrence Sullivan, who for the brief space of a few years turned the citizens of his native town away from a too close application of books and things bookish. Since the decline of Mr. Sullivan's fistic progress the citizens have again turned to the forum and Friday evening debating clubs, with the result that the city has regained its place as the hub of learning. History may repeat itself in Philadelphia. Mr. O'Brien's partial eclipse as a fistic star may lose him the interest of th eother citizens and the reading circle and the magazine club may again gain that popularity that reigned before Citizen O'Brien inaugurated those Friday night sessions that cut in on the dates of the debating club and Friday night study class.

This represents the period in the hotel trade when trade is readjusting itself for the new year's conditions. Most of the knights of the grip have been called in to check up for the new year, while commercial men in general are not on the road this week. The attendance at all of the hotels has reflected the result. The before Christmas rush has given place to an after holiday emptiness and from now until the adjusting of trade conditions for the new year the hotel attendance will show a falling off.

With the announcement of the owners of the Duluth hotels of a change to the European method, some time in the near future, comes the natural inquiry of the traveling man as to whether the new system being so generally adopted will cost him more. If it does, some of the houses may expect an increase in the expense money account.

THE WEATHER.

The weather man, this morning, rather expected snow this afternoon and tonight, in light quantities, to be followed tomorrow by clearing and colder weather. It was warm enough this morning and cloudy. Last night's lowest temperature was 10 degs. above zero and yesterday's highest was 24 degs. Tonight's lowest is expected to be about 20 degs.

A year ago today it was cloudy and mild after several days of snow, sleet and hail.

The sun rose this morning at 7:43 and set tonight at 4:31, making 8 hours and 37 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The barometric depression central Thursday morning over British Columbia has advanced its center to Manitoba attended by a general rise in temperature throughout the Middle West and Northwest. This disturbance also caused some snow or rain over Oregon, Washington, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, the Western Gulf states and Eastern Lake Superior. The Colorado high pressure has moved to the lower Mississippi and Ohio valleys and caused somewhat colder weather throughout the extreme South. Those conditions favor snow flurries in this locality this afternoon or tonight followed by clearing and colder weather Saturday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

Saturday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges: Probably light snow this afternoon and tonight. Lowest temperature tonight, about 20 degs. above zero. Saturday partly cloudy and colder; fresh southerly winds shifting to brisk westerly Saturday.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Saturday: Upper Michigan—Snow tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight.

Wisconsin—Probably light rain or snow tonight or Saturday; warmer tonight.

Minnesota—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday; colder Saturday and in west portion tonight.

North and South Dakota—Fair tonight and Saturday; colder tonight.

"No Backward Step."

Omaha World-Herald: "Fellow-Republicans," said Albert J. Beveridge, the Prince Rupert of Republican reform, at the Indiana love feast. "Fellow-Republicans—the Republican party takes no backward step. Republican blood is not the blood that retreats. We Republicans never deserted a cause—never turned back when we have set our hands to the plow."

Then the love-feasters cheered, and the cheering grew uproarious as Prince Rupert—or Prince Albert—went on to recount how the Republican party had put down the Rebellion and done other commendable things without once turning, or even looking back. "And finally," he said, while his face grew fixed in a look of stern resolve, and each and every feaster looked just as stern and resolute as he, "finally we took up the task of the moral regeneration of American business, which we have partly accomplished and which we will never lay down till that task is done."

Warming to his task, Prince Albert told how "we mean to go on" till common honesty becomes the rule of business; till all the robbers are in jail and the desperate adventurers are fleeing to the woods; till high finance shall be as difficult as piracy on the high seas; till rebating is a myth and the wicked rich are a memory. With every eloquent period the applause waxed and grew till it was necessary to raise the roof a full score feet to give the echoing tumult a chance properly to reverberate.

Whereupon, behold the climax; the grand, magnificent climax! Charles Warren Fairbanks! Statesman, patriot, reformer, apostle of progress and champion of the people! He was it. He was the climax! Thus spoke Beveridge:

"I congratulate the Republicans of Indiana upon the fact that public opinion over the United States is rapidly centering toward the nomination of Charles W. Fairbanks by the next Republican national convention. * * * A man of clean public life, of clean home life, with broad and tried experience in public affairs, * * * his sympathies are naturally with those of us who have to struggle for existence. He is well founded in the principles of the Republican party, progressive and up-to-date, and he has demonstrated his ability to deal with changing conditions, believing that his party should never take a backward step."

It's no joke. We quote from the record. It's exactly what he said; what Prince Rupert Albert, reform leader, said about that even purer and nobler reform leader, Charles Warren Fairbanks!

Great Names.

Springfield Republican: The entrance of William J. Bryan into the United States senate from Florida to serve the balance of the late Senator Mallory's term introduces to the country an entirely new and original William J.—not at all the peerless one from Nebraska, not even his relative. Senator Bryan has youth, being only 31, but he was born twenty years before the Nebraskan became a celebrity. We now have Congressman William McKinley of Illinois, Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas and Senator William J. Bryan of Florida. George Washington may turn up again as a national figure in due season.

He Converts 'Em All.

Boston Herald: And still Tom Watson is sure that President Roosevelt really couldn't refuse a practically unanimous renomination. Oh, these White House free lunches!

Joseph Renaud, a carpenter, dropped dead on New Year's morning.

The Bethel school, conducted by Miss Grace Thompson, opened yesterday. Besides the kindergarten, a school of higher grade will be taught.

Kimberley, Stryker & Manley have dissolved partnership, Mr. Kimberley retiring. Giles & Kimball, dealers in brick, have also dissolved, the junior partner retiring.

Mrs. S. S. Vaughn of Ashland, well known all over the Lake Superior country, was married last week to Rev. Angus Mackinnon, a Presbyterian minister. Dr. and Mrs. S. C. McCormick of this city were present at the ceremony.

Paul D'Unger, the 20-year-old son of Dr. D'Unger, formerly of this city but now of Chicago, came back to Duluth a few months ago and entered the employe of Stone & Ordean, wholesale grocers. He has not been seen for nearly a week and his whereabouts are unknown to his friends.

Harry Nesbitt and J. T. Formance, doing a hotel business under the firm name of Nesbitt & Formance, have dissolved partnership.

At a meeting of the city council last night action was taken to secure from the United States government the sum of $250,000, spent by the old city in building a dyke and which claim against the government has often been pronounced legal and collectable.

The thermometer registered 14 degs. below zero at 10 o'clock this morning, a drop of 12 degs. since the same hour yesterday.

Foreman Stinchfield of the Paragrapher has been called to Waupaca, Wis., by illness in his family.

At the dedication of Grace M. E. church it was announced that the church debt, amounting to nearly $2,800, was entirely subscribed.

The opening of Stewart & Britt's bank at the West end gives Duluth ten banking institutions, instead of four a year ago, with a combined capital and surplus of $1,930,000, as against $818,900 in January, 1887.

Reports made by Clerk of Court Pressnell and Sheriff Truelsen show the gross receipts in 1887 at the clerk's office to have been $6,661, and the net receipts of the sheriff $3,059.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: There comes from the southwest part of the state a noise like a Jacobson boom. If Jake could get by the federal gang and the big delegations controlled by Tom Shevlin at the state convention, he would be probably the strongest man in the party before the people. Jacobson has a record for doing things for the people, and the corporations like him not. For further particulars read up on the Duluth convention and the subsequent proceedings.

Walker Pilot: Down in Pittsburg, where the Blue Stockings live in sin and licentiousness, the poorer class die in mine horrors and steel foundries. When the wages of sin are passed around, the envelopes often get mixed with those of the martyr fund.

Hutchinson Leader: The administration forces are working hard to drape Taft with the Roosevelt mantle and if, as it is claimed, the Wall street outfit has its knives sharpened for Taft he may win the Republican nomination. No better luck can come to a candidate nowadays than the opposition of the stock gamblers and money sharks.

Appleton Press: The greatest evil likely to result from the money panic is doubtless just what the promoters of the panic planned it for; namely, that the rigorous enforcement of law doesn't pay after all. Back to the old-time order of things will be the cry. We will soon demonstrate to the world whether this is a truly "the land of the brave," or whether the Yankee is as cowardly in peace as he is fearless in war.

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: There is no real reason why the next president should not come from the Middle West, and no man commands the respect and loyalty of his party in a higher degree than Governor Johnson of Minnesota.

Aurora News: John A. Johnson's political boom will not down. Tom Lawson has come to the front with the claim that a new party must be organized and Roosevelt nominated for president and Johnson for vice president. Just what is the necessity for a new party is the question, but the fact remains that Johnson has become a national figure and promises to remain such for the remainder of his life.

Grand Rapids Independent: There is an uncommon quiet amont the presidency among the Minnesota editors, Republican and Democrat alike. Wonder why?

Austin Transcript: The republic of Columbia in South America has entered upon a forest policy while it yet has plenty of timber. By using it wisely it will always have plenty. It is taking the "stitch in time." Contractors who cut cedar and mahogany from public lands in that country are required to plant young trees of the same species in the cut-over spaces. Lumbering and planting must be carried on side by side. The United States will begin a wise forestry policy when it is too late to get the best results.

LAST YEAR'S SMILES.

Philadelphia Press: Mrs. Keamey—Ye're lookin' very mournful these days, Mrs. Hannigan.

Mrs. Hannigan—An' no wonder. Sure, there hasn't been a funeral in the parish to liven wan up fur over a month.

"That cuts no figure. We're going to nominate a man for president next year that can't carry his own city, county or state."

"The unequal distribution of wealth?"

"No; the unequal distribution of heat."

Washington Star: "I suppose you feel well repaid for the money you put into libraries."

"Yes," answered Dustin Stax, "it's kind of pleasant to vary the monotony of seeing your picture in the magazines by having your name mentioned on a few buildings."

"Gracious, child, what put such an absurd idea in your head?"

"Well, I'm sure I heard you the other day talking about wash sales."

Detroit Free Press: "I tell you his days of usefulness are past."

"O, pshaw! What are you talking about? He can still be a bank director."

Catholic Standard and Times: "Your father is in politics," said the stranger, "is he not?"

"How do you mean?"

"Why, his stummick has gone back on him an' he can't drink like he useter."

Chicago Tribune: "These pianos look too cheap," said the young woman with the picture hat, her brows contracting slightly. "Show me some of the best you've got."

"Yes, ma'am," said the salesman. "May I ask how high you care to go?"

"Me? Oh, I only go to G, but I want one with all the octaves, just the same."

Disciplining a State.

Philadelphia Record: By way of a change, the president is not only for state rights, but for state duties in Nevada.

Always At It.

FOR 1908—TARIFF REFORM.

New York World: Prompt and emphatic, from prominent Democrats in many states, is the favoring response to the tariff-reform message of Governor Johnson of Minnesota, printed Sunday by the World. Mr. Hemphill of the Charleston News and Courier well states the general opinion when he says of it that Governor Johnson has in this message to the World "made the issue of the next presidential campaign."

"Nineteen hundred and eight will be a memorable year for the struggle of equal right and American ideals; the year will see tariff reform accomplished or well under way, for if the present congress does not at the present session make substantial reductions the people in November will elect those pledged so to do."

The conditions are favorable. Not this year may Republican standpatters point to the highest average tariff rate America has ever known as the "maker of prosperity." Most people have always suspected that American prosperity was due to industry, to thrift, to the wide diffusion of intelligence, to nature's bounty in a broad domain. They now know that an excessive tariff—"mother of trusts," as the late Henry Havemeyer called it—has made war on prosperity by stimulating speculation and raising unendurably the cost of living. The woman with the market basket elected Grover Cleveland president. She has not lost her power.

As the financial situation has turned, many a Republican leader must regret his utterances of last October. Governor Guild must be sorry that he reluctantly surrendered the "Massachusetts idea" to standpattery. Governor Cummins must bemoan his readiness to subordinate the "Iowa idea" to supposed political expediency. Judge Taft may regret that before the panic thunderbolt hit the country he so lightly proposed postponement of tariff reform until 1909. Mr. Roosevelt himself may yet spring one of his political surprises upon the standpatters by calling for lower duties.

Governor Johnson's prediction is sound. Tariff reform cannot be kept in the background. In Denver it will meet few foes. Even in Chicago it will be importunate. It must and will be heard.

THE LEADING HOTEL

FACTS ABOUT THAT ONE

In a city like New York, which has so many great hotels, it is more difficult than elsewhere to single out any one and say "this is the leader." Consensus of opinion, however, favors that one which, opening its doors to the public in 1904, gave to the world a new note in hotel life and set the mark of hotel excellence so high that all others must be content to follow for years to come. Those familiar with New York hotels of the twentieth century can easily supply the name of this peerless hotel. To others less fortunate it is necessary to mention it—the St. Regis. Within the portals of this beautiful house, perfectly equipped, luxuriously furnished, built as safe as human ingenuity can design and construct, where absolute restfulness and comfort is added to heretofore unknown gastronomic perfection, it is possible to enjoy life to the utmost.

The Hotel St. Regis stands at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, upon the finest city street in America and only four blocks distant from the main entrance to Central park. Clustered about it are far-famed private residences, clubs and churches, while near enough to be easily reached are the city's high-class shopping districts and its great amusement center. The noise of traffic and the bustle of business never disturbs, yet close at hand on either side are surface, elevated and subway lines leading to all parts of the city.

One important fact is that the cost of living in this elegant, homelike house—the leader among New York hostelries—is no greater than at other first-class hotels. The best at a fixed and fair charge is the unvarying rule at the St. Regis.

SUPPOSED TO BE DEAD.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 3.—Although officially declared dead, several years ago, and for many years believed by his wife and friends here to have died, George M. Gable appeared in the local court, yesterday, to claim $12,000 from the estate of his uncle, Jacob Gable. Seventeen years ago Gable disappeared, leaving his wife and several small children. All efforts to trace him failed, and his wife, believing him dead, remarried. When Jacob Gable died, in 1904, Gable, one of the heirs, was declared dead by the court.—The executors, however, refused to pay over the inheritance to his widow, and instituted a search which resulted in the long missing man being found in Sacramento, Cal. Gable came East and was identified in court, yesterday, by the wife he left seventeen years ago, as the rightful heir. The woman's second husband has begun proceedings for a divorce.

A WARM MONTH.

Records Show December Had Temperature Above the Average.

Last month was warmer than the average December, according to records kept in the office of Weather Forecaster Richardson. The highest temperature registered during the month was 47 degs. above zero on the 6th, and the lowest was 5 degs. below on the 28th. The greatest daily range was 34 degs. on the 27th, and the least daily range was 3 degs. on the 8th. The average for the month was 2.9 degs. warmer than the mean temperature for the past thirty-seven years.

The precipitation was very low, amounting to only .54 inches. The average precipitation for thirty-seven years has been 1.24 inches. The prevailing direction of the wind was from the southwest, with an average hourly velocity of 12.8 miles. There were nine clear days, ten partly cloudy, and twelve cloudy.

GOLD PRODUCTION FALLS OFF; SILVER INCREASES.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The production of gold in the United States fell off $1,742,400 in 1907 as against 1906, whereas the amount of silver produced was increased by over 1,000,000 fine ounces. Alaska's gold production fell off a little more than $3,000,000 according to the preliminary report of the director of the mint, issuer yesterday.

Colorado is shown to have led all of the states in 1907 in the production of gold, as it did in 1906. The amount, however, was reduced from nearly $23,000,000 in 1906 to nearly $21,000,000 in 1907. Montana leads the list in the production of silver with 12,818,000 fine ounces, with Colorado and Utah only a few thousand ounces behind.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

ARE AFTER COLUMBIAS

Northerns May Meet Superior Team Here Next Friday Evening.

The members of the Northern hockey team are well pleased with their defeat of the Mic-Macs of St. Paul. The Mic-Macs won the championship of the Twin City Hockey league and are reputed to have the strongest team in the Twin Cities this year, so the victory of Duluth so early in the season is a notable one.

The Columbias of Superior are the object of the Northerns' desires now. Efforts are being made to arrange a match for next Friday night, Jan. 10, and the management has every hope of being successful. If the game is arranged, it will be played at the new rink at the ball park in the evening. In many other cities, open air hockey under artificial light flourishes and it should be a strong card here. The rink will be well lighted and such arrangements as can be, will be made for the comfort of the spectators.

In the meantime, the team will continue to practice and strive to perfect themselves in team play. They are far from the efficiency they hope to attain and only constant practice will fit them for the big games they are to play this year. There was a little too much of the individual in the game Wednesday to suit the hockey critics. The team play makes hockey. An individual dash by a defense man now and then is spectacular and adds interest to the game, but they fail to score goals too often, whereas the organized advances of the forward line, passing the puck back and forth, are brilliant in the eyes of the spectators and effective in scoring goals.

A noticeable feature of the game Wednesday was the clean play. Both teams checked fairly, though warmly at times. There was no attempt at indiscriminate and contemplated "mixing" and the result was the spectators saw the boys play hockey all of the time, instead of part prize-fight and part hockey game.

Jan. 18, the Northerns will go to St. Paul and meet the Mic-Macs on their own ice. They hope to repeat their performance there and, if they do, they will be able to count themselves well in line for the state championship. At any rate, they will give the St. Paul enthusiasts a good exhibition of the Canadian game.

LESS THAN A MINUTE.

"Amateur Lightweight Champion" Meets a Tartar at Minot.

Morris made a rush at Nelson, driving him to the ropes, and it looked as if the "Kid" was going to make a go of it. The two men clinched, and Morris made another rush at Nelson. Nelson gave Morris a lefthander, knocking him to the floor. Morris remained down thirty seconds, and the match was awarded to Nelson.

There was an excellent preliminary bout between Klimball and Slatke before the Nelson-Morris match.

MEETS NELSON DEWEY.

Y. M. C. A. Basketball Team to Play Alumni of Superior School.

Tonight at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, the Y. M. C. A., basketball team will meet the Nelson-Dewey alumni team of Superior. The Superior five is said to be composed of some of the best basketball players on the opposite side of the bay, and the Y. M. C. A. boys expect a hard contest. The game will be the first of a series between the local team and the Superior fives, the second of which will be played next Thursday night, when Duluth will meet the Blaine team at Superior.

The season of the Y. M. C. A. Basketball league will open tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when the team representing the noon class will meet Joe Horak's 5:15 class team.

INDOOR BASEBALL.

Duluthians Organizing to Meet the Hibbing Nine.

With Newt Randall and Si Bennett at the head and Jim Leighty, Al Cummings, Frankie Summers, Sam Menelce and several others as probable members, the Duluth indoor baseball team is being organized for the purpose of repelling an invasion from Hibbing, which is expected to occur about the middle of February.

The former leaguers have been counting for some time on organizing, but not until the Hibbing team announced its intention of claiming the Northern Minnesota championship, did they take any definite steps. From time immemorial, Duluth has held the indoor baseball championship and the Duluth players do not intend to let it slip out of their hands without a struggle. All of the boys mentioned have handled the big ball before, and they think they can go along at a pretty good rate. They will practice in the Armory and will probably play the militia teams while preparing for the men from the range.

NEW MARKS ARE SET.

Shot Put and 220-Yard Dash Records at Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—One athletic league of North America record and two track records were broken at the annual open New Year's athletic meet, held at the Central Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Paul Schmidt, a Central Y. M. C. A. athlete, hurled the 12-pound shot a distance of 46 feet 7¼ inches, betterling the mark made by H. B. Webster of the Central department by one inch for the new national A. L. N. A. mark.

R. C. Taylor set up a new mark in the 220-yard dash, negotiating the distance in 0-24. 4-5. The old mark was one-fifth of a second slower. H. Larson, First regiment, bettered the track record for the 440-yard run, clipping one-fifth of a second off the old mark, 0-56. Taylor competed unattached, but formerly ran under the Central colors.

CITY CLUBS IN CONTEST

All Four Rinks Win Games for Manley-McLennan Trophy.

The Western Curling Club of West Duluth lost the first round for the Manley-McLennan cup last evening, the rinks of the Duluth club winning all four matches. The total margin for Duluth was 14 points, the scores standing 48 to 34.

In two matches played thus far with Superior for the Manley-McLennan cup, the Duluth club has broken even, and the victory over the West Duluth club gives them a good lead fo rthe cup. The third match with Superior will be played next week, and the winner will contest with the rinks of the Western club.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening the annual matches between the "Has-Beens" and the "Kids" will be played at the Duluth Curling rink, and they promise to bring out some good sport. The "Has-Beens" are keen for revenge for a long-to-be-remembered defeat handed out by the "Kids" at the close of last season. The "Kids" are confident of their ability to put it over the veterans again, and the contests tomorrow will be warm. The following rinks will represent the "Kids:"

DENIES THE CHARGE.

Ray Ewry Denies That He is a Professional.

New York, Jan. 3.—Ray Ewry, the jumper, denied before the justice committee of the Amateur Athletic union last night charges of professionalism made against him by Matthew P. Halpin during the controversy regarding Halpin's election as manager of the American Team for the London Olympic games next summer. Halpin sent word that he would appear at the next meeting of the committee and substantiate his charges. The committee adjourned the hearing until next Tuesday.

ORIGIN OF THE CUSTOM

The First Leap Year Proposal Made by St. Bridget.

Queer Scottish Law Which Was Passed in Thirteenth Century.

The origin of the leap year custom, which, according to the fiction of newspapers and magazines, allows the woman to propose, is shrouded in more or less mystery. The encyclopedia is silent on the subject, and it was only after considerable delving among the volumes in the public library that a Herald reporter was able to gain trace of it.

The origin of this fair custom is based on law as well as history and myth. The myth refers to no less a personage than St. Patrick himself.

It seems that St. Patrick, while walking along the shores of Lough Neagh, after having driven the frogs out of the bogs and the snakes out of the grass, was accosted by St. Bridget, who in tears and lamentations, enformed him that a dissension had arisen among the ladies of her nunnery over the fact that they were debarred the privilege of "popping the question." It will be remembered that in Bridget's day celibacy, although approved as the proper life for a religious person, was not enforced as a general and absolute rule for the clergy, unless they had taken a private vow. St. Patrick, though a sternly single man, was yet moved, and offered to concede the ladies the privilege of proposing one year in seven. But St. Bridget demurred, and throwing her arms around his neck, exclaimed, "Arrah, Pathrik, jewel, I daurn't go back to the gurls wid such a proposal. Mek it wan year in four."

St. Patrick replied, "Biddy, acushla, squeeze me that way again, and I'll give you Leap-year, the longest one of the lot."

The legend goes on to relate that St. Bridget thus encouraged, bethought herself of her own husbandless condition and accordingly "popped the question" to St. Patrick himself. But as he had taken the vow of celebacy, he was forced to refuse, though he patched up the difficulty as best he could with a kiss and present of a silk gown.

As to the law and history of this time-honored custom, in 1288 the following law is said to have been passed in Scotland: "It is a statut and ordaint that during the rein of hir maist blissit Megeste, for ilk year knowne as Lepe yeare, ilk mayden ladye of bothe highe and lowe estait, shall hae liberte to bespeke ye man she likes, albeit he refuses to taik hir to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum ane undis or less, as his estait may be; except and awis gif he can make it appeare that he is betrothit ane ither woman, he then be free." A few years later a similar law was passed in France, and received the approval of the king. It is also stated in aged books that before Columbus sailed on his famous voyage, a like liberty was granted the maidens of Genoa and Florence.

There are no records to tell if any fines were imposed under that ancient Scottish statute, nor are there are statistics of the number of maiden-ladies who undoubtedly took advantage of either the Scotch or French enactment.

By the curious little book, entitled "Love, Courtship and Matrimony," published in London in 1606, one is led to believe that the English needed no law to force upon them this leap year privilege, but allowed it to become a part of the "lex non Scripta."

Up to within a century ago, it was another unwritten law of leap year that if a man should decline a proposal, he should soften the disappointment which his refusal would bring about, by the presentation of a silk dress or the material for such a dress, to the unsuccessful suitor for his hand.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Charles Becker, 67 years old, formerly state treasurer of Illinois, committed suicide at his home at Belleville, Ill., Thursday by shooting himself in the mouth. The suicide followed a family conference attended by three of his four children.

Three young men, Raymond Bird, Elmer Farley and Arthur Luce, have been arrested and charged with manslaughter in causing the death of John Bruton on his farm near Churchville, Ky., Monday night.

District Attorney Marian Erwin Thursday notified counsel for Greene and Gaynor, who are in jail at Macon, that the prisoners would be taken to the federal prison at Atlanta on Jan. 7. Every possible legal step to save the prisoners has been taken and their counsel say they must now accept their fate.

There will be no teamsters to move the goods of the striking tenants on the East side, New York, if notices are served on them, according to an announcement from the strikers' headquarters. It was said that one local branch of the United Teamsters' union had already passed a resolution to refuse all dispossess business and that others would soon follow.

Probably the first lynching of 1908 occurred at Brook Haven, Miss., Thursday, when a mob in broad daylight took a negro away from police officers and shot him. The negro, whose name was not known to the police nor the mob, was accused of killing a policeman at Oakvale, Miss., on Tuesday night.

As he was entering his office Thursday afternoon, W. R. Beauler, editor of the Hallettsville (Tex.) Herald, was shot and killed by his wife. She was arrested and placed under $2,000 bail. Domestic troubles are said to be the cause of the killing.

During the calendar year 1907 the bureau of navigation reports 1,056 vessels of 502,508 gross tons built and specifically numbered in the United States, compared with 1,045 vessels of 393,291 tons in 1906. During the first six months of the current fiscal year 555 vessels of 259,974 tons were built, compared with 508 vessels of 181,943 tons during the first six months of the previous fiscal year.

SCHAEFFER SUSPENDED.

Triers Find Charges Against Methodist Elder Substantiated.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 3.—The nine "triers" appointed to hear charges preferred against Rev. William H. Shaeffer, presiding elder of the West district of the Philadelphia Methodist Episcopal conference, returned a verdict last night against the accused.

Doctor Shaeffer is charged with "conduct unbecoming a minister" in his relations with Mrs. Martha Deichley, postmistress at Morganstown, Va. The "triers" simply decided that the charges had been substantiated, and Dr. Shaeffer is suspended from all ministerial services and all church privileges, pending the meeting of the Philadelphia conference in March, before which he will be formally tried.

COUNT SPITS IN PRINCE'S FACE

Boni de Castellane and Helie de Sagan Have Scrap.

Paris, Jan. 3. — Count Boni de Castellane, from whom his wife, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York, was recently divorced and Prince Helie de Sagan, who on several occasions was reported to be engaged to Madame Gould, had a personal encounter, yesterday, at the church of St. Pierre de Chaillot, while a service to the memory of Lady Stanley Errington, a relative of both men, who died lately in England, was in progress.

Beginning inside the church, where Count Boni says the prince insulted both him and his sacred edifice, the encounter was resumed at the doorway, where Count Jean de Castellane, overtook the prince. Count Boni spat in his cousin's face.

Then came the clash of canes followed by a rough and tumble fight on the pavement which ended in the gutter where the men were finally separated by a big butcher. Count Boni at the moment of separation was holding down the well nigh insensible prince, while Jean, according to eye witnesses, was administering to him a severe kicking.

The police invited the two men to go to the station house and this, after some disputing, they agreed to do. All three of them, bespattered with mud, accompanied the police and, followed by several thousand persons, marched off to the station where they made "explanations."

Both Count Boni and the prince gave their own version of the quarrel, each claiming that the other was the aggressor, but the prince alone lodged a complaint, charging the brothers with assault.

A "process verbal" having been written out, according to the French law, the three men signed it and were before the public prosecutor, who will decide what, if any, steps shall be taken.

HART REPEATS CHARGES.

Says He Will Not Retract an Inch From Statements.

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the conclusion of the preliminaries in the hearing of Attorney Hart yesterday, the court announced the appointment of Former Governor C. S. Ives as a referee to take testimony and set March 1 as the date for the trial hearing.

Capt. Hart was given until Jan. 14 to prepare his testimony. Briefs are to be filed and Capt. Hart is given until the last moment to get his brief before the court.

Ell Southworth, secretary of the state board of law examiners, and the chief prosecutor, occupied a seat at a table to the left of the room, and had as aides Edward Loos of Winona, and P. J. McLaughlin, representing the bar association.

Capt. Hart repeated his charges, declaring that he would not retreat an inch and announced that he was ready to defend his position as consistently became a citizen and an attorney.

When the annual report of the city engineer is presented to the council and made public this month, it will show that for the improvement of its streets, their grading and paving and the repairs to the sewer systems on such streets as were improved, Duluth has spent during the year 1907 almost $200,000, divided as shown in the table above. The amount of work done is a conclusive indication that Duluth is progressive in the upbuilding of the city. Most of the work done is outside of the business district of the city, was applied for by petition of resident property holders, and the citizens paid the cost.

The grading and paving of Ramsey and Oneota streets, between Forty-sixth and Fifty-fifth avenues west, of Jefferson street, between Thirteenth and Twenty-second avenues east, and of Twenty-fourth avenue east, between Superior and Sixth streets, were the biggest contracts. All of the thoroughfares named were graded and paved with tar macadam, the favorite material for paving in Duluth.

The contract at Twenty-fourth avenue west was a big one and the amount stated does not fully cover the cost. The high bluff, which intervened between Superior and First streets at that point, was cut through in order to open the avenue. The entire avenue was graded and paved, street railway tracks were laid and the work made possible the long desired street railway loop, the completion of which could only be brought about by the laying of a line between Superior and Fourth streets.

The paving of Ramsey and Oneota streets, the most expensive undertaking of the lot, was completed in less time than any contract of similar magnitude in the city. The contract was not awarded to Contractor McDonnell until September, and, with a heavy force of men at work every day, the nine blocks were graded and paved in approximately sixty days.

The improvement of Jefferson street was also a big contract and made that thoroughfare one of the finest residence streets in the city.

Fourth avenue west was paved in anticipation of the erection of the new courthouse on the site at the corner of First street and Fourth avenue west. Sandstone blocks were used between Michigan and First streets, and cedar blocks from First street to Second street. Lake avenue was paved with sandstone blocks, and in all of the other work tar macadam was used.

Although last year saw a large amount of work completed, the street improvements planned for this year, if carried out, will mean a much larger expenditure of money by property holders. Among the streets, the improvement of which is contemplated, are the following: Raleigh street, Central avenue to Grand avenue; Grand avenue, Fifty-fifth to Fifty-eighth avenues west; Oneota, Jenswold and Superior streets, between Twenty-fifth and Forty-sixth avenues west; Fourth street, between Mesaba avenue and Sixth avenue east; Third street, Lake avenue to Eighteenth avenue east; Second street, betwen Fifth and Thirtenth avenues east; Sixth street, between Cascade park, Lake avenue and Woodland avenue intersection near Twenty-first aveue east.

Packing Companies Will Not be Allowed to Cut in the Bay.

Edict of Health Department Will Cause Heavier Expense.

The nine wholesale dealers in meats, who do business in Duluth and operate branch storage houses here, will find their items of expense for ice for refrigerator purposes boosted from $200 to $300 each this year, as the result of an order issued by the health department, which calls upon them to secure their ice for refrigerator purposes from some place other than the bay.

Heretofore it has been the custom of the packing companies to have their ice cut in the slips at the bay shore, with a short haul and at a minimum cost. It was thought the proceeding was perfectly sanitary, because the meats did not come in direct contact with the ice, or the water from the ice, but the health department has decided that the air in the refrigerators is contaminated by the impure ice and the pure article must be used in the future. The air circulates through the ice and meat and is likely to contaminate the latter.

The order makes it obligatory on the packing companies to secure their ice out in the open lake, or at Spirit Lake. If in the former, the haul is increased from twenty to thirty blocks, and if in Spirit Lake, they must have their cut transported by train.

The ice companies have been making their winter harvest at Spirit Lake for some weeks past, and their houses are filling rapidly. The surface of the lake was frozen over with the first cold weather, and the ice is much thicker there than it is on the bay. The demands, which the packing companies will make on Spirit Lake will keep the cutters there busy for several weeks to come. The companies were preparing to make their annual cut on the bay shore, but the edict of the health department will probably make their contracts call for the cutting at Spirit Lake, unless they are content to wait until the lake outside of the point freezes over.

THE RECORD IS BROKEN

The Lake Superior Car Service association handled 10,774 more cars during the month of December, 1906, than in December, 1907, showing a remarkable falling off in freight shipments as compared with the same season in 1906.

The total for the year in 1907, however, broke all records. The total number of cars handled by the association last month was 29,470, while in December, 1906, the total was 40,244.

Every other month but one during 1907 showed an increase in the number of cars handled as compared with the same period during the preceding year. Even November showed an increase. Businesses fell off to such an extent that it became evident early in December that the showing for the month would be a poor one. Shipments still are rather light, and in all probability the January total will be below the record for last January.

The total for the year 1907 was 44,330 cars greater than for the preceding year. The 1906 record was 371,312 cars, while the total for last year was 415,642 cars. This is the best year on record. The increase was principally in shipments of building material and coal, although a general increase was shown in all kinds of shipments, particularly of that class of goods handled by the local wholesalers and jobbers. Following are the totals by months for the two years:

January	29,057	27,742
February	22,879	24,825
March	25,537	31,416

EXCESSIVE RATES.

State Commission Will Investigate Charges Against Great Northern.

The state railway and warehouse commission will hold a meeting at the Spalding hotel, Jan. 14, to hear charges preferred against the Great Northern road by Northern Minnesota tie shippers. It is believed the meeting will be adjourned to a later date before the testimony is taken.

Shippers claim that the road discriminates in shipping rates on ties against producers in favor of brokers; that it forces sales by producers to the road by charging them excessive freight rates, and that it charges prohibitive freight rates on wood for fuel. J. W. Reynolds is acting as attorney for the shippers.

It is charged that the railroad pays the market price on ties to brokers, and about 25 per cent less to producers, and charges a freight rate so excessive that the producers must sell to the line or its brokers at whatever price they choose to pay. The claim is made that rates on wood shipped over the Great Northern are so high as to be prohibitive.

CLOSES OFFICES.

Portage, Wis., Jan. 3. — The Chicago, & St. Paul company, today, abandoned its telegraph stations, the new state eight-hour law taking effect on the first of this month, at the following places: Nashotah, Ixonia, Watertown, Marshall, Windsor, Arlington, Poyrette, Richwood, Elba, Fall River, Doylestown, Wyocena, Lyndon, West, Melvina, Westby and Cashton. Additional operators will be put on at wages ranging from $55 to $60 at West Allis, Duplainville, Oconomowoc, Watertown Junction, Hubbleton, Waterloo, Sun Prairie, Reesville, Raymore, Sparta, Bangor, West Salem, Medary and North La Crosse.

Ask Increase in Wages.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 3.—General Manager Higgins of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company was yesterday visited by a joint committee of railroad conductors and trainmen asking for an increase in wages. The committee also alleged violation of the agreement in regard to making the runs of the men so far as possible, convenient to their places of residence and also alleged imposition of duties as baggage men and trainmen on the conductors.

Their Wages Cut.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Effective at once, the wages of the section men in the employ of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad have been cut to $1.50 per day. The former scale was $1.75. The reduction is in keeping with the general tendency in Upper Michigan to scale down operating expenses. Manual labor in all lines has been affected, particularly in the way of work in the woods.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Judge Norman W. Haire, having been mentioned as a candidate for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention in opposition to James MacNaughton, general manager of the extensive properties of the Calumet & Hecla Copper Mining company, he has made the announcement that he is not an aspirant for the honor, and that the suggestion of his name was without his knowledge, consent or authorization.

WOULD HIE TO ITALY

Must Give $1,000 Bond or Wait in County Jail.

Srapeus has his ticket purphased for a trip to the old country, and is under the tremendous expense of paying 15 cents per day storage charges for his trunk now in the baggage room at the union depot.

He does not wish to be detained any longer under this expense and, what is more, Srapeus declares that unless he can give his testimony right away, he will go back to Italy anyway, subpoena or no subpoena.

County Attorney Norton heard about it.

He had an idea that Srapeus could be induced to stay.

With an interpreter in tow the county attorney headed the procession before the district court and explained matters to Judge Cant. The court asked a few questions. Srapeus was as positive as ever that he would take the next train for New York to catch a boat for Italy.

"I think this witness should be locked up," declared Mr. Norton.

The court then held Srapeus as a witness in the assault case in question and fixed his bond at $1,000, with good securities, in default of which he was remanded to the county jail.

Srapeus will be here when the case is called for trial.

A Cure for Misery.

"I have found a cure for the misery malaria poison produces," says R. M. James, of Loudlen, S. C. "It's called Electric Bitters, and comes in 50-cent bottles. BIG MILL STARTS UP

Akeley Happy Over Resumption by Red River Lumber Co.

Market Again Offered Farmers for Sawlogs and Lath Bolts.

Akeley, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Red River Lumber company began operations in part of the mills yesterday, and there is great rejoicing among the men and business people here. Only part of the mill is running, but a large number of men are at work. The company has also issued notice to the farmers and settlers that it will purchase all sawlogs and lath bolts at a fair price. This will greatly relieve the farmers at this time, who have a number of logs ready to sell, but could not sell them for a time.

Last year the wages ran to nearly $500,000 and the company employed over 600 men. Part of the box factory is also running, but not at its full capacity, nor is not likely to do so for some time. Several improvements have been made at the mills and some new machinery added.

SON OF INDIAN CHIEF KILLED

Walker, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of a New Year's revelry, murder was committed on the Indian reservation early Wednesday morning, the particulars reaching the Indian agent here yesterday. The murder occurred at the home of Shawwow-no-say at Sugar Point, where the Indian uprising occurred, in which thirteen whites were killed in 1897. The murdered man is Mayzhuc-ka-way-wedung, son of Chief Bug-a-we-gu-shig, head of the Bear Island and Sugar Point Indians, and he was killed with a club by Mayshquamequage. There were several witnesses to the murder. The county attorney, coroner and sheriff went to Sugar Point today to hold an inquest and bring the murderer to Walker. There is some speculation here as to whether the officers will meet opposition as the man accused of the murder has several brothers, as well as a large following of friends.

HIS SUMMONS SUDDEN.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Carlson, 24 years of age, died of heart disease at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave E. Carlson, on Eighteenth street, Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock. The young man had been working in a Carlton restaurant, but abandoned his work recently on account of ill health. Wednesday he went to Duluth to consult a doctor who realized that the unfortunate man had but a short time to live, and sent him back home immediately. Mr. Carlson arrived at 6:30 o'clock p. m. and went directly home. On his arrival he sat down in a nearby chair and suddenly collapsed. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Swedish Lutheran church.

FORTY UNION MEN ARE WORKING AT BRAINERD.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—About forty of the union boilermakers, apprentices and helpers returned to work Thursday in accordance with the agreement signed at St. Paul Monday. While the company did not discharge any of the non-union men, all but four quit work before the union men returned. It is expected that the rest of the boilermakers and their assistants, numbering about forty more, will be at work in a short time.

WANTED IN ILLINOIS.

Cooperstown, N. D., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—An officer from Illinois has arrived after Frank L. Graham, recently arrested here on the charge of burglary. He is said to have been identified as William A. Tracy, alias William A. Thompson, who is alleged to have been implicated in a bank robbery at Odin, Ill., in 1905, and to have left the state while out on bail.

GOV. WARNER WILL ATTEND BIG BALL

Michigan Executive and Staff Will be at Marquette Affair.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 3. — (special to The Herald.) — Governor Fred M. Warner, accompanied by four officers of the Michigan National Guard, will attend as guests of honor the Lake Shore Engine works' charity ball to be given this evening in machinery hall, the largest of the buildings at the new plant.

The governor was at the Soo yesterday and left today for Ishpeming, where he is scheduled to arrive at 4 p. m. today. He will come to Marquette this evening on a special train to be run for the convenience of Ishpemingites, who desire to attend the ball.

The officers with the governor are: Gen. Carl A. Wagner of Port Huron, inspector general of the M. N. G.; Col. Robert Bates of the Soo, commanding the Third Regiment, M. N. G.; Col. W. H. Theilman of Calumet, assistant inspector general of the M. N. G.; Col. A. N. Cox of Calumet, assistant adjutant general of the M. N. G. In the afternoon a committee of Marquette citizens will go to Ishpeming and will escort the governor and his party to the ball.

NAME DISTRICT DELEGATES TO DENVER CONVENTION.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 3.—The Wisconsin Democrats will hold a state convention in Milwaukee on Feb. 13 and 14, for the purpose of nominating district delegates and delegate-at-large to the national convention at Denver, Colo. This was decided upon last night.

There will be twenty-two district delegates and four delegates-at-large. The district delegates will be nominated in caucus and ratified by the convention, and the delegates-at-large will be nominated by the convention. The delegates thus agreed upon in convention will go before the people at the primary election, and will be elected without opposition.

COL. BATES PROMOTED.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Warner, while here, announced that he would appoint Col. Robert J. Bates of this city, to succeed Big. Gen. Charles W. Harrah of Detroit, in command of the Michigan National Guard brigade. Harrah's term expires in a few weeks, and Col. Bates, at present, commands the Third regiment of the brigade.

Woodsman of Iron County is Slain by Two Companions.

Wilson, Wis., Jan. 3.—While on his way back to camp from a roadhouse, John Levi, a woodsman, employed in the woods between here and Manitowish, was murdered. He had been drinking with two companions in the saloon, and the three became involved in an argument. While on his way back to camp he was attacked by two men, one of whom struck him on the head, rendering him unconscious. He died shortly after.

CATCHES HORNED OWL.

Bird Had Been Preying Upon Flock of Wild Geese.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Jan. 3.—D. M. Huntington, who makes a specialty of a zoo at his home in the First ward, suffered the loss of a flock of wild geese recently and was at a loss to know how they were killed. He set four traps about the remains. On the second night he was successful in securing a fine specimen of a horned owl, beautifully marked. He has the owl on exhibition in his store. It is one of the largest specimens ever caught in this city. Its beak is certainly wicked appearing, but the weapon of greatest danger, as Mr. Huntington found, was the extremely sharp and powerful talons. One of these was stuck clear through a part of his finger, and so strong was the grip, that it was with the greatest difficulty that it was extracted without tearing off a large portion of the flesh.

HE WINS WIDOW'S LOVE, ALSO GETS INTO TROUBLE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 3.—Charged with assuming the name of a former chum who died in Pasadena, Cal., some years ago, Michael Lehner, alias Elmer Solon, made love to pretty Olga Prust, a widow, who keeps a confectionery store at 26 Locust street, with the result that he induced her to part with $325 left her by her husband. Lehner spent the money, it is alleged, in riotous living here and in Chicago, and in addition helped himself to silverware and various articles belonging to the widow, which were part of her outfit, on a promise to marry her. When he attempted to secure money from her after refusing to give up the sum secured first, she became suspicious and notified the police.

Lehner is married, having a wife living in Michigan whom he married two years ago say the police.

W. U. COMPANY GIVES IN.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 3.—The Western Union Telegraph company, after a protracted fight in the courts, which is still pending, has filed its articles of incorporation to do business in the state. The filing fee was $603. The company refused to obey the law requiring all foreign corporations doing business in the state, to file articles, and the attorney general began proceedings in $500 forfeiture under the act.

MEDICAL SOCIETY MEET.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first meeting of the Houghton County Medical society in 1908 will be held Jan. 6 at the Douglass house, Houghton, when papers on the following subjects will be read:

"Carcinomea of Ancreas," with report of cases by Dr. H. M. Joy of Calumet; discussion opened by Dr. N. S. McDonald of Quincy, and Dr. W. K. West of Painesdale. "Early Diagnosis of Tuberculosis," by Dr. R. B. Harkness of Houghton; discussion opened by Dr. J. E. Scallon of Hancock, and Dr. L. W. Childs of Baltic.

FARGO BANK CLEARINGS.

Those for Past Year Show Large Gain Over 1906.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Fargo bank clearings for the month of December, 1907, were $2,797,705.90, as against $2,825,264.06 for December of 1906, which is a loss of $75,058.16. However, the year of 1907 shows a great gain over the year 1906, which is another added proof of the increased business of the city. For 1906 the total clearings were $26,268,269.52, while for the year 1907 the clearings amounted to $28,677,746.70, which is a gain of $2,409,497.18. This increase is one of the largest in the history of the city.

FORTUNE FOR EACH

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. C. Downey, a Boston lawyer, has been in Ontonagon county securing information relative to the late Patrick Kiley, who died a short time ago in Fargo, N. D., leaving a fortune estimated at $125,000. Mr. Downey has left for Fargo to complete the settlement of the estate.

The estate is left to the daughters of Mr. Kiley's sister, Mrs. Quann of Greenland, now dead. She leaves five daughters, three of whom live at Greenland and two at Ontonagon. The division of the estate will give these ladies $25,000.

STATE SANATORIUM READY.

Walker, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state sanatorium for consumptives, located near Walker, is ready to receive patients. It was hoped that the institution would be open many weeks ago, but there has been a protracted delay in completing the water and sewer systems. This work is not yet entirely finished, but water is supplied to the main buildings. Circulars regarding the sanatorium have been sent out to all the physicians of Minnesota.

HESSEL POSTOFFICE BURNS.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 3.—Fire destroyed the postoffice and Fenelon Brothers' store at Hessel, thirty-six miles south of this city. All the postoffice books and mail were destroyed, and the loss was $15,000 with $5,000 insurance. The town has no fire department.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

St. Paul—Harry Nelson, 11 years of age, had both bones of his left arm broken Wednesday evening while coasting on a hill at Cook street and Payne avenue. The boy was taken to his home where he was attended by Dr. J. Edwin E. Orlander. The arm was broken between the wrist and elbow.

North Branch—Potato buyers in North Branch have had a more active market during the first part of the week, and the month of January will probably be a busy one. The prices range about as follows: Rose, 30c to 35c; Burbanks, 35c to 37c; Ohio, 40c to 45c.

Isanta—Henry Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson who live east of this village, died at Helena, Mont., Sunday morning, after an illness of four weeks with typhoid fever and pneumonia.

Preston—There were seventy-eight carloads of 12,480 barrels of apples shipped from Fillmore county this year and fully a third more were kept for home use. These figures are compiled from shipments from the different stations in the county, and this is only the beginning.

Crookston—Mrs. Rufus W. Hitchcock of Hibbing, accompanied by her little daughter, Jean, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. D. Stephens, having arrived Monday evening. Mr. Hitchcock and Paul joined them Thursday and they will all return home Friday.

Moorhead—The announcement is made that the business and plant of the Moorhead Independent has changed hands, A. P. Messer, who has had the management for some time, retired and his interest has been purchased by J. H. Freeman of Fargo, and the latter assumes charge at once.

Bemidji—L. G. Pendergast of this city, who was recently appointed as custodian of the old state capitol building in St. Paul, to succeed Col. Trowbridge, deceased, departed Thursday morning for St. Paul to enter upon the duties of custodian.

Winona—Mrs. Huldah Van Gorder committed suicide at the home of her mother at Bluff Siding, by shooting. Temporary derangement is supposed to have caused her act.

Little Falls—The newspaper publishers of Morrison county held their annual meeting at Little Falls. The following officers were elected: President, C. D. Auyer, Little Falls; vice president, A. Frost, Swanville; secretary and treasurer, P. J. Vasaly, Little Falls.

Fergus Falls—Passenger train No. 6, eastbound on the Great Northern, crashed into the rear of a freight at Ashby, twenty miles south of this city, Tuesday. The engine crashed into the rear of the freight and two cabooses were demolished. Neither was occupied. The wreckage took fire, but the blaze was soon extinguished.

Winona — Congressman Tawney announces the appointment of Marcellus C. Shields of Winona, a student in the law course of the University of Minnesota, to the position of assistant clerk of the committee on appropriations.

Crookston—Hereafter all the stores in Crookston will close at 6:30 every night till about April 15, when the spring business starts. Practically every store in the city will follow this rule strictly, and a signed agreement will be published in a few days.

SUFFERED WITH ECZEMA 25 YEARS

Limb Peeled and Foot Was Like Raw Flesh—Had to Use Crutches, and Doctors Thought Amputation Necessary — Montreal Woman Writes of Cure Seven Years Ago.

BELIEVES LIFE SAVED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, "Try them if you like, but I do not think they will do any good." At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Pills. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use it for his own patients. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Ointment, and five bottles of Resolvent, and I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I have lots of grandchildren, and they are frequent users of Cuticura, and I always recommend it to the many people whom my business brings to my house every day. Mrs. Jean-Baptiste Renaud, clairvoyant, 277, Montana St., Montreal, Que., Feb. 20, 1907."

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Waukesha—Clarence L. Dillon of Milwaukee, has brought suit in the county court against the Milwaukee railway for $25,000 damages. While standing on the platform at Hartland, July 22, last, he was struck by the body of a large dog which was hit by the Pioneer limited and hurled through the air.

Prairie Du Chien—James Crawford, a farmer, was instantly killed on a grade crossing by a Burlington limited Wednesday night while returning home from this city. His head was terribly crushed from the blow and his arms and legs broken in several places. He had been drinking, it is said.

Ripon—The women of the Congregational church have adopted a novel method of raising funds. Merchants and others have been requested to preserve old papers and calalogues, which the society will sell to paper mills. A considerable revenue is expected.

Kilbourn—Henry H. Bennett, noted as a photographer of the Wisconsin river dells, died, Wednesday morning, of Bright's disease, aged 64 years. He was known to thousands of people who met him at the dells.

Wausau—Another use for the automobile has been found. It is one that will prove attractive to all homesteaders. T. H. Jacob, an automobile agent, has devised an "automobile plow," which he is using to clear his sidewalks.

Jefferson—Petitions are being circulated here asking for the pardon of Edward Eckert, who is now serving a life sentence at Waupun for the murder of Ole Peterson, at Fort Atkinson, in 1879. Eckert has been in prison ever since the commission of the crime and during all of that time his conduct has been exemplary.

Calumet—The twenty-fifth anniversary of St. Joseph's Austrian society was celebrated Wednesday. Headed by the Calumet & Hecla and the Tamarack bands a number of Slovenian-Croatian societies accepted the invitation of the St. Joseph's society and paraded the principal streets of Red Jacket.

Hancock—There was a total of 141 deaths in Hancock during the year 1907. About twenty-five of that number were old residents of this city. There was also a number who were brought to Hancock from other towns in this part of the peninsula for treatment and who passed away at the hospital.

Calumet—Some time between 4 and 6 o'clock Monday morning the day book used by Shea Bros., the liverymen, for the purpose of posting their business was stolen from the office in the barn on Fifth street.

Marquette — Miss Alice Stoyle, stepdaughter of C. M. Welland, and L. S. Parry were married New Year's eve by Rev. Father Joseph Pinten. The bride is a popular Marquette girl and the groom has a wide circle of friends. He is a brakeman on the South Shore. The couple will make their home on Baraga avenue.

Calumet—Louis Blumenthal, a former resident of Ishpeming, who has conducted a novelty store at Calumet the past year or more, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with B. O. Pearl of Marquette, referee in bankruptcy. Mr. Blumenthal's liabilities are said to be $2,300 and his assets $1,200.

Negaunee — Joseph Gaborie, who conducts one of the big boarding houses at Princeton, has left for Colorado, in response to a telegram announcing the death of his oldest son, Albert, who had been in the West about a year, having been employed at a gold property.

Marquette—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Greene, who since their marriage here last July have lived at Chickasha, Okla., have returned to the city and will remain here until Mr. Greene recovers from a serious attack of illness with which he is suffering.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Yankton, S. D.—John Cap, employed at the Western Portland Cement company's plant, was killed here. He became entangled in a belt which he was laying and was hurled to death. Cap was a stranger here, and his home is said to be in Omaha.

Pierre, S. D.—The state treasury has called for $105,000 of outstanding state general fund warrants, making calls of more than $150,000 within the past thirty days. There are yet outstanding about $300,000 of these warrents, which are being carried at 7 per cent.

Spearfish, S. D.—While attempting to cross a small creek near his home late at night George Mann, known as "Bishop Mann," fell in and was unable to extricate himself. Pedestrians next morning found the body stiff and cold, and it is believed that exposure caused Mann's death.

Fargo, N. D.—In the $5,000 damage suit of Henry Otteson against the Northern Pacific railroad in the federal court, Judge Amidon directed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant railroad. Otteson fell into a cinder pit at the Northern Pacific round house in this city and was scalded by some boiling water in the bottom of the pit.

Bismarck, N. D.—County Auditor Healey has received instructions from the county commissioners to notify all county officials that after Feb. 1 they must maintain their offices at the court house, as the county will no longer pay for rental of rooms outside.

BECOMES FATHER AT 87.

New York, Jan. 3.—At the age of 87, Jean Henri Thiry of Long Island City, has just become the father of his sixth child. It is a girl. This is the fourth child Mr. Thiry has had by his second wife, whom he married in 1888. The others were born in 1900, 1901 and 1903, and all but one are living. Mrs. Thiry is 31 years old. By his first wife, who died in 1886, Thiry had two other sons, one of whom is 54 years old and the other 53.

Mr. Thiry was born in Belgium and came to this country in 1839. He is an authority on educational matters and founded in this country the system of public-school savings banks, which now have deposits aggregating $15,000,000.

He is a member of the National Educational association and secretary of the local school board of Long Island City.

RICH GOLD VEIN BARED.

Robert Fife Uncovers Bonanza in the Cascade Mountains.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 3.—Robert Fife, prospector, has come into his own. He made a strike of rich gold ore on the mineral claim near Bear Gap, in the Cascade mountains, west of Spokane, and experts believe he has uncovered a bonanza. The vein is five inches wide and of unknown depth. The ore resembles the Goldfield product, so much so that when eighteen sacks were offered at a Western Washington smelter the manager declared it had been stolen from a mine in Nevada, and would not buy it.

The find was made after fifteen years of hard work, and when Fife had about made up his mind to abandon the claim on which he spent the best years of his life. Test of the ore at the smelter showed an average of $8 a pound, or $16,000 a ton in gold. The property will be developed by Fife and the three miners who worked with him, and it is expected to clean up several fortunes in the next few years.

Robert Fife and his father, with several pack horses and provisions to last three months, started into the Cascades to prospect fifteen years ago. Years of exposure and hard work finally broke down the elder Fife's health, and he died in the lonely hut on the mountain side. The grade of the ore in the Fife mine was not high enough to pay for transportation and smelting until the rich vein was struck a short time ago. After working the vein several days, Fife loaded eighteen sacks of the ore into a wagon and drove to Tacoma with a six-horse team. He tried to dispose of the ore at the smelter to get enough money to buy supplies for the winter. Because the ore resembled that found in the Goldfield district, the smelter authorities believed it had been stolen and would not handle it. A smelter employe, who did not share this opinion, followed the wagon some distance through the city, but lost the trail. From the smelter it was taken to the home of one of the men interested in the property and boxed. Later it was shipped and sold. The mystery surrounding the ore was cleared a few days ago when Fife told of his strike.

COUPLE OF MILLION

Added by Rockefeller to Gifts to University of Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Martin A. Ryerson, president of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago, announced yesterday that John D. Rockefeller has added 2,191,000 to his gifts to the university, making the total of his benefactions over $23,000,000. It is also reported that the head of the Standard Oil company has offered to treble all contributions to the memorial library which the university is trying to erect in honor of William H. Harper its first trustee. Trustees have aleady received $135,000 for this purpose and hope to add $65,000 to this sum, so that with Mr. Rockefeller's contribution, and $300,000 structure may be erected on the campus.

The gift announced today, like most of those preceding it from the same source is to be devoted mainly to general endowment purposes.

BUILDINGS ARE READY

The Pupils Will Resume Studies After Holidays, on Monday.

When the public schools reopen after the Christmas vacation, next Monday morning, the new Madison school on Garfield avenue and the rebuilt Franklin building on the hillside will go into commission.

Last spring fire destroyed the old frame Madison building, and since that time most of the pupils of the district have been attending the Adams. Now the new brick Madison is completed. A carload of seats for the class rooms arrived this morning and they will be installed at once, to be in readiness for the optning of the building Monday morning.

Fire also partially destroyed the Franklin school in the fall. Workmen were immediately set at the task of restoration, and now the building is ready to receive pupils once more. While there may be still few more things to be done to the building, the pupils of the district will be sent there Monday.

The pupils of the Franklin district have been attending the Nettleton school, also on the hillside, which was finished last spring. The return of the Franklin youngsters to their own home will mean the establishment of the new Nettleton district. The structure was erected to relieve the congestion in the Washington and Franklin districts, but the blaze at the Franklin upset the plans of the board. The reopening of the Franklin will considerably relieve the situation now.

The teachers who have been spending the holidays out of the city are beginning to return and by Saturday and Sunday they will all be back, in readiness to resume their labors Monday morning. Whether the kids, who have been having a high old time on the hills and on the skating ponds, will be ready to return to their books is a question. It will be decided for them, however, and the chances are that most of them will be among those present when the last bell rings.

While the second term of the school year begins next week, the classes are not promoted until the beginning of the second semester, which comes three weeks after the reopening of school.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of education will be held at the high school tomorrow evening. It is expected, however, that most of the business will be of a routine nature.

HEIRS OF MAN WHO HID KING

Sought in Order That They May Receive an Annuity.

London, Jan. 3.—Search is being made for the heir to an annuity granted a farmer named Pendrell, who sheltered Charles II, after the disastrous battle of Worcester. "Honest Richard Pendrell" was the Staffordshire farmer who, with his four brothers, risked death at the hands of the Roundheads by dressing King Charles II as a peasant and secreting him among the foliage of an oak tree—famous as "the Boscobel oak"—while the soldiers searched vainly for him at its foot. Upon his return to power he rewarded his preservers, and incidentally wreaked a subtle vengeance upon his enemies, by taxing certain Roundhead lands to produce an annuity of $500 for Richard Pendrell and his descendants.

Preserved in the archives of the Record office is the original document of King Charles, granting the annuity. It bears the "Great Seale" of the king, and is headed, "Annuity to ye Pendrells." From those distant times the king's annuity has come down through seven generations, and a recent motion before the courts pronounced it to be perpetual. In the year 1859 two persons were sharing it. But, desiring a substantial sum to take them abroad, they sold their life interests in the king's grant. One of the two, Robert Maclaren, is still alive—an old man of 80 years. The other, James Whithington, who left England in 1860, completely disappeared. As, at the present time, he would be over 90 years of age, it is assumed that he is dead, and the solicitors are now searching for his son—if he had one.

Hume thus describes Richard Pendrell, the first beneficiary, and his service to King Charles: "The man had dignity of sentiments much above his condition; and though death was denounced against all who concealed the king, and a great reward promised to any one who should betray him, he professed and maintained unshaken fidelity. Having clothed the king in a garb like their own, they (the Pendrell brothers) led him into the neighboring wood, put a bill into his hand, and pretended to employ themselves in cutting fagots. Some nights he lay upon straw in the house, and fed on such homely fare as it afforded. For a better concealment he mounted upon an oak, where he sheltered himself among the leaves and branches for twenty-four hours. He saw several soldiers pass by."

INCORRUPTIBLE ENGLISH POLICE

Case of American Automobilist Who Tried to Bribe Cop.

London, Jan. 3.—Has England an incorruptible police force? The question has been raised by the recent experience of Nelson Darborough, the American who was fined $300 at the Guildford assizes the other day for offering a bribe to an English cop who refused it.

Readers will remember that Darborough was stopped in his automobile on a country road near London by the bobby who declared the limit of twenty miles had been exceeded. The motorist gave his name and address, but said the matter was a trifling one and suggested that the policeman forget it. He also showed a little gold $2.50 piece, but the policeman's eyes didn't twinkle worth a cent. So the American dropped the coin in the roadway, pointed to it and drove on.

The lawyer who defended him made matters worse by telling the court that Mr. Darborough did not realize that British policemen were more virtuous than the American variety, and that he acted as he did under a pardonable misapprehension. There is nothing a British jury and a British judge like better than proving that all English institutions are superior to all other institutions and they promptly proceed to prove this to Mr. Darborough, by fining him $300, the judge adding insult to injury by ordering that he be locked up until the fine was paid.

Regarding the matter seriously, though, Mr. Darborough did make a mistake and perhaps the mistake was a natural one. The British policeman will always take a tip and he does not disdain a tip of a few cents for a service rendered. If you ask him to direct you to the next street he would not be averse to accepting 1c cents for the service, but as a rule he is honest and unbribable where his duty is concerned. Of course, there are exceptions, but they are few and far between.

We have put the best of all laxatives into the best possible form. That is all. Cascarets bring their results in a natural and gentle way.

Here is a dainty habit—
To keep the bowels clean.
Do it just the same as you keep your skin clean. Not by severe applications, applied at rare intervals. But by gentle and regular efforts.
It pays immensely.

Many people dread physic.
They think of castor oil, of salts, and cathartics.
They shrink from the after-effects—griping and weakness.
So they postpone the dose until they are costive or bilious. Then they do the cleaning in a heroic way.
That is all wrong.

Cascarets are a gentle laxative. They are just as effective as anything else, and more natural.
And they are pleasant—a candy.
They are made to carry with you. Take one just as soon as you need it. You'll know.
The result is your bowels are always active. You always feel at your best.
Try it. You'll never again go without them.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and

THE QUARANTINE QUESTION.

Dr. Webster Comments on State Board of Health's Action.

To The Editor of The Herald:

The question of quarantine of smallpox patients, to my mind, is one of considerable importance to the public. There is no one who believes more thoroughly than myself in the protection afforded by vaccination against the ravages of this disease, but there are a large number of people who do not see or at least shut their eyes to the convincing evidence which statistics furnish as to the efficacy of vaccination in preventing and modifying this foul disease. Now, because a man is, through incapacity or indifference, not able to comprehend the benefits to be derived from this great boon to ma. mooctions- bbec.e....$6??..... 8du mankind, he puts himself in the position of a minor or a feeble-minded in the eyes of the law, and it seems to me that the law was made for the express purpose of protecting those who are incapable of protecting themselves. We are believers in the statement if all people would become Christians and live up to the teachings of the Christian religion there would be no crimes committed. No, according to the methods adopted by the state board of health, it is in order for the state to suspend the law against crime because people have the cure in their own hands and will not use it. The absurdity of the position of Dr. Bracken I think is plain and his action looks to me more like petulance than wisdom.

I understand Dr. Murray claims the only question involved is the effectiveness of the quarantine which he claims is impossible to make absolute. There is no doubt that a few cases do escape detection and spread the contagion in this way, but the same thing happens with all the other contagious diseases and, therefore, similar arguments will apply with equal force. To my way of thinking a half loaf is better than no bread and even a quarantine that is only partially effective must protect a large portion of a community. There is no doubt that a suspension of the quarantine will give fresh activity to vaccination, and if all could be induced to enter the fold the disease would soon be wiped off the face of the earth, but a large portion of the people refuse and so I am back to my first proposition, that this class must be protected against themselves. This, I believe, is the fundamental basis of all law and to destroy this is to establish a dangerous precedent. Yours, etc.

NEW WAY OF DEPORTING

Taken by Train to Border Because Boat Stops Running.

Because the harbor at Port Arthur, a Canadian port, is frozen over, preventing any more lake boats from landing there this winter, United States Immigrant Inspector Frank W. Heath left this morning for Ranier, Minn., by rail, with three Austrians brought in on the steamship Moore and ordered returned to Canada on account of their being afflicted with trachoma, a contagious disease of the eyes.

The men in question, Peter Zuvela, Mike Gugie and Ivan Erecgar, were members of a party of twelve Austrians, who came from Port Arthur. Nine of the men were allowed to land and go on their way, but the other three were found to be diseased, and therefore could not be permitted to enter the country. The Booth company, proprietors of the boat, explained that the vessel would make no more trips to Canadian ports this winter.

Local immigration authorities had never been up against just this kind of a proposition before, and United States Immigrant Inspector William H. Dean, in charge of the local office, wired to Montreal, head of the district, for instructions, meantime holding the diseased aliens. He was told to detail an officer to take the Austrians to Canada by rail, and turn them loose across the border. That is what Inspector Heath is doing today.

If the Canadian authorities knew the unwelcome visitors were headed for the border, they probably would offer some objections to their crossing the Rainy river and entering the Dominion, but there isn't much chance of the officials knowing anything about it until the delivery has been accomplished. As the Austrians are not citizens of Canada, they might question the right of the United States to return them there.

The law that diseased aliens shall not be allowed to land in the United States is very clear, however, and there seemed nothing for the immigration authorities to do but to order the deportation of the Austrians. The instructions sent by wire from Montreal did not specify the town to which the aliens should be taken, and Ranier was selected as being the nearest point on the boundary. Mr. Heath and his charges left over the Missabe road this morning, and from Virginia will go over the Rainy Lake road to Ranier.

He expects to take the men from there to Fort Francis, a Canadian town situated just across the river from International Falls, Minn. A bus line connects International Falls and Ranier.

Why I Lost My Job.

Reasons Why Thousands Like Me Cannot Satisfy Their Employers.

"I believe my fate is not unlike that of thousands of other workers who daily lose their places for reasons they do not know, and probably would not believe. When their last pay envelope comes along, it is usually "Your services no longer required." If the truth were known, the reason for their unceremonious removal would probably be that their usefulness was destroyed because of some mental worry, bodily ailment or general indisposition. These things, as we all know, are the most fruitful causes of failure in all walks of life. The battle of Waterloo was lost because of a headache. In this quick age our minds must be clear, rapid, active, and free from outside influence or worry, or else we go down to failure with the throng of "floaters" who go from one place of employment to another, giving no satisfaction to others or to themselves, constantly growing older and less useful, with no ambition, no will power, and no hope.

Every man requires from every other man the best that is in him. But no man can use or get the best that is in himself until he is first free from all fretful indispositions and worries.

That was my trouble. I was full of troubles. That's why I lost my job. My stomach in the first place was always out of order, and I was worrying about it and my mind grew cloudy, and slow. I made mistakes, and grew grouchy. That was the end.

There are thousands like me, going about with "quick lunch" faces, dyspeptic manners, and repulsive atmospheres. No employer wants such men's services.

Take my advice. A healthy stomach is half the battle, for it keeps your mind clear, and your face rosy. I have a healthy stomach now and hold a good position, and my employer is satisfied, and so am I.

I started in to take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which I was told were good for the worst cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. The first two tablets made a wonderful difference in my condition.

One ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digests 3,000 grains of food. The stomach doesn't have to work at all. The Tablets do all the work, no matter how heavy your meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure brash, eructations, burning sensations, bloat, irritations, loss of appetite, nausea, heartburn, lack of energy, loss of memory, and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry them around with you wherever you go and take them regularly after meals. Then you will realize what it is to be freed from stomach torment, and have a clear mind, a quick memory, a happy disposition, comfort and rest. Get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store for 50 cents a package.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

GUILD IS INDUCTED

As Governor of Massachusetts for His Third Term.

Message Deals With the Enforcement of Corporation Law.

Boston, Jan. 3.—Curtis Guild, Jr. was inaugurated today for a third term as governor of Massachusetts. The oath having been administered, Governor Guild and Lieutenant Governor Draper, the former, proceeded to read his inaugural address, in part, as follows:

"The need of today is peace, and peace with honor—peace between nations, comity between states, good temper as well as honesty between individuals. We must enforce, we have enforced the law, whether those who encroach upon its purposes are corporations or individuals. We must control, we have controlled great public service corporations. The alternation of such control is not individualism, but socialism. If, however, there is a year when it is particularly desirable to avoid reckless sensational onslaughts on property, shattering public confidence, curtailing commerce, checking investment, reducing alike the earnings of capital and the employment of labor, it is this year, 1908.

Transportation Problems.

The most serious question to be determined in this session is the settlement of transportation problems of Massachusetts. It should be taken up in a broad spirit, free from prejudice. Especially should a destructive policy be avoided carefully. It is not an exaggerated charge, but a simple statement of fact to say that no steam railroad operated in Massachusetts is giving the service that it should to the public. Delay in shipment of freight and a general tardiness of all trains has marked the service on all of our railroads.

"Existing law is inadequate to deal with public control of railroads. The Massachusetts railroad commission, in connection with public service corporations, should be clothed with ampler powers. It should at least be given the same control of railroads within Massachusetts that is given to the interstate commerce commission in regard to roads doing an interstate business."

PENSION DEERE EMPLOYES.

Will Provide for Men Who Serve Twenty Years.

Moline, Ill., Jan. 2.—Deere & Co., the largest manufacturers of steel plows in the world and employing 1,600 men, have announced the inauguration with the new year of a system for pensioning and insuring employes. Men who have been in the service of the company for twenty years may retire at the age of 65 on a pension ranging from $18 a month up.

STEAMER BELIEVED TO BE MOUNT ROYAL.

St. John, N. B., Jan. 2.—A steamer, thought to be the Canadian Pacific liner, Mount Royal, twenty-five days out from Antwerp for this port, with 304 immigrants aboard, was off Sable Island Monday, as reported by the steamer Lake Champlain, which arrived here last evening from Liverpool. The captain reports that when off Sable Island he passed a four-masted steamer about fifteen miles away on the same course, but moving slowly. No signals were seen. As Capt. Webster did not know of the anxiety about the Mount Royal, he did not attempt to identify the steamer he passed.

BIRD IS WORTH $5,000.

London, Jan. 3.—At the Cage Bird association's show, which has just opened in the Royal Horticultural hall, there is on exhibition a king bird of paradise, valued by the owner, C. T. Maxwell, at $5,000.

The bird is extremely rare, is found in New Guinea, and is a wonderful example of brilliant tropical color. Its back and head are of a warm, coppery red, shading from shade to shade, and it has curious little green wing feathers, which spread in flying at right angles to its body, and which reflect the light in a wonderful way. Beneath the copper-colored neck ruffle the bird has a second ruffle of velvety blackness, and even its feet are bright, being colored a light blue.

ELECTRIC SERVICE IN TUNNEL THROUGH ALPS.

Milan, Jan. 3.—While the engineering department of the state railways is occupying itself with the completion of the project of electrifying the well-known Mont Cenis tunnel, active experiments are being carried out on the Bussoleno-Modane stretch of this line with locomotives permitting the use of either coal or naphtha fuel. These locomotives, built in Munich, are of the five-axle coupled four-cylinder compound type, each capable of developing about 1,000 horse-power. Their dimensions are very large, and they consume less fuel, attain greater speed on the incline, and accomplish with ease the work of three of the type of locomotives hitherto in use on the line.

Refractory earth in small brick form is heated in the furnace, and a spray of naphtha vapor is then directed sideways upon it. On combustion the earth attains a very high temperature. The use of this naphtha fuel almost entirely overcomes the chief cause of annoyance on lines where tunnels are frequent, such as the one in question, as no smoke is given off, and chemical analysis of the surrounding atmosphere has proved the absence of obnoxious gases and other harmful elements. At present there are eighteen of these locomotives on the line, but this number will be shortly increased, and they will probably be employed on other lines in this country, in cases where the cost of electric traction is too high.

PRINCE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR DEBTS OF PRINCESS.

Brussels, Jan. 3.—Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg has made an official reply to the charge brought against him before the court of appeals of Brussels by the counsel of Princess Louise of Belgium, the prince's former wife, and a notorious spendthrift. Dr. Bacharach, a Vienna solicitor, has just written to the Belgian lawyer a letter on behalf of the prince, establishing "that the prince is in no way responsible for his former wife's debts, and all the more so as these debts have been contracted after the divorce had become a fact." "Moreover," says Dr. Bacharach, "the prince pays a yearly pension to the princess of 84,000 crowns, and she receives 50,000 francs a year from King Leopold. It, therefore, appears that the contention, according to which the princess is obliged to borrow money to live, is devoid of foundation."

MISS ALLEN TO WED TITLE.

Berlin, Jan. 2.—Miss Marjorie Allen, daughter of the millionaire Moline manufacturer, has bestowed her heart and hand on a European nobleman and bearer of the famous name of Count Eberhardt von Moltke, a grand nephew of the celebrated German field marshal. Miss Allen met the count while cruising with her parents on the Mediterranean last January. The couple fell in love at first sight.

SONS OF GEORGE C. BOWDEN.

Geo. C. Bowden, of Little Rock, Ark., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in his family for many years, and is seldom without it in the house. He says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proved a great relief to our boys in their throat and lung troubles. A few doses of it will ward off a threatened attack of croup, and a bad cold is quickly cured by its use. I take pleasure in recommending it." The prompt cures of colds and croups effected by this preparation, the fact that it can always be depended upon, is pleasant to take and contains no opium, chloroform or other objectionable drug, has made it a favorite with the parents of young children. When you have a cough or cold, try it and see for yourself what an excellent medicine it is. Price, 25 cents. Large size, 50 cents.

is the Columbia's January price on former $25 and $27 Overcoats and reductions of the same proportion can be had on every Man's Overcoat and Fur-lined Coat.

Under the heading of "Overcoats" we mean every overcoat in the store and exclude not a single garment, neither by tricky methods nor otherwise. Our reductions on cloth overcoats run up to $12.50 on a coat and everybody, especially the merchant tailor of this city, knows that there are real $40 and $50 overcoats at this store. Of course you wouldn't expect us to offer the choice of such a stock at $15 as others have done, because it would be so ridiculously ridiculous that we would forfeit all the confidence you now have in Columbia advertising.

Our overcoat stock is replete with the best from the Stein-Bloch, Sincerity and Mossler wholesale tailor shops and contains hundreds of coats marked $30 to $50 that no tailor could duplicate for less than $15 to $20 more

Former $50 Overcoats at	$37.50	Former $25 and $27 or $28 Coats at	$18.50
Former $45 Overcoats at	$33.00	Former $22.50 and $20 Coats at	$15.50
Former $40 Overcoats at	$30.00	Former $18 Overcoats at	$13.50
Former $35 Overcoats at	$25.00	Former $16.50 and $15 Coats at	$10.50
Former $30 Overcoats at	$22.00	Former $13.50 and $12.50 Coats at	$8.50
Former $10 Overcoats at	$7.00

Fur-Lined and Outside Fur Coats

If everybody didn't know that we had the only stock of fur-lined Coats in the city worthy of the name, we might produce some argument to prove it, but we don't have to.

The Coat that sells now at $110 is to be	$89	The Coat that sells now at $60 is to be	$48
The Coat that sells now at $100 is to be	$79	The coat heretofore marked $55 will be	$43
The Coat that sells now at $85 is to be	$66	$40 Fur-lined Coats will be sold for	$30
The Coat that sells now at $75 is to be	$59	Former $35 ones will have a green ticket marked	$26

ON HIGHER PRICED FUR-LINED COATS—Those from $125 to $300, we will quote special prices on application. If you are interested, ask our Mr. Hughson about them. On OUTSIDE FUR COATS, such as Russian calf, raccoon, kangaroo or dog coats, we will allow a general rebate of 20 cents on the dollar. That is, a $50 fur coat will be sold for $40 and so forth—in other words, "One-Fifth Off."

BURY THE HATCHET

Told to be More Tolerant of Each Other's Faults.

After airing their domestic troubles in the district court, Herman and Matilda Stebner, who reside on a farm in Hermantown, were each denied their respective petitions for a divorce and were advised by the court to bury the hatchet, overlook each other's shortcomings, be more tolerant in their treatment of each other, and endeavor to make their matrimonial path hereafter, free of the rough spots.

Trial of the action was started before Judge Cant, yesterday afternoon. Herman Stebner, a husky looking young farmer, under 30 years of age, filed the complaint in the case. He claimed that his wife, who is about the same age as himself, treated him in a cruel and inhuman manner, that she destroyed the provisions he took home to his family and threatened to poison him.

Mrs. Stebner answered the complaint with a counter claim of abusive treatment on her husband's part and demanded a divorce.

A number of witnesses were examined, but the evidence was weak as tending to corroborate the statements of each as to the alleged misconduct of the other.

At the conclusion of the testimony I. Grettum, attorney for Mrs. Stebner, with tears in his eyes and with his voice shaking with emotion, argued to the court that his client was a much abused woman and was entitled to a legal separation with her share of the property accumulated, but the court could not see it that way.

In passing judgment denying the petitions of the parties to the action Judge Cant took occasion to give them both some sound advice as to their future conduct.

The court said in part:

"These young people are about 28 or 29 years of age. Nothing has occurred that has seriously injured the health of either. They are each healthy and sturdy examples of a father and a mother. They have both transgressed some rules that should govern their personal conduct.

"The most to be made out of the evidence is that they have not gotten along well together. Neither has produced corroborative evidence on which the court could rely. It is not difficult to see how affairs came about as they have. They live but a few miles from the city, and, perhaps, looking on scenes of wealth they have become dissatisfied with their lot in life. Life in their present station, perhaps, did not look particularly rosy.

"Both have a lesson to learn and that is to stand by their condition in life and make the best out of it, no matter how unpleasant things may seem at times. The wife has admitted that she has something of a temper. Maybe she is somewhat jealous. The husband has been quite a transgressor and has done many things to excite her temper and jealousy. The husband should avoid saying things that cause her pain. If he continues drinking, if he continues talking to her about other women, if he continues to go to places of amusement without taking her or to places where she does not care to go, he will, no doubt, continue the trouble. He must be considerate of his wife's feelings.

"The wife, if she has a temper or a jealous disposition, should keep in mind the fact that her husband is not always perfect. She should be as broadminded as possible about these things.

"These people have two children. They should forget what has happened and go on living together with the determination to please each other in the future.

"You better both try the plan of helping yourselves by helping others."

At this point in the court's remarks Mr. Grettum stated that his client would never go back to Stebner, that she ought to be granted a divorce.

"These people ought to live together. There is no sense in their not getting along together reasonably well. There is no reason why they should not continue living together, and, perhaps, years from now they can look back on this event as one of life's tragedies. There is no great trouble between them. They have simply drifted along and apart.

"I shall deny the applications of both parties."

Mrs. Stebner and her friends left the courthouse by the back door, while Stebner and his attorney left the building by the front door.

It Does the Business.

Mr. E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve: "It does the business; I have used it for piles and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at all drug stores.

BACK FROM THE CANAL

John C. Greenway Returns From a Trip to Panama.

Was Studying How They Make Dirt Fly on Isthmus.

John C. Greenway, manager of the Oliver Mining company's properties at Coleraine, who is at the Spalding today, has just returned from Panama, where he has been watching the government engineers move the dirt of the big ditch. The similarity of the work that they are doing down in Panama led Mr. Greenway to go there in search of pointers.

Mr. Greenway is one of the most famous athletes ever turned out at Yale. He played end with Frank Hinckey, and the names of Hinckey and Greenway became a byword in college football. It is doubtful if ever a more aggressive or more skilled pair of college ends have been developed since.

Mr. Greenway's athletic ability was not confined to football, however. He caught "Dutch" Carter, probably the greatest college pitcher who ever laced up a baseball shoe. Carter had so much speed that when he pitched against the famous Amos Rusie, supposed to have been the greatest living heaver, he had the New York professionals guessing at his curves, the Giants only winning out by the margin of one run. Greenway caught Carter upon this occasion, and had the New York professionals pinned to the bags, Carter and Greenway had repeated offers made to them by professional teams, but neither cared to join the ranks of salaried ball players.

Mr. Greenway was a member of the famous Rough Riders, that was composed of college men and Western cowboys. Such athletes as Murphy of Yale, one of the greatest tackles that ever played; "Bob" Church of Princeton, all-American tackle, and the man whom Richard Harding Davis describes as carrying a wounded man over the sidelines of actual warfare, were members of it. Then there was Hamilton Fish, son of the railroad man and a famous Columbia oarsman, who was killed at the battle of San Juan hill. There were many other college athletes in this regiment, that was the most romantic bunch of men gotten together in the history of the American army. From Theodore Roosevelt to the least inconspicuous member of this regiment, the air of adventure and fighting spirit was personified.

Mr. Greenway's work at Coleraine, since the growth of that mining center in 1906 has been characteristic of the man. Up at Coleraine you will find Yale, Harvard, Princeton and other Eastern college men working in the ditches with men who cannot write their own name. Under Mr. Greenway's supervision the word "pull" has been torn out of the Coleraine dictionary. Mr. Greenway has made his way since his work in the Duquesne furnaces at $1.32 per, after graduation from college, and this principle is applied to promotions at Coleraine.

They have a lot of men who are very interesting to meet up there at Coleraine. They represent every class and type. The company has built a hospital, a library, a school and athletic field, and has provided every convenience for the men. They have no snap though, for the men that are working under John C. Greenway are apt to find that he expects from them as much work as he does himself, and you only have to ask any one from Coleraine what Mr. Greenway's reputation for work is.

Tried by a Jury.

Richard Carrigan and wife, A. B. Stone and wife, Charles Amery and Herman Nygard, who were arrested in the Trowe block, a week ago on charges of keeping and of frequenting a disorderly house, will be tried by a jury, at their own request. The police claim that the accused were making a great deal of noise, and were drinking. The defendants claim that they were celebrating a double wedding.

Will Push the Prosecution.

The case against Mrs. George McArthur, the Duluth boarding housekeeper, charged with purloining $150 from Nellie Martyen, which was to have been tried in the municipal court today, has been continued one week, in order that an important witness for the defendant may be found. It is rumored that Miss Martyen is sorry for Mrs. McArthur, and would be willing to drop the case, but as Mrs. McArthur brought Chief Troyer of the Duluth police department into it by making statements that he was willing to be "fixed," the chief intends to see that the prosecution be pushed to the limit.

Dear Worked Smooth Trick.

Sam Dear, who was arrested by the police yesterday on the charge of intoxication and the malicious destruction of property, managed to escape from the secretary's office in the station, while the officers had their attention turned to something else. The police knew his haunts, however, and an officer was sent to one of the places to wait for Dear. The accused was not long in making his appearance, and was returned to the city jail. Dear made the play that he wanted to telephone a friend to bail him out, and it was while waiting for the supposed friend to come that he managed to slip out of the station office.

Will Discuss Proposed Ordinance.

This evening the council committee on weights and measures will hold a meeting for the purpose of considering further a proposed ordinance for the appointment of an officer to look after weights and measures, especially as to coal, wood and similar commodities. The problem to be worked out is the giving of police power to the man appointed to look after the weights and measures, and yet avoid bringing such officer under the examination required for the police department.

Four Suspects Are Jailed.

Pat Farrell, George Goodwillie, Alfred Simpson and William Wilson, all strangers in the city, and who are dressed as umberjacks, are being held by the police on the charge of having passed bogus money New Year's day. The police suspect that there are others in the deal, and that the four men arrested were only acting as agents for some wiser heads. There seems to have been a concerted action in different parts of the city to pass the spurious money on local saloonkeepers.

CAIN MARRIED TWICE?

Wyoming Woman Declares She Was Once the Suicide's Wife.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 3.—A woman giving her name as Mrs. Dora Bridges of Sheridan, Wyo., wrote Sheriff Loper the following letter: "Please send me all particulars and description of J. C. Cain, as I was once his wife. He had been to Fort Madison twice, having been sentenced from Council Bluffs."

The letter caused a sensation here, as the Cain case is on every tongue. Cain denied any previous conviction on the witness stand. He leaves a wife and six children, who say they never heard he was married before. Cain murdered Charles H. Morris, and committed suicide in jail when the deputy sheriff came to take him to Fort Madison for the rest of his life.

LOVER'S DELAYS CAUSE GIRL TO MARRY RIVAL.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 3.—If Edward Gilder of Winfield, Iowa, had married Harriet Okey upon the date originally set for the nuptials, or even upon the day that he first postponed the event, all would have been well. But Miss Okey, exasperated beyond belief, showed Gilder that he who hesitates is lost by calmly marrying his rival.

Gilder proposed long ago and was accepted. Whenever the day approached he begged for postponement. Finally the date was set for New Year's eve. The invitations were issued and all was in readiness when Gilder backed out again.

The despondent and indignant bride confided in Francis Stringer, her former suitor. A plan was arranged, the guests were not informed as to the change in the program, and at noon, the day before New Year's, Miss Okey became Mrs. Stringer.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

BIJOU—Vaudeville.
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

Green Room Gossip.

More than ordinary interest attaches to the show at the Bijou this week, and many favorable comments are being heard regarding it.

The bill is one of the strongest yet given at that place of amusement, and it is daily attracting large and well pleased crowds. It will remain but two days more, closing Sunday night.

It is practically an Orpheum circuit bill, with such deadliness as "The Four Brown Brothers and Dee Kealey" and Grace Tempest, and is undoubtedly one of the best, as well as the most expensive, vaudeville bills ever seen in Duluth.

* * *

De Wolf Hopper and Marguerite Clark in "Happyland" will be the attraction at the Lyceum next Monday and Tuesday evenings.

* * *

Joe Howard and Gussie Linder have an amusing skit at the Metropolitan, called "As My Father Used to Say." Miss Linder wears a wonderful black gown during the action of the playlet. The vaudeville portion of the Thoroughbreds' bill is considered very strong. Among those who also appear are the Dancing Mitchells, M'lle La Tosca, Harry Le Clair, the De Nette Sisters and Josie Flynn. The Thoroughbreds will give a bargain matinee tomorrow afternoon.

BOY KILLS COMPANION.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 3.—Advices from Fayetteville, N. ASLEEP ON CAR TRACK

John Mattson Has Feet Mangled by the Cars.

This morning about 7 o'clock an employe of the Schlitz Brewing company's plant, between Lake and St. Croix avenues, near the lake shore, discovered John Mattson lying near the spur track of the Northern Pacific railroad, with both feet crushed. He had fallen asleep with his feet on the track and a train passing during the night had crushed the members. He was rushed to St. Mary's hospital in an ambulance and this morning it was stated he will probably lose one foot by amputation, but the other will probably be saved.

Although suffering untold agony from his injuries, Mattson was conscious this morning. He said he had been drinking last night and he thought that he fell down about 1:30 a. m. on the spot where he was found. He had no idea what time he was injured. Nothing is known of the man and he is believed to have no relatives in Duluth.

CLOUDED BRAIN

Clears Up on Change of Proper Food

The brain cannot work with clearness and accuracy if the food taken is not fully digested, but is retained in the stomach to ferment and form poisonous gases, etc. A dull, clouded brain is likely to be the result.

A Michigan lady relates her experience in changing her food habits, and results are very interesting.

"A steady diet of rich greasy foods such as sausage, buckwheat cakes and so on, finally broke down a stomach and nerves that, by inheritance, were sound and strong, and medicine did no apparent good in the way of relief.

"My brain was clouded and dull and I was suffering from a case of constipation that defied all remedies used.

"The 'Road to Wellville,' in some providential way, fell into my hands, and may heaven's richest blessings fall on the man who was inspired to write it.

"I followed the directions carefully, physical culture and all, using Grape-Nuts with sugar and cream, leaving meat, pastry and hot biscuits entirely out of my bill of fare. The result—I am in perfect health once more.

"I never realize I have nerves, and my stomach and bowels are in fine condition. My brain is perfectly clear and I am enjoying that state of health which God intended His creatures should enjoy, and which all might have, by giving proper attention to their food." "There's a Reason."

WAS FIRST WHITE BORN IN NEGAUNEE

John May Who Died Suddenly Near Hibbing is Buried.

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 3. — (Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of John May, who died rather suddenly, near Hibbing, Minn., last Saturday, was held here, at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, from St. Paul's church.

The deceased was the first white child born in Negaunee, his age being over 50 years. The family home was at that time on the vacant lot on Iron street, immediately west of the building in which Charles Jennings has his office. The family resided there a number of years until they sold their dwelling to Louis Corbett, who moved it to Case street, in the race course addition. The father of the deceased, the late Conrad May, was one of the first employes of the Jackson mine, and after the son grew up he also was in the employ of the Jackson company for a number of years.

The deceased was a member of the city council as alderman from the Second ward for several terms. He conducted a successful ice business here for some years, disposing of his plant to Richard Knappes. He was later employed as engineer at the water works plant, remaining in that position until a short time before he left for the Mesaba range.

BIWABIK HALL BURNS.

Fire Has Appearance of Being the Work of Incendiary.

Biwabik, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin guited the Finnish Temperance society hall here late Wednesday night, causing a loss of about $3,000, with $1,000 insurance. The incendiary theory is based upon the fact that the fire was almost entirely on the outside of the building when discovered, and because the members of the society who left the hall about 10 p. m. are certain there was little if any fire in the stove.

The instruments of the only band in town were nearly all destroyed. Luckily there was no wind, otherwise an adjacent lumber yard might have taken fire. It is expected the society will at once take steps to rebuild.

FORMER SPARTAN ATTACKED BY ONE HE BEFRIENDED.

Sparta, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—B. Blakely, a former resident of Sparta, who is living on a farm near Hoge, N. D., was recently severely assaulted by a young Italian tramp whom he had given food and furnished with a bed, according to word the injured man's sister Mrs. W. E. Bender, has received. After the Italian had gone to bed he arose and attacked Blakely with a poker, and, from accounts received here, injured him severely.

FIRST DIPHTHERIA DEATH REPORTED IN BIWABIK.

Biwabik, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Annie Gustafson, the 6-year-old daughter of A. Gustafson, the first victim of the spread of diphtheria in this section, was buried yesterday in Lakeview cemetery. There are several other cases, some of which are said to be serious. The disease is so threatening in its aspects that the school board has decided to postpone the opening of the schools from Jan. 6 to Jan. 13. The local health officer, Dr. C. W. Bray, determined to carry on a strict quarantine, has procured the arrest of one man alleged to have violated the law.

Nervous Break-Down

Nerve energy is the force that controls the organs of respiration, circulation, digestion and elimination. When you feel weak, nervous, irritable, sick, it is often because you lack nerve energy, and the process of rebuilding and sustaining life is interfered with. Dr. Miles' Nervine has cured thousands of such cases, and will we believe benefit if not entirely cure you. Try it.

"My nervous system gave away completely, and left me on the verge of the grave. I tried skilled physicians but got no permanent relief. I got so bad I had to give up my business. I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In a few days I was much better, and I continued to improve until entirely cured. I am in business again, and never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy." MRS. W. L. BURKE, Myrtle Creek, Oregon.

Your druggist sells Dr. Miles' Nervine, and we authorize him to return price of first bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you.

CAPT. HARRIS' CONDITION

Reported Improved and He is Expected Back in the Spring.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. William Harris, who took charge of the Larkin mine here a year ago, and had to give it up on account of ill-health, is still at the University hospital, Ann Arbor, Mich., where he has been receiving treatment since April 3 last for nervous prostration. He has had the very best of treatment, and it is thought by the physicians that they will be able to bring him around again by next spring. He has wonderfully improved during the last two months. It is thought that he will be able to resume his former position again in a very short time.

Discharged Surfacing Gang Get Employment at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large gang of men who have been employed in surfacing the new line of the Rainy Lake road were laid off yesterday morning and came to town. These men, however, are finding ready employment in the lumber camps and at the mines.

On Monday evening, Jan. 13, an illustrated lecture on Norway will be delivered at the new North Pole hall by Ole Laervald, for the benefit of the Norwegian Lutheran church.

SPRINGER TO JAIL.

Sparta, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bernard Springer, the young man who got into trouble in Duluth by cashing some worthless checks, has been sent to the county jail for thirty days on a charge of petty larceny, in confessing to stealing some clothing from a friend, his father having come to his rescue and taken up the bad checks, and the complaints issued thereon having been withdrawn.

HEAVIER LOG SHIPMENTS.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Alger-Smith company this week increased its shipments of logs from off the line of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railway to Duluth mills to six trainloads per day, or about 175 carloads per day, which will probably be continued during the balance of the winter. This makes work for three train and engine crews from here, and the train put on this week to handle logs from here to the Scott-Graff mill makes four crews in log service so far.

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new officers installed by the local lodge, A. F. and A. M., are: W. M., J. C. Poole; S. W., W. H. Plummer; J. W., D. A. Springer; T., W. J. Davey; secretary, M. W. Burt, Jr.; S. D., D. P. McIntyre; J. D., M. E. Nichols; S. S., H. E Loye; J. S., J. Wilson; T., B. C. Prout; chaplain, R. J. Taylor.

The officers for the Maccabees during the coming year are: T. J. Trengove, Com.; Isaac Isaacson, Lieut. Com.; Britton Prout, Rec. and Fin. keeper; F. C. Rutherford, chap.; M. F. Coveyou, sec.; W. Capstick, master at Arms; T. Masterson, 1st master of the guards; H. Masterson, 2d master of guards; G. W. Mulligan, sentinel and Mike Shea, picket.

FOUNDATIONS NEARLY COMPLETED FOR SCHOOL.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — The foundation for the new school building being built near the town hall is nearly completed. The superstructure is to be pressed brick with Bedford stone trimmings. It will contain six large class rooms, with spacious corridors. In connection a room will be used for manual training. Separate halls for boys and girls are being provided, as well as playrooms. An office for the principal is included in the plans. The building will be 99 by 49 feet.

AIDING UNFORTUNATE ONE.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The friends of Fred Lavigne, who was burned out of his home, early yesterday morning, have come to his assistance and are doing all in their power to aid him.

The loss from water at the Eveleth pharmacy will be about $250. No insurance was carried. The greatest damage was on the building. The ceiling and floor being damaged.

POWERS JURY

for the commonwealth and 101 for the defense. The testimony of six witnesses, who died since the last trial, was admitted. Powers for himself and Henry E. Youtsey, who is now serving a life sentence, for the prosecution, were the principal witnesses. During this trial seven persons have been brought before the court for contempt, resulting in four convictions and three dismissals.

The trial is the fourth which Caleb Powers has been compelled to stand. The first in 1900 resulted in a conviction, with a sentence of life imprisonment. This verdict was reversed by the court of appeals, on the grounds of misconduct upon the part of Attorney Thomas C. Campbell during the trial, and another of the trial judge in forcing too speedy a judgment and sentence, in order to have it entered in the time provided by the criminal code.

Convicted Again.

The second trial, in 1902, resulted in a life sentence. This was later set aside on the ground that Judge James C. Cantrill had refused to vacate the bench upon a motion filed by the defense, supported by an affidavit, charging him with partiality.

At the third trial, in 1903, Judge J. E. Robbins of Mayfield presided. It again resulted in a verdict of guilty, and this time the death penalty was imposed. Following this sentence, the case was taken away from the state courts by Judge A. M. J. Cochran of the United States district court, and the accused became a federal prisoner and was confined in the Newport jail. This was done on a motion that the federal courts take jurisdiction of the case under the Constitution, a jurisdiction which Judge Cochran assumed. The case was carried to the supreme court of the United States, but by that tribunal was returned to the state courts, and Powers once more was brought back to the jail here.

two officers, and we went back. The Japanese did not try to justify their presence or their fighting with knives. They simply fled."

Only four Japanese have been arrested, and all are held on charges of attempted murder. The most serious feature in the popular view is that the Japanese section is a practical enemy at all times toward the white element. The present instance is regarded as particularly flagrant, because the young men were in uniform, with firemen's caps, and the Japanese knew they were not armed.

Ashamed No Longer.

"Vancouver has been a little ashamed of herself since the night of the September riot, but the frightful attack of New Year's morning is just now being regarded in some quarters as showing complete justification. There is not any particular danger of another big riot in Vancouver, except for just one thing—a murder. That is what the authorities are afraid of."

Last night the Vancouver Trades and Labor council discussed the Japanese question. There was a large attendance of laboring men. It was seriously proposed that if there was no legal machinery by which the police could go through all the houses of Japanese and take their arms, then the laboring men should arm themselves with revolvers for cases of emergency. The situation is admittedly serious, in the view of the laboring men, and the essertions are made that the mayor and civic authorities are fearful to act lest they should offend the Japanese government or the consul. The declaration was made that Powell street is an armed arsenal, and that the Japanese are ready to fight with knives and guns at the slightest provocation or excuse.

Officers Afraid to Act.

A resolution criticising Police Magistrate A. Williams, for alleged pro-Japanese views since the September riots, was adopted. It was alleeged that the magistrate, police and city council are all afraid to act against the Japanese. A committee was appointed to investigate the conduct of the magistrate and demand his dismissal if the charges are found to be true.

SKIMMED MILK DIET FOR FAT FOLKS?

Physicians who are callous and hard-hearted prescribe a diet of skimmed milk for the reduction of fat. It is a sure, but insupportable method of cure. Other doctors not less successful but more considerate of their patient's comfort prescribe a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of the following: One ounce Marmola, one-half ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and three and one-half ounces Syrup Simplex, which is, by the way, just as sure and quick a means of relief as the old-fashioned skimmed milk method, and a far more pleasant one, for a fat person can eat the same variety and quantity of food as usual while taking this remedy and still lose twelve to sixteen ounces of superfluous flesh a day.

SERIES OF BURGLARIES WORK OF CLEVER THIEVES

Culprits Boldly Enter Flat and Fill Suit Case.

A series of burglaries, which, for ingenuity of plan, surpasses anything Duluth has experienced in a long while, has put the police on the trail of housebreakers, believed to be two in number, who are undoubtedly responsible for the depredations.

Tuesday evening the home of Alexander Marshall, 2 St. Elmo flats, 721 East First street, was entered and jewelry, clothing and other articles to the value of about $400 taken. On the same evening, it is believed, the same parties entered the home of Marcus L. Fay, but secured nothing before being frightened away, and last night, between 8:15 and 9:15 entrance was gained to the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Field in the Adams flats, 713-715 East First street, and a haul amounting to about $350 or $400 made.

The burglary of the Field home last night was a bold, and at the same time, a clever, piece of work. Mr. and Mrs. Field left the house about 8:05 to go to the curling rink. The burglars evidently saw them depart, for about ten minutes later the family in the opposite flat noticed that the Field apartments were brilliantly illuminated. They took no notice of the fact at the time, supposing that the occupants were at home.

House Ransacked.

When Mr. and Mrs. Field returned shortly after 9 o'clock, they found that the house had been thoroughly ransacked during their absence. Drawers were pulled out, clothes tossed about, doors broken open and articles of clothing, silverware and jewelry taken. The principal loss was an otter coat, owned by Mrs. Field, and valued at about $250. In addition a small watch and a number of articles of table silverware were taken. The burglars gained entrance by prying open a front window. They evidently packed the loot in a suit case found in the house and left by the door, which opens on the hallway connecting the different parts of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Field believe they passed one of the men on First street, when leaving home, and gave the police a good description of him.

The looting of the Marshall home was not discovered until yesterday, when Mr. and Mrs. Marshall returned from their country home at Big Horn Lake, to which they went Monday. The burglars evidently planned their work well. As far as the police can learn, the burglary was committed Tuesday night. Last evening Mr. Marshall reported the loss of silverware, jewelry and articles of wearing apparel of the value of about $400 to the police and this morning he reported that later discoveries would bring the total up to almost $500.

Mr. Marshall mourns mostly the loss of a cabinet of table silverware, valued at between $250 and $300. It contained a complete set of silverware and was valued highly by Mr. and Mrs. Marshal, as a gift. The burglars also secured a suit of clothes, a Prince Albert coat, an extra pair of trousers, several small articles of wearing apparel and small pieces of jewelry of little value. Fortunately, Mrs. Marshall had taken her furs and most of her jewelry with her, and they escaped the burglars' operations.

Fay Home Entered.

When Marcus L. Fay returned to his home yesterday after a few days' absence, he noticed that the house had been entered, but could discover nothing missing. It is believed the housebreakers entered and were frightened away by someone before they could carry out their plans.

The police believe that two men are working together in the burglaries, although there may be three in the gang. The detective force is at work on the case and they look for results soon. It appears that the burglars work on a well-organized plan, making certain that their victims are out before they enter a house. The success of their former operations has made them bold, as evidenced by their haul last night, which was made in the Field home, while the family on the opposite side of the hall was at home and unaware that anything was wrong.

SHIPPERS SECURE REFUND.

Northwest Complaints Settled by Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The interstate commerce commission has made public several orders for the refund of overcharges on various kinds of shipments against which informal complaints have been made. The following affect Northwestern shippers:

H. A. Saggan vs. North-Western, shipment of cattle and hogs from Ceylon, Minn., to Chicago.

J. Stimsonan vs. the Wabash road, shipment of apples from Janeson, Mo., to Winona, Minn.

Humber Lumber company vs. Northern Pacific, lumber from Sand Point, Idaho, to McCluskey, N. D.

Have You Seen 'Em?

The greatest clothing values ever offered in the Northwest can now be had at the "Fitwell" Clothing Parlors; $25 and $30 suits and overcoats are now being sold for $15. Whether you need it or not, now is the time to buy a suit or overcoat. An early call is advisable.

Years ago, in Findland, Isaac Polppa left his wife and two little children and fled to America, where he had heard that wealth was to be found on every side, according to the story told by his wife, Olga Polppa, in the district court this morning.

His wife and children, according to the woman's tale, were left to make their way as best they could. After months of working and saving the woman scraped enough money together to follow her husband to America.

He still refused to support his family, however, and the mother has been taking in washing and doing the roughest kind of day labor to buy food and clothing for herself and children.

She applied for a divorce and the case is being heard today. The decree will in all probability be granted.

THIRD DAY

Of Educational Association Meeting Full of Good Things.

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—(Special to the Herald.)—The third day's session of the State Educational association, like its predecessors, was filled with enthusiastic activity in all the departments and the attendance at all the meetings was unusually good. Interesting programs were held, many excellent papers being read and generally discussed.

The last general meeting will be held tonight at the Central church. Governor Johnson will deliver an address. There will be a splendid musical program, and the event of the evening will be a lecture on "The Patriotism of Peace," by Governor Hanley of Indiana.

Tomorrow there will be general session, but the usual department sessions will be held.

HEAD BLOWN OFF.

Eagle Harbor, Mich., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Morgan of Phoenix, aged 31, while rabbit hunting near here, had the top of his head blown off. He was climbing over a log and pulled the weapon toward him, muzzle first, when it went off. His 14-year-old brother was with him and brought home word of the tragedy. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death. A wife and two children survive. The funeral will be held Saturday morning with interment here.

Disclosures at Birmingham Show Shocking Lack of Morality.

Many Factory Girls Spend Their Earnings in Saloons.

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 3.—That shockingly demoralizing influences have been introduced into the lives of Birmingham girls as a result of drink being systematically smuggled into many of the factories of the city is the opinion of a number of local clergy and representative business men. Special investigations recently made have proved that, unknown, as a rule, to the employers, drinking clubs, promoted with the connivance, if not at the direct instigation of the foremen and forewoman, have existed in large numbers, and have been kept up chiefly by the subscriptions of the female employes. The girls have, in consequence, it is asserted, had their moral characters seriously affected, the drinking habits they have acquired weakening their sense of self-respect, degrading their general habits of life, and unfitting them for the responsibilities of motherhood.

It appears from a circular letter to Birmingham employers, just issued by the influential committee which was appointed some time ago to investigate the scandal, that these drinking clubs are formed for the purpose of surreptitiously getting drink into factories to be consumed in tea and other ways, of celebrating birthdays, marriages and other social events connected with the factories, and of enabling girls habitually to drink together in public houses and other places after leaving work, and on public holidays, especially Christmas.

Exists Without Knowledge.

These drinking clubs exist in nearly every case without the knowledge of the employers, but in some factories they are undoubtedly carried on with the consent of the foremen or forewomen, and even as a result of their direct initiative and encouragement.

The committee knows on evidence that can not be doubted that these clubs are seriously affecting the moral character of many female workers. The recognize that it is impossible for employers to interfere with the liberty or to control the conduct of the girls and women outside the factories, but they are convinced they will recognize that they ought to be informed that such clubs exist, that they will insist upon the suppression of these clubs, if any be found to exist in their own factories, and prevent their establishment in any form. The committee ventures to suggest that if adequate rules were placed in prominent positions in the factories, and were rigidly enforced, the evil, which is more widespread than many imagine, would be arrested, and the interests of both employers and work people thereby promoted.

Many Other Evils Shown.

1. Girls in some cases practically coerced into joining.

2. Brandy, whiskey or rum poured into cups before tea, and drunk with little or no dilution.

3. In regard to bank holiday parties weekly collections on pay days were commenced a month or six weeks before the event.

4. The money was "pooled" and immediately before and after the holiday drinking parties were arranged, either in the workshops or in a public house in the vicinity of the works.

5. A social worker declared that she had seen young girls go in a body from the factory, after receiving their wages at Saturday midday, to a public house, and remain their continuously for several hours. Frequently the girls were accompanied by male operatives. Late in the afternoon this lady had assisted girls home—"silly drunk," as she descriptively terms it, or in a maudin condition. A large proportion of their earnings had by that time disappeared.

All the girls and women were expected to join in the drinking, and were persecuted if they refused. In some factories permission had been given by foremen for a carousal in the factory itself. The girls lost their self-respect, and developed loose manners.

Is the New Year's new price for the choice of the Columbia's best suits—the Stein-Bloch and Sincerity Suits, heretofore selling at $35, $30, $27 and $25.

$19.08 sounds large by comparison with some of those sensational $15 ads—does it? Yes, but here are real Stein-Bloch $30 and $35 suits, and in real quantities—that's where the difference in your favor will come in when you buy.

$11.45 gives you the chance to pick from what were $16.50 and $15 suits and were low-priced at the old figures.

$7.95 At this price we will sell out all that's left of suits marked to sell at $13.50, $12.50 and $10.

Flax Has an Easier Tone in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 3.—Wheat had an easier tone at the close of the session in the American markets today.

Prices were a little off during most of the day, and lower cables, liberal Argentine shipments and a bearish report by the Modern Miller helped the weakness.

Argentine shupments of wheat were 400,000 bus, against 320,000 bus last week and 880,000 bus a year ago.

Liverpool closed ⅛d lower, Budapest 1⅝c higher and Berlin 1⅛c higher.

The Modern Miller says:

"Excepting occasional reports from a few sections that winter wheat does not look well, this usually ascribed to Hessian fly. The condition of the crop is favorable."

The May option closed ¼c lower in Duluth and New York; ⅜c lower in Chicago; ⅝c off in Minneapolis, and ⅛c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅜c lower in Duluth, a shade lower in Chicago; ½c lower in Minneapolis; ¼c off in New York and ⅛c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ½c lower in Chicago and ⅜d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ½c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat was steady at the start and ⅜@½d lower, being influenced by the late easiness in America yesterday. Following the opening, there was a sharp advance as offerings dried up, and shorts started covering freely as values showed a gain of 1⅛d. Support was the result of the cold weather in Europe, good spot trade, lighter La Plata offerings, an advance in price and good outside buying. The spot markets were strong and the unfavorable Russian reports further helped the advance. Prices at midday were firm and ⅝@¾d higher than Thursday.

"Corn was firm and ⅛d higher at the start, and further gained ¼d during the morning. Strength resulted from the firm American cables, good demand for spot, cold weather in Europe and an improved demand for forward positions. At midday the undertone was firm with prices ½c up from Thursdays."

Primary receipts of wheat were 484,000 bus, last year 759,000 bus. Shipments 250,000 bus, last year 275,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 400,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 523,000 bus, last year 940,000 bus. Shipments 475,000 bus, last year 561,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 38,000 bus.

Wheat trading was quiet in the Duluth market. May wheat opened unchanged at $1.14¾, advanced to $1.15, went off to $1.14⅜, rallied to $1.14⅞, declined to $1.14⅜ and closed at $1.14½, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July wheat closed at $1.14⅞, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¼c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 4c under May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was easy. May flax opened ½c higher at $1.24, advanced to $1.24½, declined to $1.23, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at $1.23¼, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July flax sold at $1.25½, went off to $1.24⅝ and closed at that price, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Sentiment in the wheat pit was bullish today and the market was firm. The chief influence for higher prices was the firm tone of the Liverpool market. May wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at $1.07¼ to $1.07⅞ and sold at $1.07⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 331 cars against 318 cars last week and 464 cars one year ago.

The close was easy with May ⅜c lower at $1.06⅞.

The corn market was active and prices were strong. Cables were firm, and predictions of unsettled weather also strengthened the market. May corn opened a shade to ¼@⅜c higher at 61¾c to 62c and sold at 61½c. Local receipts were 145 cars, with 5 of contract grade.

The oats market was firm because of local receipts, which were smaller than had been expected. May oats opened ¼@⅜c higher at 55⅛@55¼c and sold at 55c. Local receipts were 198 cars.

The provisions market was firm because of higher prices for live hogs. Shorts were the best buyers. May pork was 2½c to 7½c higher at $13.55 to $13.40. Lard was 2½@5c higher at $8.07½ to $8.10. Ribs were 7½c higher at $7.30.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.06⅞; July, 99⅛c; Septefber, 96⅝c. Corn—May, 61⅛c to 61⅛@61¼c; July, 60c; September, 59¾c. Oats—May, 43c; July old, 48½c; July, 46⅝c; September, 41c. Pork—January, $12.67½; May, $13.27½. Lard—January, $7.85; May, $8.05. Ribs—May, $7.20@7.22½; January, $6.82½. Rye—Cash, 81c. Barley—Cash, 85@95c. Clover—March, $17. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.02@1.03½; No. 3 red, 99½c@$1.01½; No. 2 hard, $1.02@1.08; No. 3 hard, 99½c@$1.05; No. 3 spring, $1.03@1.10.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Jan. 3.—No material change is noted in the flour market; the demand as a whole is moderate, but the outlook appears to hold out some encouragement before the month is out. Spring shipping directions are coming in freely enough to indicate very light supplies in distributors' hands. Shipments, 45,120 barrels. Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 3.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade is slow with receipts light. A light demand for farm mares developed during the day. A few lumbermen were looking over the supply of logging horses, but no sales of volume were consummated. The outlook for the horse business is better than it has been for two months.

New York Money.

New York, Jan. 3.—Close: Money on call, easier, 6@10 per cent; ruling rate, 8 per cent; closing bid, 7 per cent; offered at 8 per cent. Time loans, quiet and easier; sixty and ninety days, 8 per cent; six months, 6@7 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 8@10 per cent. Sterling exchange, firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.15 for demand, and at $4.80.25 for 60-day bills. Commercial bills, $4.80. Bar silver, 55.18. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, firm.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 3.—The market opened barely steady at a decline of 5@7 points and during the early session showed a loss of 8@11 points on active stock as a result of lower cables, bearish predictions as to the showing on the ginners report and large receipts. Trading was not nearly as active as yesterday morning and there was less pressure of long cotton against the market. Local sentiment seemed of a more bearish nature, but after the decline to 10.62 for March, the market steadied up on covering and during the middle of the morning was only 4 to 6 points net lower.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.40; middling gulf, 11.65; sales, 400 bales. Futures, steady; January, 10.55; February, 10.65; March, 10.76; April, 10.71; May, 10.72; June, 10.67; July, 10.65; August, 10.51.

ENLISTMENTS.

Total Number of Recruits Secured in Duluth During Year.

The total number of applications received during the year at the United States recruiting office reached the number of 1,278 men. Out of this number 354 enlistments were received. This represents a larger number of men than has been recorded since the recruiting office was established. In November seventy-five men were enlisted, making the record month for the year. During the month of December 140 applications were received, making the highest number of applications for any one month.

YOUTH ESCAPES JAIL.

Saws His Way Out Short Time After Being Arrested.

Gladstone, Mich., Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vern Brabazon, age 15, was caught this morning burglarizing the Tremont hotel. He sawed his way out of jail at noon today. The entire police force is unable to find him. It was a daring escape.

FOUR DECISIONS BY SUPREME COURT.

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—One reversal and three affirmations of lower court findings were filed by the supreme court today.

The findings of the Ramsey county court in the case of Otto Neitge, administrator of the estate of Charles Neitge, respondent, vs. the Omaha Railroad company, appellant, were affirmed.

P. J. Hopkins, plaintiff and appellant, vs. Harry McCusker, defendant and respondent, and First National bank of Wheaton, garnishee, Traverse county; reversed.

THE SWAN SONG.

"The nature fake," said Dr. William J. Long, the nature writer, "is always harmful. A striking instance of this occurred not long since at a zoo.. You know the old nature fake about the swan—how this beautiful bird, silent all its days, bursts when dying into the sweetest song? Well, at a zoo one day a keeper saw a boy steal up behind a swan with a brick in his hand.

"'Here,' said the keeper, 'what are you going to do there??'

"'Ah, lemme alone,' snarled the boy, 'I wanter hear him sing.'"

HANDSOMEST INDIAN GIRL.

Kansas City Star: Miss Sophia Fisher, a half breed Comanche girl whose father was taken captive by the Indians when a lad of 9 years near Fort Belknp, Tex., will be a guest of Spybuck, chief of the Shawnee tribe, during the last Indian powwow and celebration at Collinsville, I. T.

This young woman speaks English without accent and is said to be the handsomest Indian woman in the Southwest. Her hair is long and silken and her eyes are blue and sparkling. She is said to be a singer of unusual ability. Her father owns 2,200 acres of lands under cultivation and is a breeder of blooded stock. Their home is about nine miles from Lawton, Okla., and is modern and richly furnished.

Miss Fisher plays several musical instruments, but prefers the piano. Besides being a musician she is passionately fond of horseback riding, and her friends say she can rope a wild steer more easily than any of the men about the place.

If seven-tenths of the people who are looking for a place to live should read your ad. in The Herald would it not "help some?"

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Market Sagged Off Early, But Developed Fairly Firm Tone.

Profit-Taking Affected Active Stocks and Close Was Easy.

New York, Jan. 3.—Many of the prominent active stocks started at prices unchanged from last night. Those that were changed showed gains and losses mixed. A number of the industrials were strong, American Sugar, American Cotton Oil, General Electric and Great Northern gaining a point. Canadian Pacific, Reading and Colorado Southern gained a large fraction. Northern Pacific declined ¾.

Profit-taking depressed stock values from yesterday's strength, Northern Pacific which showed the greatest strength with Reading yesterday, was the weakest stock today, falling 2 points, but Reading, after touching 99, only reacted to ½ below yesterday's close. Great Northern 1¼ and Northern Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania 1. The tone improved later, but the rally was small.

Prices fluctuated narrowly, reacting slightly. Business was very light. Bonds firm.

The tone of the market continued to improve, and by 1 o'clock the morning loss had been to a large extent obliterated. The buying of Reading, Union Pacific and Brooklyn Transit gave tone to the entire market. St. Paul preferred advanced 2, Delaware & Hudson 1¾.

The close of the market was easy and dull. Traders bought the market on the appearance of the preliminary estimates of a large cash gain by the banks for the week. The strength became quite comprehensive. American Sugar rose 7, Canadian Pacific 3¾, Great Northern preferred and Amalgamated Copper 1. Profit-taking affected the active stocks.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: If negotiations which are now under way with an English syndicate are consummated, the Davis-Daly Estates Copper company will have $1,400,000 of cash placed in its treasury, and the contract between the company and the venders to provide the treasury with $2,000,000 of cash working capital will be carried out.

Negotiations with a prominent English syndicate have been carried on both in London and this country during the past six weeks, and they have resulted in an offer from the English interests to purchase 200,000 shares of Davis-Daly stock at a price which will enable the carrying out of the venders' contract.

POISONING MANIA TOLD

Paris, Jan. 3.—M. Victorien Sardou's seventy-sixth play is about to be produced at the Porte St. Martin theater. L'Affaire des Poisons is a story after his own heart. It touches upon the strange and never-explained mystery of the poisoning mania which broke out in Paris during the reign of Louis XIV. The notorious woman, La Brinvilliers, was tortured and executed in 1677. The next year conversations overheard and retold to the police led to the arrest of two more poisoners. Mesdames Vigoureux and La Bosse, and, finally, to a third, La Voison, whose lover was the Paris headsman.

The king determined to stamp out the extraordinary epidemic. Husbands were poisoning their wives, wives poisoning husbands and heirs poisoning rich uncles by the score. A new judicial chamber was instituted by the king to deal with the affairs. Its inquiries revealed the dark practices of the "Black Mass," and all Paris was thrown into consternation. Wives and husbands suspected each other and friends fought shy of friends. Hundreds of the most highly placed persons were implicated, court ladies, princesses, a marshal of France and two nieces of Cardinal Mazarin.

Justice was grimly expeditious, and La Voison was burnt alive in 1680. But her daughter was still at liberty. The judicial chamber made the fatal mistake of arresting her and an accomplice. The latter revealed that the Marquis de Montespan was one of the poisoning gang and one of the chief devotees of the "Black Mass." Thenceforward inquiries were stopped and everything was done to hush up the whole business. Police records and official documents were so carefully expunged that to this day it remains doubtful whether the charge against La Montespan of attempting to poison either her royal lover himself or women in whom she feared possible rivals was true or false.

M. Sardou has worked up into a play some of the innumerable dramatic elements which such a cause celebre yields. L'Affaire des Poisons, says M. Sardou, opens in 1679, when the Roi Soleil was 41. La Voison appears in the second act, which takes place in her house. The third shows the Grotto of Thetis," an extraordinary building of coral, mother of pearl, sea shells and mirrors, which formerly stood in Versailles park, and was a cool arbor in summer, with water spouting from a dozen small fountains round statues of Tritons and Nereids on columns incrusted with tiny pink shells. The play ends in the apartments of Louis XIV at St. Gerfain.

Several mysterious robberies have occurred recently on the Paris-Toulouse express trains. At last, after close detective work, one of the alleged robbers was caught and lodged in jail. Having secured certain data, and being provided with a warrant, two police inspectors took a train last week for Lille, where they arrived and proceeded to a certain house, where their "man" was known to have taken a lodging not only for himself, but also for two young women.

The man in question was known in certain quarters in Paris as "Louis." After the last express robbery "Louis" disappeared. The police inspectors, however, found his new address in Lille. He turned up at his lodgings about 3 o'clock and was at once arrested, as well as the two women who were with him. "Louis" tried hard to convince the policemen that they were making a mistake, but finally broke down and admitted that he was one of three who had plundered the express. He even volunteered to give the names and wheresabouts of his two accomplices.

Woman Causes Undoing.

"Louis" explained that after the robbery he had gone to Rouen, where he began to spend freely his share of the booty in company with one of the women, who had been an old acquaintance. Not feeling safe at Rouen, he went to Lille, where he joined the other woman, and took a room for both of them alongside his own. They helped him to spend his wealth rapidly, and when he was arrested he had only $5 left in his possession.

Dentists' patients who have molars out under chloroform, complain afterward of having heard strange and horrible noises during the anaesthetic sleep. A practitioner here has bethought himself of a remedy for these unpleasant effects. He first of all removed his operating room to the back of the house, where no sounds reached from the street, and found that his patients after the tooth-pulling, awoke, if not from a refreshing, at least from a peaceful sleep.

What they took to be alarm gongs and falling avalanches when under chloroform in the room at the front of the house was only the rumbling of carts and ringing of tram bells magnified during anaesthetic sleep. Now the dentist has devised a still greater improvement. While he pulls teeth a phonograph in the next room sings the Jewel song from Faust, Lohengrin's "Abschied." or the last drawing room ballads. The patients' sleep is lulled by sweet music. When they awake they not only have been relieved of annoying molars, but carry melodious memories with them, and go away humming a tune.

Woman Baffles Police.

A woman named Mme. Bailly, who was arrested at Buc, near Versailles, succeeded in completely baffling the police for several weeks. Mme. Bailly was the proprietress of a laundry in Paris which she sold several times over to different people, thus amassing $60,000. She took a villa at Buc, and had a subterranean passage constructed from her cellars to the adjoining high road to Versailles.

As soon as the police discovered her place of residence, detectives were sent to arrest her, but she escaped through the subterranean passage. The police, after several visits to the villa, were completely baffled, and came to the conclusion that they had ben misinformed.

The other day, however, hearing of the underground passage, they made a surprise visit to the house, burst in the door, occupied the passage, and ultimately discovered the woman hidden in a loft under a number of bags and boxes. Jumping up suddenly, the woman struck a policeman in the face before she could be secured.

EMPEROR'S VISITING CARDS.

Tid-Bits: The German emperor believes in being sufficiently represented, even on a visiting card. No ordinary sized piece of pasteboard will suffice him, for William's cards measure no less than six inches in length and four in width. On the upper line is the single word "Wilhelm," and below are the words "Deutscher Kaiser" and "Konig von Preusen." The words are printed in large, fat, German script letters. Of course, the emperor does not carry these imposing sheets of pasteboard himself; they are confided to his chasseur, or body servant, who follows him.

The other sovereigns of Europe are content with more modest visiting cards, with the words upon them in Latin script. Among the simplest in size and appearance are those of the emperor of Austria and the prince of Wales. The prince has two sets of cards, one for use abroad and the other for England. The English one bears the words "The Prince of Wales," the other the French equivalent, "Prince de Gales."

Butte & Ballaklava is without question one of the grandest opportunities to make big money that ever was brought to our city. No new proposition can begin to compare with it, and if you overlook this you will in a short time have a chance to say: "Why! Think of it! I could have bought it for seven dollars a share!" It is another North Butte mine and has much more of the Big Bell Speculator vein, which crosses Ballaklava for 1,600 feet and North Butte for only about 550 feet. The drift is going into the Speculator vein right now, and tomorrow we should have news that Ballaklava has once more struck it very rich. Ballaklava is a big mine and the rich ore of the Edith May on the 510-foot level is equal in richness to the ore on the 1,800-foot level of the North Butte mine.

The management is of the best, and no reports come from the mine that are not true. Mr. R. B. Dear, Mr. P. H. Nelson and Mr. J. A. Percival are men whom no one can question, and Mr. Dear will make Butte & Ballaklava one of the greatest producers on Butte Hill. The silver and gold in these ores pay for the mining, and therefore you can understand why the mines on Butte Hill can pay such big dividends. We will have a box of samples from the mine tomorrow. The assay reports are here now and anyone who wishes can look them over.

Butte & Superior is strong and is ready for a big advance. I have handled tens of thousands of shares lately and the market is still howling for more stock.

COACHED BY ATTORNEYS

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—That Byron Kimball, secretary of the Superior Board of Trade clearing house, who has been on the stand as a witness for the government in the mail fraud case, conferred with four of the defendants' attorneys in a room at the Frederick hotel previous to his being called to the stand by the defense for recross-examination was conclusively shown by Assistant District Attorney Ewert this afternoon.

When the defense sought to recall Mr. Kimball to the stand for re-cross-examination, Mr. Ewert objected, stating that he wished to have Martin P. Quigley cross-examined first, so that his testimony would be finished. The court, however, permitted Mr. Kimball to be recalled.

It soon appeared that the purpose of the re-cross examination was to get Mr. Kimball to further modify his statement in direct examination that the check book and stub book in evidence contained a record of all the money received and disbursed by him as secretary of the Superior board of trade clearing house. He had already modified this statement in his first cross-examination, and Judge Luse got him to further modify it in the re-cross-examination.

Mr. Ewert took the witness and questioned him regarding where he had last seen the check book and stub book. At first he was reluctant to answer, but after considerable questioning, the witness admitted that L. A. Wood, George W. Wood, B. F. Wood, Mr. Foss and one other man whom he could name were present. The witness also admitted, after much questioning, that Judge Luse also came into the room from an adjoining room.

RIOTING RESUMED IN MUNCIE STRIKE.

Munice, Ind., Jan. 3.—Rioting in connection with the street railroad strike was resumed today. Cars started to run on schedule at 7 o'clock without interruption and were not molested for several hours. A crowd, however, attacked two cars in the outskirts of the city shortly before noon, hurling stones and other missiles and after driving off the crews stopped the cars. Police were hurried to the place and over fifty arrests were made. Two of the rioters were badly hurt.

"There is an odd wood among these forests known as the gran tree, which when tapped yields a black sap, which is sent in large quantities to Germany, where it is used in the making of ink and dye. Another tree yields a sap that is a deep red, and Germany also takes largely of it for the manufacture of dyes.

"Besides these that abound in that part of Mexico there are vast areas of pine, a timber that resembles our poplar and different kinds of oak. Much to my surprise, more than 6,000 feet above the sea I found a big sawmill in active operation, with a Yankee from Maine at the head of it.

"And he wasn't bothering with such commonplace logs as mahogany, ebony, cedar, rosewood or such as that, but was cutting away at the white pine and oak, for those are the woods that the native buyers and users of lumber demand. As a matter of fact, a Mexican lumber dealer would be willing to trade you mahogany for our yellow pine, log for log."

MEXICO'S HARDWOODS.

New York Sun: "I was amazed at the almost infinte variety of woods of value to woodworkers that are growing in the forests of tropical Mexico," said a timber expert who recently made a tour of that part of Mexico. "There are several varieities of mahogany, cedar, oak, rosewood, ebony, dyewoods and endless other hardwoods with Spanish names, but corresponding to our hickory, cherry and other fine American woods that are now extremely scarce and costly.

"Many of these tropical woods are as strong as iron. While the mahogany, cedar, rosewood and dyewood are well known, the unknown varieties of woods that are just as valuable are quite as plentiful.

"Among these is one called zapote, which grows to a great size. Although the wood of this tree has peculiarly valuable qualities for lumber it is seldom used in that way, the tree being valued merely as the producer of chicle, the sap which forms the basis for most chewing gum.

"The wood of the zapote tree is dark red, and is easily worked until thoroughly seasoned, when only the finest edged tools will have any effect on it, and a sharp pointed nail is driven into it with difficulty. The fibre of the wood is so dense that the wood sinks in water like iron.

"In the prehistoric ruins that abound in thes Mexican tropics are timbers and door frames that are as perfect today as when they were first placed in position. The wood takes a magnificent finish, as do nearly all of these Mexican hardwoods, and would be a rare article for the cabinetmaker.

RALLIED AT THE CLOSE

Easy at the opening, the copper stock market gathered strength as it went along today, and closed higher. During the latter part of the session prices were over yesterday's close.

There was lively trading in two or three issues on the local curb, too. Several thousand shares of Butte & Superior changed hands around $1.25. The close was $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked.

In Boston, North Butte opened at $43.37½, went off to $43, reacted to $45 and closed at $44.50 bid and $44.75 asked. Amalgamated opened at $48, went off to $47.37½, rallied to $48.37½ and closed at $48.37½ bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $7.12½, declined to $7, rallied to $7.12½ and closed at $7 bid and $7.12½ asked. Butte Coalition opened at $15.50 bid and $15.75 asked, advanced to $16.25 and closed at $16 bid and $16.50 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $103, advanced to $106 and closed at $104.50 bid and $105 asked. Anaconda opened at $29.25, declined to $29 and rallied to $29.87½, closed at $29.62½ bid.

Superior & Pitsburg sold at $10.50 and $11.25 and closed at $11.12½ bid and $11.37½ asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $4.25 and $4.50 and closed at $4.37½ bid and $4.62½ asked. Globe at $7 and $7.50 and closed at $7.12½ bid and $7.25 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.50 and $4.75 and closed at $4.62½ bid and $4.75 asked.

Announcement.

It is with a sad heart that we announce to our relatives and friends that our beloved little girl, Inga Geneva, died Jan. 2 at 11 a. m. of diphtheria, after an illness of only a couple of days.

She was 3 years, 8 months and 18 days old.

May God who taketh and giveth, comfort us in our bereavement.

MR. AND MRS. LARS B. ASBJORNSON AND CHILDREN.

GIVES WARNING.

Joseph Bannock Lectured by the Court and Discharged.

Joseph Bannock, an employe of a local express company, who was held to the grand jury on the charge of grand larceny, was given a strong lecture this morning by Judge Cant, warning him to be careful to walk the straight and narrow path in the future. No true bill having been brought against Bannock, the case was dismissed by Judge Cant, when he had finished his lecture to the young man.

PRIVATE CLUBS EXEMPT FROM STATE LIQUOR LAW.

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Kelley of the Ramsey county district court today filed a decision in a suit brought by the state against the Minnesota club, in which he says the club is a bona fide private club and is not subject to the provisions of the state law regulating the liquor traffic. The object of the suit was to determine whether the club could be compelled to take out a liquor license. This decision also exempts the club from obeying the 11 o'clock p. m. closing law.

No more fascinating "Romance of Trade" exists than the efforts of an army of adventurers in the waste places, charged with the annual fur production of the world, which now amounts to $25,000,000. Here is the oldest industry known to man, and one beyond the reach of any trust, since any lonely trapper can throw his pelts on the market at his own price. So writes William G. Fitz-Gerald in the Technical World Magazine for January.

I will remark in passing that the fur hunters have probably done more world-exploring than any other travelers. It was the little beaver that lured men from the St. Lawrence to the Mississippi, and thence to the Rockies. Again it was the sable that led the tribesman of Asiatic Russia across to far Kamchatka; and the big sea otter lured the Spanish and the English, with Russians and Americans, all round the world in crazy craft, exploring our Pacific coast from Alaska to California.

Today Canada alone produces over $3,000,000 worth of furs every year; and to this Alaska now adds $750,000 of raw pelts, and Labrador probably half this amount. Until a decade or so ago the Pribiloffs and other seal islands sent out $2,500,000 worth of skins annually; and then, of course, we have the enormous quantities dressed and manufactured for the home markets.

AMAZED THE CHURCH.

Boston Herald: A certain young Unitarian minister is visiting a friend and classmate who lives in Roxbury, and while the two were sitting around a fire and spinning yarns, the minister who is visiting and who comes from the West, told this:

"When I went West first I was in a small town called L—e, and in the choir of my church the village blacksmith did noble work as baritone. He had a voice that could shake mountains, and whatever it lacked in any other feature it made up in volume. He couldn't read music any more than he could English, but he learned a tune very readily.

"One Sunday we were to be favored with a new anthem, because it was a special occasion, and the baritone had one portion all to himself. Unfortunately, he had missed many of the practices.

"The anthem went along excellently until it came to a beautiful part which reads: 'And, dying, bids us all aspire.'

"Here the rest of the singers stopped short, in that quick, sudden way that choirs have, and in the ensuing stillness sounded the ponderous tones of the blacksmith:

"'And dying brides are filled with fire.'"

SAVED AT ST. WINNIFRED HOSPITAL

(San Francisco Bulletin.)
The physicians in Honolulu could do nothing for U. S. Deputy Marshal Winters, and he gave them up in despair and came to San Francisco to see if there was any physician here who could cure an extreme case of chronic Bright's Disease. He had had two uraemic convulsions, was almost bursting with dropsy, and, after fighting the disease for two years, was at the end of the way. The first physician he consulted in this city told him that chronic Nephritis is now a curable disease, and that he would probably recover. He sent the patient to the St. Winnifred Hospital, put him on the new treatment for Bright's Disease, and proceeded to aid it in many ways that the skilled practitioner understands. In four months Winters went back to the Islands perfectly well.—San Francisco Bulletin.

We sent for the treatment given the patient referred to in the St. Winnifred Hospital with such remarkable results and have it in stock for patients here. Both Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now curable. Call and let us tell you all about it.

WITNESS FIGURED OUT TRADING ON SUPERIOR BOARD OF TRADE A JOKE

Was Given $100 to Go to Superior to Trade With.

Attorney Ewart Sharply Questions Representative of Woods.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another one of the "dummies" on the Superior board of trade was on the stand late Friday afternoon in the case of the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company, accused of using the mails to defraud.

Herman W. Moore, a cousin by marriage to L. A. Woods, testified that he went to Superior at the suggestion of L. A. Woods, who gave him $100 to trade with. He said he got his salary out of the clearing house and evened up trades with other traders. He admitted that on a former hearing he had testified he "had figured it out a joke all the way through."

Moore could not identify receipts of dividends of the Superior board clearing house, which he was supposed to own as a stockholder, but which were found in the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company's office in St. Paul.

Sharp Questioning.

With the examination of M. C. Wright, who formerly represented the Edwards-Wood company on the Superior board of trade, Mr. Ewart began a sensational line of questions.

BOUGHT BONDS LOW, SOLD HIGH

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Substantiation of the "endless chain," that figured in the government's case against John R. Walsh was given by I. J. Faithorn, former vice president of the Chicago & Alton railroad, a witness for the defense. Faithorn and Walsh formed a syndicate in 1900, to take over the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad. Faithorn admitted that he secured some of the certificates of stock, but that he did not pay any money therefore. Instead, he gave a note for $50,000 to the Chicago National bank. When the note fell due it was cancelled and paid with another note.

It was brought out through this witness that first mortgage bonds to the extent of $905,000 were bought up by the syndicate at 25 cents on the dollar, and that some of them were sold to the Chicago National bank at 95 cents.

He testified to the tonnage available to the Wisconsin & Michigan road, of which he is vice president, and to his belief in the future of the road. He said the northern terminus produced 5,000,000 tons of ore annually, of which the road handled all that it could with its limited equipment. Among other witnesses W. W. Whitney, president of the Southern Indiana Coal company, and A. E. Dickinson, vice president of the Bedford Quarries company, gave testimony indicating a prosperous condition of the enterprises with which they were identified, under the management of Mr. Walsh.

FOR TARIFF CLERK,

For Minnesota. Examinations Will Take Place on June 29.

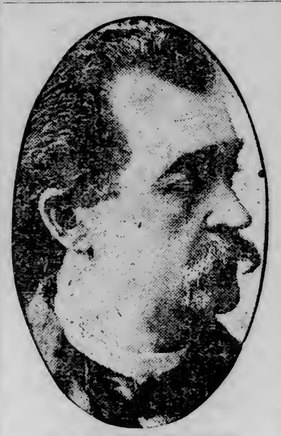
Washington, Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Interstate commerce commission announces an examination to fill positions of tariff clerks (male) at $1,200 per annum. Minnesota applicants may receive information, etc., by applying to the civil service board at the postoffices at Duluth, Mankato and St. Paul. The examination will take place Jan. 29.

MURDERED WOMAN IS AGAIN IDENTIFIED.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 4.—After a half dozen supposed identifications had been disproved, the police were satisfied last night that the woman murdered on the flats that border the Passaic river, in Harrison, was Helena Salter Whitmore, who with her husband, Theodore S. Whitmore, conducted a furnished room house at 235 Adams street, Brooklyn. The identification was made by the woman's sister, Mrs. Susan Schmitter, of the Bronx, and corroborated by Mrs. Schmitter's husband, Martin, Frank Inglert and finally by the murdered woman's husband.

KOREANS ARRIVE.

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—Y. S. Min and Naw Fok Oho, sons of Korean noblemen, arrived here yesterday on the liner Nippon Maru, on their way to Springfield, Mass., where they will begin a nine years' course in American civilization. At the expiration of that time they expect to return to Korea and show their countrymen how to shake off the yoke of Japan.



DR. NICHOLAS SENN, Noted Surgeon, Who Died in Chicago of Illness Brought on by a Journey to South America.

GERMANS SEE CRISIS

Approaching in Relations Between United States and Japan.

Think Next Two Months Will Settle Important Questions.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—The next two months are regarded by the German foreign office and the admiralty as constituting a critical period in the relations between the United States and Japan. If they pass without witnessing a break in the relations, high government officials are convinced that the United States and Japan will then enter on an easier and safer basis of agreement.

The development of the American-Japanese situation is being studied on account of the events which might change the present international equilibrium and deeply affect Europe as well as America. The Marine Runschau, the principal naval magazine of Germany, says in its January number:

"If war does not come between Japan and the United States the Union may thank the preponderance of its fleet for maintainence of peace. This fleet already is sufficiently strong to restrain Japan from the hazard of war."

In conclusion, the Marine Runschau says the threatened difficulties between the United States and Japan may be averted as the result of opinion which the American fleet creates in Japan.

PRUSSIA WANTS MONEY.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—The Prussian ministry of finance announces that on Jan. 14 it will invite subscriptions for a new loan. The amount has not yet been specified, but it is assumed that it will be in the neighborhood of $50,000,000. The subscription price will be 98½. Interest for the first ten years will be at the rate of 4 per cent, for the next five years 3¾ per cent, and thereafter 3½ per cent. The government for the protection of the money market will issue only allotment certificates, which will not be negotiable until after Dec. 31, 1908. This announcement caused all Prussian consuls to sag today and drop ½ and 1½ points, and it created a general dissatisfaction in financial circles because the present time is not regarded as opportune for the government to make demands on the market. The Prussian ministry of finance doubtless understands this clearly, but it is impelled to seek this loan because of pressing requirements on account of additions to the existing re-equipment, the purchases of land in Poland for purposes of settlement, and other less urgent needs. Railroad experts estimate that $150,000,000 might be expended for re-equipment, but the government probably will be able to do with a quarter of this sum.

FORGOT HIS DISGUISE.

Policeman, Dressed as Rabbi, Attacks Mob With His Club.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Dressed in the garb of a rabbi, Policeman James J. Roach last evening dispersed a crowd of hoodlums, who a short time before had stoned Rabbi William C. Colb, pastor of the Bichur Chloi Temple.

The policeman, upon being told of the attack on the rabbi, decided as a bit of strategy, to don the rabbi's robe. Roach was attacked when he appeared on the street. Angered at the attack, the policeman forgot his rabbi garb, and wielding his club with suddenness and vigor put the surprised mob to flight.

JOHNSON'S PLATFORM

States the Reforms and Principles for Which He Stands.

Washington, Jan. 4.—An interview with Governor Johnson, published in the New York World yesterday is looked upon in Washington as a declaration of his candidacy for the presidency. The fact that the interview was revised and approved by the governor before its publication, and that it announces positively his views on the tariff, corporation control, centralization of government, inheritance tax and other national issues, gives it a ring of authority which is generally accepted to mean that the governor is ready to be formally considered as a candidate for Democratic honors.

Can Secure More Than Bryan.

In an editorial accompanying the governor's interview, the World declares that Johnson will be considered prominently at the convention at Denver, and makes the statement that Johnson can secure 100,000 more votes than Bryan could in the states of New York and New Jersey.

The interview, filling nearly four columns, and accompanied by a personal sketch of two columns, contains the first complete statement of Governor Johnson as to his political views and

CHARGES TO BE INVESTIGATED

French Commission Will Look Into Rumors of Church Graft.

Paris, Jan. 4.—As a result of the charges of scandal and graft in connection with the liquidation of the property of religious orders in France, which have been going through the hands of the clerical reactionary press, a parliamentary commission has been created to conduct detailed investigations. Ex-Premier Combes probably will be president of the commission, but all political parties will be represented pro rata. M. Delpech, Radical Socialist, who, with M. Combes, has been the prime mover in insisting upon an investigation, declares that the Clericals must not be allowed to make political capital against the republic out of veiled charges.

"Regardless of the agitation, it will involve, this investigation must be made," said M. Delpech. "If, unfortunately, there have been those who have profited by this liquidation, they must be exposed and punished. The republic must be true to its creed of honesty and justice."

TO TAKE TESTIMONY IN THE HART CASE

ROD MAY BE USED AGAIN

New York Teachers in Favor of Corporal Punishment.

Many Opinions Given in Favor of Its Benefits.

New York, Jan. 4.—That the rod will again become an integral part of education in New York city is expected as the result of an investigation which has recently been made by a special committee for school boards. It is expected that the committee will report in favor of corporal punishment under certain restrictions. Not only have the teachers of New York been asked regarding their opinions on corporal punishment, but the committee has asked and received opinions from hundreds of teachers in almost every city in America. These teachers are overwhelmingly in favor of restricted corporal punishment. In twenty-six of the thirty-nine largest cities of the country, the committee learns, corporal punishment is allowed and the investigations of Dr. Elmer E. Brown, United States commissioner of education, show that officials express the opinion that corporal punishment judiciously administered is productive of the best results in most of the large cities.

COLD IN FRANCE.

Paris, Jan. 4.—France is experiencing a spell of extremely cold weather. The thermometer for the past four days has averaged 10 degs. Fahrenheit, and the lakes in the parks of Paris are frozen and covered with merry skaters.

WILL FIGHT ANNULMENT

Will be Several Weeks Before the Case is Heard.

London, Jan. 4.—The attorneys of the earl of Yarmouth, whose wife, formerly Miss Alice C. Thaw, of Pittsburg, has begun suit for the nullification of the marriage, have given notice that they propose to defend the action. They probably will not be heard for several weeks.

While this action is quite distinct from a divorce, it will be heard in the divorce court, the sitting of which begins Jan. 11. The court has only two judges, and there are on the calendar 156 undefended cases which take precedence over the defended suits. The Yarmouth suit stands sixty-one on the list of defended cases.

Lewis & Lewis, the famous firm of solicitors, of which Sir George Lewis, the best known lawyer in England, is the head, will represent the countess.

Insanity previous to marriage, non-consummation of the marriage relation or an existing marriage are the only grounds upon which, under the English law, a marriage may be annulled.

SURF ROMANCE ENDS IN UNION

Wealthy Man Marries Girl Whose Life He Once Saved.

New York, Jan. 4.—The marriage of Miss Marjorie Conley and D. Perry Wilson, just announced, was the result of another of the many romances that have begun in the surf. Two years ago, Miss Conley, who had come to New York from Louisville, Ky., to earn her own living, went to Atlantic City on her vacation. She was an expert swimmer, but one day ventured outside the life lines and she became exhausted, and but for the aid of a young man would probably have been drowned. The man was D. Perry Wilson, son of a wealthy railroad man of Lockhaven, Pa., and a graduate of Lehigh university. Miss Conley and Mr. Wilson became friendly, but when she returned to New York they lost sight of each other. A few months ago, when Wilson was in town, he telephoned to the Hotel Astor and the voice of the telephone operator was familiar to him. He investigated and discovered that the voice belonged to Miss Conley. They were married on New Year's day.

Alleged to Have Been Implicated in Steunenberg Murder.

Verdict Returned After All Night's Consideration by Jury.

No Argument Was Made by Attorneys for the Defense.

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 4.—The jury in the case of George A. Pettibone, charged with conspiracy in the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg has returned a verdict of not guilty.

The jury began its deliberations at 8:50 o'clock last night. The last day of the trial was occupied with the argument of James H. Hawley for the prosecution and with his instruction to the jury.

Hawley fairly dared the attorneys for Pettibone to speak in his behalf, but they sat dumb when he concluded, and when asked by Judge Wood if any argument would be presented by the defense, Judge Hilton said:

"Certainly not."

The courtroom was cleared before the jury retired, but the attorneys, the defendant and a few of his friends waited for a time in the hope of hearing the verdict last night. Pettibone was a very sick man during yesterday, but insisted on the trial being conducted. It was necessary to carry him to the courtroom last night.

MYSTERY UNSOLVED

One Man Claiming to be Husband Ordered Away.

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 4.—The jury in the case of Madeline Odell Clayton brought in a verdict, this forenoon, saying that Madeline Odell Clayton was found dead in the Rock river, in the city of Janesville, Rock county, Wis., on the 27th day of December, 1907, and by what means, weapon or instrument, the deceased came to her death were unknown to the jury.

With this open verdict, one of the most sensational inquests ever held in Janesville came to a close.

F. J. Launnette, the Fond du Lac man, who claimed to have married Odell in St. Joseph, Mich., presented a pitiable appearance on the stand when he stated he had lied, and that he was never married, and secured his information from the newspapers. He was given an hour to get out of the city.

HOPE DISSIPATED.

Portland, Me., Jan. 4.—Another hope that the missing Canadian Pacific steamer Mount Royal, with her 400 passengers and crew, might be towed into port was dissipated on the arrival here, today, of the Allen line steamer Hungarian. As the latter ship was twenty days out from Glasgow, and a week overdue, shipping circles in London were led to believe that she had fallen in with the Mount Royal, which left Antwerp, Dec. 7, for St. Johns, and is now long overdue, and expected to hear she was being towed into Portland. No trace of the Mount Royal was seen by the Hungarian. The Allan liner had a hard passage, due to heavy head winds, but sustained no damage.

SURVEYOR GENERAL IS REQUESTED TO RESIGN.

Washington, Jan. 4. — President Roosevelt has requested the resignation of Ernest G. Eagleson, surveyor general of Idaho. This announcement was made at the White House today by Senator Heyburn, who said that there was general dissatisfaction with Mr. Eagleson's administration of his office, and complaint had been made by the interior department. He indicated that there would be a general cleaning out of the employes of the office of the surveyor general at Boise, Idaho. Mr. Eagleson's successor has not yet been selected.

RAILROAD FOREMAN IS KILLED AT MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, Jan. 4.—The body of Fred Gehring, aged about 38 years, was found today near the street car line just south of the city limits. The body was terribly mutilated, the man apparently having been murdered. He was the foreman of a Chicago & Northwestern construction gang. The sheriff is making an investigation.

HONESTY REWARDED.

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 4.—Lawrence Pritchett, a gatesman, employed at the plant of the Eastern Steel company, at this place, returning from a holiday visit to New Jersey, picked up in a Pullman car a package containing $7,500 in gold bonds, and $4,500 more in negotiable paper. Having communicated with a Philadelphia broker, he ascertained the owner, and returned to him the money by express. Yesterday his honesty was rewarded by the gift of a $500 United States gold bond from the owner.

TO CONTINUE DRUCE CASE

Claims of George Druce and Others to be Pushed.

London, Jan. 4.—At a conference today of the lawyers and others interested in the claim of George Hollambay Druce to the estate and title of the duke of Portland, it was decided, after receiving the reports of the doctor and surveyor, who attended the exhumation of the coffin, to continue the prosecution of Herbert Druce for perjury, when the case comes up in the police court on Jan. 6. While no statement was given out, it is understood that the prosecution will insist that the burden of proving that the body found in the coffin is actually that of T. C. Druce lies with the defense.

THE JURY DISAGREED

Stood Ten to Two for Acquittal of Caleb Powers.

Judge Discharges Them After Being Out Forty-Eight Hours.

Georgetown, Ky., Jan. 4.—After being out more than forty-eight hours, the jury in the case of Caleb Powers, tried on a charge of complicity in the murder of William Goebel, today reported for the second time that they were unable to agree upon a verdict, and were discharged by Judge Morris.

This was the fourth trial of Powers. In two of the former trials Powers was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment, and in the third trial he was also convicted and given the death sentence.

After the discharge of the jury, court was adjourned until the afternoon, when a motion of the defense for bail was to be heard. The jury stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. J. L. Price, the foreman, and J. W. Renaker, the Harrison county juror, held out for conviction.

Powers was showered with congratulations. Two of the jurors shook Powers by the hand and actually cried. He said he would make a statement later, adding: "I am pleased."

There came near being an acquittal. Mr. Renaker made the proposition to Mr. Bryce to vote for acquittal. Bryce held out, though a sick man, and Renaker said he would vote with him. C. J. Marshall first voted for conviction, but soon changed.

There was no money in the jury fund with which to pay the jury.

THREE MORE REPORTS OF THE HOUSE BREAKERS

Try Porch Climbing Stunt at Home of George D. Swift.

As the investigations into the series of burglaries, supposed to have been perpetrated by a pair of daring housebreakers, this week progresses, more of their operations are coming to light, and it appears that, with the exception of the raids on the homes of Alexander Marshall and C. W. Field, they were in the main unsuccessful.

Thursday night, prior to making entrance to the Field home, in the Adams flats, which netted them approximately $400 worth of goods, porch-climbing of the most daring kind was adopted, presumably by the same burglars at the home of G. P. Swift, 2320 East First street, about 7 o'clock. The family was at dinner, when a slight noise was heard upstairs in the house. Mr. Swift started to investigate, but the man evidently heard him coming, for when Mr. Swift reached the second floor, a front window was open and the bird had flown.

Investigation proved that, risking detection from the street, the man had climbed the porch post at the front of the house, opened a window, and climbed in. Presumably he saw the family at dinner, and risked getting away with a haul without being discovered. He secured nothing before being frightened away, and no trace has been found of him.

Wednesday night, the home of J. H. La Vaque, 5 Chester Terrace, was entered and again the burglars were unsuccessful. Mr. and Mrs. La Vaque had been away from home all afternoon, visiting, and did not return until about 10:30 at night. They found the front door open, but the vestibule door was locked. On opening the vestibule door, it knocked against a light chair, which had been moved from one of the other rooms and placed in a position so that anybody entering would disturb it and warn the burglars of approach.

On entering, Mr. and Mrs. La Vaque noticed that the house was unusually cold. Going to the kitchen, they found the reason in an open window, from which the storm sash had been removed. The burglars evidently used a screw driver to remove the sash, as it was found unbroken on the ground outside. In climbing through the window, they had broken a shelf on which two plants had been kept, and the plants were also found outside, broken and frozen.

The burglars didn't have the temerity to light the electric lights, not knowing at what minute the occupants of the rooms would return, and employed matches in their search through the house. A trail of fifteen to twenty matches, only slightly burned led from room to room and back to the window, through which they had made a hasty exit. A girl of the family, 11 years of age, was on the third floor of the house. She heard the people below and opened a door at the head of the stairs. The noise evidently alarmed the burglars, for they left without securing anything. At least, Mr. LaVaque hasn't missed anything yet. It is thought the men were getting the lay of the house before taking any of the valuables and were frightened off before getting down to their real work.

It is reported that earlier in the week, the home of W. H. Cole, Twelfth avenue east and First street, was entered through a window on the lower floor, while some of the members of the family were in the upper rooms. The intruder was heard and somebody switched a light on in the hall from the head of the stairs. They saw a figure flit through the hall and through the front door.

The police are making determined efforts to capture the daring sneak thieves. They are clever, as the success with which they have escaped detection in their daring schemes attests. They have covered their tracks well in every case, and the fact that the burglaries are all in the same district gives color to the theory that one gang is responsible for the entire series.

None of these cases has been reported to the police.

The Wisdom of Marshall Field

TRUTH DID NOT MATTER

Employe Sent Out Reports to Increase Customers.

Testimony in Wisconsin Grain and Stock Company Case.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some of the strongest testimony which has yet been brought out by the government in the case against George W. Wood, L. A. Wood, F. B. Wood, L. C. Wood and other alleged officers of the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company, charged with mail frauds, was made at this morning's session of the trial by Earl A. Bixby, a former employe of Edwards, Wood & Co., the Edwards-Wood company and the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company.

Not Particular as to Truth.

Bixby told on the stand how he prepared and sent out market stories to different branch offices of the firm, coloring them so as to increase customers' orders without particular regard to actual market conditions.

In the same way he prepared and sent out daily letters to 5,000 customers in different parts of the Northwest, as well as Western customers. He said he got information from newspapers, but some times made portions of his reports to conform to the wishes of his employers. Bixy was careful and thoughtful in his statements, taking time to think, and at the same time gave direct and ready answers.

He was only with the Wisconsin Grain and Stock company, however, for six days immediately following its organization, the remainder of the time being in the service of Edwards, Wood & Co., and the Edwards, Wood company.

Noble Testifies.

George Noble, one of those who posed as an independent operator on the Superior board of trade in 1905, also gave some rather strong testimony for the prosecution. When the trial opened today Noble was called to the witness stand by Assistant United States District Attorney Ewert. Noble stated that he had been hired by M. C. Wright of the Edwards-Woods company to trade on the Superior board of trade. He was to receive a salary of $50 per month, which was to be paid through the clearing house, in addition to office rent and other necessary expenditures which were incurred in operating.

Questions by Attorney Ewert elicited the statement that he shared an office with Peabody, Wilson and Crumpton, all of whom the government is trying to show were merely dummy traders representing the Wood interests. He did not buy or sell any actual stock or wheat, and he testified that he evened up his trades at the end of each day.

RECEIPTS INCREASE

The receipts of the Duluth land office amounted to $135,093.08 more during the year just closed than during the preceding year. The total receipts for 1907 were $310,496.86, and the total for 1906 was $175,403.78.

One of the biggest increases was in the sale of public lands. There were also increases from stone and timber entries. The last quarter was the heaviest of the year, and one of the heaviest on record. Receipts during the quarter, ending Dec. 31, amounted to $115,531.67.

ANOTHER LONG TRIAL ENDED

All the testimony in the case of A. W. Holmes against the Red Cliff Lumber company, to recover about $10,000, alleged to be due on a logging contract, was submitted last evening, and the case was argued to the jury today. The trial has been in progress for about two weeks, and the jurors did not look very well pleased at having the case submitted to them on a Saturday evening.

In the former trial of Mr. Holmes against the Red Cliff Lumber company, a replevin action, the jury returned a verdict in the plaintiff's favor, after remaining out nearly two days and two nights.

HUSBAND IS UNDER ARREST

Newark, N. J., Jan. 4.—Now that the identity of the "Lamp Black Swamp" murder has been definitely established, the police are confident of a quick solution of the mystery. Up to yesterday the case was a hopeless maze of contradictory theories and false identifications. Even when the first suggestion came that the body might be that of Mrs. Helena Whitmore of Brooklyn, the police were skeptical. When the woman's husband said he was unable to make a positive identification, the police felt that another hope had been dashed. A few hours later, however, the body was positively recognized as that of Mrs. Whitmore and today her husband is a prisoner. He is held ostensibly as a witness, but the police are making a careful investigation of his movements since Christmas day, a few hours before the body of his wife was found.

Whitemore has admitted that he quarreled with his wife shortly before she disappeared from home, because of attentions which she accepted from another man.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 4.—Charles Augustus Young, one of the foremost astronomers in the United States, is dead of pneumonia at his home here. He had been living in Hanover since his retirement from the position of professor of astronomy at Princeton university about a year ago.

He was a specialist of solar physics, and discovered the solar "reversing layer" and was the author of several astronomical books.

Allentown, Pa., Jan. 4.—George W. Eckert, known all over the world as the breeder of owl pigeons that have won first prizes at shows in all parts of the country, died at his home here today, aged 52 years. He left a widow and two children.

Denver, Jan. 4.—William T. Dailey, who with William N. Byers, founded the Rocky Mountain News in 1859 died yesterday afternon after a illness of several months. Before coming to Colorado Mr. Dailey was connected with newspapers in Iowa and Nebraska.

GET SIXTY RIFLES.

Russian Revolutionists Make Haul From the Caspian Regiment.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 4.—At Peterhof last night agents of the revolutionary organization quietly entered the office of Caspian regiment and got away with sixty rifles. The authorities have no clue.

Discoveries of bombs and explosives in St. Petersburg are reported almost every day, and the police declare they have information to the effect that certain Japanese are preparing to resume activity by influencing the terrorists. Yesterday, the police of this city seized fourteen bombs in the lodgings of a laborer and took twenty men in custody.

WHY MARRIAGES FAIL.

London Cor. New York Sun: Right Rev. John Sheepshanks, the aged bishop of Norwich, drew enthusiastic applause today at the annual church congress, now in session at Yarmouth, by his dicta on the marriage question. He regretfully admitted that if the clergy could unmarry as well as marry they would be far more busily employed than in the busiest times now.

He said that when marriages were regretted it was largely because they had been hasty and ill-considered. The great causes of domestic unhappiness were selfishness and temper. Men were more selfish than women. Man put his great sturdy arms akimbo and declared that he was the one person to be considered in the home.

The bishop denounced nagging, but said that when there was a tiff the man ought to initiate a reconciliation. Men ought to regard as important and remember the anniversaries of their wedding days and their wives' birthdays and give them presents, not forgetting a good loving kiss.

Middle-aged women often complained that their husbands kissed the children but would not kiss them. Women longed for a demonstration of affection. Much trouble would be avoided if men would remember this.

The bishop, in warmly urging marriage, declared that it was intended, among other things, for peopling heaven.

THE SIMPLE LIFE IN LONDON.

What with caravanning, camping out, renouncing meat and wine and buying ready made frocks, a good many of us are trying our best to lead the simple life. It is doubtless better for the next generation that the young girls of this can scarcely be induced to touch the cup that inebriates as well as cheers.

Even young men, says the Gentlewoman, Neville Lytton among them, are vaunting the virtues of fruit, nuts and vegetables as food. And barley water, actually barley water, is becoming popular as a drink. Mrs. Earle of "Surrey Garden" fame and aunt of the present Lord Lytton, is an ardent disciple of vegetarianism; so too, although less dogmatic a one, the Duchess of Rutland—aye! and Lady Plymouth and the young Lady Lytton and the Baronne de Meyer besides.

Anyhow, it is quite a sign of the times that the Duchess of Portland gave a luncheon party some time ago at the Eustace Miles restaurant and her guests included Arthur Balfour and Lord Revelstoke and the Duchess of Marlborough.

DISILLUSION.

"It's a big pile, all right," he said, "and it may do well enough for Egypt, but if a man in the United States should turn out a job of stone work like that the papers would roast him from Hoboken to Hegewisch."

Turning away disappointed, he consoled himself by taking a ride on a camel, which he found fully up to all the descriptions he had read of it.

NOT A SPORTING ITEM.

Mrs. George W. Hillyard, who has won the women's singles lawn tennis championship of England very often, was beaten in the semi-final round of the championship tournament at Wimbledon this year by Miss C. M. Wilson, a player not considered to be of Mrs. Hillyard's rank as a general thing, says the New York Sun. Mrs. Hillyard was not entirely pleased at the result, and after the match she wrote a letter to an English newspaper, in the course of which she put down the following things:

"I was advertised to play Miss Wilson in the center court at 2 o'clock, and as I find that I have now to be very careful of what I eat before a match I had but a small plate of rice pudding at 1 o'clock.

"When I arrived at the court it was pouring with rain and the taurpaulin was on the court. The referee then told us that he should be glad if we would go on, if we did not mind. I promptly refused, having looked forward for a fortnight to this match, and wished to play it on a dry court with a good gallery.

"The rain went on steadily falling until 4:30, and then the referee told us he should put on a ladies' double as soon as it stopped. At that I went into the tea tent, and at the risk of having to appear positively vulgar I must tell you what I ate, thinking, of course, that all chance of my playing in the championships was over.

Two bath buns.

Six or seven slices of bread and butter.

Three or four cups of tea.

Six or seven biscuit cakes.

Two or three slices of other cake.

"Not satisfied with that, when I went up to the ladies' dressing room there were some beautiful strawberries provided for the players, and I ate

"Three plates of strawberries.

"I did this, having had a very light lunch, and not expecting to dine until 9 or 9:30. As soon as I had eaten this fearful meal the referee came and asked me as a particular favor if I would play Miss Wilson, as he was not going to play a ladies' double after all.

"I again refused and he went away, but returned in five minutes and said that a committee meeting had been held over it and the verdict was I had to play whether I liked it or not.

"I immediately said I would scratch, and indeed did so, but Miss Wilson was upset about it, pointed out what a false position it placed her in, and implored me to reconsider my decision, which I did, only to please her. I like her very much indeed.

"Unfortunately one cannot control one's feelings. I did not lose my temper in the court, as it had gone before I commenced playing, and from start to finish I never tried one stroke. I hit as hard as I could to give vent to my temper, but I felt more inclined to bang a ball into the committee box than to make any winning shot."

What are your "lucky numbers?" Perhaps the number of the classified ads, in today's paper is one of your lucky numbers.

CURRANTS ARE NUTRITUOUS.

Ladies' Pictorial: The reason why currants are so remarkably nutritious is that they consist, to a very large degree, of saccharine in its most easily digestible form—that of grape sugar. The piquant flavor of the currant, which adds so much to its pleasantness as a food, is derived from the valuable percentage of tartaric acid which the berry contains. Potash is also present in the form of cream of tartar and is undoubtedly of dietic value.

IS VARICOCELE DANGEROUS?

Medical Scientists in Men's Diseases Say That More Than 40 Per Cent of Men Suffer From Ill Effects of This and Brings on Associated Diseases.

That there are thousands of men suffering from this malady and that they have lost the vigor and vim of manhood, as well as physique, there is no doubt about. The many physical and mental wrecks of men which you see in office and shop, in store and street, their very looks betray that they are suffering of that awful condition that the medical profession calls "Varicocele."

If your testacle is longer on one side than on the other, and you feel the cords to be thick, varicose and wormlike, and you have pain in the region of these, you may be sure that you are the man with this brain and body wrecking condition. No matter how long you may have had it, and how little you feel of the ill effects of this at present, in time it will have the same effect on you as it has on every one of its victims. This disease is a condition where the spermatic veins are over filled with blood, and the valves do not prevent any longer the return of veinous blood, and this being stagnant in the cord will fill this up, increase the weight and drags continually the spermatic cord with all its sensory and sympathetic nerves, causing pain, distress and nervousness. But remember the process goes further, the spermatic cord being the canal from the testicle and surrounded by thousands of fine nerve fibers, is slowly, but surely torn, and you have then a true "Loss of Manhood." Varicocele affects both mind and body, lowers the vital, sexual and general depression and a long train of nervous diseases. Ninety out of 100 of these sufferers experience a loss of sexual vigor in later years, and with it comes nervous irritation, seminal losses, dyspepsia, dragging, heavy and pailful sensation of the groin, pain in the back, melancholy and drowsy depression. Varicocele is the direct cause in thousands of cases of rupture, as the enlarged veins are extending up into the inguinal canal and go through the internal wall of the abdomen and cause the passage of the guts to pass through this hole and go down into the scrotum.

This disease is often associated by Hydrocecle, enlarged, prostatic gland, spermatorrhoea, stricture, bladder and kidney disease. Often varicocele and the whole train of associated diseases is brought on by that secret vice of liabit which destroys body and soul, even of the best and of the most hopeful of young men.

We found in former years that cutting and dissecting out these veins did not cure our patients. The deep-seated nerves that control the function and nutrition of the sexual organs were still causing the patients trouble and more pain than before. After our discovery of the poisons in stagnant circulation of varicocele we invented the "Direct Method of the Dissolving Process," and this method is as superior to the old-time cutting and blood letting and drugging as the modern electric light is superior to the old-fashioned tallow candle.

We are specialists in Men's diseases only, and we are as successful in the cure of these diseases as we are in the cure of all and any men's ailment. Men, if you want a cure of your suffering, no matter what your trouble is and how long you had it, come to us and you will not look any longer for the restoration of your health.

Progressive Med. Specialists.
Dear Doctors:

I wish I could let the world know what you have done for me as I have been a sufferer of Varicocele of the worst kind for six months and had lost 15 pounds. I tried almost every doctor and remedy I could think of, but nothing did relieve my suffering. After almost giving up in despair, I took refuge to you, and in four weeks I gained 17 pounds, the pain has disappeared and it have never felt better in ten years. Ever since I left Duluth, after you pronounced me cured, I am well and strong again.

You deserve my most sincere thanks, dear Doctors, and your methods I cannot recommend high enough to those who suffer. Sincerely yours, Martin Schank.

ACCUSED MEN ARE ARRAIGNED

They Will be Given Until Monday to Enter Pleas.

Four men indicted yesterday by the grand jury, were arraigned before Judge Cant this morning. The accused were James Gorden Bell, charged with forgery; Philip Whiterock, charged with grand larceny in the second degree; Joseph Bassuzzo, charged with assault in the second degree and Bernard Bradford, charged with grand larceny. The indictments against Bassuzzo and Bradford were returned last evening. Bassuzzo is claimed to have used a knife on Thomas Colosone and Bradford is claimed to have stolen a $35 suit of clothes from Noe Recher of 1105 West Michigan street. All four men will be given until Monday to enter pleas.

MARTIAL LAW AT MUNCIE, IND.

Governor Hanley Places Gen. McKee in Control of City.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 4.—Governor Hanley today issued a martial law proclamation, placing Gen. McKee in control at Muncie. Maj. Gen. McKee has twelve companies of infantry, one battery and details from the signal corps of the Indiana National Guard with him at Muncie.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 4.—Twelve companies of infantry, one battery and a company of signal corps infantry of the National Guard are gathering here today, under orders from Governor Hanley to maintain peace during the strike of the employes of the street railway. Cars began running on regular schedule, and there has been no disturbance.

About half of the employes of the Indiana Union Traction company at Marion struck today. Only part of the local cars are running there. The trouble has begun to interfere with interurban traffic. A meeting of the men was called for today to decide whether all would strike. Strike-breakers have been sent out of town by the traction line officials at Marion, and it is stated they will not be brought back unless necessary.

According to the state labor inspector there are 8,000 idle men in Muncie.

COURT MAKES NEW CITIZENS

Many Applicants Appear for Full Citizenship Papers.

This was the date set by the district court for a hearing on the applications for citizenship papers, and about fifty applicants appeared this morning.

Owing to the sickness of one of the judges, the court work was much delayed this morning, and it was not until nearly noon that Judge Cant was able to turn his attention to the matter of citizenship making. By that time some of the applicants from the range had become tired of waiting and had gone home. The work of examining the applicants was resumed this afternoon. Assistant United States Attorney Sweet, who was appointed to look after the government's interest at the hearings, is present at the examination today.

AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Anti-Saloon League Will Enter the Political Arena.

Planning Energetic Fight for Men Opposed to Liquor Traffic.

N. A. Palmer, state superintendent of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, is in Duluth today, and states that active preparations are being made to elect members of the next legislature who will enforce the liquor laws of the state. Attention will also be paid to the state officials, and should any official show that he is not in favor of strict enforcement of the liquor laws, he will incur the ill will of the anti-saloon league and what influence it can control in the next state election.

Mr. Palmer and seven men are continually covering the state and are constantly bringing influence to bear upon the rigid enforcement of the liquor laws, that are on the statute books at the present time, as well as working toward the enactment of a prohibition law in this state. In connection with this work they are attempting to secure the right candidates, irrespective of party for the legislature and state offices.

The anti-saloon league takes credit for the present lid movement throughout the state. Mr. Palmer points to the rapid growth of prohibition all over the country and says that in time its growth will be extended to Minnesota.

NEW BRIDGE IS COMPLETED

Commissioner E. M. Patterson has returned from the range, where, in company with Commissioners Sundeen, McInnis and McMahan, he inspected the new bridge over the St. Louis river, four miles south of Aurora, Thursday. The committee will probably report to the county board at the meeting next Tuesday, when the structure will be accepted and an order drawn for the payment for the same.

The bridge is a steel structure with one span of 120 feet. It was built at a cost of $3,395 to the county, to give the farmers on the further side of the St. Louis river an opportunity of getting into Aurora as their nearest base of supplies and market. Before the bridge was built the farmers were practically cut off from Aurora except in the winter when the river was frozen over.

The commissioners say that the bridge construction is satisfactory in every way and that it will meet all requirements. The bridge was constructed by the Continental Bridge company.

NEW WAREHOUSE.

Duluth Has Largest Institution of Its Kind in Northwest.

The largest warehouse of its kind in the Northwest has just been completed for the Radford company, jobbers of sashes, doors and similar wood products, at 700 Garfield avenue. The concern is just moving into the new structure from its old quarters on East Michigan street.

The new building is 110 by 130 feet and five stories high. The Twin Cities have no building of the kind that is as large, and the officials of the Radford company are naturally proud of their new quarters.

The building was erected from plans drawn by Clyde J. Kelley, architect. The contractor was John Nolan. There are more than 80,000 square feet of floor space.

The comany's general offices are now located in the new building and the concern will carry on its business from there hereafter.

THE EVENING STORY

MRS. SCHOFIELD'S DREAM

By J. E. Cowan.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"I never expect to fill Katy's place," sighed Mrs. Schofield over the magazine she was cutting. "Here it is the fifteenth and I haven't had a chance before to glance at the monthly."

"There's nothing lost, I assure you," replied her husband from the depths of his Review. "The New Woman doesn't spoil in half a moon, does she?"

"I'm more anxious to know something about the 'new' servant. I hope she won't marry and leave just as soon as she becomes invaluable. I was boasting so of Katy only last week."

"Oh, no; she'll not be the marrying kind, I can assure you."

"Indeed!"

"'Pon my word, I believe the most bird's-nest-like affairs in the world are household matters. Same slavish, slow methods of work. I'd get you anything in the world if you'd only turn over a new leaf and show some interest in labor-saving appliances. I don't blame a domestic for marrying or escaping the serfdom of the kitchen in any way possible. It's little better than a treadmill. If I had to get along in the office as you do in the house, my help would desert me, too. How long would my stenographer submit to doing all my work with a goose-quill pen?"

"There you go off on your usual tangent again, Reuben," she sighed. 'How often have I told you that most of the household machinery advertised is so disappointing?"

Mrs. Schofield shook her head incredulously. She was used to her husband's vagaries, as she considered them. Hadn't she tried a patent washing machine, and didn't it wear out her clothes? Hadn't an agent induced her to put in a self-turning meat broiler, and hadn't it burned up her husband's breakfast and nearly set the house on fire? Hadn't she been swindled again and again by oily-tongued agents with button-hole machines, rug machines, stocking-darners, carpet-cleaners, bread-cutters, porch-scrubbers, silver-burnishers—everything which a gullible creature could be blarneyed into buying—except a dish-washer? She drew the line at destruction of her precious china. Not one piece of it should ever be sacrificed to this Moloch of modern invention.

So intent did she become in her reflections upon these experiences that she lost consciousness of her skeptical husband's presence, and, indeed, of everything except the hired girl question which had been uppermost in her mind for a fortnight.

Suddenly the bell rang. She arose and went to the front hall door, as one was there. Then muttering impatiently over the steps her mistake had cost her, she made her way to the kitchen door.

"Who's there?"

"Good evening, Mrs. Schofield. Don't you think, ma'am, that an electric bell outfit with an annunciator would soon pay for itself in the steps it saved?"

The voice was pleasantly modulated, yet it spoke with a briskness and assurance which indicated an aggressive owner.

Oh, dear, another canvasser! she felt sure, instead of an applicant for Katy's vacant place.

"I've heard the batteries freeze and leak and are so much trouble," she politely answered the caller, as she seated her, dreading another combat with an agent.

"If neglected," admitted the other, "but the real trouble is infinitesimal if made a part of a well regulated system."

"But servants are so apt to be neglectful, and one can't think of everything one's self."

"You speak of the old servant. She was a creature of muscle alone, and untrained for thinking. But now it is different."

"Yes," sighed Mrs. Schofield, ignoring the latter part of the remark.

"Then," went on the caller, "the electric doors are the thing between dining room and kitchen. They open automatically when you step on the mat, and avoid all the rattle and bang of opening with the elbow when a tray of dishes is in the hand, or kicking with the foot."

"How persistent she is?" thought Mrs. Schofield. "She really means to fit out the house, I guess."

"And the dumb waiters are run in the same way now," went on the talker, as if unconscious of causing any annoyance. "Really the thing now is the disappearing refrigerator. Modeled after the vanishing gun carriage, I suppose. No reason that the appliances of war should surpass those of peace and domestic happiness. It saves both space and labor. You press the button and electricity does the rest. Intelligence supplants brute force."

She paused an instant for breath, and Mrs. Schofield shook her head negatively. Insinuating that all this dilation upon the subject was of no use. She was about to urge an engagement and seek to free herself of her loquacious caller, when again the stream of her volubility began:

"Then the electric irons. Did you ever happen to see the computation of how many tons of unnecessary lifting one did in a lifetime, transferring the old-fashioned laundry iron from the table to the range and back again? It is astounding what handicaps female labor has submitted to. But now brains are enjoying your long-talked-of triumph over brawn. You have the electric lights and a day current, so the electric irons are a settled fact, I suppose, and for that matter the electric coffee heater and chafing dish."

"Really, I must—" feebly attempted Mrs. Schofield, wondering if the woman would be satisfied with less than a sale of the entire electric establishment. She began to think she would need summon Mr. Schofield, but disliked to, since he prided himself on his brusque dismissal of agents, and laughed at her want of self-assertion.

"Yes," resumed the genteelly modulated tones, "and the laundry is such an important part of the house. But with an inexpensive gas engine to run washer, wringer and mangle, or an electric motor if you prefer, superheated steam for drying and a dumb waiter service, the dreaded 'wash-day' of our foremothers becomes a play ground for the intellect. Both mistress and servant are saved from barbarous sacrifices by inventive genius, and raised somewhere near the level of those who work in offices, stores, etc."

"Barbarous sacrifices! The level of those who work in offices!" echoed Mrs. Schofield, almost unconsciously. She was almost startled by the similarity of these ideas with those Mr. Schofield had been advancing.

"To be sure," broke in the glib-tongued agent. "That's just what it was. Domestic ladies were sacrificed—allowed themselves to be—by a score of forms of drudgery made necessary only by their conservation in regard to labor-saving inventions. It was cracking nuts with one's teeth to save the cost of nut crackers. While the husbands and brothers and their fortunate assistants were relieved of all drudgery by labor-saving inventions, the wife and mother and sister struggled on in the old crude, barbarous ways, sacrificing complexion, back, nerves, health, everything. No wonder it was so much harder to keep domestic help than office help, when a woman had to get down on her knuckles scrubbing porches, while men sat on cushioned spring seats and simply thought, and obedient machines did the rest."

"Pardon me, I will call—"

"A moment, pray—but now you can use the same gas and eletric motor which propels the laundry machinery, dish-washer, etc., to run the patent scrubber and sweeper, while all woman needs do is give it a directing thought."

"I must call Mr. Schofield. I can't quite understand. You mention such a bewildering variety of appliances."

"To be sure; modern science has come to the aid of the housekeeper in such a beneficial way. And we are familiar with all of them, you know, from the egg-beater, mincer and hasher, to the automatic wall-cleaner and bed-maker."

"Do you really sell all these? How can one mind master so much machinery?"

"Sell? I sell nothing, madam. I fear I do not understand you. But why should not a woman's mind be mistress of machinery, as well as a man's, master?"

"Pray explain, then, the object of your call."

"Is it possible I have been talking in the dark? And you mistake me for an agent? Madam, I read your advertisement for domestic help. I am, I may say, the 'new' hired girl; the first graduate of the school of domestic service."

Mrs. Schofield gave such a start that her elbow came sharply in contact with her chair arm. She heard something like a snicker. She looked quickly up. There sat Mr. Schofield regarding her with intense amusement. She understood it all like a flash. She had been asleep. It was all a dream. Would it ever become true?

We Hear of More Cures

Of troubles originating in impure blood, scrofula, loss of appetite, catarrh, rheumatism, by Hood's Sarsaparilla than by all other so-called remedies combined. Somehow those cured by Hood's seem to stay cured, and they gladly tell the good news to others.

Scrofula Sore—"My wife had a scrofulous sore on her leg for years. Many different medicines gave but little benefit. She turned to Hood's Sarsaparilla and the sore quickly healed. It is a good blood medicine." J. N. DAFT, Crosby, Texas.

Afflicted 16 Years—"Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured me of scrofula, with which I have been troubled 16 years, and caused by vaccination. My little daughter had a scrofula swelling on her neck and Hood's Sarsaparilla also cured her." MRS. NORA HUGHEY, Hughey, Tennessee.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold everywhere. In the usual liquid, or in tablet form called Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar. Prepared only by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

DRUNKARDS WHO REFORM.

Former Drinkers Who Have Mania for Torturing Themselves.

A fortnight or so ago a news story was printed in a New York paper telling how a stevedore committed suicide after yielding to temptation to drink. Seven years before, after having been pulled through a bad spree with extreme difficulty, he had bought some poison and declared that he would use it if he ever fell to drinking again. He carried the resolution out, says the Washington Post.

"A case of what we call the fixed idea, rather unusual among men of the stevedore class, but by no means unprecedented," was the comment on this case of a medical man who for many years has made a special study of alcoholism. "Up to ten years ago I used to be called in every three or four months to take care of an upholsterer whose sprees lasted from ten days to two weeks.

"Ten years ago he got so bad that I had a job to get him through. When he was able to listen I told him that another spree would wind him up for a certainty. He told me there wasn't going to be another one.

"He lasted for six straight years, subjecting himself to a veritable torture of temptation all the time at that. On the day when he went back to work in his shop after that last bad spree he got a quart bottle of fine old Kentucky bourbon whisky with a rich bouquet.

"This, after loosening the cork, he placed on a little shelf immediately above his work bench. Then he went to work, with that bottle of whisky right before his eyes. Every once in a while he'd reach up, take the bottle from the shelf, remove the cork, and take long, gloating smells of the whisky.

"Dropping into his shop I caught him doing this time and again.

"'You're never going to down me again, blast you!' he'd say to the bottle as he smelt of the whisky. 'I've got you beat! See, I can just fool with you, make a blooming toy of you, and still you can't nail me!' and then with a final smell at the bottle he'd cork it up again, put it back on its shelf, and resume his work.

"This sort of thing he kept up for six years without ever taking so much as a sip of whisky. When the whisky would lose the strength of its bouquet he'd throw it away and get a fresh bottle.

"I told the man frequently that he was torturing himself unnecessarily, that he was racking his nerves without any reason, and that eventually he'd become the victim of an irresistible impulse to drink the whisky.

"'No, I won't,' he'd protest. 'The stuff made a fool of me for a good many years and now I'm getting hung—I'm making a fool of the whisky.'

"It was a sort of obsession, of course, but it was phenomenal that the man should have been able to carry it along for six years. I should have liked to have my prediction in his case break against me, but it didn't.

"One afternoon in his seventh year of abstention he was going through his stunt of breathing the bouquet of the shelf bottle into his nostrils and gloating over his triumph over it, when the moment if irresistible impulse arrived. He put the bottle to his lips and never stopped gulping it till he had swallowed the whole quart. Then he fell off his bench in a state of coma and I couldn't get to him until he was dead.

"The stuff that he'd conquered for six years got him in the long run, as I had supposed it would all along. But as a matter of fact, that upholsterer might have killed himself with drinking long before had he not developed that peculiar mania.

"With the bottle there in front of him to smell he provided himself with something tangible to fight, and as he was a stubborn man, this was his salvation for those six years. If he hadn't done that he'd probably have gone on his regular spree when his time came around and died.

"In my own practice I had another case of a similar sort. This man was the black sheep of an old Washington square family, who, when cast off by his people on account of his dissipated habits, supported himself by giving piano lessons.

"This man's tipple was peach brandy, for which he had a passion amounting to a mania. One night while sitting intoxicated in the back room of a Fourth avenue saloon he quarreled with a young fellow. The young chap drew a knife, and the music teacher struck out at him blindly, catching him on the point of the jaw with his right fist.

"The young fellow went to the floor and his head struck the edge of an iron spittoon. His skull was fractured and he died in a hospital the next day.

"The music teacher was tried for the thing, but there were plenty of witnesses that he'd only acted in defence of his life, and he was let off.

"He never drank a drop of his favorite peach brandy or anything else when he left the Tombs. Instead of that he devised the same scheme of self-torture as the upholsterer.

"He'd place a bottle of the fragrant peach brandy—than which no liquor made has a more perfect bouquet—on the piano in his lodgings, and then, with the bottle uncorked and the fruity aroma filling the room, he'd play for hours in a sort of trance. That one, too, I caught in the act of thus racking himself one evening when, attracted by his music, I dropped in at his lodgings.

"The fine fragrance of the peach brandy so filled the room, and was so overwhelmingly in its appeal to even a normal man, that I hankered for some drinks out of the bottle myself. This man, too, I warned against his practice of maltreating his nervous organization in that way, but his only reply was that he was trying to atone by that sort of thing for having permitted himself to take a human life.

"One night while playing at the piano, with the bottle of peach brandy sending its perfume all over the place, the black sheep music teacher suddenly ceased playing, grabbed the bottle, knocked the neck off it against the side of the piano, poured the liquor out on the floor and then, with the jagged edges of the bottle, cut this throat. There is little doubt that the old mania for the drink had seized him and that he had killed himself rather than surrender to it.

"This curious desire on the part of some men of fundamentally strong character to triumph over the drink after they've quit it suddenly, generally after some serious catastrophe in their lives, is, I think, modern and certainly rather a widespread manifestation. I have come upon many instances of it.

"I know, for example, a prosperous stock broker who never lets a day go by without torturing himself with the sight of creaming, bubbling champagne, and yet he never takes so much as a taste of it. He will walk into a restaurant alone, for luncheon, say, and with his luncheon will order a quart bottle of the best champagne on the market.

"The waiter pours out a glassful of it, always in a glass with a hollow stem, the better to get the bottom-to-top bubbling effect, and the broker sits and watches the wine hissing and creaming in the glass while he partakes of his food, but never a motion does he make toward drinking a drop of it.

"When the first glass flattens he has the waiter dump the wine out. Then the waiter pours another glass, and the broker watches the fresh glass shoot its little beads into the air, and whisper around the edges of the glass, and this sort of thing is repeated until the whole quart is used up and the broker's luncheon is finished.

"He goes through this same performance ith his quart of champagne at his hotel dinner uptown, and when he goes to a banquet he has his glass in readiness for all the champagne that is served around.

"The story behind this is that this broker once got the jolt of his life all on account of champagne, and so he has been engaged ever since—and it has been twelve years—in giving champagne and all other intoxicating drinks a less what he imagines to be the quiet gloat.

"A dozen years ago he had an option on some immensely valuable zinc mines, and he had a deal all arranged whereby he stood to make a profit of something like $2,000,000. On the very day before the transaction was to be completed he went on a big champagne toot, and while in bad shape he took a singing actress of that day to dine with him at the same fashionable restaurant where his wife and daughters and some of their friends were having dinner.

"When his wife saw him with the actress there was a row, a considerable kickup, in fact. That broke up the zinc mine deal.

"The broker was thus his two millions to the bad. Not only that but his wife with some previous data to go upon, immediately entered suit for divorce against him, and she got the divorce out of hand.

"The broker went down and out all on account of his appetitte for cahmpagne at a critical juncture in his affairs and it took him half a dozen years to get back to where he'd been when the jolt came his way. But he never took a drink of champagne or anything else intoxicating after that bunch of trouble, and he is still subjecting himself to one of the most difficult of all tests—because it hits right at the nerve centers which control an inherent and developed habit—every day of his life."

USEFUL FAT.

A reporter was congratulating Mr. Marconi, at Sydney, N. S., upon his success with trans-Atlantic wireless telegraphy.

"But, sir," said the reporter, "they tell me you are working so hard that you sleep only four hours a night?"

"Yes, that is true," said the inventor.

"No wonder you are getting thin," the reporter observed. "You are growing famous, to be sure, but at what a price of flesh!"

"I am not like the Italian admiral, Libertini, then," said Mr. Marconi, laughing.

"Libertini," he went on, "had won many battles and great renown, and at a ball given in his honor one lady said to another:

"'But how frightfully fat our dear admiral is getting.'

"'Yes,' said the second lady. 'Isn't it fortunate? Otherwise he wouldn't be able to wear all his medals.'"

ACCUSED MEN ARE ARRAIGNED

They Will be Given Until Monday to Enter Pleas.

Four men indicted yesterday by the grand jury, were arraigned before Judge Cant this morning. The accused were James Gorden Bell, charged with forgery; Philip Whiterock, charged with grand larceny in the second degree; Joseph Bassuzzo, charged with assault in the second degree and Bernard Bradford, charged with grand larceny. The indictments against Bassuzzo and Bradford were returned last evening. Bassuzzo is claimed to have used a knife on Thomas Colosone and Bradford is claimed to have stolen a $35 suit of clothes from Noe Recher of 1105 West Michigan street. All four men will be given until Monday to enter pleas.

MARTIAL LAW AT MUNCIE, IND.

Governor Hanley Places Gen. McKee in Control of City.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 4.—Governor Hanley today issued a martial law proclamation, placing Gen. McKee in control at Muncie. Maj. Gen. McKee has twelve companies of infantry, one battery and details from the signal corps of the Indiana National Guard with him at Muncie.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 4.—Twelve companies of infantry, one battery and a company of signal corps infantry of the National Guard are gathering here today, under orders from Governor Hanley to maintain peace during the strike of the employes of the street railway. Cars began running on regular schedule, and there has been no disturbance.

About half of the employes of the Indiana Union Traction company at Marion struck today. Only part of the local cars are running there. The trouble has begun to interfere with interurban traffic. A meeting of the men was called for today to decide whether all would strike. Strike-breakers have been sent out of town by the traction line officials at Marion, and it is stated they will not be brought back unless necessary.

According to the state labor inspector there are 8,000 idle men in Muncie.

COURT MAKES NEW CITIZENS

Many Applicants Appear for Full Citizenship Papers.

This was the date set by the district court for a hearing on the applications for citizenship papers, and about fifty applicants appeared this morning.

Owing to the sickness of one of the judges, the court work was much delayed this morning, and it was not until nearly noon that Judge Cant was able to turn his attention to the matter of citizenship making. By that time some of the applicants from the range had become tired of waiting and had gone home. The work of examining the applicants was resumed this afternoon. Assistant United States Attorney Sweet, who was appointed to look after the government's interest at the hearings, is present at the examination today.

HOLDS FIRST DRILL.

The new company of Third Regiment Minnesota National Guards held its first drill in the Armory last night, and was put through the maneuvers of squad drill and foot movements by Col. Resche. Applications for positions in the new company are being received right along, and everything is going satisfactory in organizing the company.

AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Anti-Saloon League Will Enter the Political Arena.

Planning Energetic Fight for Men Opposed to Liquor Traffic.

N. A. Palmer, state superintendent of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, is in Duluth today, and states that active preparations are being made to elect members of the next legislature who will enforce the liquor laws of the state. Attention will also be paid to the state officials, and should any official show that he is not in favor of strict enforcement of the liquor laws, he will incur the ill will of the anti-saloon league and what influence it can control in the next state election.

Mr. Palmer and seven men are continually covering the state and are constantly bringing influence to bear upon the rigid enforcement of the liquor laws, that are on the statute books at the present time, as well as working toward the enactment of a prohibition law in this state. In connection with this work they are attempting to secure the right candidates, irrespective of party for the legislature and state offices.

The anti-saloon league takes credit for the present lid movement throughout the state. Mr. Palmer points to the rapid growth of prohibition all over the country and says that in time its growth will be extended to Minnesota.

NEW BRIDGE IS COMPLETED

Commissioner E. M. Patterson has returned from the range, where, in company with Commissioners Sundeen, McInnis and McMahan, he inspected the new bridge over the St. Louis river, four miles south of Aurora, Thursday. The committee will probably report to the county board at the meeting next Tuesday, when the structure will be accepted and an order drawn for the payment for the same.

The bridge is a steel structure with one span of 120 feet. It was built at a cost of $3,395 to the county, to give the farmers on the further side of the St. Louis river an opportunity of getting into Aurora as their nearest base of supplies and market. Before the bridge was built the farmers were practically cut off from Aurora except in the winter when the river was frozen over.

The commissioners say that the bridge construction is satisfactory in every way and that it will meet all requirements. The bridge was constructed by the Continental Bridge company.

You can sell your real estate—and anybody else's—anywhere—any time—most any price (if honest)—if you can write or procure a convincing ad.

NEW WAREHOUSE.

Duluth Has Largest Institution of Its Kind in Northwest.

The largest warehouse of its kind in the Northwest has just been completed for the Radford company, jobbers of sashes, doors and similar wood products, at 700 Garfield avenue. The concern is just moving into the new structure from its old quarters on East Michigan street.

The new building is 110 by 130 feet and five stories high. The Twin Cities have no building of the kind that is as large, and the officials of the Radford company are naturally proud of their new quarters.

The building was erected from plans drawn by Clyde J. Kelley, architect. The contractor was John Nolan. There are more than 80,000 square feet of floor space.

The comany's general offices are now located in the new building and the concern will carry on its business from there hereafter.

HONEYMOON

Washington, Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. H. Watson of Morris, Minn., with his bride, who was Miss Agnes McKnight of Grafton, N. D., spent their honeymoon in Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Watson left Washington this morning for their future home in Morris, Minn.

EXPLOSION OF BOMB

Kansas City, Jan. 4.—A bomb was exploded today in the basement of the three-story marble building of the First National bank, Tenth and Baltimore streets, in the business center. The force of the explosion was terrific, and caused much damage. Three persons were injured, none fatally. There is no clue to the person who placed the bomb and set it off.

COPPER STOCKS CLOSE HIGHER

Market Has a Good Advance During the Day.

The copper stock market had a substantial advance today. The better feeling in the New York stock and the good bank statement caused a firmer feeling. The better issues were in good demand during all of the session and closed at the high prices of the day.

North Butte opened at $44.50, advanced to $46 and closed at $45.50 bid and $46 asked. Amalgamated opened at $48, declined to $47.87½, rallied to $49.25 and closed at $49 bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $7.12½, declined to $7, rallied to $7.12½ and closed at $7.12½ bid and $7.25 asked. THE EVENING STORY

MRS. SCHOFIELD'S DREAM

By J. E. Cowan.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"I never expect to fill Katy's place," sighed Mrs. Schofield over the magazine she was cutting. "Here it is the fifteenth and I haven't had a chance before to glance at the monthly."

"There's nothing lost, I assure you," replied her husband from the depths of his Review. "The New Woman doesn't spoil in half a moon, does she?"

"I'm more anxious to know something about the 'new' servant. I hope she won't marry and leave just as soon as she becomes invaluable. I was boasting so of Katy only last week."

"Oh, no; she'll not be the marrying kind, I can assure you."

"Indeed!"

"'Pon my word, I believe the most bird's-nest-like affairs in the world are household matters. Same slavish, slow methods of work. I'd get you anything in the world if you'd only turn over a new leaf and show some interest in labor-saving appliances. I don't blame a domestic for marrying or escaping the serfdom of the kitchen in any way possible. It's little better than a treadmill. If I had to get along in the office as you do in the house, my help would desert me, too. How long would my stenographer submit to doing all my work with a goose-quill pen?"

"There you go off on your usual tangent again, Reuben," she sighed. 'How often have I told you that most of the household machinery advertised is so disappointing?"

Mrs. Schofield shook her head incredulously. She was used to her husband's vagaries, as she considered them. Hadn't she tried a patent washing machine, and didn't it wear out her clothes? Hadn't an agent induced her to put in a self-turning meat broiler, and hadn't it burned up her husband's breakfast and nearly set the house on fire? Hadn't she been swindled again and again by olly-tongued agents with button-hole machines, rug machines, stocking-darners, carpet-tenners, bread-cutters, porch-scrubbers, silver-burnishers—everything which a gullible creature could be blarneyed into buying—except a dish-washer? She drew the line at destruction of her precious china. Not one piece of it should ever be sacrificed to this Moloch of modern invention.

So intent did she become in her reflections upon these experiences that she lost consciousness of her skeptical husband's presence, and, indeed, of everything except the hired girl question which had been uppermost in her mind for a fortnight.

Suddenly the bell rang. She arose and went to the front hall door. No one was there. Then muttering impatiently over the steps her mistake had cost her, she made her way to the kitchen door.

"Who's there?"

"Good evening, Mrs. Schofield. Don't you think, ma'am, that an electric bell outfit with an annunciator would soon pay for itself in the steps it saved?"

The voice was pleasantly modulated, yet it spoke with a briskness and assurance which indicated an aggressive owner.

Oh, dear, another canvasser! she felt sure, instead of an applicant for Katy's vacant place.

"I've heard the batteries freeze and leak and are so much trouble," she politely answered the caller, as she seated her, dreading another combat with an agent.

"If neglected," admitted the other, "but the real trouble is infinitesimal if made a part of a well regulated system."

"But servants are so apt to be neglectful, and one can't think of everything one's self."

"You speak of the old servant. She was a creature of muscle alone, and untrained for thinking. But now it is different."

"Yes," sighed Mrs. Schofield, ignoring the latter part of the remark.

"Then," went on the caller, "the electric doors are the thing between dining room and kitchen. They open automatically when you step on the mat, and avoid all the rattle and bang of opening with the elbow when a tray of dishes is in the hand, or kicking with the foot."

"How persistent she is?" thought Mrs. Schofield. "She really means to fit out the house, I guess."

"And the dumb waiters are run in the same way now," went on the talker, as if unconscious of causing any annoyance. "Really the thing now is the disappearing refrigerator. Modeled after the vanishing gun carriage, I suppose. No reason that the appliances of war should surpass those of peace and domestic happiness. It saves both space and labor. You press the button and electricity does the rest. Intelligence supplants brute force."

She paused an instant for breath, and Mrs. Schofield shook her head negatively, intimating that all this dilation upon the subject was of no use. She was about to urge an engagement and seek to free herself of her loquacious caller, when again the stream of her volubility began:

"Then the electric irons. Did you ever happen to see the computation of how many tons of unnecessary lifting one did in a lifetime, transferring the old-fashioned laundry iron from the table to the range and back again? It is astounding what handicaps female labor has submitted to. But now brains are enjoying your long-talked-of triumph over brawn. You have the electric lights and a day current, so the electric irons are a settled fact, I suppose, and for that matter the electric coffee heater and chafing dish."

"Really, I must—" feebly attempted Mrs. Schofield, wondering if the woman would be satisfied with less than a sale of the entire electric establishment. She began to think she would need summon Mr. Schofield, but disliked to, since he prided himself on his brusque dismissal of agents, and laughed at her want of self-assertion.

"Yes," resumed the genteelly modulated tones, "and the laundry is such an important part of the house. But with an inexpensive gas engine to run washer, wringer and mangle, or an electric motor if you prefer, superheated steam for drying and a dumb waiter service, the dreaded 'wash-day' of our foremothers becomes a play ground for the intellect. Both mistress and servant are saved from barbarous sacrifices by inventive genius, and raised somewhere near the level of those who work in offices, stores, etc."

"Barbarous sacrifices! The level of those who work in offices!" echoed Mrs. Schofield, almost unconsciously. She was almost startled by the similarity of these ideas with those Mr. Schofield had been advancing.

"To be sure," broke in the glib-tongued agent. "That's just what it was. Domestic ladies were sacrificed—allowed themselves to be—by a score of forms of drudgery made necessary only by their conservation in regard to labor-saving inventions. It was cracking nuts with one's teeth to save the cost of nut crackers. While the husbands and brothers and their fortunate assistants were relieved of all drudgery by labor-saving inventions, the wife and mother and sister struggled on in the old crude, barbarous ways, sacrificing complexion, back, nerves, health, everything. No wonder it was so much harder to keep domestic help than office help, when a woman had to get down on her knuckles scrubbing porches, while men sat on cushioned spring seats and simply thought, and obedient machines did the rest."

"Pardon me, I will call—"

"A moment, pray—but now you can use the same gas and electric motor which propels the laundry machinery, dish-washer, etc., to run the patent scrubber and sweeper, while all woman needs do is give it a directing thought."

"I must call Mr. Schofield. I can't quite understand. You mention such a bewildering variety of appliances."

"To be sure; modern science has come to the aid of the housekeeper in such a beneficial way. And we are familiar with all of them, you know, from the egg-beater, mincer and hasher, to the automatic wall-cleaner and bed-maker."

"Do you really sell all these? How can one mind master so much machinery?"

"Sell? I sell nothing, madam. I fear I do not understand you. But why should not a woman's mind be mistress of machinery, as well as a man's, master?"

"Pray explain, then, the object of your call."

"Is it possible I have been talking in the dark? And you mistake me for an agent? Madam, I read your advertisement for domestic help. I am, I may say, the 'new' hired girl; the first graduate of the school of domestic service."

Mrs. Schofield gave such a start that her elbow came sharply in contact with her chair arm. She heard something like a snicker. She looked quickly up. There sat Mr. Schofield regarding her with intense amusement. She understood it all like a flash. She had been asleep. It was all a dream. Would it ever become true?

We Hear of More Cures

Of troubles originating in impure blood, scrofula, loss of appetite, catarrh, rheumatism, by Hood's Sarsaparilla than by all other so-called remedies combined. Somehow those cured by Hood's seem to stay cured, and they gladly tell the good news to others.

Scrofula Sore—"My wife had a scrofulous sore on her leg for years. Many different medicines gave but little benefit. She turned to Hood's Sarsaparilla and the sore quickly healed. It is a good blood medicine." J. N. DAFT, Crosby, Texas.

Afflicted 16 Years—"Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured me of scrofula, with which I have been troubled 16 years, and caused by vaccination. My little daughter had a scrofula swelling on her neck and Hood's Sarsaparilla also cured her." MRS. NORA HUGHEY, Hughey, Tennessee.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold everywhere. In the usual liquid, or in tablet form called Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar. Prepared only by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

DRUNKARDS WHO REFORM.

Former Drinkers Who Have Mania for Torturing Themselves.

A fortnight or so ago a news story was printed in a New York paper telling how a stevedore committed suicide after yielding to temptation to drink. Seven years before, after having been pulled through a bad spree with extreme difficulty, he had bought some poison and declared that he would use it if he ever fell to drinking again. He carried the resolution out, says the Washington Post.

"A case of what we call the fixed idea, rather unusual among men of the stevedore class, but by no means unprecedented," was the comment on this case of a medical man who for many years has made a special study of alcoholism. "Up to ten years ago I used to be called in every three or four months to take care of an upholsterer whose sprees lasted from ten days to two weeks.

"Ten years ago he got so bad that I had a job to get him through. When he was able to listen I told him that another spree would wind him up for a certainty. He told me there wasn't going to be another one.

"He lasted for six straight years, subjecting himself to a veritable torture of temptation all the time at that. On the day when he went back to work in his shop after that last bad spree he got a quart bottle of fine old Kentucky bourbon whisky with a rich bouquet.

"This, after loosening the cork, he placed on a little shelf immediately above his work bench. Then he went to work, with that bottle of whisky right before his eyes. Every once in a while he'd reach up, take the bottle from the shelf, remove the cork, and take long, gloating smells of the whisky.

"Dropping into his shop I caught him doing this time and again.

"'You're never going to down me again, blast you!' he'd say to the bottle as he smelt of the whisky. 'I've got you beat! See, I can just fool with you, make a blooming toy of you, and still you can't nail me!' and then with a final smell at the bottle he'd cork it up again, put it back on its shelf, and resume his work.

"This sort of thing he kept up for six years without ever taking so much as a sip of whisky. When the whisky would lose the strength of its bouquet he'd throw it away and get a fresh bottle.

"I told the man frequently that he was torturing himself unnecessarily, that he was racking his nerves without any reason, and that eventually he'd become the victim of an irresistible impulse to drink the whisky.

"'No, I won't,' he'd protest. 'The stuff made a fool of me for a good many years and now I'm getting hung—I'm making a fool of the whisky.'

"It was a sort of obsession, of course, but it was phenomenal that the man should have been able to carry it along for six years. I should have liked to have my prediction in his case break against me, but it didn't.

"One afternoon in his seventh year of abstention he was going through his stunt of breathing the bouquet of the shelf bottle into his nostrils and gloating over his triumph over it, when the moment if irresistible impulse arrived. He put the bottle to his lips and never stopped gulping it till he had swallowed the whole quart. Then he fell off his bench in a state of coma and I couldn't get to him until he was dead.

"The stuff that he'd conquered for six years got him in the long run, as I had supposed it would all along. But as a matter of fact, that upholsterer might have killed himself with drinking long before had he not developed that peculiar mania.

"With the bottle there in front of him to smell he provided himself with something tangible to fight, and as he was a stubborn man, this was his salvation for those six years. If he hadn't done that he'd probably have gone on his regular spree when his time came around and died.

"In my own practice I had another case of a similar sort. This man was the black sheep of an old Washington square family, who, when cast off by his people on account of his dissipated habits, supported himself by giving piano lessons.

"This man's tipple was peach brandy, for which he had a passion amounting to a mania. One night while sitting intoxicated in the back room of a Fourth avenue saloon he quarreled with a young fellow. The young chap drew a knife, and the music teacher struck out at him blindly, catching him on the point of the jaw with his right fist.

"The young fellow went to the floor and his head struck the edge of an iron splittoon. His skull was fractured and he died in a hospital the next day.

"The music teacher was tried for the thing, but there were plenty of witnesses that he'd only acted in defence of his life, and he was let off. He never drank a drop of his favorite peach brandy or anything else when he left the Tombs. Instead of that he devised the same scheme of self-torture as the upholsterer.

"He'd place a bottle of the fragrant peach brandy—than which no liquor made has a more perfect bouquet—on the piano in his lodgings, and then, with the bottle uncorked and the fruity aroma filling the room, he'd play for hours in a sort of trance. That one, too, I caught in the act of thus racking himself one evening when, attracted by his music, I dropped in at his lodgings.

"The fine fragrance of the peach brandy so filled the room, and was so overwhelmingly in its appeal to even a normal man, that I hankered for some drinks out of the bottle myself. This man, too, I warned against his practice of maltreating his nervous organization in that way, but his only reply was that he was trying to atone by that sort of thing for having permitted himself to take a human life.

"One night while playing at the piano, with the bottle of peach brandy sending its perfume all over the place, the black sheep music teacher suddenly ceased playing, grabbed the bottle, knocked the neck off it against the side of the piano, poured the liquor out on the floor and then, with the jagged edges of the bottle, cut this throat. There is little doubt that the old mania for the drink had seized him and that he had killed himself rather than surrender to it.

"This curious desire on the part of some men of fundamentally strong character to triumph over the drink after they've quit it suddenly, generally after some serious catastrophe in their lives, is, I think, modern and certainly rather a widespread manifestation. I have come upon many instances of it.

"I know, for example, a prosperous stock broker who never lets a day go by without torturing himself with the sight of creaming, bubbling champagne, and yet he never takes so much as a taste of it. He will walk into a restaurant alone, for luncheon, say, and with his luncheon will order a quart bottle of the best champagne on the market.

"The waiter pours out a glassful of it, always in a glass with a hollow stem, the better to get the bottom-to-top bubbling effect, and the broker sits and watches the wine hissing and creaming in the glass while he partakes of his food, but never a motion does he make toward drinking a drop of it.

"When the first glass flattens he has the waiter dump the wine out. Then the waiter pours another glass, and the broker watches the fresh glass shoot its little beads into the air, and whisper around the edges of the glass, and this sort of thing is repeated until the whole quart is used up and the broker's luncheon is finished.

"He goes through the same performance ith his quart of champagne at his hotel dinner uptown, and when he goes to a banquet he has his glass in readiness for all the champagne that is served around.

"The story behind this is that this broker once got the jolt of his life all on account of champagne, and so he has been engaged ever since—and it has been twelve years—in giving champagne and all other intoxicating drinkables what he imagines to be the quiet gloat.

"A dozen years ago he had an option on some immensely valuable zinc mines, and he had a deal all arranged whereby he stood to make a profit of something like $2,000,000. On the very day before the transaction was to be completed he went on a big champagne toot, and while in bad shape he took a singing actress of that day to dine with him at the same fashionable restaurant where his wife and daughters and some of their friends were having dinner.

"When his wife saw him with the actress there was a row, a considerable kickup, in fact. That broke up the zinc mine deal.

"The broker was thus his two millions to the bad. Not only that but his wife with some previous data to go upon, immediately entered suit for divorce against him, and she got the divorce out of hand.

"The broker went down and out all on account of his appetite for cahmpagne at a critical juncture in his affairs and it took him half a dozen years to get back to where he'd been when the jolt came his way. But he never took a drink of champagne or anything else intoxicating after that bunch of trouble, and he is still subjecting himself to one of the most difficult of all tests—because it hits right at the nerve centers which control an inherent and developed habit—every day of his life."

USEFUL FAT.

A reporter was congratulating Mr. Marconi, at Sydney, N. S., upon his success with trans-Atlantic wireless telegraphy.

"But, sir," said the reporter, "they tell me you are working so hard that you sleep only four hours a night?"

"Yes, that is true," said the inventor.

"No wonder you are getting thin," the reporter observed. "You are growing famous, to be sure, but at what a price of flesh!"

"I am not like the Italian admiral, Libertini, then," said Mr. Marconi, laughing.

"Libertini," he went on, "had won many battles and great renown, and at a ball given in his honor one lady said to another:

"'But how frightfully fat our dear admiral is getting.'

"'Yes,' said the second lady. 'Isn't it fortunate? Otherwise he wouldn't be able to wear all his medals.'"

LABOR

TO TALK TO MINISTERS

Woodbridge Will Address Association on the Open Shop.

Finns and Austrians Are Plentiful on Local Labor Market.

"The Open Shop" will be the subject discussed by Dwight E. Woodbridge at a meeting of the Ministers' association, to be held next Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the public library. The supposition is that the ministers will be asked to lend their moral support to the movement for the non-union shop.

Another week in the fight against organized labor has come to an end, with no very special developments. During the holidays both sides have been content to rest, so far as actively carrying on the fight was concerned.

All the outside labor leaders went home for Christmas and New Year's. George B. Howley, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, and personal representative of Samuel Gompers, president of the national federation, is the only outside leader of prominence who has been in Duluth during the week.

Monday or Tuesday the other leaders who were in the city before the holidays, as well as several whose faces will be new to Duluth, are expected to arrive to take part in the campaign. They will bring promises of moral and financial support from national labor organizations, and in some instances, it is claimed, will bring a substantial sum of money along with them.

It is said the national organizations, considering this a fight which is directed against the union movement as a whole, are being very liberal in their contributions, and it is claimed that there will be plenty of money forthcoming to keep the local union men out of want all winter.

* * *

There is still an abundance of common labor on the local market. Just at present Austrians and Finlanders seem to outnumber all other nationalities. They are used mostly in railroad work, and as there isn't much of that being done now, they are not faring very well.

Scandinavians are favorites for work in the woods and are taken in preference to men of other nationalities in almost every instance. There is some demand for lumberjacks, but the employment agents are meeting with no trouble in filling all orders for men of this occupation. There are plenty of them looking for work, and now that they are adjusted to new wage conditions, they do not object to going to work at the low wages offered.

While the cut of pine logs probably will not be so large this year as last, the production of pulpwood, posts and poles probably will be even larger, and this branch of the woods industry is giving employment to hundreds of men in Northern Minnesota. The Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road and the Wisconsin Central are about the only lines in this section of the country which are employing large crews of men in track and construction work.

The semi-annual installation of officers of Bricklayers' International union No. 3 took place last night, J. E. Watts, deputy, being the installing officer. The following officers, who will serve during the next six months, were installed:

President, Edgar Day; vice president, John Hagen; recording and corresponding secretary, William Towner; financial secretary, J. O. Larson; treasurer, Charles Older; doorkeeper, J. E. Newton; director for eighteen months, M. Carroll. Present directors are Nels Peterson, D. E. Hartwick and M. Carroll.

EX-SECRETARY SHAW HAS PLAN

Which He Believes Would Solve the Currency Problem.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 4.—Former Secretary Shaw of the treasury received one of the most notable demonstrations in his career in Iowa, a great audience greeting him on the occasion of his speech under the auspices of the Des Moines Bankers' club last night.

Though much political speculation was indulged in because of Secretary Shaw's visit to Iowa at this time, his address was entirely non-political in character and devoted almost exclusively to the topic of banking reforms. He took occasion at different times to refer to President Roosevelt in terms of praise and each time there was another demonstration of applause. On the subject of currency reform, Mr. Shaw said, in part:

"The plan which to my mind presents the fewest objections is to allow our national banks to issue a limited volume of supplemental currency, subject to a tax of 5 per cent or 6 per cent during the period of its maintenance. I deem it important that the supplemental currency shall be identical in form with some money regularly in circulation; otherwise its presence would alarm, and do more harm than good. I deem it important, also, that its ultimate redemption in gold be guaranteed by the government. I realize that this is illogical, but the American people have been schooled to believe in government guaranteed money, and any departure therefrom would meet with very general distrust fatal to commerce. I, therefore, deem it wise to supercede the statement on the present bank note 'this bond is secured by United States bonds' with the statement 'this note is guaranteed by the government.' With this change the supplemental currency to be issued by the national banks can be identical with that which is secured by a deposit of bonds. So generally, so wellnigh universally solvent are our banking institutions that the government would be taking slight risk to guarantee the ultimate redemption of all this supplemental currency and the proposed tax would many fold cover the risk.

"If the banks were permitted to issue to the extent of an average of 50 per cent of the capital guraduated, according to the size of the cities and towns where the banks are located, the aggregate volume would be approximately $400,000,000. The plan which I have suggested contemplates as a condition precedent to the issuance of any uncovered currency the consent of the comptroller. This consent will naturally be withholden from such institutions as are not conservatively managed."

STATE TWINE RECEIPTS.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 4.—The receipts of the state for convict-made twine in 1907 amounted to over $900,000, and will soon have passed the million dollar mark. Farmers are meeting their notes promptly and the receipts are heavy every day. The state board of control began its January meeting at the prison today. There are ten applications for paroles, five of them being new ones.

DIES FROM HIS INJURIES

Laborer Who Was Run Over, Fails to Rally.

John Mietturien, 324 St. Croix avenue, the laborer who was taken from the Northern Pacific spur track, between Lake and St. Croix avenues, yesterday morning, with both legs crushed, died late yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's hospital from the shock and loss of blood.

It is believed that Mietturien was drunk, staggered on to the track and fell into a stupor. He was discovered in a semi-conscious condition later by an employe of the Schlitz Brewing company, who had him removed to the hospital.

The injured man recovered consciousness for a short period yesterday, but was unable to give a clear account of the details of the accident.

Nothing is known of his relatives.

Between Bed Time and Breakfast

During sleep the body should repair the waste lost during the day. While the mind is at rest and the body quiet, Nature has time to recuperate, when there is no disturbing element.

When you awake feeling tired, heavy headed, bad taste in the mouth, or no appetite, it is a sign that your stomach and liver have not been able to recover their normal condition, and you should at once begin to take Beecham's Pills on retiring. They go quickly to the aid of the internal organs, when the body is in the most favorable condition to get the full benefit from the medicinal properties of these wonderful health-regulators. Taken at night, Beecham's Pills bring refreshing sleep. They aid in the digestion of the foods that remain in the stomach, assist the liver and bowels in their work, cleanse the blood and restore harmony to the whole system. Morning brings new health, clear brain and keen appetite when you take a nightcap of Beecham's Pills. This famous remedy is sold by all druggist at 10c. and 25c. a box.

SCHULZ PRESIDENT.

Elected Head of the Minnesota Educational Association.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—C. E. Schulz, assistant superintendent of public instruction in Minnesota, was elected president of the Minnesota Educational association. Other officers were elected as follows:

B. E. Pickett, Waseca, corresponding secretary (re-elected); Mrs. Kate M. Jones, superintendent of Meeker county schools, recording secretary; F. S. Sterry, superintendent of Anoka schools, treasurer, (re-elected).

Among the important committee reports of the afternoon was that of the committee on the revision of the constitution. Its recommendations were adopted and a new constitution will supplant the old.

WIG MAKERS CELEBRATE.

New York, Jan. 4.—The wig makers of New York last night celebrated a double event, the recognition of their union and the first strike of the year.

CLUB MEN MAY DRINK

A St. Paul Court Decision is of Interest to Duluth.

Private Clubs Exempt From Laws Regulating Liquor Traffic.

If they so desire, local club men will hereafter be supplied with something more expensive than water on Sundays, and after 11 o'clock at night, provided the Commercial and Kitchi Gammi clubs take notice of a decision, yesterday, filed by Judge Kelley of the Ramsey county district court.

The state brought suit against the Minnesota club, St. Paul's most exclusive organization of the kind, to determine whether it could be compelled to take out a liquor license. In the decision, Judge Kelley says the organization is a bona fide private club, and is not subject to the provisions of the state law regulating the liquor traffic.

This is taken to mean, not only that a liquor license is not necessary, but that the club is exempt from the Sunday closing and the 11 o'clock closing law. Any decision that would apply to the private clubs of St. Paul, under the state law, would be equally applicable to Duluth, and it is expected the Duluth organizations will follow the lead of the Minnesota club, and serve the thirsty on Sunday as well as after 11 o'clock at night.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Second Lieut. John P. Thompson of the marine corps has been allowed to resign for the good of the service. Thompson was tried by courtmartial on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and was found guilty and sentenced to be dismissed, but was given the alternative of resigning which he accepted.

A broken rail caused the Canadian East bound express to leave the rails between Chapleau and Cartier, 114 miles east of North Bay, early Friday, and a colonist car and coach were overturned. Mrs. Slowen of Lindsay, Ont., was killed and a score of others were injured.

Traffic on the Southwest Missouri Electric railway was interrupted at 6 o'clock, Friday morning, by a cave in at the Morning Hour mine in the Southwestern part of Joplin. The cave in is extending and threatens the tracks of the Frisco and the Big Three Ore mill.

John Browl was killed, G. F. Fighter fatally hurt, and Roy Signor seriously injured in an automobile accident, Friday, at Hastings, Nev.

The jury, at Columbus, Ohio, in the case of Hobart Reeder, charged with murder in the second degree, gave a verdict of manslaughter, Friday night. Reeder, Henry Harkins and C. F. Bobo, attendants at the Athens state hospital, were jointly indicted for killing William J. Barnes, an inmate.

GRANTS HIM A DIVORCE

Court Finds That Douglas A. Petre's Marriage Was a Misfit.

Ethelwynn Dean Petre Loses "Home and Financial Support."

Douglas A. Petre was granted a divorce from Ethelwynn Petre by Judge Cant, late yesterday afternoon. Although the evidence was commented on as being somewhat slender, the court held that there was enough to show that the union was a "misfit" in every way, and that a legal separation seemed advisable.

Mr. Petre claimed that his wife did not love him; that she married him for his money; that she treated him in a cruel manner, and sought every opportunity to humiliate him. He also claimed that she deceived him at the time of their marriage, giving him to understand that she had been married before, and was a divorced woman.

Mrs. Petre admitted that she did not love her husband, in fact that she had a positive hatred towards him. She admitted that she married him for a home and support, but claimed she did so after he importuned her for a long time. Mrs. Petre admitted that her conduct had not been considerate of her husband's feelings, but claimed he brought it on himself by his treatment of her. She denied that she had sought the society of persons of bad reputation or frequented questionable places of amusement.

Mrs. Petre admitted that her marriage venture had been a mistake, and that the matrimonial sea on which she launched her bark had been a tempestuous one.

Several persons gave testimony in support of some of Mr. Petre's allegations. Mrs. Petre did not make an appearance at the trial.

Herbert Cook of the Freimuth store testified that shortly after her marriage, Mrs. Petre remarked to him that "Married life was not what it was cracked up to be." She intimated to the witness, it was claimed, that there were repeated wrangles between herself and her husband; that there was nothing common between them, and their union was a mistake.

Manager J. T. Michaud of the St. Louis hotel testified that he asked the Petros to leave the hotel by reason of the complaints of other guests that the loud words and quarrels between the husband and wife disturbed them.

Among the other witness for the plaintiff were Hansen Smith and Capt. Brown.

Mr. Petre was on the stand in his own behalf, and related a story of marital unhappiness as outlined in his complaint.

One of the interesting features about the trial was that while Mr. Petre charged his wife with marrying him for his money, and Mrs. Petre admitted that she married for a home and support, there was nothing in the evidence to show that she profited at all by her marriage, even though her husband is reputed to have quite a number of good investments.

PARK POINT IS TURNED DOWN

Better Fire Protection Favored, But No Funds for It.

At a meeting held at the city hall yesterday the city fire board turned down the request of the Park Point Civic club for better fire protection. The commission was waited upon by a committee of the civic club, the latter asking that two firemen be stationed on the Point at salaries of $50 a month each, and that a better fire alarm system be established.

Because of the fact that there are no funds available, the commission explained that it would be impossible to grant the request this year. The board looked with favor upon the requests of the club, however, and would not hesitate in granting them if the necessary funds had been available.

The city electrician has been instructed to design plans for the desired alarm system, and will report to the Park Point Civic club at its meeting on Thursday night, Jan. 8. The Duluth Telephone company will also submit plans to the club at the same time.

We Announce The White Sale of All White Sales Ever Held in the City

To Begin Next Monday Morning, Jan 6th, at 8:30

THERE'S NOT THE LEAST bit of exaggeration and not a particle of unjustifiable boasting in our statement that this sale will be positively the greatest White Sale the people of Duluth and vicinity have ever had the pleasure of attending—as you will agree when you come. Moreover, it will be the one White Sale in which people may buy the BEST goods and KNOW EXACTLY WHAT THEY'RE BUYING. You will please note that, particularly in domestics, we offer you the best known and most reliable brands, while some stores advertise brands, the names of which are foreign even to us—we know they must be to you. Another trick adopted by other stores to deceive you is the removal of labels and printed names from the pieces, so that they can pretend to sell you the brand of goods you want and ASK FOR. THERE'S NO SUCH TRICKERY RESORTED TO, NOR ALLOWED IN THIS STORE—and you can depend upon it that you get what you want and ask for—or we will frankly tell you we haven't it. This is the White Sale of the year—and should be attended by every housekeeper, every proprietor or manager of boarding house, hotel, restaurant—everybody who wears or uses white goods of any kind. Be ready Monday morning—come early for your share.

PARK POINT MUST WAIT

Board of Education Cannot Give More Grades Now.

New Madison School and Rebuilt Franklin Open Monday.

The board of education could not see its way clear at the monthly meeting held at the high school last evening, to increase the number of grades taught in the Raddison school, on Park Point, and the people of that district, who petitioned the board for more classes, must be content with the educational facilities they have until next year, when the board may be able to do something for them.

The petition from Park Point was read to the board at the December meeting, but the matter was referred to the superintendnt of schools for investigation. Last evening he reporid that it would not be feasible to increase the number of grades taught at the Raddison, and the board endorsed his attitude.

Upper grade pupils in the Raddison district must, therefore, attend the Whittier school on the other side of the canal.

When he made his report on the Park Point situation, Supt. Denfeld took occasion to condemn the practice of erecting small schools and to urge the erection of fewer but large school buildings and providing some means of transportation for the pupils to the schools. He said that this plan would be more effective from an educational point of view than the maintainence of a number of small schools. He said, further, that it was a hard matter to get good teachers to conduct the outlying schools.

New Schools Ready.

The superintendent reported that the new Madison school on Garfield avenue and the rebuilt Franklin at Fifth avenue east and Sixth street would be opened Monday, when the second term of the school year begins. Some of the school furniture has arrived and will be installed at once. If all of it is not in place, classes will be conducted in the new schools just the same, and soap boxes used for a time, if necessary.

All the pupils of the Madison district, who have been attending the Adams school, will attend the new Madison, which will relieve the crowded condition of the Adams.

The reopening of the Franklin will relieve the congestion at the Washington school. Six rooms, comprising five grades, will be taught in the new Nettleton school and the Franklin pupils who have been reciting at the Nettleton will return to their own building.

These changes will give a vacant room on the third floor of the Washington school and the use of this may be given, for a prescribed rental, to the art school to be established under the auspices of the arts and crafts committee of the Women's council.

The committee is anxious to secure the use of a school room, and in a communication to the board, read last evening, requests one. It is the plan of the women to start an elementary arts and crafts school, to permit young people of artistic tendencies to pursue studies here and remain under helpful home influences.

Although Supt. Denfeld said that a room in the Washington school might be available, permission for the arts and crafts enthusiasts to use it was not granted by the board. The request was referred to the committee on schools and teachers, with power to act.

The committees on administration and finance and buildings and grounds, which have been investigating the merits of the claims of the American Heating company, for $650, and the L. R. Helbing company, for $298, made a report. These two concerns were doing work at the Franklin school at the time of the fire and sought to recover the amounts named from the board, as their contracts were not completed. The committee reported the American Heating company's bill to be a just one and it was allowed. The committee asked more time to look up the Helbing claim, and it was granted.

Medical Inspection.

In his report, the superintendent of schools mentioned again the matter of a medical inspection of the schools. He advised some sort of plan whereby local physicians should visit the schools and look into the general health and condition of the pupils, with the idea of guarding against the spread of disease.

This led to an interesting discussion of the matter, led by Supt. Denfeld and Director Barnes. All the members of the board signified their approval of the general scheme and forsaw its trial at some future date, but the finances of the board will not permit of an experiment at this time, so no action was taken except to request the committee on schools and teachers and the superintendent to further investigate the merits of the plan.

The finance committee was authorized to place the permanent insurance on the Franklin and Madison schools, and their contents, Twenty-seven thousand dollars will likely be placed on the Franklin and $21,900 on the Madison.

The Richardson Electric company was awarded the contract for installing the light fixtures in the Franklin and Madison buildings, its bids for the work being the lowest of those submitted.

A communication was received from the proprietors of a certain patent heating device warning the board that any infringement on its patents in the heating apparatus at the Madison school would be vigorously prosecuted. The matter was referred to the committee on buildings,w hich will consult with the chief engineer about it.

The resignations of Miss Minnie Moulaws, Miss Marguerite Mitchell and Mrs. Elizabeth W. Hart were reported and the following teachers were elected:

Miss Elsie Krey. Miss Mary S. McNett, Miss Katie Beck, Miss Elizabeth Thorson, Miss Olive Livingston, Miss Louise Caldwell, Miss Bentrice B. Whitten, Miss Isa E. Botten and Mrs. Agnes Patterson Walker.

The transfer of Mrs. Hoover to the Nettleton school and Miss Meinhardf to the Madison left vacancies at the Oneota and the Lowell. The board elected James W. Harter principal of the Oneota school and Dwight Eaton principal of the Lowell building.

In the absence of President Codding, Director Stevens presided at the meeting last evening and the others present were Directors Brewer, Moe, Le Tourneau, Barnes and Supt. Denfeld.

the reforms and principles for which he stands.

The governor declares emphatically for tariff reform, claiming that it hits at the root of the trust problem; he urges the protection of state rights and the dangers of centralization of government; he opposes the plans for federal incorporation, federal supervision and federal regulation of corporations, and announces that while he believes the time is not ripe for government ownership of railroads, the opposition of the roads to government regulation and control may result in a widespread government ownership movement.

What Democratic Party Must Do.

In reply to the question, "What must the Democratic party do to win?" Governor Johnson said:

"It must first of all adopt a platform with tariff as the paramount, dominant issue. The Democratic party has won twice on that issue—its only victories in fifty years—and on that issue it can win again.

"Secondly the platform must be one which will appeal to the intelligent business men of the country. When I use the term business men I mean every man that has a dollar invested in making his own livelihood, whether it be $1,000 in a farm, $5,000 in a store, $10,000 in law books and a legal education, or $50,000 in a factory.

"The party with such a platform should then turn to the selection of candidates and here the principle of absolute fitness should apply. No man should be chosen as candidate for either the presidency or the vice presidency because he represents some particular idea or interest, or mercenary qualification.

Eliminate the Barrel.

"We should have no more Henry Gassaway Davises nominated because he possessed a barrel which he was expected to open and did not; no more men from Maine merely because a candidate from there was supposed to possess some local influence.

"The people want men who stand for principles of sound, progressive government and not for individual fads; men who place the welfare of the nation above inordinate seifish ambition.

"I have said repeatedly that I consider tariff the paramount issue of the coming campaign. You cannot solve the trust evil successfully until the conditions that produce the trusts are improved.

"I believe that the tariff, more than any other cause, has a direct bearing on trusts.

"On this question the Democratic party certainly stands united and on all other matters the Democratic party stands with the people."

Against Federal Control.

"I am not in favor of the state surrendering to the federal government any rights it now enjoys. I do not believe it is the province of the federal government to assume those functions which rightly belong to the individual states.

"Federal incorporation, supervision and regulation of corporations would require a vast system of administrative and legal machinery to come down within the reach of the individual. To the majority of the citizens in Minnesota, Washington is as far away as Japan. They could not come into touch with or derive the personal benefits of the national control centered in the capital."

The governor declares for an income tax and for an inheritance tax. He commends President Roosevelt's fight against combinations in restraint of trade, and his attacks upon plundering corporations. He also attacks the fictitious valuation of property, particularly the property of transportation companies, and declared that the people should not pay more than a fair profit on the actual value of the property.

No Necessity of Great Army.

Continuing, Governor Johnson says:

"As a native of Minnesota, far in the interior of the country, I cannot see the necessity for a great army and the biggest navy in the world. Yet, to be perfectly fair, I will concede that if we are to continue the policy of acquiring colonial possessions I suppose we must have a fleet to protect them. If we have a Hawaiian wart on the national nose and a Philippine hump on Uncle Sam's back, doubtless we shall have to look out for them.

"What I should like to have seen was a policy inaugurated years ago of extending the boundaries of the United States from the Panama canal to the Arctic ocean, rather than reaching out for islands in far distant parts of the globe.

"I hope to live long enough to see the American flag floating over Montreal, Ottawa and Winnipeg and the whole Saskatchewan region, not the flag of a conqueror but the flag of friendship, alliance, concord and amalgamation."

He referred to telegraphing by the Superior board of trade, and asked if a man named O'Hearn had not sat in the booth concealed from view, and manipulated quotations as they came over the wire.

Mr. Wright said this was impossible. No one could have been in the booth and out of sight of those on the trading floor, as there was not sufficient space. O'Hearn, he said, had occupied a booth at the side of the plt in plain view and had operated a telegraph wire.

"Was he there for the purpose of manipulating quotations on the Superior board of trade?" asked Mr. Ewart.

"I understand that he was there to receive quotations," replied Mr. Wright.

"Did he change any of those quotations?"

"I don't know."

Mr. Ewart asked if the trades on the boards were made in good faith.

Mr. Wright stated that he did not know exaoly what was meant by the question. He said that cross-trading for the purpose of evening up deals was fictitious.

"Did you do that kind of trading?" asked Mr. Ewart. The witness admitted that he had. He also stated that he had advised Noble and Peabody to do the same.

In reply to a question from Mr. Ewart as to what constituted bucket-shopping, he went into a detailed explanation of the matter.

CHURCH CLUB FOR MEN ONLY

Members From Lester Park Church Organize Men's League.

At a meeting of the Lester Park M. E. church last evening, attended by about forty of the representative men of Lester Park and Lakeside, it was decided to organize a men's club in the church.

A chicken pie supper was served by a committee of the women of the church, and following the supper the men present gathered in the church parlors and sang a number of the old-time popular songs. W. C. Smithes then delivered a short address on "Men's Leagues in Churches," and Rev. James A. Geer also spoke briefly. It was unanimously voted to organize a men's league in the church. C. R. Pond was elected first vice president of the league; S. E. Catherall, secretary; and R. S. Manley, treasurer. The president is yet to be chosen, and these four officers, with James A. Wharton, constitute the board of control, which will have charge of the program for the winter.

The club will meet on the first Friday evening of each month at 6:30 o'clock.

PROCTOR USHERED IN

New Year With Dance That Was Largely Attended.

Proctor, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Proctor welcomed the New Year in the usual manner, the whistles all blowing, while occasional shots were fired by enthusiastic ones, and bells rang. The notable event of the celebration, however, was the ball given New Year's eve by the lady engineers, in the village hall. There was a large attendance, and to the tune of excellent music, a large dancing program was carried out.

Two dances announced for the month are: The second dance this season by the Fin Cuidado club, to be given on the evening of Jan. 8, at the village hall, and the annual ball of the fire department, on the evening of Jan. 16.

As the new school building is not entirely finished, school will not be resumed next Monday, Jan. 6, as expected, but will begin the following Monday, Jan. 13. The desks are being placed, otherwise the new structure, which represents an outlay of about $30,000, is practically completed.

YOUTH WEDS WOMAN OF 55

Bride is Mother of Nine and Grandmother of Twelve.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 4.—The most remarkable wedding Iowa has seen in a decade was that of David Louis Brunce, a beardless youth of 20, and Mrs. Delilah Broyles, aged 55, hair white as the driven snow, mother of nine children and grandmother of twelve.

As these twenty-one offsprings and the bridegroom's father and mother stood with bowed heads, Rev. John A. Durant spoke the words that united this strange pair for life in the little church known as Scott's Mission.

No wonder tongues are wagging in South Des Moines society circles. Ministers say the affair is the most extraordinary that has ever come to public notice.

"My boy needs a wife who will be a mother to him. That is why I encouraged him in his courtship," said Mrs. Brunce, mother of the bridegroom.

"It is true my son's wife is three years older than I am, but what of that? She's a fine woman and I know she can make my son happy."

The extraordinary courtship which led to this unique mating of souls began several months ago. Mrs. Broyles was not disposed to yield at first. The idea of being courted by a man thirty-five years younger than she was novel to say the least.

"Why, David, I'm old enough to be your mother," she said as she sought to put him away.

"What of it? You are old enough to have sound sense; that's just what a young husband needs," replied David, philosophically.

Well, there was no use, and finally Mrs. Broyles capitulated.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE WEEK AT THE LYCEUM

De Wolf Hopper in "Happyland" Monday and Tuesday.

Italian Grand Opera During Last Half of Week.

No more pleasant announcement has come from the management of the Lyceum than that of the engagement of De Wolf Hopper, next Monday and Tuesday, in the conspicuous musical success of the present season, "Happyland," the comic opera which Frederick Ranken wrote and Reginald De Koven composed expressly for the big comedian. "Happyland" ran for the first half of last season at the Lyric theater, New York city, and might have continued indefinitely but for the fact that the Messrs. Shubert required the theater for the New York engagement of Mme. Bernhardt.

When the New York reviewers are unanimous in praising a musical show from the standpoints of both libretto and music, it argues exceptional merits for the attraction. This was the verdict upon "Happyland," which was proclaimed a return to the standards of real comic opera as it existed before the day of the ragtime composer and the machine musical comedy builder. "Happyland" has been described as a "comic opera de luxe."

In his libretto, Mr. Ranken started with an ingenious idea, which he elaborated with skill and humor. The scene is laid in Elysia, a mythical kingdom. Ecstaticus, the King (Mr. Hopper) has contracted by treaty, eighteen years before the story opens, to marry his son to the daughter of King Altimus of Altruria. But Altimus has no child, and the offspring of Ecstaticus is a girl, and not a boy. A double deception is undertaken by the two monarchs. Sylvia, the Elysian princess, has been brought up in ignorance of the difference in the sexes, but she promptly falls in love with the Crown Prince of Fortunia, another and rival kingdom, and the complications are eventually straightened out to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Mr. De Koven has been equally happy in supplying a dainty and effective musical setting to Mr. Rankin's whimsical story. His score of "Happyland" is said to be the best De Koven music since the golden days of "Robin Hood." He has restored the operatic ensemble to its proper place, with the big numbers in "Happyland," and his songs contribute charming themes and sprightly measures. He has given the characters good music to sing, and the Shuberts have provided good voices to render Mr. De Koven's music. Mr. Hopper has some splendid songs, including, "A Sickening Sadness Sits on Me," "Mimette, My Human Mermaid," and "How I Love Flowers."

"Happyland" marks the renaissance of Hopper, the comedian, a role which fits him to perfection, and one that he thoroughly enjoys playing. Dainty Little Marguerite Clark is the chief member of the company.

FAREWELL PERFORMANCE.

Mack-Leone Players Will Close Long Engagement in Duluth.

The Mack-Leone players will say good by to their many Duluth friends next Sunday, when the last two performances of "Humbug" will be given.

The company will be reorganized after the close of the Duluth engagement, and the plans for the future are still somewhat unsettled. The company may take a tour of the West, or may begin an engagement in some other city, returning to Duluth later in the year.

The engagement in Duluth has been a very successful one. The company has played about twenty-seven weeks in all, which is a phenomenal engagement for a company in a city the size of Duluth.

GRAND OPERA.

Some Chicago Opinions of the Italian Company Coming Here.

The program for the Italian Grand Opera company's engagement in Duluth has been announced as follows: Friday evening, "Carmen;" Saturday matinee, "Il Trovatore;" Saturday evening, "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Little is known regarding the company in Duluth. It comes unheralded and not very well advertised. It is claimed, however, to be a very large and very capable company.

The organization is probably better known in Chicago than in any of the other large cities in the country. In order that some idea may be gained of the quality of the organization, the following extracts from some of the Chicago papers are given:

"The first act revealed Mlle. Norelli's exceptional attainments as a coloratura singer. So fluent, so easy and so faultless was her delivery of the florid embellishments of Verdi's graceful, if superficial melody, that the audience was taken by storm." Gilliard Gunn in the Inter-Ocean.

"Norelli made a very pronounced success as Violetta. She is a handsome woman and possesses marked histrionic ability. Her performance last night ranked with the very best given during the grand opera season. Alessandroni, the baritone, raised the part of the Elder Germont into a prominence it seldom attains. He made the character real. His plea to Violetta was manly and dignified. The duet with Violetta was admirably done. The performance was one of the best the company has given." E. H. Latimer in the Journal.

"Signor Torre has done nothing in which he has been heard to better advantage than was last evening in the music of Alfredo. Especially commendable was his delivery of the romanza, in the second act, and his work in the gambling scene. Signor Alessandroni made a more presentable and possible Germont than do the majority of baritones. He sang the duet with Violetta excellently, and handled the 'Di Provenza' with good taste and the customary pronounced success where the auditors were concerned. Mme. Norelli gave the 'Ah fors elui' with telling tonal brilliancy, and with the revealment of the dramatic and sentimental significance of the big aria. Signor Fornori conducted, and the chorus as usual was one of the satisfactory and commendable features of the evening." W. L. Hubbard in the Tribune.

"There was an uncommon amount of enthusiasm throughout the evening—in fact the demonstrations threatened several times to interfere with the singing. The demonstrations which followed the big scene were extraordinary, and they were well deserved. Signor Alessandroni, as Germont, caused a furore in the second act by hiss inging of 'Di Provenza il Mar.' Torre was admirable." Frederick H. Griswold in the Record-Herald.

Lyceum Notes.

Benjamin Hapgood Burt, once a chorus man at Weber's Music hall, is now one of the most successful song writers for the American stage. His song, "Indians on Broadway," will be heard when Snitz Edwards and Lila Blow come to the Lyceum Jan. 17, in the great Charles Frohman production of "The Rollicking Girl." Mr. Burt is the author of the songs in Marie Cahill's successful musical play, "Marrying Mary," and wrote for her "Robinson Crusoe's Isle," which she sang with so much success a few years ago. He comes of a very wealthy Vermont family and went on the stage at Weber's Music hall only to learn the practical side of song writing. Mr. Burt stated recently that he intended to take up writing musical comedies soon, and clever work is expected of him, as "Indians on Broadway" is considered one of the brightest and most original songs ever written.

* * *

Maude Fealy's play for the present season is the great English comedy drama "The Stronger Sex," which holds the remarkable record of seven months' presentation at the Apollo theater, London. It is said to be one of the most intensely interesting plays presented for many years and to have incorporated in it much that is original and novel in the way of dramatic material. It will be the play for Miss Fealy's tour throughout the country early this season, and after the holidays will be taken to New York city, where it is fully expected to run the balance of the year at one of the leading Broadway theaters.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

"Tom Dick and Harry," Played by John Hanson, Dave Conroy, Joe Emerson and the Avenue Girls, Will be the Attraction Next Week.

At the Metropolitan, next week, the Campbell-Drew Amusement company offers John Hanson, Dave Conroy and Joe Emerson, and the Avenue Girls in "Tom, Dick and Harry" in the jingling, beautiful, uproariously funny musical comedy of that title.

It is the lightest form of entertainment, the kind that makes everybody forget their troubles. "Continuous laughter show" is the best description applicable.

The musical numbers are also of the lightest and brightest kind. There are pretty girls, gorgeous costumes and scenic effects, and such principals as Libby Blondell, Jeanette Sherwood and Carrie Thomas, making a grand, beautiful setting for the uproarious and artistic foolishness of the trio of comedians.

Hanson, Conroy and Emerson were already well known for their artistic comedy creations in vaudeville when the Campbell-Drew Amusement company took them under its managerial wing and gave them a broader field for their talents to spread. Success was instantaneous from the moment of their first appearance in "Tom, Dick and Harry" at the beginning of the last season.

This year no expense has been spared to surround them with all the accessories that would in the slightest degree add to the merit of the show.

Mlle. Lorraine, "the statue in gold," a sensation from Paris, is an added attraction.

The usual matinees will prevail.

AT THE BIJOU

The Celebrated Talking Pony, Tom, and the Trained Parisian Poodles Will Be Features of Another All-Star Vaudeville Bill.

The Bijou will offer another all-feature bill of vaudeville next week, commencing Monday afternoon. The bill will include such noted attractions as Ad Carlisle's dog and pany circus, which includes the famous talking pony, Tom, which was a big sensation in the East the past season. Besides the talking pony there are several other trained Shetlands as well as a troupe of trained Parisian and German poodles. Their wonderful feats have gained them the title of being the best trained canines before the public.

An act of much merit will be Irene Hobson and Harry S. Sheldon's, who present the roaring comedy playet entitled "Meet Me At Syracuse." Miss Hobson and Mr. Sheldon make their first Western appearance at the Bijou, as they come direct from New York, where they have been featured in the Keith and Proctor theaters in the East.

A clever due of entertainers will be Johnnie Le Ferve and Frankie St. John, late of "The Mayor of Tokio" company, in which they handled two of the most prominent parts. They are now appearing in their new vaudeville craze entitled "It Happened In London," an act that is brilliant with good singing, comedy and dancing, and has been one of the biggest hits on the circuit this season.

"The Girl From Maryland" is the title of a fine sketch played by two of the best known sketch artists in vaudeville., Birch Sheffer and Mabel Trimmer. The sketch is a typical Southern playlet, introducing singing and dancing, classic and otherwise. Mr. Sheffer is well known from his impersonations of the genuine Southern mammy.

One of the most refined and best singing and dancing acts seen at the Bijou in some time will be the Manning Twin Sisters. They wear pretty costumes and there is not a dull moment during their act.

John McDowell will sing "Won't You Be My Honey?" a new popular song illustrated.

The moving pictures will be "A Fisherman's Luck" and "The Indian Idyll," two of Edison's newest subjects. Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. Special school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon and the usual performances on Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

New York, Jan. 4.—With James K. Hackett in Sutro's new play, "John Glayde's Honor," at Daly's; Ethel Barrymore in the Fitch-Lenox comedy of "Her Sister," at the Hudson; Maxine Elliott in "Under the Greenwood Tree," at the Garrick; Mabel Taliaferro in "Polly of the Circus," at the Liberty, and Maude Adams back in "Peter Pan," Christmas week surely was a notable one in dramatic doings, besides which there were several new things in the minor theaters. The Lincoln Square inaugurated the holiday season with "The Bad Boy and the Teddy Bear," and the New Circle showed a new piece that was enjoyed by the first-night audience because Yorke and Adams, the comedians, created a genuine Christmas sensation in their musical comedy, "Playing the Ponies."

Charles Cherry sprained his ankle during a rehearsal Monday morning, and Miss Elliott's opening had to be postponed until Wednesday evening. The Garrick, therefore, remained dark the early part of the week. Miss Adams' opening was originally set for Christmas eve, so that Hackett divided interest with Miss Taliaferro when the week began. Anyway, Sutro's long-expected play, originally presented by George Alexander in London, was the focusing center of interest, and attracted a polished and discriminating audience. One never can tell what a New York audience will in the long run approve in the way of serious drama, but this play ought to succeed. It is vital and up to date. Sutro is not the psychologist that Pinero is, but he presents a well-defined problem that must come home to a lot of married men who send their wives abroad and forget them in the fascination of business.

Such a man is John Glayde, a Pittsburg millionaire. He is the Iron King, and forgets in the excitement of business that his wife is living in Paris in idle luxury, exposed to temptation, and forgetting day by day that he exists. When John Glayde unexpectedly arrives in Paris in response to an anonymous cablegram of warning he finds his wife nervous and distant. He finds her cold and his advances rejected. In spite of his relentless business career he is a man of warm heart and feeling. He tries to regain his Muriel's love, but she can only invent excuses and simulate a friendship that is not sincere. In an exalted spirit of self-reproach he blames only himself, and promises to make amends by giving up the struggle for power and becoming again husband and lover.

But matters have gone too far. Muriel is in love with a sensational young painter, Trevor Lerode. He is three years younger than she and full of the enthusiasm of an ardent lover. His mother wants him to marry the daughter of a rich English brewer, and it is she who sent the warning cable to John Glayde. It does not take Glayde long to discover the truth, nor long to see that he has come too late; that Muriel is infatuated with Trevor and he with her; that both in truth are madly sincere.

Yet John Glayde is forbearing. He tries to the last to reawaken Muriel's affection. He appeals to Trevor. It is not until he realizes that he is being made the victim of a base deception that the full conviction of his hopeless position overwhelms him. When he surprises the lovers in the act of eloping his first impulse is to destroy; but his sterner sense of justice prevails, and he agrees to give Muriel up to Trevor and leaves them together in the artist's studio, to divorce his wife on his return to the United States.

The problem is, may a man leave his wife alone to find in others the companionship and sympathy to which she is entitled from him without paying the penalty of wilful neglect, and the answer is divorce. The treatment of the subject is romantic. It lacks the cold analysis of Ibsen and the polished cynicism of Pinero, but truth and conviction are at the bottom of it, and the play makes a strong impression.

It was admirably played, and the veriest cynic must give Mr. Hackett credit for one of the best performances he ever gave in his life. His John Glayde is said to be an improvement on Alexander's, in London, and one can really believe it. His work was earnest and even intense, and in several senses the tears glistened in his eyes and his voice vibrated with genuine emotion that reached over the footlights. Miss Darragh played Muriel excellently. The whole performance was pitched in the right key. There was no ranting in the big scenes and no moraments of artificially wrought climaxes, but subdued power and evidence of artistic sincerity.

Of course the press is divided, as usual. The Times calls it an artificial play, and says, "Very young people and people who do not care to analyze things will like 'John Glayde's Honor.'" The Telegraph, whose review is written by Algernon St. John Brenon, a conservative and capable critic, calls it "a serious play on a serious subject, seriously acted by a company the majority of whose members were in close touch with the significance and capacity of their parts," and congratulates the audience on having enjoyed "a rare privilege" in this respect.

William Winter's pent-up feelings vent themselves in a moral spasm which consumes a column or more in the Tribune. He hates anything emanating from Ibsen, Hauptmann, Maeterlinck, Sudermann, Pinero or Sutro. In fact, all the morning newspapers except the Telegraph pan the play and the performance. The afternoon papers are quite as much one way as the morning papers are on the other. That means that just about four of the critics praise "John Glayde's Honor" while the remainder slate it. The proportion is significant and rather a happy augury. Just that proportion praised and denounced "The Belle of New York," "Floradora," "The Lion and the Mouse," and "The Thief." Mr. Winter completely reversed himself within a month regarding the merits of "The Thief," which he condemned in well-seasoned invective the day after and hailed as a revelation thirty-three days later. We may therefore expect to see "John Glayde's Honor" loudly proclaimed a success before the winter is much advanced.

* * *

"Polly of the Circus" started at the Liberty theater with the earmarks of success. So far as personality, effects and the subtle creation of atmosphere can go, this story of the circus and the ministry exercises a potent spell. But it needs the ministration of a skilled playwright to gloss over the hiatus in the action which divides the incident of Polly's leaping toward her white horse Bingo and Polly's next discovery in the arms of the parson on the village green in the moonlight.

There was another scene in the circus, as denoted by the program and played on the road before the play was brought into New York, which may have drawn them into a consistent unity, but on Tuesday evening there was nothing to show what transpired between the time that the parson lover and the circus rider meet among the tents and wagons and the time that they are walking together on the grass in the moonlight, and we see the circus procession winding away in the distance on the march to the next town—without Polly. The transition is harsh and produces a feeling of disappointment. Down to this point, for three acts, the piece has run most smoothly along a well-oiled groove of interest.

Polly is a circus rider of a long family of circus riders, without parents and no guardians save the boss canvassman and the old clown. In a small country town she comes to grief and is carried senseless in to the house of Rev. John Douglass and put to bed by Mandy, his colored housekeeper. The circus has to go on without her, and when she awakes she sees the parson at her bedside. We have a scene that might have been transcribed from "The Chorus Lady," in which Polly, in the patois of the circus, contends with the parson's pure English to the rich amusement of the audience, and takes her first lesson in Bible lore on the text of what Ruth said to Naomi about his people being her people and whither he went she would go.

Polly remains a year at the parsonage, for her ankle was badly injured, and months were consumed in her recovery, and the inevitable thing happens. She and the parson fall in love with one another without knowing it, and there are rumors and ugly whisperings and scandal and an outraged congregation. The minister is given the alternative by a bull-headed deacon to send the circus girl away or to give up his place.

That interview facilitates the crisis. Polly learns what's in the wind, and as Big Jim, the boss canvassman of her circus, has just left her, his spirits dashed because she refused to return to them, she tells the parson that she can't resist the fascination of the sawdust ring, and will return to her old life rather than accept his offer to send her away to a seminary for young ladies.

And when we see her again it is a month later in a spangled dress and tights among the circus people, and with the tents only half hiding the steeple of the parson's church. Polly's spirits are at low ebb. The ringmaster scolds her for failing to appear that afternoon, but the poor girl cannot suppress the memories conjured up by the events of the year that has elapsed since on this very spot she was thrown from her horse Bingo and carried into the parsonage. She has a loyal friend in Big Jim (the old clown having died), and he tips the truth to the parson, who comes to see Polly, still believing that she yielded to the spell of the circus in leaving him. The inevitable deacon turns up, and when Polly sees that the parson is getting into deeper water on account of his interest in her she leaps on the back of Bingo and rides into the circus.

In the road version a scene in the circus followed, which was calculated to be the climax of the play, and it was produced on Monday night, but this big scene missed fire and was cut out. It showed the circus ring with Polly supposed to be riding Bingo. Seeing the parson there she suddenly leaps to the ground, but rising uninjured, throws herself into his arms. This omitted, the auditor next beheld an ideal nocturne: village scene, and the minister and the girl arm in arm, watching the procession of tiny circus wagons, with their blinking lanterns passing away, away out of Polly's life and his.

That is the story of Margaret Mayo's "Polly of the Circus" as treated by Frederic Thompson, who knows something of this life, as he is the boy—he is little more—who built the big Hippodrome on Sixth avenue, and conducted it for a number of years with his partner Dundy, until the Shuberts took it over. The piece was once in the hands of Harry Miller, who intended to produce it, and selected Mabel Taliaferro for the role of Polly. Miss Taliaferro was interested in Mr. Thompson at that time—deeply, sentimentally interested. She had the manuscript of the play and showed it to him. Thompson proposed to Miller to take the play and to Miss Taliaferro to marry him, and as Miller saw an opportunity to promote a pretty love romance he consented, and Miss Taliaferro followed suit. It is Thompson's production, realistic to the lift with many of the quaint touches that have made other rural plays go big, and with nothing to stand in the way of success but the discovery of a logical substi-

The first announcement that Henry Miller would star Edith Wynne Matthison was through the medium of this letter several months ago. At that time Mr. Miller contemplated having Miss Matthison take Miss Anglin's place in "The Great Divide," when the latter went to Australia in the spring. A hitch of some kind occurred and the report was denied on no definite authority other than that nothing was known of it in England, where the former exponent of the morality play, "Everyman," has been playing ever since she left the United States. Now the report is confirmed, and Miller again authorizes the statement that he is to appear under his management.

The sensation of the week was the unqualified declaration by Edwin Foy, sometimes known as Eddie, that on the 15th of March he will begin preparations for a spring tour in "Hamlet," assuming the role of the melancholy Dane. This means that about the time of the year when some folks lightly turn their fancy to other emotions Mr. Foy will pull down his brimming visage, draw the puckering lines of his mouth out of that infectious smile that has made him famous, and, with a tense look upon his heretofore beaming countenance, he will take a rap at the melancholy Dane that will jolt him from sable garment to waist line.

By the terms of a contract entered into last week between one Foy and two satellites named Worm and Page, the greatest buffoon upon the American stage will desert Momus and flirt for a few brief weeks with Melpomene. Foy will wait until his regular season in "The Orchid" comes to a close, and then he will make a flying trip to ten cities between the comedian is serious in that New York and Chicago and appear in his own production of Shakespeare's immortal tragedy. Mark you, sir, that the Foy Hamlet is not to be an emphasis upon the first syllable. However, to what direction will remain for this spring venture to determine. The writer has a strong recollection of many a summer night in New York about eight or nine years back, being seated upon the front seat of an Eighth avenue surface car and being compelled to listen to Foy's readings of Shakespeare as the trolley whizzed toward Harlem, and it is vividly recalled that the ideas outlined and the style of delivery were at times both interesting and instructive. It is known that in all the time intervening Foy has continued his Shakespearean studies and readings, and he will surprise many by his familiarity with the lines and the way that he can speak them.

Just at present the Foy idea has been received with the humorous consideration that was to be expected. It may turn out that Edwin is in earnest and that he has ideas of Hamlet which have not been given a public hearing. This will be his great task if he follows out his present intention, for he must overcome doubts and ridicule before he can hope to be taken seriously. The prevailing idea of the venture was wittily hit off by May Irwin the other day when she heard the details. Without further delay, she wired Mr. Foy the following message:

"If you haven't engaged an Ophelia, don't do anything until I see you."

Henry Arthur Jones, the English dramatist, has been ordered to the South of France for a good long rest. It is said that Mr. Jones is threatened with nervous prostration, due principally to worrying over the failure of his latest plays, "The Evangelist," which was universally condemned in New York, and "The Hypocrites," which was a miserable failure in London this season, despite the success of the play in New York, where it was originally produced last season.

Mention of "The Hypocrites" brings out also that the road tour of this piece is to be abandoned in a few weeks, as the cities outside of New York have been disposed to view it more from the London point of view than from the New York. The piece will close on Jan. 17, according to present announcements.

John Slavin, of "A Knight for a Day," is credited with a discovery that came near adding a voice to the chorus of that troupe. Slavin, during his long stay in the piece pending the Chicago run, stopped at the Auditorium. One morning, while packing his things prior to getting away to New York, Slavin was startled by the sound of a voice in the adjoining room. The comedian fastened his ear to the keyhole and listened to such a voice as he had never heard before. Rushing over to the theater as soon as he could tear himself away from the hotel, Slavin hunted up Manager Whitney and breathlessly informed him of his great discovery. "I have never heard such a voice," he chirped. "Hurry up and book her for our chorus, for she is bound to make a hit with that vocal power."

Whitney acted upon the suggestion, and finding out the number of the room adjoining Slavin's, also discovered that the occupant of the same was Schumann-Heink. There is this much in Slavin's favor. It proved that he did know a voice when he heard one.

In some quarters the passing of Edwin H. Price has been the cause of an error in names. This has made it appear that E. D. Price had died. The latter is another well-known theatrical man, who is now in charge of the William A. Brady theatrical enterprises. The two managers were not related, but were warm personal friends.

Marie Dressler has again been compelled to temporarily abandon her London engagements and seek a rest. Reports from the other side are that the American comedienne has been suffering from acute bronchitis for the past several weeks.

The new musical comedy, "Funabush," will be produced for the first time in New Haven by Manager Thomas W. Ryley. The piece will follow into the Casino theater in New York for a run after this trial performance on the road. In the cast will be found such people as Vera Michelena, William Rock, Maud Fulton, Joseph Miron, Walter Percival, Percy Hines, Margaret Rutledge, Charles Butler and Alice Fisher.

Julia Marlowe opened her season last week in Philadelphia, where she produced the new play, "Gloria," by James B. Pagan. Philadelphia took to the stage story with every show that Miss Marlowe has a success for her present season. That part played by Miss Marlowe is that of a tradestrong Italian girl who delights in sending her friends upon fool errands and playing pranks upon the suitors for her hand. One of them, chagrined by her treatment, gives the girl a good whipping, and by this process works a change in her to the point that it proves the means of the man winning her love. This sounds most interesting from a masculine viewpoint, but wonder if the willful girls will not look upon it as the establishment of a dangerous precedent?

Texas times were too turbulent for "In the Bishop's Carriage." They have different modes of traveling down there than in ecclesiastical equipages, and therefore did not take to the title of this book-made play with a fervor that offset in box office receipts the expense of toting the company over the long jumps of the Pan-Handle country. For this reason they closed the tour last week. It is also remarked that the Fort Worth jury took a charitable view of Ernest Joy's poor marksmanship. Joy was arrested there, it will be recalled, for shooting at Harry Elmer because he was seen talking to Jessie Busley, the star of the company. The latest report from Fort Worth is that Joy was fined $25 and costs for missing Elmer.

Grace George was on a Pennsylvania ferry boat crossing from New York to Jersey City one day last week, when her automobile suddenly became active and bolted for the front of the boat. The machine tore through the chains and would have run into the river in a few seconds if a deckhand on the boat had not jumped into the car and reversed the lever in time to prevent the accident. Miss George sat in the car during all the excitement and did not show any evidence of fright or alarm. It is said that when the matter was straightened out, the chauffeur had an acute attack of French profanity.

Now that "The New York Idea" is dead and buried as far as London is concerned they are telling an amusing incident at the expense of Charles Henry Meltzer, critic, manager and opera press representative and sometimes playwright. Mr. Meltzer, prior to coming to this country, lived in London, where he was well known. In speaking of "The New York Idea" he wrote to a friend in London predicting a great success for the comedy there, as he said he felt sure it was one American play by Americans which should be of genuine interest to English audiences. Mr. Meltzer further said that as an Englishman he was not unmindful of the small differences between Broadway and Bond street. The Meltzer note of praise for "The New York Idea" was printed in the programs for the play over there, but even in the face of this the London engagement was a terrible frost.

N. C. Goodwin produced in Boston last week his new play by Carroll Fleming and Florence Miller, which they call "The Master Hand." Anything about a hand in connection with Nat Goodwin sounds rather appropriate, to say the least. Edna Goodrich was his leading woman.

Word received from London last week announced the marriage there of June Van Buskirk, the American actress, to Percival J. Mitchell, a wealthy Londoner, who is also known on this side of the Atlantic. Miss Van Buskirk, prior to her going abroad in "The Fall of Pawtucket," was divorced from her first husband, who was known in this country as Francis Sedwick-Wilson.

After a run of over 500 performances "The Man of the Hour" is finally to close its New York stay, and the company playing the famous political piece will be transferred to Boston, where it will likely remain for the rest of this season. The Boston engagement begins on Jan. 18.

Another one of the advanced vaudeville houses doubled back upon the column last week and got into the stock ranks. The newest one was the Baker, in Rochester, N. Y., which was turned over by Klaw & Erlanger to the Bellows-Spencer Stock company for an indefinite period. The Baker was formerly a stock house and thus gets back into its old ranks.

The financial depression and the change in vaudeville arrangements have served to arouse additional interest in the cheaper priced stock companies and the demand for players in the same is greater just at present than it has been in several years.

The Spooner Stock company, that has been playing at the Fifth Avenue theater in New York for more than a year, abandoned that project at the end of last week The house will be a straightout vaudeville theater hereafter. By arrangements with David Belasco theiropening attraction will be "The Heart of Maryland."

It is more than likely that when their present tour in this country ends Montgomery and Stone will hie themselves to London in the spring and present "The Red Mill" over there for a summer run in that city at one of the George Edwardes houses. Montgomery and Stone have been in London before, playing over there in Edna May's first starring success, "The Girl From Up There." They were big favorites in London, and as their present piece more than compares favorably with the best of the London musical comedies Manager Dillingham has every reason to think that it will be a go on the other side.

Joe Weber and Henry W. Savage will not go to law about "The Merry Widow." Weber has bowed to the inevitable and agreed to pay a royalty for his burlesque of the prevailing musical comedy sensation of the East. This means that Manager Savage has established a legal right to the piece that was not thought possible heretofore. He is also out with an announcement that he will sue any parties who undertake to produce the musical comedy in this country, either in the German or English language. It had been supposed that the music was not protected by copyright, but this is said to be an error. Weber has agreed to pay a suitable royalty for the burlesque even, and so Savage will permit him to go ahead with his funny version of the reigning success. This establishes a new rule, for heretofore it was thought that one had the unquestioned right to burlesque a play or opera without being subject to royalties for this treatment of the original idea.

EARLY DAYS OF THE CIRCUS

New York's 4,000,000 still like the circus, but eighty years ago circus going was more than a habit, says the New York Sun. It was a passion which affected not only the little boys and girls, but the grown-ups also.

Then horsemanship was the main feature of the circus. Sam Tatnell, "The Flying Horseman," stood preeminent for his feats on a single horse, and jumped his mount over a pyramid of men and over a dining table set for twenty-five persons. Two boys and a little girl performed on one pony; a Spanish horse called Romeo "leaped through a hogshead placed on the back of another horse," and the "Combustible Horse Surrounded by Fireworks," as the handbills proclaimed him, thrilled and mystified thousands.

But the circuses of that day provided a varied entertainment. There were clowns who would "leap over five horses and throw somersaults through a balloon of fire." There were slack wire dancers, "ground and lofty tumblers," clever balancers and other specialists, one of whom, Mrs. West, wife of the proprietor of the Broadway circus, got particular mention because she "sang several songs and accompanied herself on the pianoforte, a feat never attempted by any other person." That was in 1820. And besides these acts the circuses of that day had "spectacles," which according to contemporary chroniclings were almost as grand as "The Durbar," "The Destruction of Pompeii" and others of three quarters of a century later.

The circus came to New York soon after the theater. Its growth in favor was the very rapid and naturally more spectacular, and at the time of which James Hardie wrote in his "Description of New York" it was particularly popular.

Looking backward one sees New York's first "circus troop" at what was known as the Collect in Broome street, on the outskirts of the city, in 1811. A stage was built in the open air. It was merely a platform about six feet high, ten or twelve feet wide and sixty feet long.

There was no ring for display of horsemanship and no charge was made for beholding the performance, "the company relying on the generosity of the spectators, a lady handing around a tambourine." They soon afterward removed to the lot at Prince street and Broadway. A ring was formed and the performance commenced every day except Sunday at 4 o'clock and kept up until dusk.

The Broadway circus, first in Mr. Hardie's enumeration, was at the east side of Broadway at the corner of White street. "The tambourine first served in the double duty of orchestra and collection box, but it grew into a band consisting of three drums (one bass), a trumpet and two fifes."

The prices were: "Box, $1; green box, 75 cents; pit, 50 cents. Performances began at 4 o'clock (this was the first night circus); no smoking was allowed, and season tickets could be procured from Messrs. Cayetano and Redon at the circus or at their residence, 405 Broadway, nearly opposite.

That circus was given up in four years, and a year later James West, an English equestrian manager, who had exhibited in Boston and Philadelphia, erected another large wooden building "on Broadway near the stone bridge"—that is, just above Canal street. It opened on Aug. 21, "with the same fine troop and beautiful horses which had drawn crowded houses doubled back upon the column last week and got into the stock ranks. The newest one was the Baker, in Rochester, N. Y., which was turned over by Klaw & Erlanger to the Bellows-Spencer Stock company for an indefinite period. The Baker was formerly a stock house and thus gets back into its old ranks.

OBJECTIONS BY FORAKER

To the Call for Republican State Convention of Ohio.

He Flatly Refuses to be Bound by Its Conditions.

Cincinnati, Jan. 4.—A flat refusal to be bound by the conditions of the call for the Republican state convention that is to name a state ticket and select delegates-at-large to the national convention is the conclusion reached by United States Senator J. B. Foraker, and announced in a statement given to the press last night.

Primaries for a test of strength between Taft and Foraker, as candidates were provided for in the official call and the method provided is sharply criticised by Senator Foraker. The statement, in part, follows: "I am not sure I understand the call, although I have read it several times. If I do it is another case of asking for bread and getting a stone. My idea in requesting a primary to have the election of delegates brought home to the people so that in each ward, for instance, we could select our immediate representative. This call makes all that impossible.

"In addition, it prescribes requirements not authorized by the state central committee. Some of the requirements are in direct conflict with the statute. Some of them are very burdensome. One in particular is the requirement that before there can be a Taft ticket and a Foraker ticket there must be a petition signed by twenty times the number of the candidates for delegates and alternates. That would mean in this country about 4,000 signers or petitioners.

Requirements Unreasonable.

"The unreasonbleness of the requirement that there shall be 4,000 petitioners to authorize a ticket is shown not only by the fact that the law makes no such requirement, but that in cases where the law authorizes that county and city officers may be nominated by petition, only 300 names are necessary to nominate any county officer and only fifty names are necessary to nominate any municipal officer.

"If in the contemplation of the law, fifty signers are enough to authorize any name on the ticket for mayor of Cincinnati or Cleveland, certainly it is required that 4,000 signers should be necessary to nominate a lot of delegates and alternates merely to attend the state convention. Such a condition is unnecessary as well as burdensome. It should be enough for each party to select his own ticket and then let the people vote their preference.

"The counties are not bound to follow the orders of the state central committee, but whether they will do so or not I am not advised. So far as I am personaly concerned I shall make no effort to comply with the uncalled for, illegal and arbitrary contitions."

Dick For Foraker.

Akron, Ohio, Jan. 4.—"I am for Foraker first, last and all the time," United States Senator Dick said yesterday. "And the report that I desire to climb into some one else's band wagon is false."

Thus the junior senator from Ohio sized up his attitude toward Senator Foraker, incident to the recent call of the Republican central committee.

Senator Dick said he was not pleased with the action of the committee in declaring for early primaries and a March convention.

Columbus, Jan. 4.—When shown Senator Foraker's statement, Arthur I. Vorys, Secretary Taft's campaign manager, made the following statement: "I believe the call is fair, reasonable, sensible and legal. We shall comply with it and abide by the result."

Warning to Parents!

Do you realize the danger that menaces your children when they play in the streets on which there are car tracks?

Do you realize the danger they court by sliding down the steep avenues and across the car tracks along which cars are running at frequent intervals?

Do you realize there is a city ordinance which expressly forbids that practice because of its danger?

Do you caution your children often enough about the danger?

Are you sure YOUR CHILDREN are not daily exposing themselves to the danger of a collision with a street car—in fact jeopardizing their lives?

Remember that children become so engrossed with their play that they do not, sometimes, note approaching cars and run heedlessly in front of them.

SOCIALISM AND LAZINESS

A local minister in a sermon recently preached by him, made the statement that "Socialism would put a premium on laziness." Nor is this esteemed gentleman the only person who, for want of sound argument, resorts to such palpable misstatements. For the benefit of such critics and others who, not knowing our propositions, harken to the words of such men and condemn Socialism without direct examination, a word as to the facts will not be amiss.

In the cotton mills of New England, as well as in many of the Southern states where the textile industry has gained a foothold, it is a well known fact that the workers at such industries are composed almost wholly of women and children. Furthermore, the preponderance of female over male inhabitants in such towns and villages is way out of proportion, considered from the standpoint of general good of the community. The wages paid, being so petty and small, the heads of families are compelled to tramp around the country in search of work, leaving the responsibility and care of the family to rest upon the shoulders of wives and daughters. The work is hard and decidedly unconducive.

Consider for a moment what this means. If it be true that heredity plays some part in the affairs of life, this would imply, if anything, that in the propagation of the species, children born under such conditions would, naturally, be born tired and grow up with the desire to rest continually upon them. The reason there are not more tired people in the world today, is attributed to the fact that most of us can trace our immediate ancestry back to the farm life. Find me a wage worker born such into a third generation, and I will uncover a tired (lazy) human being.

We are informed that there are 2,000,000 "tramps" in the United States. It is also a well known fact that fully 50 per cent are native born. Tramps are not born; they are the product of our economic conditions. Deprive a man for any length of time of the opportunity of earning a livelihood; lacking the means to pay his way in the meantime, his clothes become shabby, and his whole organism assumes a like condition. You here have the "tramp" in embryo; another step and he has graduated into the "hobo" realm.

It is well known that in the coal mining regions of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois and other places, little boys hardly 12 years of age are worked as "breakers." Is it any wonder that these little children, their childhood stolen from them, in the greed for profits, become in after life, shirkers and criminals? Can the endowment of a church with funds diverted from the blood of these little human "lambs" find favor in the eyes of a merciful God?

Laziness is a disease and must be treated as such. The wives of our rich have long realized this, and as they must do something to while away the time, have become active in the organization of cat and dog and monkey clubs—anything, but it must be something to while away the time. Action is a law of life. We Socialists recognize and fain would follow this law. We ask for equality of opportunity as a direct means of proportionating responsibility. Not shirkers, but workers, all, is our aim.

Today the most useful laborer is generally overworked, and his pay is small in comparison to his product. Mutual copartnership under a trustified system, embracing all of the resources of the nation, anticipating productive endeavor from every member in society (not the incompetents) would abolish the cause and basis for class divisions such as now exist, and evolve a fraternal co-operative commonwealth. Laziness is not a crime; it is a disease and should be treated as such. Today, productive labor is looked down upon as "menial toil." Working the "menial toilers" is respectable, quite so. Under Socialism the productive laborer would be looked upon necessarily as the most useful and important member of society. Work, not exploitation, would make one "respectable." We Socialism affords no haven of refuge to the would-be lazy man.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Business Quiet as Usual After Holidays, With Prospects Good.

New York, Jan. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, says: "Business quieted down at the conclusion of the holidays, as was customary. Much idle machinery resumed on Jan. 2, and more mills will reopen next week, but in many leading industries there will continue to be a reduction in output until the outlook is more definite. This curtailment is general in the iron and steel industry, and at New England cotton mills. Clothing manufacturers have received numerous cancellations and in some lines buyers have asked delay in shipments of spring goods until the situation is more fully developed. There is a better feeling as to mercantile collections since the closing days of December brought no pressure on the money market.

"Many iron furnaces and steel mills have resumed and others are to open next week, but the curtailment of production has been so general that not over 50 per cent of the capacity will be in operation according to some of the best authorities in the trade. This extensive reduction in output makes the statistical position strong and predictions of a sweeping cut in prices have not materialized. A few changes in galvanized sheets and tin plate were more due to the prices of minor metals than to conditions in the steel industry. As to pig iron, quotations have receding until declines of from 68 to 80 per cent are prevalent, compared with the same period last year. Coke production has fallen to about one-fourth of the capacity of ovens in the Connellsville region and prices are weak. A little better tone is noted in the minor metals, without any appreciable increase in demand.

"Extreme dullness characterized the primary markets for textiles during the past week, previous quiet conditions being accentuated by the holidays. Nominally, quotations are unchanged, but it is claimed that contracts have been made at concessions and purchasers make a formal request in most cases on this point.

Uncertainty continues in the woolen goods market and most of the men's wear descriptions are still to be shown. Footwear is seasonably quiet, but the outlook is more promising for an early resumption of normal business. Boot and shoe factories are beginning to resume active production and jobbers have begun to appear in the Boston market, but they express the belief that prices will be further reduced in keeping with the continued downward tendency of materials. With the exception of heavy sole, all descriptions of leather were easier."

REVIEW OF SPORTING EVENTS OF YEAR IN DULUTH

What Was Accomplished During the Last Twelve Months.

Much Progress Made Toward Sport for Sports' Sake.

The Year's Activities as Viewed by the Sporting Scribe.

The year 1907 saw long steps in the direction of sport for sport's sake in Duluth. The branches in which commercialism doesn't figure, in which men take part because they enjoy the participation and not because they are counting on financial profits, flourished and progressed, while the other branches, which have fallen into disrepute through questionable methods of promoters, have lost caste with the sporting public.

There wasn't a fake boxing or wrestling match in Duluth during the year. Much wind and newspaper space were used by the devotees of both boxing and wrestling, but they did little, and what they did was strictly "on the square." One fight at Superior, in which Duluth boxers figured, was a fizzle and did much to kill the sport, but on the Duluth side of the bay the game drooped and fell away.

The curling, skiing, hockey, yachting, boating and tennis clubs had successful seasons. The gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. did much to promote good sport, the high school athletes were active in all branches. Baseball lost some of its popularity through an unsatisfactory league.

Following is a sporting review of the year in Duluth, compiled from the files of The Herald:

SKIING

Duluth ski riders sent former American records flying during the skiing season of 1907, Duluth captured the annual tournament of the National Ski association for 1908, the sport made long strides in popularity, through tournaments held on the hill at Chester Creek, and the first of 1908 finds the Duluth Ski club in a flourishing condition, with a large membership, which is enthusiastically boosting the sport.

Jan. 20, Ole Feiring of Duluth made a standing jump of 112 feet, at Red Wing, breaking the former American record of Gustaf Bye of 105 feet, also made at Red Wing, two years before. Jan. 24, Feiring's record was broken by Ole Mangseth of Duluth, who made 114 feet at Red Wing.

In the tournament of the St. Paul Ski club, Jan. 27, Duluth riders swept the boards, Mangseth, Feiring, Evenson and Bye taking the first four prizes.

At Cameron, Wis., Jan. 29, Feiring, Evenson and Bye landed inside of the money, and in the national tournament at Ashland they were runners up to Olaf Junum of Coleraine, who carried away the first prize. At the annual meeting of the National association at Ashland, Duluth was awarded the 1908 tournament.

The big tournament of the year on Chester creek was held Feb. 24, and was won by John Mangseth of Ely, who also took down the Martin Smith trophy.

March 10, a contest to decide the local championship was held on Chester creek hill, Ole Mangseth and Ole Feiring contesting. Feiring won a spectacular exhibition.

The season closed with the annual banquet of the Duluth Ski club, held April 22.

HOCKEY

With only a team representing the Northern Hardware company and an inforfal team from the Duluth Central high school on the ice, the hockey germ was firmly imbedded in Duluth's sporting system during the winter of 1907, and the end of the year finds the Canadian sport well established as a winter amusement. There aren't any more teams in the field, but an open air rink has been constructed to foster the game, with the probability that it will lead to a more modern home for hockey in future years. The sport-loving public is willing and anxious to become acquainted with the game, which was hitherto practically unknown, and it is very likely that by the time another year has passed, Duluth will take a place in a hockey league, which will be spread out over the Northwest.

The Northern hockey team made a strong bid for Northwestern honors last years, defeating the Columbias of Superior and the Two Harbors team handily and defeating Houghton two out of three games. Two games with the Victorias of St. Paul resulted in defeats for the Duluth boys.

On the occasion of the St. Paul and Houghton teams' visit to Duluth, the curling rink, in which the games were played, was crowded with spectators, many of whom had their introduction to the sport.

Determined efforts were made during the summer to bring about the formation of an association to foster hockey and to build a modern rink on a par with those of ther cities. The financial depression resulted in well-laid plans falling through and the supporters of the game finally fell back on an open rink at the ball park.

CURLING

Curling, the great winter sport of Scotland, which has flourished in Duluth for several years, drew more devotees to it during 1907, and its field was increased to include a large number of business men of American birth, who learned the game and became enthusiastic players.

The big Northwestern bonspiel, held at the rink of the Duluth Curling club the week of Jan. 14, attracted thirty-five rinks as contestants, and was the most successful in the history of the Northwestern association. The Duluth curlers figured strongly in the play, with thirteen rinks from the home club and five from West Duluth. Dunbar of St. Paul captured the Duluth event, Brewer of St. Paul the Meyers consolation, and A. K. Smith of Superior was the victor of the international trophy, the principal competition of the bonspiel.

By defeating the Superior curlers two straight matches and the Western club two matches, the Duluth club won the Manley-McLennan series and the trophy for 1907.

A. H. Smith, J. C. Myron and D. W. Stocking took two rinks to Winnipeg for the big bonspiel the week of Feb. 6. They broke into the finals in two events, but failed to capture either of the trophies.

A miniature bonspiel, with rinks from the three Head of the Lakes clubs, was held at the Duluth rink the week of Feb. 18. The principal trophy, the A. H. Smith cup, went to the Western Curling club of West Duluth, A. G. McCauley winning in the final match from R. G. McLeod of Duluth.

March 3, the Old-Time Curlers' association was organized at a brilliant banquet, held in the curlers' rooms, with a membership of all members of the club who had been curlers for ten years or more.

The season of 1907-08 was late in opening, on account of unseasonable weather. The membership of the club was well filled, when the first play was held in December, and a good season was the outlook.

ROLLER POLO

Roller polo was introduced into Duluth in 1907, and the players managed to gather around them small numbers of enthusiastic supporters. In the uptown district it flourished among the members of the Northern Hardware hockey team, after that organization had disbanded for the season. In the West end the Lincoln Park team contended for honors, but were beaten out by the Northerns. The Nemadji team of Superior was also defeated by the Northerns in several contests and the hardware boys had a practically easy time in winning the championship.

In the fall the roller polo teams again reorganized and a few games were played between the Northerns and Lincoln Parks, the Northerns again being successful. Later they disbanded to go into hockey, and at the first of the year the game was fostered only by a small group of players in the West end, who had divided into several teams to play among themselves.

BASKETBALL

The Blaine high school team of Superior, winning two games from the Duluth Y. M. C. A. by scores of 37 to 18 and 38 to 22, won the basketball championship of the Head of the Lakes last year, though the Y. M. C. A. boys made a strong bid for the honors. The schedule was light, comprising mostly games with Superior teams, three victories being scored over the Nelson Dewey team of Superior.

Interest in basketball was more pronounced than ever and the athletes of the different gynasiums, including the women's gymnasium classes, took it up as a regular form of amusement and exercise. The High School Basketball league played a schedule of games, which ended in an exciting race for the championship between the Juniors and the Seniors. At the finish of the season the two teams were tied, the Juniors winning in an extra game Feb. 22 by a score of 21 to 16.

The Interscholastic Basketball league also had a successful season, the Jefferson school winning the trophy, which was offered for the competition.

GOLF

All through a spring, during which spring-like weather was far too liberally interspersed with snow, cold and rain, the members of the Northland Country club strove to launch their season of 1907, before they fairly started on the most sucessful summer in the history of the organization. The season was marked by a larger membership, greater enthusiasm, more events and a wider field of operations. The ladies, as well as the male members of the club, took active interest in the club life and golf play, an devery day during the season, on which the weather would permit, the course was utilized by enthusiastic golfing parties.

Early in the spring, the membership was filled out to 350 and the club began to branch out in new directions. At a cost of approximately $40,000, eighty acres of ground, lying north of the former club grounds, were added to the holdings, making 760 acres in all. A new putting green was installed in the plat, on which the club building faced, giving Duluth the second full eighteen-hole course in the state.

The playing off of the spring championship competition, the first club event of the season was delayed by the fitful weather and was not decided until well into July, when E. P. Towne defeated Nibich in the final match for the championship. In the fall, A. M. Miller, Jr. captured the president's cup by playing consistent golf against a large field. Sept. 21, the vice president's and president's squads played their annual match for supremacy and a banquet, President G. G. Hartley's squad losing the honors and the right to be guests to Vice President Walker.

The Saturday putting contest for ladies was an innovation, which proved popular during the past year. The officers of the club did much to arouse interest in golfing among the gentle sex. Every Saturday, there was a large number of fair contestants for golfing honors and as the season advanced, the enthusiasm became more pronounced and the rivalry more keen. Prizes were donated by different members for each successive match and the play for them was spirited. At the end of the season, Mrs. W. W. Walker had the high average.

Representatives were sent during the year to the Western Golf tournament at the Midlothian course, Chicago, and the state tourney on the grounds of the Town and Country club, St. Paul. All the former tournament the Duluth golfers failed to demonstrate great ability, but at St. Paul they made a fair showing against the Minnesota clubs. E. P. Alexander was elected secretary of the State Golf association and Duluth made a bid for the next state tournament, which went to the Minikahda club of Minneapolis.

Sept. 14, a team of golfers from the Minikahda club of Minneapolis came to Duluth and defeated Duluth golfers for a silver trophy, presented by members of the Northland club. It is probable that the match play with the Flour City golfers will be made an annual event, trophies to be contested for until won by one of the clubs three successive times.

At the annual meeting of the club in November, an innovation was introduced by a decision to keep the club house open during the entire year. Grounds were acquired for a ski and toboggan slide, arrangements were made for building a skating rink and a program of winter sports was laid out.

BASEBALL

The year 1907 saw the Northern-Copper Country league, of which Duluth was a part, reduced from a membership of six to four clubs, go through a season marked by small attendance and a runaway race, end by Winnipeg winning the pennant without effort and the league go to smash by mutual consent of all concerned. The ushering in of 1908 finds Duluth completely at sea as to what provisions will be made for baseball in future years.

The annual meeting of the league was held here Feb. 24 and Fargo and Lake Linden dropped from the circuit, leaving only Winnipeg, Duluth, Calumet and Houghton. Dr. P. R. Glass of Lake Linden was elected president and secretary, with A. W. Kuehnow of Duluth treasurer.

The league season opened May 17, with Frank "Smiley" Smith in charge as manager of the Duluth team. The White Sox broke away well by defeating Houghton and Calumet in the first two series, but on the first visit of the Winnipeg team to Duluth, the Canadians took the lead and held it to the end, Duluth winning second place from Houghton by the narrowest of margins.

All through the circuit, the attendance was smaller than the previous year and in the Copper country towns, baseball was a losing proposition every day. The league was unable to hold umpires, there was considerable trouble with contract jumpers, three of the clubs, including Duluth, changed managers during the season and at times, it looked as though the schedule would never be finished. But the organization worried through to the end.

All of the club owners lost money and at the end of the season, Duluth and Winnipeg decided to cut away from the Copper country. Since then a new league has been in process of formation, with the new year finding Duluth with a bare possibility of being part of an organization, including St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Grand Forks and Winnipeg.

• • •

In amateur baseball circles of Duluth, the Kellys and Fitwells were the two big guns, successfully competing with the strong independent clubs of the iron ranges. The Duluth Amateur Baseball league and the Duluth Commercial league were formed during the season, but they failed to make it a go and broke up without completing their schedules.

• • •

The high school baseball championship of the Head of the Lakes for 1907 went to the Blaine team of Superior, which won a majority of its games in a series with Duluth and the Nelson Dewey school of Superior. The trophy offered by the Northern Hardware company of Duluth passed into the possession of the Superior school.

• • •

In the interscholastic field of Duluth, a league of nine teams played a series in the spring for a banner presented by the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., the Longfellow school of West Duluth winning the championship and the banner.

ROLLER SKATING

In the field of speed roller skating, Francis Le Beau and Walter Wiggins of Duluth and Hussey of Superior shone locally. Roller skating, so far as speed contests were concerned, lived in a rather desultory manner, two visits of Joseph Rauch, Northwestern champion, being the only stimulating agent. Walter Wiggins entered the Northwestern tournament at St. Paul in the fall and carried off second honors, Munch defeating him for the Northwestern championship.

ICE SKATING

There were no ice skating contests worthy of note during the year 1907, and no new speeders were brought out. Ed Smith, Carl Siroth and Frank Larson entered the tournament of the Twin City Skating association at St. Paul in February, where Almoth clipped 1-5 second from the world's amateur record for a half mile, going the distance in 1:17.

TENNIS

Tennis thrived in Duluth through the efforts of the Endion Tennis club and different private organizations spread out over the city, or on individual courts. The Endion club showed a healthy increase in membership and attendance at the grounds.

The club tournament in July was won by Zenas L. Potter of Minneapolis, who spent the summer in Duluth and was a new member of the club. In August the annual open tournament was held, A. M. Washburn of Hunter's Park winning the honors. He failed to capture the Head of the Lakes trophy from Loren Kennedy in a later match, however.

FOOTBALL

Though a defeat by the Central high school team of Minneapolis put Duluth out of the running for the high school championship of the state, the Central highs of 1907 had the satisfaction of defeating Blaine of Superior for the Head of the Lakes honors. Coached by C. C. Colston, a former Dartmouth and Northwestern star, and captained by Will Crawford, the highs presented a formidable front to all they met, and handily defeated Superior by a score of 4 to 0. They won from Two Harbors and St. Cloud, tied the St. Paul Centrals, 6 to 6, and virtually defeated Ashland, though the referee's decision was 2 to 0 against them.

HORSE RACING

Harness horse racing was given a new lease of life in Duluth during 1907, after a cessation of several years. E. E. Elliott and John Ruquist, two enthusiastic horsemen, secured a lease on the old West end driving park at Thirty-fifth avenue west and Third street, brought a string of green horses from their farm at Mora, placed Lon Matthews, one of the best-known trainers in Minnesota, in charge, and on the track were developed some speeders, which promise to make marks on Northwestern tracks in coming years.

Mr. Matthews and his corps of assistants took under their charge several horses owned by local men, in addition to the string of green steeds placed in their charge by Messrs. Elliott and Ruquist, and a long string were prepared for county fair campaigning. At Hibbing, Bemidji and Northern Wisconsin points several Duluth horses made good records, including Kitty D., Olive S. and O. F. At two or three matinees held at the local park there was unbounded enthusiasm among large crowds of spectators, and the sport was given a good start for future years.

Dr. Davis' speedy pacer, Dr. D., was a good performer on numerous tracks, while on campaign during the fall months. Dr. John McKay's Tanner won several races in Northern Minnesota towns and dropped dead just after the finish of a race at a Northern Wisconsin fair. Luxon, Tomango, Black Chief, Captain C. and other horses also campaigned considerably, and Duluth horse owners had a good season.

Last winter racing on the ice flourished, and this season already a start has been made in that direction. A track was constructed on the ice at the foot of Twentieth avenue west as soon as the ice permitted, and a matinee Christmas day was very successful, with a collection of good talent out.

ROWING

Though the Duluth Boat club crews were defeated at the annual regetta of the Northwestern Rowing association at White Bear lake, July 12 and 13, they covered themselves with glory. In the bantam four and junior eight honors, being beaten out by the Canadians by narrow margins. In the senior eight event, with two junior men in the shell, just as heart-breaking a race was had with the Minnesota crew for second place, Duluth being defeated by only a foot. The Duluth crews were young and inexperienced and the showing they made gave the members of the Boat club heart for future years, when the crews are expected to score much more heavily.

The senior four-oared crew, consisting of Church, Skelton, Haroldson and White took down the Kelley - Killorin medals in the annual club events, prior to the regetta and the senior eight-oared crew defeated the juniors for possession of the club cup.

All during the season, the boat club was active socially. The new branch boat house at Spirit lake was opened during the season and was immensely popular, the excursions up the river drawing heavily, until the club was forced to discontinue them on account of the cold weather.

YACHTING

With large additions to its fleet, a most successful regetta, the opening of its new pavilion and marked activity in all lines of yachting, the Duluth Yacht club made long steps in progress during 1907.

The Head of the Lakes regetta was held the week of Aug. 19, the Kechenodin of Lake Calhoun, the Royal Flush of White Bear Lake, and the Nemadji of Superior being entered in the principal events to compete with the Duluth yachts. The Head of the Lakes event went to the Minotaur of the Duluth club after several brisk races with the Royal Flush and the Nemadji. The Royal Flush took down the Duluth Yacht club trophy.

In the club events, the Feather, owned and sailed by Dr. Lynan, won both the club and the Commodore's cups and the Sylph, owned by Truax Bros., captured the Vice Commodore's cup.

Motor boating took a firm hold on the members of the yacht club during the year and the big handicap race, held at the close of the regetta, was taken by the Doman, owned by F. H. Wade of West Duluth. Richard Schell invaded the bay later with his flying, the North Butte, but the auto boat speed honors were never settled, as the two boats did not get together in competition.

BOWLING

Sam Olson of the Floan & Leveroos team of the Duluth City Bowling league took the bowling honors of the year Feb. 28, when, in a match game of the league, he made a new city record of 267, and rolled a total of 725 for three games, a new Northern Minnesota record.

The Duluth Bowling league had a successful season, the Big Duluths winning the league trophy by a big margin. The teams finished in the following order after a fifty-four game series: Big Duluths, Columbias Kenny & Ankers, Floan & Leveroos. Steigler was the individual champion of the season, averaging 201 for fifty-three games.

PUGILISM

Pugilism received a death blow in Duluth in 1907, through the activities of Governor Johnson and the local police, whereas it had thrived under the sufferance of the police for a time during the winter months, later there was not a match pulled off in the city. The game was killed entirely in the spring, when Chief Troyer issued an edict against fights of any sort. The order came after a private card pulled off by the Eagles, in which Tom McCune knocked Otto Sieloff of Chicago out in two rounds.

The only two fights worthy of consideration during the year, were the Tremble-Schreck bout at Hibbing and the Griffin-Clements fight at Superior, both of which were of great local interest. Ben Tremble, a Duluth favorite, went out in the twelfth round before Schreck in March, and May 31, Griffin was knocked out in the seventh round by Clements.

A frost pulled off Feb. 19 at Superior by Grif Jones and Bill Mosehy did much to kill the game at the Head of the Lakes. Mosehy virtually laid down in the third round and refused to fight any longer.

WRESTLING

Much talking and little wrestling marked the year in Duluth. The only match worthy of consideration was that between Frankie Meyers of Minneapolis and George Milton, who was making Duluth his headquarters. It was pulled off June 14, at the Methopolitan and Milton was easy for the Minneapolis man, going down two falls.

Last winter at the Metropolitan, weekly bouts were held and a number of lights flared up, only to dim again. Milton disposed of all the lightweights and his defeat by Meyers left the field clear again.

In the heavyweight class, Emil Peterson won the championship of the city by defeating all comers. Next to him, Andrew Danielson showed the greatest ability.

THE TRACK

By winning the greatest number of points in the big indoor meet of the Y. M. C. A., Jan. 28, Simon Forgette won the indoor athletic honors for the year. He established two new records, placing the mark for the running high jump at 5 fet and that for the running high dive at 5 feet 10 inches.

• • •

The annual dual high school meet between Duluth and Blaine of Superior, May 20, went to Duluth by a score of 55 to 37.

• • •

June 2, the biggest interscholastic field meet ever held in Duluth, was pulled off under the direction of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. The Herald trophy, emblematic of the interscholastic championship of the city in track and field events, was won by the Washington school. Stanley Lamb of the Lakeside school, was the winner of the gold medal for the highest number of points.

• • •

The Central High school interclass meet in May, preliminary to the dual meet with Blaine, was won by the Seniors, with the Juniors, Freshmen and Sophomores finishing in the order named. Fred Ryan, captain of the high school track team, was the highest individual point winner.

SHOOTING

The marksmen of the Duluth militia companies had a very successful year, their activity taking form in five regular meets. With the exception of the big interstate meet for the Martin Smith trophy, which went to Company A. Third regiment, Wisconsin, Duluth marksmen came out at the head in all of the interstate meets held.

The last indoor meet of the season was held Feb. 3, and went to Company A, the scores being as follows: F. S. & B., 644; Company A., 647; Company C., 646.

At the first interstate outdoor meet, the Field, Staff & Band carried off first honors. The meet was held April 14, the following scores being made: F. S. & B., 689; Company A., 672; Company C., 649; Company F., Wisconsin, 636.

The big interstate meet for the Martin Smith trophy was held here July 14, the first honors went to Company A., Third regiment, W. N. G., of Rice Lake. There were eight teams entered, two Wisconsin companies heading the list and bringing up the rear. The standing were: Company A., Wisconsin, 777; Company I., Wisconsin, 758; F. S. & B., 749; Company C., M. N. G., 739; Company C., M. N. G., of Princeton, 719; Company A., M. N. G., 715; Company E., W. N. G., Eau Claire, 714; Company D., W. N. G., Ashland, 705.

At a shoot late in July, Company A. of Duluth regained the trophy lost about four years ago to Company I. of Superior, the scores standing: Company A., 836; Company I., 826; Company C., 827; F. S. & B., 803.

In the last outdoor shoot of the season, the honors and the Commercial club trophy went to Company C. of Duluth, with the following standing: Company C., 782; F. S. & B., 683; Company I., 690; Company A., 653.

• • •

The feature of the trap shooting season was the victory, for the first time since the Interstate trophy was put in competition, of the Lake Superior Gun club of Superior over the Central Gun club of Duluth at the shoot in July. The competition was close, the score on the first round being tied, 86 and 86. In the shoot off for possession, the Superior squad won the shoot and the cup, with a score of 20 to 15.

In the club shoots of the Central club, Cap and Nelson carried off the honors. Several members of the Duluth club also entered shoots for prizes in different Northern Minnesota points and came out with first honors.

FREAK WRESTLING MATCH WILL BE HELD IN DULUTH

Giant Weighing 332 Pounds Will Go on the Mat.

Agrees to Throw Danielson Three Times in an Hour.

STEN WALSTROM.

Sten Walstrom, giant, and Andrew Danielson, ordinary man, will meet on the mat at the West end some time soon, probably next Saturday night, Danielson appeared at The Herald yesterday, covered the $25 put up by Walstrom as a forfeit and side bet the day previously, and announced his willingness to meet the big fellow in a handicap match at any time. All arrangements have been completed, and just as soon as the principals decide on the place for the match, it will go on.

Walstrom agrees to throw Danielson three times in an hour, catch-as-catch-can style, pin falls. If Walstrom fails to get three falls in sixty minutes' actual wrestling time, the side bet goes to Danielson, together with the winner's end of the gate receipts. If Danielson loses, he takes a small end of the gate receipts and loses his $25.

The match is one of the most freakish athletic contests ever arranged in Duluth. Walstrom, whose picture is shown herewith, is a giant in stature, weighing 332 pounds stripped. He has been at the wrestling game for some time past and is in good condition, despite his great weight. He has no lack of muscles, has picked up considerable of the science of the game from Martin Johnson, with whom he has been working, and has perfect confidence in his own ability to dispose of Danielson.

"People may think I'm not active, just because I'm big," said Walstrom in discussing his wrestling, "but I'll show a few of them that I know something about the wrestling game. I am fleshy, but the flesh is solid and my wind is good. My muscles have been hardened by long training and I can take care of myself in any situation. I count on the inability of any opponent to throw me, for my own success, and I think I have things figured out pretty well."

Danielson, who will weigh in at about 170 pounds, isn't worrying about the outcome of the match. He doesn't think that Walstrom, or any other wrestler in Duluth, can throw him three times in an hour, and put up his money with confidence that he will take it down again and Walstrom's with it.

Danielson has practically arranged a match with Fred Gilbert, the Wyoming cowboy, to be pulled off in Superior. It was originally arranged for the coming week, but on account of Danielson's arrangements with Walstrom, was called off for the time, and will be taken up again later.

Not so much as a wrestling exhibition, but as a curious affair, the match between Danielson and Walstrom will attract attention among sport lovers of Duluth. It is hardly to be believed that a man of Walstrom's weight and build can develop into a good wrestler, and his match against Danielson will be a try-out for him. If he really shows wrestling ability, it may be that Duluth is harboring a future champion. A man of his weight, given strength and a knowledge of wrestling, would make it interesting for some of the heavyweights occupying the center of the wrestling stage in America.

SKI RIDERS ARE GLOOMY

Lack of Snow Prevents Practice for Coming Tournament.

Entries Received for Events at Chester Creek, Jan. 12.

Members of the Duluth Ski club gathered last evening at the rooms of the Builders' exchange, in the Lyceum building, sat in deep, dank gloom and discussed the weather man. It would not be exactly proper to quote them, but if the dispenser of the weather heard what they said he might be prevailed upon to mend his ways and send a little snow along to cheer the despairing hearts of the ski enthusiasts.

The Ski club has a tournament scheduled for a week from tomorrow. Twenty entries have been received, and many more are in prospect. Prizes have been chosen and all arrangements made. But the natural arrangements have failed. There is practically no snow on the slide and, if the mild weather continues for a few days longer, it may necessitate the calling off of the event.

The practice the ski riders have had thus far this season hasn't been much. By hauling snow to the slide and covering it over, a few of them managed to make some small jumps New Year's day, but the conditions were such that great danger attended their efforts, and for the past few days, not a rider has ventured on the big slide.

The members of the club hope for a change during the coming week. The remainder of the people are well pleased with the weather conditions, but those who depend on ice and snow for winter amusement are in despair. A good fall of snow would put the hill on Chester Creek in good condition, and the club will go on with its tournament next Sunday.

The entry list for the tournament, Jan. 12, will be posted in the Northern Hardware company's store during the coming week for receiving entries. The entries will be divided into four classes, as follows: Class A, women, and children under 15 years of age; Class B, amateurs over 15 and under 18 years of age; Class C, amateurs over 18 years of age; Class D, professionals. For the amateur classes, medals and merchandise will be awarded as prizes, and cash awards will be made to the professionals.

An invitation from the Colfax, Wis., Ski club to attend a tournament there Feb. 1 has been received and accepted, and a delegation will attend.

OBJECT TO BROOKINS

Indianapolis Players Repeat Suspicions Against Houghton Player.

As was expected, the members of the Indianapolis team of the American association have made a roar against Brookins, the third baseman secured by Watkins from the Houghton club of the old Northern-Copper Country league. They claim, with good foundation, it is said, that Brookins is a negro, and will probably succeed in having him thrown out of organized baseball.

Last year Brookins came to the Northern-Copper Country league from Green Bay of the Wisconsin State league and the Houghton magnates placed him on the field as an Indian. Long before a word was published about the suspicions relative to Brookins, nearly all of the players, and most of the newspaper men on the circuit, were fairly certain that he had negro blood in him. Some of the players in the league had known him and his family in St. Louis and at the instance of Winnipeg and Duluth owners an investigation was made, which is said to have confirmed the report.

They decided to let the matter drop until after the close of the league season, however, as Brookins was playing good ball and they had no particular objections to him on account of his color. While the Houghton club was in Duluth on its last series, a newspaper man stumbled on the report and published it.

The Houghton club managed to keep the suspicions regarding Brookins under cover and disposed of him to Indianapolis. Now the American association magnates will probably make a final investigation, and, if the reports received already are found to be true, Brookins will be sent to the Independents, as the color line is drawn in organized baseball.

Brookins was a valuable man on the Houghton team last year, his fielding and batting enable the Copper country team to pull up to Duluth in the race for second place. There was some talk for a time of having all games in which he played thrown out, but things came out all right at the end of the season and no protests were made.

Make Mighty Claims.

Peoria, Jan. 4.—The Muscatine, Iowa, basketball team, claiming the title of champions of the world, defeated the Peoria Y. M. C. A. Clippers last night by the score of 55 to 28.

Y. M. C. A. WINS GAME

Game is Rough, But Both Teams Show Playing Ability.

In one of the fastest, snappiest games ever played on the floor of the association gynasium, the Y. M. C. A. basketball team last evening defeated the Nelson-Dewey alumni team of Superior by a score of 66 to 20.

Clever checking, brilliant team-play and spectacular throwing of baskets kept the crowd intensely interested all the way through. The play of the local team was a revelation. Weeks of practice showed its good effect. They had the Superior boys outwitted at every turn. The combination play of the forwards kept the ball well in Superior territory nearly the entire game, and the guards checked their men closely and well.

At times, the game resembled a football match. Rough play seemed to be relished by both teams and they mixed it for the entire time, keeping the officials busy calling fouls and holding the play to the rules. The Superiorites, hopelessly beaten toward the close of the game, became desperate and mixed the play more than ever. The efforts to cure the Y. M. C. A. boys of their roughing tendencies showed some effect, as they held themselves in check more than the visitors, but it was far from a purely scientific exhibition.

The play of the Duluth forwards was finished. Dinham had anywhere from fifteen to twenty baskets to his credit. He shot in and out among the Superior players like a white streak and every minute or two the ball went flying from his hands toward the basket. Many of his shots were straight and true and the percentage higher than ordinary. Smith and McLean also showed unusual form in throwing for baskets.

The Superior forwards played a good game, except for their roughing tendencies. Skelton and Perry held them pretty well throughout the game and they never had a chance to offset the scoring ability of the Duluth forwards. The score of the first half was 35 to 12, and the second half was a walkaway for the local players. Dr. Fahey of Duluth and Mr. Rue of Superior officiated and their work was very satisfactory.

The teams lined up as follows:

Y. M. C. A.	Position.	Nelson Dewey A
Dinhan	center	Dischoff
McLean	forward	Lamieur
Smith	forward	Whitney
Skelton	guard	Henderson
Perry	guard	Bischoff

Next Thursday night, the Y. M. C. A. team will go to Superior, where they will meet the Blaine high school team. Although the Nelson-Dewey alumni has one of the strongest teams in the Wisconsin city and the victory last night gives the association boys high hopes, it is said that Blaine has a wonderfully strong five this year. A victory over Blaine Thursday night would put the Y. M. C. A. boys in a good position for the Head of the Lakes champion race, the honor, which they have set themselves for this season. The teams will line up Thursday night as follows:

Blaine.	Position.	Y. M. C. A.
Long	center	Dinhani, capt.
Clark	forward	McLean
Buchanan, capt	forward	Fenton
		Ballou
Nord	guard	Smith
Zieman	guard	Perry
		Skelton.

Tonight the first game in the schedule of the Y. M. C. A. Basketball league will be played between the noon class and Horak's team of the 5:30 class. There is keen rivalry between the different teams of the league and the series is expected to bring out some good basketball. Two gams a week will be played in the schedule.

NAMES MANY COLTS.

James B. Haggin Nominates 306 for 1910 Futurity.

New York, Jan. 4.—James B. Haggin, the famous horse breeder, has nominated 306 colts for the futurity of 1910, the nominations for which have just been closed. This is the largest number of nominations ever made by one owner. A check for $3,060, of $10 for each nomination has been received by the club. The foals will be born and trained at the Elmedorf Stud in Kentucky and the rancho Del Paso in California, Mr. Haggin's breeding farms.

Racing Season in New York Next Year Will be Exceptional.

New York, Jan. 4.—There is every prospect that the racing season on the New York tracks next summer will be an exceptional one. The big races of the spring meetings have been well entered and there is not a prominent horse on the turf, with the single exception of Peter Pan, which will never race again, that is not entered in one or more of the three big events.

ROMANCE ENDED.

Telephone Girl Wants Divorce and Asks $1,100 a Month.

New York, Jan. 4.—The "telephone girl's" romance, which upset all the old families of Poughkeepsie in 1903, when the millionaire, Albert Edward Tower, wedded Mary Bogardus, the operator, has ended in the divorce courts. Mrs. Tower has served papers on her husband in an action for separation.

The application will be made by her attorney to Judge Mills at White Plains today for alimony and counsel fees.

From mistress of a palatial home, with an unlimited income, Mrs. Tower sets forth in her complaint, she has been reduced to the necessity of living on $100 a month. She is willing to accept a settlement of $700 a month with an allowance for servants and maintenance running the account up to $460 additional.

She and her husband signed an agreement to this effect last September. This was about the time when the stories got in the papers about Mr. Tower's attention to a dashing Southern woman named Weiss.

Mr. Tower makes his home at the Metropolitan club in New York, and has a summer home near New Rochelle. He is a member of the New York Yacht club. His first wife was Miss Nina Carpenter, daughter of Platt Carpenter, who once was territorial governor of Montana.

Mrs. Tower killed her half-grown son and herself a few months before Mr. Tower wedded Miss Bogardus.

BOOST FOR THE CANAL

John C. Greenway Says Splendid Progress is Being Made There.

Big Ditch Will Surely be Finished by 1915.

The Panama canal will surely be completed in 1915, and most likely by 1914, according to the opinion of John C. Greenway, manager of the Coleraine branch of the Oliver Mining company, who has just returned from an inspection of the work being done on the canal.

Mr. Greenway not only believes that the big ditch will be completed in seven years, but he further believes that under the government engineers the work is proceeding with the greatest progress it has yet shown. During the month of November 1,800,000 cubic yards of dirt was excavated, which is the greatest record achieved in any month since the United States government started work on the canal.

Grading the work done by the government under three heads, in regard to the importance in which it appeared to him, Mr. Greenway places the cleansing of the fever ridden cities of Panama and Colon and the intervening canal strip as the most stupendous work accomplished by the government.

Col. Gorgas has charge of this work and Mr. Greenway says he has thoroughly ridden both the cities and the forty-nine miles of canal strip of the yellow fever that threatened to stop the inhabitation of the canal zone by Americans or white labor. He says that the canal zone and the cities of Panama and Colon are today as healthyful as any American city. The swamps have been drained, the nests of the poisonous mosquitos filled with oil, and every precaution adopted for the complete extermination of the yellow fever germ.

To render such a place as Panama was when the Americans first took possession of it, a habitable place, safe for American labor, and to provide perfect sanitation in the homes of all the laborers, is what Mr. Greenway considers the greatest thing accomplished by the government.

Next he places the feeding of the vast army of laborers in the list of importance. The government has established vast cold storage plants at Panama that are supplied by cold storage boats from London, New York and New Orleans. The American laborer pays no more for fresh meat and fresh baked bread in Panama than does the laborer in the city of New York.

Every morning the bread cars start out on the railroad line running along the length of the canal strip, supplying freshly baked bread from the immense bake ovens of the government bakery. The laborer in the Panama gets his fresh bread daily, just as his brother laborer in American cities does. He has his single house, if he is married, or lives in the group cottage if he is single. In fact, he fares but little different, so far as the comforts of life are concerned, from the man working on a similar project in the United States.

Next Mr. Greenway places the importance of the work itself. He places the securing of conditions that dale this work possible before the importance of the work itself.

He thoroughly believes in the lock canal, which is the plan of the present work. He says that the tide rise on the Atlantic side is 18 inches, while on the Pacific side it is something like 18 inches. This fact would make a sea level canal a physical impossibility, he says. He says that the plans, which the engineers are working under at the present time, are simple, practical and feasible. Mr. Greenway was afforded unusual opportunity for inspecting the work in all its phases and angles and is most emphatic in his commendation of the work as being carried on under the army engineers.

Much chaos and experimenting was necessary at the start, he says, but now that the big work has been brought under way in a systematized manner progress will steady until the most stupendous task of the twentieth century has been completed.

Mr. Greenway says the laborers are satisfied. Their quarters, their food, and their treatment have brought about this result, and the progress being registered is proof of this.

The policing of the canal zone won the admiration of Mr. Greenway. This work is being carried on under Col. Chanton, who served under Col. Brody of the Rough Riders. He has about 130 men under him, many of them second enlistment regulars. He has the guarding of the forty-nine miles of canal strip, and Mr. Greenway says he has succeeded in preventing gambling, shutting out vice, and preventing lawlessness and crime.

The working agreement between the cities of Panama and Colon and the officials of the canal zone is most harmonious. Prisoners escaping to either city are given up, if they have committed any crime in the canal zone. The work done by the American government in ridding these fever infested cities of yellow fever germs, and cleaning and paving their streets, has not been forgotten, for they have rendered every aid to the administration of justice in the intervening canal strip.

Altogether Mr. Greenway brings a most pleasing report of the progress being achieved by the government.

More Gold From Europe.

This headline has appeared so often in our papers lately that we are all more or less familiar with it. Millions of dollars in gold have been sent us from Europe, and while many reasons have been given for same the one most generally accepted is that it was imported as a means of relieving our money stringency. If you want immediate relief from a spell of heartburn, belching, bloating or nausea, brought on by over eating or imperfect digestion, take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will tone and strengthen the entire digestive system, keep the bowels open and thus cure and prevent sick headache, dyspepsia, indigestion, billousness, female ills, colds and malaria. EXPRESS COMPANIES FAIL TO OBEY LAW.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 4.—Alleging that the United States, the Adams and the American Express companies failed to file the amounts of the salaries of the officers of the concern with the state railway commission, County Attorney Tyrell, today, filed a suit in the county court, here, asking that the fine provided by the statutes be imposed.

The commission law passed by the last session of the legislature prescribed a penalty of from $500 to $5,000 for refusing to furnish the information demanded by the commission.

RAILROADS IS ALMOST COMPLETED

Milwaukee Extension to Butte Will be Finished April 1.

Trains Will be Running Into Seattle Early in 1909.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Before April 1, the Pacific coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road will be completed to Butte, Mont., and through train schedule will be established immediately. Nine sections of the line west of Butte will be constructed, and it is expected all these will be connected so that trains can be run through to Seattle early in 1909.

Service has been opened to Bowman, N. D., 163 miles west of the Missouri river, the grading has been practically completed to Harlowtown, Mont., and rails are being laid at the rate of four miles a day.

RUSH IS OVER.

Steamship Business Out of Duluth Breaks All Previous Records.

The rush of foreigners through Duluth toward Europe is now over with, although some steamship tickets for passage across the Atlantic are being sold. It is only the stragglers who are buying, however.

The steamship business transacted by local railroad offices during the months of November and December was the heaviest on record. The number of tickets sold was more than double that usually disposed of in the same period.

Would Take Off Train.

The Northern Pacific road has asked permission of the state railroad commission to take off one of the two trains which it runs daily between Duluth and Fond du Lac. The hearing will be in Duluth on Jan. 14. It is expected there will be local opposition to this move.

Injunction Issued.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Sioux Falls, says, that Judge Garland of the federal court, yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining the South Dakota railroad commission from reducing passenger rates from 3 to 2½ cents a mile. The temporary injunction follows a similar order last October. Judge Garland sustained demurrers to the action of the railroad companies in making S. W. Clark, attorney general of South Dakota, and William H. Stanley, secretary of the board of railroad commissioners, defendants in the case.

Railroad Notes.

Phil P. Hitchcock, well known in Duluth, has resigned his position as general agent of the Wabash at Denver, Colo., and has taken a position with the Annheuser-Busch Brewing company.

PERKIO WAS WELL POSTED

Had Never Been Arrested Before, But Wanted Suspension.

John Perkio had never been arrested previous to yesterday. He told Judge Cutting so through an interpreter this morning and added that not even in Finland did the officers take him in charge. He also added that he would like a suspended sentence. He pleaded guilty to the drunk charge.

Somebody had put John wise to the police court game. He didn't know the court procedure, but somebody who had been there before him had succeeded in pulling his way out with a suspended sentence. He told John of it and Perkio faithfully used the prescription this morning. The plea made a hit with the judge and John's wishes were granted.

James Wallace, a horse trader, living at Forty-second avenue west and Fourth street, is an old-timer. He appeared in court this morning, with a black eye and a wholesome fear of a jail sentence. The officer who made the arrest, reported that Wallace had been drunk for some time, evidently, for he had badly abused one of his horses. The animal, worn out by illtreatment, had dropped on First street between Twentieth and Twenty-first avenues west, yesterday afternoon, and was allowed to lie there by Wallace. The animal was in such shape that the officer was forced to kill it, and the owner was arrested on a drunk charge. He pleaded guilty this morning and fought shy of a jail sentence. He paid a fine of $20 and costs.

Henry Hassebrock lies on the floor of the cell room in the city jail, weak and exhausted from a long battle with booze. Monday he made his first apeparance in municipal court and drew $3 and costs. Tuesday he was back again and paid $5 and costs and last night he was found lying helpless in the road. This morning he was almost too weak to raise his head from the floor and was not taken to court.

RIDDLE AT ST. PETERSBURG.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 4.—John W. Riddle, the American ambassador to Russia, returned here today from New York.

DR. BRACKEN IS COMING

Secretary of State Board to Attend Council Meeting.

Will Defend Position of Board on Smallpox Quarantine.

Next Monday evening's council meeting promises to see some interesting developments growing out of the discussion last Monday night over the state board of health's modified rules for the quarantining of smallpox patients. Dr. Murray, the health commissioner, has communicated with Dr. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, who will come to Duluth and appear at Monday night's meeting to defend the position of the state board.

The discussion was precipitated by a resolution, introduced by Alderman Foubister, calling upon Dr. Murray to enforce the quarantine regulations of the charter, regardless of the state board of health's stand. The consideration of the resolution last Monday night was marked by considerable warmath, in which Dr. Murray figured prominently, but he was finally successful in having action deferred for a week, that he might invite Dr. Bracken to Duluth to explain the position of the state body.

In the meantime, Dr. Murray agreed to continue the old order of things until such time as the council would take definite action. He expressed firm faith in the stand of the state board and Dr. Bracken's ability to convince the council that they were going into the new order with their eyes open.

The principal change in the new regulations is that which allows people of a house, in which smallpox exists, to leave the house and carry on their regular business, provided they do not come in contact with the patient, and are vaccinated and thoroughly fumigated before first leaving the house. The children are kept out of school as usual, and none of the members of the family is allowed to attend public gatherings. The object is to relieve the community of the burden of caring for families of wage earners under quarantine. The members of the state board and many physicians contend that there is no danger in the proceeding, while the members of the council are skeptical and the resolution finds favor with them.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR KNIFE WOUND

The fact that Nick Tervola drew a sentence of eighty days on the rock pile, without the alternative of a fine, in police court, last Saturday morning, for slashing John Hagelberg with a knife at a boarding house at 246 St. Croix avenue, was not a sufficient balm for Hagelberg's feelings. He has started suit in municipal court for $250, claiming that he was injured to that amount by the slash.

Early last Saturday morning, Hagelberg, Tervola and other boarders in the house had been drinking and Hagelberg proposed that they retire. He grasped Tervola by the arm, it is said, to lead him to his room. Tervola pulled a knife and slashed Hagelberg on the left shoulder, inflicting an ugly wound several inches long.

Hagelberg thinks the eighty days' sentence wasn't sufficient punishment and wants the $250 also. T. J. McKeon is his attorney.

STEEL LAYING PROGRESSING.

Wisconsin Central Will Reach Superior First of February.

W. R. Gillis, in charge of the construction work of the Wisconsin Central railway, said today that the rails would be laid to Superior by the first of the month. This will be the stretch from Owen, Wis., upon which a large force of men have been employed since the labor conditions enabled the road to secure the force it wanted. Grading will be completed by Feb. 10, on all parts of the new work. The progress, since the road has been enabled to employ all the men it needed, has been rapid, according to Mr. Gillis.

CASTRO RECOVERS FROM HIS ILLNESS.

Caracas, Jan. 2, via Villomsted, Curacoa, Jan. 4.—President astro appears to have quite recovered from his recent illness. Yesterday he held a New Year's reception, and read a proclamation to the republic, in which he dwelt upon the existing peaceful conditions. Referring to his own health, he said it was useless for agitators to go on watching his sick bed, trusting that fate would remove him from the presidency.

W. W. Russell, the American minister, speaking for the diplomatic corps, made a short address, in which he congratulated the president upon his restoration to health.

PUBLIC NOTICE

To Users of

Calcium Carbide and Acetylene Gas

The Union Carbide Company, the owner of United States Letters Patent No. 541,138 of June 18, 1895, for the product crystalline Calcium Carbide, cautions the public against the use or sale of Calcium Carbide (or carbolite) manufactured by any other person, firm or corporation. All commercial calcium carbide is crystalline.

Especial attention is called to the law which makes the person who merely uses or sells an infringing product just as liable to damages as the manufacturer of it.

This cautionary notice is given to save innocent parties from litigation and damages to which they will be liable if they use or sell any such calcium carbide (by whatever name it may be called) manufactured by any other person, firm or corporation.

The public is especially advised that important suits have been brought by Union Carbide Company, and are now pending in the United States Circuit Courts in New York and Ohio, against parties using and selling the product manufactured by the American Carbolite Company, and that these suits will be followed by such others as may be deemed necessary to protect this company in its patented product, Calcium Carbide. The pending suits are being vigorously pushed by the undersigned with all available energy, and such progress has already been made that a finding and judgment sustaining the rights of the Union Carbide Company may reasonably be expected in the not distant future.

DEPUTIES GUARD MINE

Strike at Hector Mine, Biwabik, Had Bad Appearance.

Authorities Claim Trouble is Confined to a Few Men.

Threatened trouble at the Hector mine at Biwabik, yesterday, resulted in a call on the county authorities for protection last evening, and Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately was sent by Sheriff Bates to Biwabik to look over the situation and act as he decides best in the matter of placing deputies about the property.

The trouble is claimed to have arisen over a refusal on the part of the mine owners, George St. Clair and his associates, to raise the wages. The Hector is an underground mine and about 150 men were employed.

About 100 of the men walked out yesterday, and some of the hot-headed ones are claimed to have given the situation a rather ugly look by throwing sticks and stones and other debris down the shaft. The owners thought best to take proper precautionary measures to protect their property, and they called on the sheriff.

Word received at the sheriff's office from Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately this morning indicated that all was quiet at the Hector mine today. The company was paying off its men and shutting down over Sunday. It is understood that operations will be resumed Monday morning and all the old employes that want work will be taken back. The places of those who remain out will be filled with others, the company claims, as there are plenty of men out of work who would like a good winter job.

So far as the county authorities were able to learn, there are only about half a dozen of the strikers who are making the demonstration against the company's property. It is probable that efforts will be made to keep such in check and make arrests as soon as another demonstration looking toward the destruction of property is started.

The miners, it is claimed, demand a raise in wages from $1.75 to $2 per day. Similar demands are said to have been made on some of the other independent mining concerns on the Mesaba range, but thus far the Hector is the only mine where the men have walked out.

INCREASES STOCK.

Lutsen Lumber Company Will Push Operations More Actively.

The Lutsen Lumbe, Tie & Post company, at a meeting of its stockholders yesterday, voted to increase its capital stock from $50,000 to $150,000.

The company, which consists of Duluth and Superior capital, was organized two years ago and is operating on Poplar river, in Cook county, Minn., where it has secured a large block of timber for future operations.

Some logging has been done by the company, but the principal business to date has been the improving of Poplar river, which will furnish the transportation.

Heavy improvements have been made in the past two years, including the building of four flooding dams.

The river, including its branches, and all the lakes tributary thereto, is controlled by the company through a charter from the state to the Poplar River Boom & Improvement company.

It is estimated that there are from 450,000 to 500,000 cords of pulpwood timber, 100,000,000 feet of white pine and large quantities of cedar and other soft wood tributary to the stream.

The timber product is towed in rafts from the mouth of the river to Ashland, where it is loaded and distributed.

PLANS TALKING TOURS.

Taft to Invade Territory of Hughes and Knox.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Secretary Taft will make a series of important speeches, and talk on the issues before the country in the immediate future. He has accepted an invitation for Jan. 16 to address the People's Forum in Cooper union, New York city.

Thus he will invade the territory of Governor Hughes, whose friends are endeavoring to start a presidential boom for him. On Jan. 14, the secretary will invade the bailiwick of Senator Knox. On the evening of that date he will address the Ohio society of Philadelphia.

He has selected an auspicious occasion to speak in his own state. On Jan. 29 the Tippeanoe club of Cleveland, the largest political institution in Northern Ohio, will honor the birth of William McKinley, at its annual banquet, and the secretary will be the guest of honor. On Feb. 12 he will address the Lincoln club of Grand Rapids, Mich., the occasion being the Lincoln day banquet.

Sentiment on the presidential question has not yet crystallized in the Wolverine state, although Mr. Taft is said to have a strong following there. Governor Warner, it will be recalled, said in an interview recently that the secretary would get the Michigan delegation.

ROBERT BASHFORD

Milwaukee, Jan. 4.—A special to the Daily News from Madison, Wis., says: Governor Davidson today appointed Robert M. Bashford of Madison assistant justice of the supreme court to succeed the late Chief Justice Cassoday. The appointment holds until a successor can be elected and qualified, which means that Mr. Bashford will have to stand for an election in April for the unexpired term of two years. The salary is $6,000.

Deaths	1,011	1,012
Births	1,517	1,682

With an increase of but one death and 165 births, the mortuary and birth record of Duluth for the year 1907, as shown by the records in the office of the health department is very satisfactory. The annual report of the department, with the official figures, will not be issued for some time yet, but the figures given above, are accurate as far as the reports have been filed, and are a good indication of what may be expected when the records are complete.

For the month of December, 140 births have been reported, but it is presumed dilatory physicians and midwives will file several others before the annual report is compiled and the total of 1,682 will be swelled somewhat. On the total as given, the encouraging birth rate of 21.6 per 1,000 population is secured on an estimated population of 77,900.

The number of deaths reported to the health department, as having occurred in the city, is not a fair indication of Duluth's mortality rate and the rate cannot be compiled from the total. Large numbers were brought to the city hospitals from outside of the city during the year and died here, thus cutting the actual death rate of Duluth down. In 1906, there were 1,011 deaths in the city, but the death rate was compiled on the basis of 582 deaths; nonresidents, children under 1 year of age and stillborns having been deducted.

Burglary Insurance

One feature of the burglary insurance is the sense of security the holder feels when he leaves for his summer outing. The vacancy permit allows any reasonable period of absence. Vacant furnished houses have always been a mark for the operations of burglars, and many pleasure seekers have returned to find their stock of household effects very considerably diminished.

I should like to replace whatever the burglars take. It will pay you to see me.

Blind Men Who Have Risen Superior To Their Affliction

By Dexter Marshall.

(Copyright, 1908, by Dexter Marshall.)

The man who is the world's leading authority on the constitution of steel is stone blind, his eyesight having been destroyed by an explosion which occurred early in his chemical investigations of the constitution of steel. He is Edward DeMille Campbell, since 1905 director of the chemical laboratory of the University of Michigan.

The man to whom learned university professors of mathematics and famous astronomers come for instruction in the most abstruse mathematics has been stone blind from birth. He is Lewis B. Carll of Brooklyn, famed the mathematical world over as its only living authority on the calculus of variations, a branch of the science which only the cream of the mathematical sharps have brains enough to conquer.

The woman whose 6,000 odd gospel songs have gone round the world has been stone blind since she was six months old. Today she is nearing her eighty-eighth birthday, and is as active mentally and physically as she was forty-four years ago when she began giving to Christianity such hymns as "Jesus, Keep Me Near the Cross," "Rescue the Perishing," "I Am Thine, O Lord," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

John B. Herreshoff, famous on two continents as the modeler of the latter day defenders of the America's cup, has not been able to tell day from night since he was fifteen years old when a film began to spread over his eyes and soon thereafter left him in total physical darkness.

For the first time in its history, a blind man has been elected to the senate of the United States. He is Thomas P. Gore, one of the first pair of toga wearers from the new state of Oklahoma. When he was 9 one eye was put out during a quarrel with a playmate; when he was 12 the other was destroyed by another playmate accidentally piercing it with an arrow.

For years two of the sovereign states of the Union—California and Rhode Island—supinely did the bidding of two "blind bosses," Christopher A. Buckley and Gen. Charles R. Brayton, respectively.

The most popular tutor in mathematics at Columbia University, because he is the most successful, is Dr Newell Perry, whose face, when he was a child of 8 on his father's ranch in California, came in contact with some poison, causing him to go blind in a few weeks.

These are only a few of the more prominent blind men and women who, aided almost solely by their indomitable determination to do so, have risen superior to an affliction that the average man or woman looks upon as appalling. A complete list of who's who among the blind would be long, indeed, and include the names of such well known doers as M. Riggenbach, professor of theology in the University of Basle; M. Camille Lemaire, the French architect, who, on becoming blind, devoted himself to writing a history of architecture; Dr. Emile Javal, the French oculist, who, since becoming sightless at the age of 62, has spent his time teaching others how to perform the operations for which he was famed on the continent; Dagnia, the organist; to say nothing of the most famous blind personage of modern times—John Milton.

Remarkable Feats of Memory.

Varied as are the careers of present day prominent blind men, a glance at their lives shows that the success of each man rests largely on the circumstance that he has been able to develop his memory to perform feats that deserve classification among the phenomena of the mind.

One of the problems in Mr. Carll's book on "Calculus of Variations" takes us several score pages. He spent three years working out the problem, but not until he had arrived at the correct answer did he commit any portion of the problem to paper by the point system. As fast as he worked out one step of the problem—it took him weeks, sometimes, to do this—he stored the result of his labors in his memory and did not bring it forth again until he, too, could cry "Eureka!" In such manner he wrote the whole of his first book, a formidable volume of 568 pages, on which he spent ten years. His second book, "Afterthoughts on Calculus of Variation," is the result of twenty years of study. It deals with the most difficult mathematical problems known to the human mind—problems that Mr. Carll was not able to master when he wrote his "Variations;" hence the name, "Afterthoughts." And no problem in this second work, the only one of its kind ever written, was committed to paper until Mr. Carll, pacing up and down his room, day after day, week after week, month after month, year after year, in several instances, had grasped the solution.

Senator Thomas P. Gore is credited with having graduated in geometry without drawing a line or making a single figure. Perhaps the most remarkable demonstration of his truly remarkable memory was given during a debate with Senator Hernando de Soto Money of Mississippi, Gore's native state.

Money at the time was a candidate for re-election to congress on the Democratic ticket; Gore, then a Populist, had been selected as the party's best man to answer the arguments of "the gentleman from Mississippi."

Just before the word contest began, the blind man requested of his opponent that a division of time be made. Money, who that day had met Gore for the first time, resented the request for some reason, and his reply was none too civil:

"I will speak as long as I please. You are at liberty to do the same."

For three solid hours thereafter Money let loose a veritable flood of talk on the big crowd assembled for miles around the little town of Hoenlinden to listen to the debate. Through it all Gore sat with unruffled brow; then, when his opponent had run out of breath at last, he took the platform and held his hearers spellbound for four solid hours. Incidentally, he quoted, without a slip, page after page of his antagonist's record as set down in the Congressional Record, this having been read to him only a day or two before.

Though he drank himself blind before he went into politics and then put liquor away—for himself—forever, "Boss" Buckley has never forgotten any man whose voice he has heard even once only since he went into politics. To his peculiar ability to remember voice tones he undoubtedly owed much of his success as a "boss." Until he was deposed he ran a low type of saloon in San Francisco. Here politicains of both parties from all over the state would come to pay their homage. Perhaps a visitor had not stood before Buckley for fifteen years, and then only long enough to receive his suave "How do you do?" Yet the moment the "boss' heard his caller speak, out would shoot his right hand, and in the most refined drawing room tones would come the words: "So glad to meet you, Mr. Smith. We haven't met since such and such a convention." Buckley has never been known to make a mistake in name or place of last meeting.

Dr. Newell Perry tutors entirely from memory. Before she was 9 years old Fanny Crosby could repeat, word for word, the first four books of the New Testament and the first four books of the Old Testament, as well. Naturally, her ability to remember whole passages and books of the Bible has had a great deal to do with her success as a writer of sacred hymns. One of her greatest feats of memory was to compose forty hymns at a sitting and then write them down one after another, without a moment's hesitation in search of a word or a line.

Herreshoff has declared that his success as a yacht builder rests largely on the fact that he can picture so vividly in his mind the boats he saw and the models he owned during the first fifteen years of his life. Had his memory failed him in the slightest degree in this respect he believes he would have possessed no proper mental models to work with and improve upon. It is an everyday occurrence for Prof. Campbell to work out intricate chemical formulae in his mind the while he performs before his classes experiments which a chemist with two good eyes undertakes with some anxiety.

Campbell, the Blind Chemist.

Prof. Campbell's father was Judge James V. Campbell, a noted jurist of the Central states. He was professor of law at the University of Michigan from 1859 to 1885. Five years after he had retired his son became professor of metallurgy and metallurgical chemistry at the university, where he had graduated four years before. After he had become blind he was promoted to junior professor of analytical chemistry then professor of chemical engineering and analytical chemistry, and two years ago was made director of the university's chemical laboratory, which is recokened among the best in the country.

The year that he secured the professorship at his alma mater, Prof. Compbell began working on the problem of the constitution of steel. As everybody knows, the hardening of steel is due to a combination of iron and carbon, but why or how iron and carbon change their relations to each other no scientist knows, though many have sought to unravel the mystery. Prof. Campbell was endeavoring to learn how much carbon was evolved as gas by decomposing steel with acid when the explosion occurred that rendered him blind. Hydrocarbons mixed with many times their volume of hydrogen were present, and it was while he was trying to separate the hydrogen from the hydrocarbons that the accident took place. Gas mixed with oxygen stored in large glass bottles was led throigh a capillary glass tube immersed in ice water. The tube and the ice water should hove worked on the same principle as the miner's safety lamp to prevent the combusion from spreading. But something waz wrong and every one of the bottles exploded just as Prof. Campbell was leaning over to examine the progress of the experiment. Numerous pieces of glass were driven into his eyes. This was just before the opening of the spring vacation. At the fall opening of the college Campbell was back again in his place, ready for all his old work.

"I was studying on the slow construction of hydrogen and the gases evolved when steel is dissolved. It didn't go slowly, but rather went quickly. The mixture exploded and caused the accident." Then he added:

"I took the same gases by another and safer method and from the gaseous products of the solution of steel I formed the present hypothesis of the construction of steel which I published in 1899 in the Journal of Iron and Steel Institute, and I have not changed my fundamental ideas since that article was published."

At the time of the accident to Prof. Campbell there was no clearly formed conception of the formation of steel. Prof. Campbell worked on the accumulation of facts for five years and then from this accumulation formed the working hypothesis. Since then he has been testing the validity of these facts and has found nothing as yet to contradict the correctness of the hypithesis. In short, he is accumulating fundamental ideas to get experimental evidence that every scientist will accept; many have accepted his hypothesis.

Within two hours after his eyesight had been destroyed, Prof. Campbell was planning for his future life and work, and two weeks after the accident he was working with the same gases on the same problem, directing other hands and eyes to do and see for him what he could no longer do and see. Rather recently he is said to have discovered a way to perform without danger the experiment which deprived him of a sense.

At present he has from eight to twelve men working under him on the intricate problem which he is pursuing with an energy that outlasts the endurance of any of his assistants. In order to get the accurate measurements on which he rigidly insists, he has been compelled many times to devise delicate instruments to measure quantity and degree with minute accuracy. These feats of workmanship he has trained his hands to perform with amazing skill; indeed, his hands are trained as remarkably as are those of Herreshoff who, simply by running his hands along a yacht's hull, can tell her speed.

As his position at the head of Ann Arbor's chemical laboratory implies, Prof. Campbell is decidedly a man of more than one idea. Numerous chemical experiments that have nothing to do with the construction of steel are directed daily by him. Since he became blind the Portland cement industry of the country has been developed. As a chemist, Prof. Campbell played a prominent part in the development, and is a recognized authority on Portland cement. In 1895 the output of this cement in this country was about one barrel to every 150 persons; nowwit is about one-half barrel for each person.

"How have you managed to accomplish so much, especially with such a handicap to contend with?" I asked Prof. Campbell.

"I found, at the time of my accident, that I must do one of two things," he answered. "I was doing my college work and also a great deal of outside work as a consulting chemist for several concerns. I found that I had to sacrifice one or the other, that I must choose between the two. I gave up the outside commercial work, and gave my entire time and energy to the scientific work. All that I can say is that one can accomplish anything by attending to business and sawing wood, and not getting discouraged. Sometimes you study a month, six months, or possibly two years on one idea, only to find out at the end of that time that it is not worth working out. Then you lay it aside and put it down to experience and begin all over again."

One reason of Prof. Campbell's ability to accomplish so much in a given period of time is to be found, doubtless, in his enthusiasm for physical exercise. He devotes an hour a day during the college year to work in the gymnasium, in order to keep in good muscular condition. At 11 o'clock every morning he leaves his laboratory with an assistant and goes to the gymnasium, in the northeast corner of the campus. By 12 he has exercised for thirty-five minutes, taken his bath and subjected himself to a lively rub-down. While exercising he uses the horses, parallel bars and dumbbells, being as clever with them as a full-sighted gym team star.

No professor at Ann Arbor sets such long working hours for himself; none works as many weeks in the year, just fifty; none is in better health; none can show a better cared for set of muscles.

Prof. Campbell was 44 years old last September. He is a member of the American Chemical society, the American Institute of Mining Engineering, and the Iron and Steel institute, and an honorary member of the Michiga Gas association.

How Mathematician Carll Wrote His Books.

Lewis B. Carll, whose fame among mathematicians is even greater than Prof. Campbell's among chemists, despite the handicap of sightless eyes, pressed Seth Low, who afterwards became mayor of Greater New York, for first place in the class in which they graduated from Columbia university. That was in 1870. As a student young Carll had the text books read to him by a companion, while the two were traveling between the university and Mr. Carll's home, on Long Island. His companion was a boyhood friend, sent through Columbia by Mr. Carll's father, that his son might have some one to read his lessons to him. Thus, Mr. Carll took a college course wholly by sound, as it were.

On graduation he planned to become a teacher of the classics, but soon found to his sorrow that nearly every one who desired his services wanted to be instructed in mathematics. In college he had been a fair mathematician. Confronting the situation squarely, he determined to become as proficient in this branch of study as his mental equipment would let him, and from that day to this he has been a solver of the most abstruse mathematical problems known to man.

When he decided to produce his book on "Calculus of Variations," he discovered that only one book had ever been written on that subject, and every copy of it had been lost or destroyed, apparently. He, therefore, had to secure the loan of various rare mathmatical papers and pamphlets from the libraries of Harvard, Yale and Europe, Columbia university guaranteeing their safe return. He spent three years collecting in this wise the necessary basic data; the ensuing ten years he devoted almost entirely to building his book.

His method of work was this: He instructed his brothers how to read higher mathematics properly. Then he would have one of them read to him a few lines at a time. Next he would go to his room, lock the door and pace up and down while he digested what had been read to him. Then he would have another fourth or an eighth of a page of figures read to him, and up to his room he would trudge again, to do the heavy thinking. In such fashion he also worked out the problems in his second and greater work.

Prof. Campbell, owing to his muscular activity, does not look very much like a typical college professor. Mr. Carll, on the other hand, is the physical embodiment of the erudite student. Like most lifelong blind persons, he has the gentleness and the winning smile of a woman. Naturally, he is very proud of the fact that each of his two books is in a class all its own. He is a fellow at Columbia university, and every year delivers a course of lectures to its professors of and instructors in mathematics.

A Blind Boy Who Planned to Be a Senator.

A blind boy who set out to be a United States senator, and who has realized his ambition—this, in epitome, is the life story of Thomas P. Gore.

When he was attending school at Walthal, Miss., a copy of the Congressional Record fell in Gore's hands. He got a schoolmate, Charles Pittman, to read from it to him. Among other things Pittman read the list of United States senators. Then it was that Tom Gore conceived his ambition of becoming a senator himself, and in all the years that followed he did not lose sight of the goal that he finally won last December. He is now 36 years old, and until he waged his senatorial campaign was so little known outside the two or three countryside communities in which he has lived that "Who's Who in America" and other reference books know no such man.

Gore began his political career in his native state, Mississippi. He has been a Populist congressional candidate in Texas, has stumped for Bryan in Indiana, Ohio, Nebraska and the Dakotas, and is the present idol of the Oklahoma farmers and ranchers, who, in the senatorial primary, rolled up a bi genough majority for him to offset handsomely the adverse majorities in the towns. To secure the $1,000 that Gore spent in his campaign, his friends say that he had to mortgage his cottage home in Lawton. His opponents spent $100,000, all told.

During his campaign for senator Gore went about practically unattended. Whenever possible he spent his nights in the homes of farmers, no matter what their political belief. His pluck, frankness and unassuming ways usually went straight to the hearts of the farmers and their families, and when, at leave-taking, he asked them to vote in a way that would make a certain little brown-eyed woman happy, it was seldom that he received a negative or an evasive answer. The "little brown-eyed woman," of course, is Gore's wife; she is also his political adviser and campaign manager, and the senator stoutly declares that without her help he could not have won the toga that is now his.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

THE FAMOUS STEWART MINE

To Be Reopened Soon Under New Management---Bunker Hill & Sullivan Company is Said to Have Acquired Heinze's Interest.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 4.—The famous Stewart mine at Wardner, the control of which was purchased by F. Augustus Heine, a little more than a year ago, is to be reopened within thirty days, presumably under new management, and under indications that the control of the property has passed from Heinze to the Bunker Hill & Sullivan Mining company.

A few weeks before Heinze's failure in New York, the Stewart mine was closed down on account of a suit with the Bunker Hill & Sullivan, in which an effort was made to cut off the Stewart company's rights of certain claims owned by the Bunker Hill. After a meeting of leading stockholders, last week, E. J. Carter, the largest individual stockholder of the company, except Heinze, authorized the following statement:

"The Stewart mine will be reopened within the next thirty days, and worked to its full capacity. The reason that the property has been shut down has been in no way connected with the recent financial flurry, but because the largest owners of the company's stock were busy with other matters, and unable to give the Stewart affairs the attention they demanded.

"The stockholders of the company will be called together for a meeting at Kellogg on Jan. 20. It is proposed that at that meeting the capital stock of the company will be increased from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 shares, 100,000 shares to be put into the company's treasury, the other 150,000 shares to be opened to subscription to the stockholders at $1 a share.

Mr. Carter, when questioned, said that Mr. Heinze still held his stock in the company, but it is generally believed at Wallace that he has sold out to the Bunker Hill, for the property was recently examined by engineers in the employ of the Bunker Hill.

BUCKHORN'S GOOD SHOWING

Cliff Mining Company's Shaft at Ophir Has Opened Rich Vein and Tunnel Will be Run to Connection With it.

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 4.—A showing has been made in the old Buckhorn mine of the Cliff Mining company at Ophir, Tooele county, that is believed by the owners to demonstrate the probability of their having a paying proposition. The shaft has opened the vein to a depth of 15 feet, and samples show its values to be from 14 to 36 ounces silver, and 26 to 30 per cent lead. It is believed that the ledge has been demonstrated to be permanent. The company proposes to run a tunnel to a connection with the vein at a depth of 600 feet. Less than 500 feet of work, owing to the precipitous nature of the hill, will be required.

A rich find is said to have been made by Bingham Consolidated people in dismantling their smelter at Bingham Junction. Nearly $300,000 of values in gold and silver has been recovered from the ore furnaces, flues and pots of the plant. Most of the saving was made by collecting the fine dust which had accumulated in years past, when the plant was treating high grade custom ores.

George W. Parks, receiver of the Silver Consolidated Mining company, has filed an inventory with the court. His statement shows that the total value of the claims controlled by the company in Sevier and Juab counties, together with machinery, is $374,542.50, and against this is an indebtedness of $213,374.16, and a contingent indebtedness of $248,085.61. The last amount is owned to Seymour W. Tulloch, who, the receiver states, sold his stock in the company and used the money to keep the mine going.

Ogden, Utah, men are much excited over the showing made in the Southern Pacific Mining & Milling company's ground, nine miles north of Ogden. The tunnel is in 330 feet, with two drifts twelve feet east and west from the end of the tunnel. The drifts are in ore that is said to carry $80 in gold and 7 to 20 per cent lead.

The Boston Consolidated at Bingham is getting ready to put its Garfield mill in commission. Lafayette Hanchett, the manager, says that everything will be in readiness before the end of the year

THE PARK CITY SHUTDOWNS

Beginning of a Movement for Silver-Lead Curtailment---Producers of These Metals Profit by Success of Copper Producers.

New York, Jan. 4.—The Commercial says: The decision of the directors of the Daly-West, Silver King, Coalition and Daly Judge companies of Park City, Utah, to close down after Jan. 1, emphasizes more than any other action, the present weakness of the lead and silver market. These properties are known for their large silver-lead production, and their shutdown is the beginning of an effort to curtail production for this class of ores with the hope that the move will prove as beneficial to the industry as the copper mine shutdown has been to the copper market

Of all the metal markets the copper market is now in the best shape technically because of the early shutdown of many of the producers, thus preventing a glut in the market and rendering possible an easy rally.

The steady decline in the price of silver and lead has confronted the producers of Park City, Utah, with several serious problems. While the mines at the camp have probably been making a little profit, even at the present low market prices for the metals, none of them is making much, and the situation has resolved itself into a cold-blooded business proposition. Ore shipped must be kept up to a higher grade than formerly, and this requires in some instances the expense of sorting.

If there has been up to this time any hesitancy at all about the management of the three big producing mines of the district closing for awhile, it is because of the hardships that would come to the men employed in the mines and those dependent upon them. That is the only reason the Park City mines have been kept going so long.

One prominent Park City producer is quoted as saying: "I have reached the conclusion that if the lead-silver mines shut down for a few months, it will be the quickest way to obtain a better price for our product. There is no overproduction of lead, and there is only a temporary lull in the demand for it. After a little while the demand will increase and it looks to me like throwing money away to try to operate under the existing conditions."

VALDEZ CREEK PLACER CAMP

Discoverer of New Camp in Alaska Brings Out $12,000 in Gold Dust---Was Twenty Days Making Trip.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 4.—Bringing about $12,000 in gold dust, Peter Monahan, discoverer of the ntw placer camp Valdez Creek, arrived in Valdez last week. He was accompanied by William Grogg and Sid Woffington. The party, which is the first to bring any amount of gold from the new camp, made the 200-mile trip without dogs or horses, pulling the sleds on which their little outfit was loaded by hand. They were twenty days making the trip, 100 miles of which is across the lake country plateau separating the heads of the Shusitna and Gulkana rivers, where there are no trails.

Mr. Monahan says the richest ground so far discovered is on the Tammany claim, a bench on the right right limit of No. 2 above discovery. Good pay was found on the rim of this bench a year ago, but it was necessary to run a long tunnel to tap the pay streak at its greatest depth, and the entire summer was devoted to that work. Six hundred feet of tunnels were run and a shaft nine feet in depth was sunk at the extremity of the tunnel. This work was completed Aug. 28, and between that time and the freezeup, which occurred Oct. 4, Monahan and three men carted out the rich dirt and sluiced it. During this period $12,000 was washed from the gravel.

Pans as high as $38 were washed from the gravel on bedrock and $25 pans were common. In order to test the ground a run of four days was made, with five men working one shift, and the output was close to $1,000 a day. The gold from Valdez Creek is fairly coarse, but there are few large nuggets. The largest piece found this summer was $7. On the claims further up the valley, however, large nuggets are common, one having been found on Lucky Gulch weighing over $200.

The route from Valdez to the new diggings is over the government trail 128 miles to the mouth of the Gulkana river, where the trail leaves the main mail route and cuts across the plateau to McLaren river, and thence across some foothills to the mouth of Valdez creek. This stretch is bad, there being no trail marked, and for some distance it runs through a country which is a succession of low rolling knolls, where it is very easy to lose the course.

Word comes from Whitehorse that the Venus gold and silver mine in the Conrad district has been bought by William Mackenzie of Mackenzie & Mann. The price paid is said to be $60,000. The property was under bond for some time. The Venus mine has been perhaps the most promising of the Conrad district.

NORTH BUTTE WILL SHIP ORE

To Clark Smelter While Original Mine Is Closed Down For Retimbering Purposes—Butte & Superior Has Begun Shipments—Ida-Montana Company Has Money Difficulty.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 4.—The North Butte company will begin shipping ore to the reduction works, the smelter of W. A. Clark. Only from 200 to 300 tons of ore a day will be shipped, so that not many men will be employed by the North Butte in addition to the number that has been at work. It is stated that the Original mine, a Clark property, will be partially closed down for retimbering purposes, and that the North Butte ore will for a time take the place of the ore heretofore furnished the reduction works from the Original. The North Butte formerly shipped to the Washoe, but has had no place for its ore since the Washoe was closed by the Amalgamated company.

The mines of the Boston & Montana company are increasing their output, and all the ore is being shipped to Great Falls for treatment. All the Boston & Montana mines are being reopened, and as the men are laid off at the other Amalgamated mines they receive cards to the Boston & Montana and are put to work by the latter. The Leonard and West Colusa mines, which had been closed for three months or more on account of fire, are being reopened, the fire having been bulkheaded off and got under control on all levels but two or three. Prior to the shutdown of the Anaconda hill mines, the Boston & Montana company confined its mining to the Mountain View and East Colusa and a portion of the Pennsylvania mine.

It is the intention of the company to gradually increase the output of all mines until the capacity of the Great Falls smelter, which is about 4,000 tons per day, is reached. The Mountain View production is being increased from 700 to about 1,400 tons per day, the Pennsylvania from 400 to 1,100, and the East Colusa from 200 to 300, while it is expected to get about 400 tons each from the Leonard and West Colusa. The mining in the Leonard will be done at the east end, in new stopes on the 1,200, 1,300, 1,000 and probably on the 500 and 600-foot levels. There will be no mining for some time yet on the 700, 800 and 900-foot levels. In the West Colusa mining will be done in the west end on the 300, 400, 800 and 900-foot levels. At the other Amalgamated mines from thirty to forty men are retained as watchmen to keep up repair work and to keep the pumps working. The North Butte and Butte Coalition companies are keeping up development work.

The Butte & Superior company has commenced to ship its ores, principally silver, to the Butte reduction works for treatment. These ores are coming from the 500-foot level.

The sheriff's return on several attachments has disclosed the fact that the Ida-Montana Development company has been experiencing financial difficulties. Its property has been attached in three suits for machinery and supplies which the company has not paid on account of the money stringency. The Ida-Montana company is one of the new mining development concerns that was organized during the copper mining boom days, and it was engaged in developing a group of claims in the canyon just south of Columbia gardens, and directly east of the property of the Amazon-Butte company. It made such good progress and had such a good vein and ore showing just before the great financial slump that the company was reorganized as a mining company with a greatly increased capitalization. The company was originally incorporated under the laws of Arizona, with a capital stock of $300,000, controlled chefly by Michigan men. The directors were Peter D. McNaughton, Edward Ulseth, William H. Thielman, James Milligan, Charles H. Krause, Jeremiah E. O'Neill and John A. Niva.

The annual meeting of the North Butte Extension Copper Mining company will be held Jan. 6 at Phoenix, Ariz. In a statement to stockholders the company says: "The shaft is now down 400 feet. We have offered the shaftsmen a bonus of 50 cents a day to be paid only if they make 100 feet or more a month. The work of development is being rushed day and night continuously by three shifts using as many men as can be properly handled. From the character of the ore body already disclosed by the crosscut we made on the 300-foot level, and that found to the west, in the same Black Rock vein, by the Butte & Superior company, it may be stated that when the vein is opened at the 700-foot level it will be found to be considerably wider than it was at 300 feet and to carry silver, gold and copper values sufficient to put the company on a shipping basis."

The failure of Whitney & Stephenson, the big brokerage firm of Pittsburg, was chiefly responsible for the suspension of deveopment work by the Butte & Bacorn company, north of Butte, though some other causes contributed. The Pittsburg firm was agent for the company in the collection of subscriptions and when it

SLUMP IN COLORADO MINES

Output at Cripple Creek Last Year Was $3,700,000 Less Than in 1906—Local Reasons Largely Cause of the Crop—Dividend Record for 1907 About $3,000,000

Colorado Springs, Col., Jan. 4.—The Cripple Creek production for 1907 reached 638,164 tons of ore, the total gross valuation being $14,822,240. The record by months, with gross valuations compared with 1906, is as follows:

February	44,560	1,110,140	1,340,200
March	46,130	1,232,000	1,625,000
April	52,250	1,792,975	1,359,150
May	46,775	1,775,212	1,638,550
June	45,145	1,557,147	1,698,800
July	52,186	1,166,924	1,635,500
August	45,213	1,048,286	1,583,800
September	63,000	945,000	1,449,375
October	69,158	978,065	1,670,300
November	59,112	962,135	1,536,000
December	64,115	1,127,140	1,732,500
Totals	638,164	$14,822,240	$18,503,500

The decrease in production below the 1906 record is due to two causes: namely, the large amount of oxidized low grade ores treated by cyanide, affecting the total valuation, and the decreased capacity of mills and smelters. The Golden Cycle mine was practically closed ten months—six months to await completion of the mill, then four to await reopening after the fire of last August. Of twenty-five shipping mines whose output was treated by this mill several remained closed four months. The mill's capacity was 900 tons daily.

The dividend record for 1907 approximated $3,000,000. This was from profits earned by the public or other companies. The Portland led with $480,000, followed by El Palo, Mary McKinney, Elkton, Work, Stratton's Independence, Ltd., and others.

The camp industrial situation throughout the year was unbroken by strikes or other troubles, and much of the good record was due to this fact.

The interests of the Colorado Smelting company of Florence, Col., and of the Troy Consolidated Mining company of New York have been merged. The Troy company purchased the Colorado smelter which originally cost $1,000,000, at $400,000, payable in stock. The plant will be remodelled and enlarged during the next six months and then reopened with a capacity of 600 or more tons daily, its present capacity being 500 tons, with 250 men employed.

The Troy company owns valuable gold and copper mines at Kelvin, Ariz., from which point the higher grade ores will be shipped to the mill at Florence. Its largest mineral acreage—1,200—is in Pinal county, Ariz., on which $800,000 have been expended in development. The best ores from these properties will be shipped to Florence. The company is said to have obtained options on five other smelters in Colorado, Utah and Arizona, the time limit to expire within a few months.

The Ironclad cyanide mill has been running for a month on ores averaging about $2 per ton. This Cripple Creek plant has yielded dividends on ore averaging $1.90 a ton. The Phoenix, Santa Rita and Little Giant cyanide mills have also been busy on the low-grade oxidized ores of Squaw Mountain and Pony Gulch. These latter mills are treating ores carrying approximately $8 per ton values.

Sealed bids will be received until Jan. 15 by the Cripple Creek Deep Drainage Tunnel company, E. D. Marr, secretary, Colorado Springs, Colo. Construction work of 250 feet per month will be required until the intermediate shaft reaches the tunnel level, after which the rate of progress will be doubled. The shaft must be sunk 200 feet every three months. A bond of $20,000 will be required. The company retains 15 per cent until 5,000 feet are bored; then 10 per cent. The shaft is down 50 feet of 680 necessary, and the tunnel has been driven 1,200 feet of 15,550 total. At the contract rate the tunnel will be completed Jan. 1, 1911.

The Little Clara Leasing company, operating the Little Clara mine of the Work company, Cripple Creek, has put out $250,000 since the lease began last April. The lessees will realize $75,000 net after deducting cost of mining, treatment charges and royalties.

The Hearne Gold & Copper Mining company, operating the Anchor mine in Willis Gulch, Central City, Colo., has opened a 3-foot vein of copper ore carrying $60 per ton copper and gold values. New York and Colorado capitalists are interested. In the Williams mine, Lake Gulch, same district, the Harper lease is shipping copper-silver ore to smelters.

Massachusetts capitalists have secured lease and bond on the Conqueror group of claims on Silver Mountain, near Empire, Colo., and will exploit the properties. Exploration thus far has been confined to the Conqueror and Patsey lodes, but new plans of development will be pursued. A deep haft may be sunk centrally, whence latreal drifts will be extended to further veins. The Empress tunnel may be extended to reach ore bodies at great depth. The mines probably carry good values in smelter grade ores, also milling material that, owing to the coarse character of the iron in which the gold is found, is adapted to ordinary concentration. A recent test of the Hiawatha mill yielded 95 per cent, without cyaniding the tailings.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Gigantic Strides Made in the Annual Production—About 380,000,000 Tons Have Been Shipped Since Ore Was Discovered in the Lake Region—The Mesaba's Vast Influence.

Whatever the coming year has in store, the march of events in the Lake Superior iron region the past twelve months has been a rapid one. With a production of better than 42,000,000, the five ranges in Minnesota Michigan and Wisconsin have sent considerably more ore to the furnaces than during any corresponding period in the history of the fields. The nearest approach to this record-breaking achievement was the output of 38,400,000 tons in 1906.

Iron ore was first found in the Lake Superior region in what is now the city of Negaunee, Marquette range, in the summer of 1844, by men associated with William Burt of Detroit, in the original surveys of Upper Michigan, then a virgin wilderness, and even now but sparsely settled. Mining operations were started in 1846, and the first cargo of ore, other than a few sample consignments was shipped in 1852. The shipments of ore passed the 10,000,000-ton mark in 1895, for the first time. Since then the annual production has made gibantic strides until now it is not at all unlikely that the yearly output will have attained 50,000,000 tons two seasons hence. Approximately 380,000,000 tons of ore have now been sent out from the Lake Superior region, and two-thirds of the aggregate have been forwarded during the past decade.

Mesaba's Big Tonnage.

The most important development since the original discovery of ore has been the opening of the Mesaba range, with its tremendous tonnages held in great flat beds. The Mesaba has had vast influence upon the entire iron trade of the United States, for without it there could not possibly have been produced the amount of high-grade ore necessary to meet manufacturing needs. As showing the highly important part taken by the Mesaba in the marvelous industrial development of the nation, the statistics summing up the achievements of the various ore-producing fields of the region are significant. It should be understood in connection that the Mesaba was not opened until 1892, whereas the Marquette range produced its first ore in 1844, the Menominee in 1877 and the Gogebic and Vermilion in 1884. Apportioned by districts, the total output has been as follows:

	Gross Tons.	Per Ct. of whole.
Mesaba	150,133,342	39.50
Marquette	84,921,842	22.34
Menominee	63,963,259	16.84
Gogebic	54,135,182	14.26
Vermilion	26,785,024	7.06
Total	379,998,649	100.00

Thus while shipping for only sixteen seasons, the Mesaba has sent out approximately two-fifths of all the ore produced in the Lake Superior region in its history of more than six decades. Its output—27,300,000 tons in 1907—has averaged 9,400,000 tons per season, as against an average of but 1,400,000 tons for the Marquette range, much the oldest of all the districts.

Predictions have been made from time to time as to how long the Lake Superior reserves would last, based on the rate of consumption current on those occasions, and replies have come referring ot the constant discoveries of new deposits, swelling the total reserves from an estimate of 750,000,000,000 tons some fifteen years ago to the latest estimate of 2,000,000,000 tons. But, it is asked what are these arguments worth when the tonnage sent out increases 100 per cent in five years, as has been the case during the past half decade? The shipments are doubling in just about as short periods now as they were ten, twenty or twenty-five years ago. If they kept on doubling every five years in thirty years the shipments in a single season would be 2,500,000,000 tons. When will this rate of increase stop? The statistics show no indication of decrease thus far.

New Discoveries.

While the approximate boundaries of the Lake Superior iron ranges are now quite well established, new discoveries of ore are constantly being made in the various zones. There has not been a season during recent years that the finds of ore have not been much greater than the production. More particularly this has been the case on the Mesaba. The commercial standard of iron in ore has gradually been lowered as the demands of the trade have increased, and ores that were considered worthless a few years ago are marketable now. Each time that the basic percentage of metallic content is reduced it adds millions of tons to Lake Superior's reserves of ore. Eventually, ores that run less than 40 per cent in iron will be in eager quest, and there are vast tonnages of this low grade material in various portions of the region. The cream of the deposits has been mined to date, but the time will come when the skimmed variety will be readily taken. Of the more than 2,000,000,000 tons of ore still contained in the Lake Superior region, approximately 1,150,000,000 tons are held in 30,600 acres of land in Minnesota, much the greater bulk of this on the Mesaba range.

The search for ore in the Lake Superior country was never more active than during the past season. In the Mesaba field the prospector has been steadily pushing on to the west. Indeed, a great deal of work has been done west of the Mississippi river, where there are absolutely no surface indications of the strike of the range. The formation disappears beneath a level surface of drift extending many miles north and south, and not only is exploratory work there quite in the dark, but it is generally conceded that most of the ores to be found will not be of the highly concentrated variety of the central and eastern Mesaba, but rather will partake of the character of those of the Coleraine district, near the river, on the east, where the Steel corporation is opening the Canisteo and Holman mines, and where the product is so

CALUMET & ARIZONA'S WORK

In the Pima District Bearing Good Results and Mine Will Likely Be Made---Gold Strikes in Globe Camp.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 4.—At the Armagosa property of the Calumet & Arizona company, in the Pima district, there is not only no cessation of activity, but on the other hand, it is reported they have recently increased their working force. The diamond drill work on the property has been completed, at least for the present, and the work is being pushed to further prove out the knowledge gained as the result of deep drill work. The principal workings are down about 300 feet, with a crosscut of 280 feet to the ore body from the main shaft. While it is generally understood that the width and copper contents of this ore body are satisfactory, definite information regarding it is lacking. From the end of their crosscut they are upraising to make a ventilating shaft. At the present time there seems every reason to believe that the usual luck of the Calumet & Arizona people will follow them to the Armagosa, and that it will make a mine.

Two gold strikes in the Globe district during the past week have caused a flurry among the prospectors and claim owners of Globe. One of these strikes occurred in Lost Gulch, where a vein running from one to two inches in width was discovered, samples which assayed as high as $9,000. The claim is the property of E. F. Kellner, who, it is understood, is making preparations to mine the rich stuff. Ore running from $6,000 to $10,000 per ton is reported to have been struck on one of the claims of the Radium group, owned by W. H. Mercer and leased by Messrs. Fuller, Hughes, Cowley and Martz.

The first shipment of ore which was recently sent to the El Paso smelter by the Central Mining & Development company from its mines near Winkleman, gave a return of $36 per ton. It is stated that development work upon the property will be continued notwithstanding the fact that a part of the funds of the company are involved in the suspension of the Bankers' Trust company of Kansas City, Mo.

A vein of high grade copper ore was recently cut in the prospect hole owned by William McGraw and associates at the head of Cottonwood Canyon in the Florence district. The ore also carries gold and silver values.

E. R. Stafford and associates have begun shipping ore from their mine, situated in the Florence district. The ore is high grade copper. The first shipment was made up of assorted ore from the surface and of run of the mine, taken from the bottom of the 100-foot shaft.

THE HANCOCK CONSOLIDATED

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 4.—The Hancock Consolidated, neighbor of the Quincy, under Supt. John L. Harris, is going after results and information.

No. 1 shaft is down to the twelfth level and preparing to sink to the thirteenth. A plan is being cut at the twelfth, and there is considerable copper showing in the cutting, preparatory to drifting.

There is a decidedly good showing of the red metal in the openings on the West lode into new ground at the ninth, tenth and eleventh levels, and equally as rich runs of ground are anticipated at the twelfth level, when the drifts are extended.

No. 2, the mammoth five-compartment shaft, is down 500 feet, with sinking continuing as rapidly as possible to tap values in No. 1 which will be reached at a depth of about 2,500 feet, but in going through that 2,500 feet no man knows what may be encountered, or opened up.

The big shaft may disclose a new lode or lodes, and of good commercial value, and doing so will be in shape to get results without delay.

The sinking in that quarter will be watched with the greatest interest by mining men and all interested in the Lake district.

No. 1 shaft continuing to open as at present, for another level or two, will mean the equipment of that quarter with a permanent hoist and surface plant adequate to meet requirements, and that will mean that the management feel they have a good thing—a mine which, with a fair price for the meal, should earn enough to largely meet the costs of putting down the big shaft.

COMANCHE SHAREHOLDERS

To be Asked to Contribute 10 Cents a Share to Put the Concern on Its Feet---Mines Are Closed.

Milwaukee, Jan. 4.—Several hundred stockholders in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Duluth and St. Louis and other cities, forming the bulk ownership of 4,000,000 shares of capital stock of the Comanche Mining & Smelting company will soon be asked voluntarily to contribute 10 cents a share and save the company from probable bankruptcy.

Capt. H. A. Ellard, who six months ago became general manager of the company, has been appointed receiver for the mines in Silver City, N. M. Stockholders in Milwaukee claim the company is in debt to the amount of $400,000, but that this condition was not known until the other day. An auditor will be sent down from Milwaukee to inspect the mine. Notes and commercial paper of other kinds make up the burden of the indebtedness, so far as can be ascertained. The company also owes the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad for the construction of fourteen miles of narrow gauge railway from the main line to the mines.

George Lonstorf of this city, the principal shareholder, says the stock of the company is non-assessable, but he apprehends no difficulty in raising the $400,000 to pay off all the debts within thirty days after the call is issued. He is vice president of the company.

The mining property of the company was formerly owned by the Hearst interests, and the company was floated in this city by Capt. S. S. Curry and C. J. Laughren, now the president and secretary of the concern. Among the assets of the company is a village built by Hearst at the point where the Pinos-Altos mines are located.

Another valuable mine of the company is located in the Burro mountains, adjoining a big paying mine belonging to the Leopolds, who are former Milwaukeeans.

From the reports received from time to time from the mines, the company appeared to be prospering, and the company sold copper variously estimated at from $150,000 to $300,000. The mines were shut down several weeks ago and will remain idle until the financial problems confronting the concern are solved.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Gilt Edge Maid's First Cleanup Since Reopening Was Satisfactory---Two More Properties in Custer Peak District to Resume.

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 4.—Freeman E. Steele, one of the early residents of the Black Hills, and for years connected with some of the more prominent mining companies here, has gone to Torres, Mex., near where he will be employed by the Creston-Colorado Mining company in their gold mills.

The Gilt Edge Maid Gold Mining company at Turner has taken a new lease on life since reopening. The result of the first cleanup was most satisfactory and operations will be increased slowly from now on. The mill is at present running somewhat below 200 tons daily, but will reach its full output within the coming month. Milton Morris, a graduate of the State School of Mines, has been made superintendent of the cyanide mill. With the Gilt Edge Maid and Branch Mint in full operation, and the Golden Crest to start early in the year, that district which centers around Galena is becoming one of the busiest in the northern hills.

Two more properties in the Custer Peak district, southeast of here, are about to resume operations. The first of these is the Anna Queen property, owned by the Sherman brothers. Last fall they did considerable work and succeeded in opening up a fine ledge of $25 gold ore, but encountered water in such quantities that the small pumps were unable to handle it. Larger and better pumps now are being installed and the work of development will continue.

The other ground to be worked is the Octoroon, near by, where Hank Walters, an old timer of this section, has been developing off and on for years. Within the year he has taken out some high grade gold ore samples from a ledge that lies alongside a quartzite dike. The rock is gold milling quality and is evidently a sfhoot of the principal ledge, which can be found by the thorough development that it will receive this winter.

The Victoria Mining company reports another strike on the Squaw Creek property. The mine has been worked for some months past in preparation for resuming work in the 200-ton cyanide mill. Several strikes of some consequence have been made and the latest shows a ledge sixty feet in width which has been opened up seven feet across. The ore is of such a grade as to be a valuable addition to the present bodies the company is developing and it is declared that the mill will be started within a few weeks.

AS TO INDIVIDUALS.

In his Boston speech Secretary Taft referred in passing, with every evidence of horror, to the government ownership of railroads, a proposal which is not a very live issue at present, but which is always a fruitful subject of academic discussion.

"Government ownership of railroads," said the secretary, "means state Socialism: an increase in the powers of the central government that would be dangerous. It would be a long step away from the individual whom it is necessary to retain in order to make real progress."

That is a fair statement of the opposition to government ownership of railroads or, indeed, of anything—even of city waterworks. Every step taken by government in this direction is a step away from the individual, or at least from some individuals—notably those who hoped to profit by the operation of the public utility concerned.

For instance, what individuals would government ownership of railroads be a step away from?

It would be a step away from Harriman and his method of railroading, which consists of treating a railroad as a Wall street plaything primarily, and as a public convenience only incidentally.

It would be a step away from all the railroad magnates who deal with their roads and the public upon similar lines. It would be a step away from the railroad agencies that have hindered the processes of legislation, and that have established expensive lobbies at state capitols to direct the work of the lawmakers. It would, indeed, be a step away from the railroad lobbyist.

At the same time, it would be a step away from the honest railroad magnate, who desires that his road shall give the public the best possible service at the lowest possible rates consistent with a fair return of profit to the holders of unwatered stock. We say it would be a step away from such a magnate—if, indeed, such a magnate exists outside the merry imagination of the optimistic individualist.

If government ownership were a step away from such individuals as Harriman, might it not be, on the other hand, a long step toward the average individual? Might it not help toward a closing up of ranks among the classes, toward a trimming off at the top and a leveling up at the bottom?

But there isn't much use in talking about government ownership just now. We have accepted, for the present, the idea that we must try out government control. We have hopes that that will accomplish a step away from the Harriman type of individual, which all of us must admit would be a good thing.

But what shall we do, Mr. Secretary, if we find, after wise and patient and thorough trial of government control, that it will not work? What if the shortsighted greed of the individuals who profit by unrestricted control keep putting stumbling blocks in the way, and thereby defeat the ends of government control?

Do you suppose for a moment that the "step away from the individual" represented by government ownership can possibly be avoided then?

We do not.

AT ITS OLD TRICKS AGAIN.

There is a legal difference between evasion of law and violation of law, but there is no moral difference. Perhaps the greatest harm the criminal trusts have done in this country has come through the exercise of the ingenuity of lawyers who have been paid fat fees to teach the trusts how to evade the law without breaking it.

If you violate a law, you are subject to punishment. If you can evade it, you may accomplish the same unlawful ends, but you are not subject to punishment. That is why it has paid the corporations well to employ ingenious lawyers to show how to split hairs without breaking laws.

Ida M. Tarbell in the January American Magazine shows how the Standard Oil company has recently evaded an important and valuable law designed for the protection of the people. Under this law pipe lines, by which the oil trust transports its oil, were made common carriers, and subject to the supervision of the interstate commerce commission, just as interstate railroads are. The object was to open oil transportation to the public from the Indian Territory to the Atlantic ocean. A trunk pipe line ran over this course, divided, like trunk railroads, between several corporations, all subsidiary to the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. But the line was continuous, and the course was interstate, and it probably never entered into the minds of the lawmakers that there was a way to dodge this law.

But there was, and one of the oil trust's attorneys, John G. Milburn, is credited by Miss Tarbell with devising it. Under his directors the oil trust readjusted the ownership of its lines, so that each company would own no pipage outside of the state in which it was incorporated. Thus each line stopped at the state boundary.

In the summer of 1906, when it became certain that the pipe line section of the Hepburn bill would pass, Mr. Milburn advised his clients that they should pump no more oil across state lines. How did they get around it? Very easily.

On each state boundary the oil trust built a receiving tank. On the eastern side of the receiving tank, in the other state, a pumping station was built. The oil goes into a tank in Pennsylvania owned by one company, is pumped out of that tank by a pump owned by another company in another state, and so on to the coast.

The oil trust now pumps its oil across several states, but in no case is it pumped across a boundary, so there is no interstate traffic about it, and the pipe line section of the Hepburn law is useless.

The law isn't broken. It is simply evaded. The federal law does not apply, because there is no piping company doing an interstate business, and because no oil is pumped across a state boundary. It is pumped to the boundary by one company, placed in a receiving tank on the line, and then the company in the next state pumps it out of the tank and on to another tank upon the next state boundary.

Such outfits have been installed between Pennsylvania and Maryland, between Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and between New York and New Jersey.

This isn't lawlessness, because it is lawful, but the imitation is so close that common folks will not be able to see the difference, and they probably won't try.

FRIENDS OF DEMOCRACY.

Democracy—the democracy that is spelled with a small initial but that covers the broad field of real popular government—must often be puzzled to pick out its friends. When it listens to a candidate upon the hustings, it recognizes a deeply devoted champion, only to discover, when the candidate is elected and gets down to business, that his Democratic sentiments were meant in a Pickwickian sense, and that he does not carry them into his official career.

And then, many statesmen who are true-blue Democrats upon certain matters, are fearful of popular government when it touches other affairs.

For instance, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts is aligned in congress with the Roosevelt faction, which is supposed to be rather close to Democratic ideals, and Senator Foraker of Ohio is classified with the reactionaries, who are anything but Democratic in their tendencies, and who would much rather see a property government than a popular government.

Yet Senator Lodge has recently made a scorching speech against the public opinion bill—which may be recognized as the initiative and the referendum under a politer name—and Senator Foraker has gone on record as desiring that the people shall be given a chance to adopt it if they want to.

Recently Senator Lodge addressed the Central Labor union of Boston, attacking the public opinion bill. It was a speech made in his private capacity, but Senator Hale of Maine has had it printed in the Congressional Record, which means that it can be carried through the mails free under frank, and that it will be presently sent broadcast over the country on its errand of convincing the people that they do not know how to govern themselves, but should turn public affairs over to the Lodges and Aldriches and Cannons and Tawneys, who do know what to do with the government. Yet Senator Lodge, mind you, is a "Roosevelt Republican."

Now Senator Foraker is a corporation conservative, who dislikes President Roosevelt and all his ways, yet when he was recently asked what he thought of the initiative and referendum as proposed for constitution-amending in Ohio, he said:

> Wherever a considerable number of voters request a vote on a proposed change in their organic law, their request should be granted. The demand which the labor unions and the grange organizations of Ohio are making for the submission of the initiative and referendum amendment ought not to be denied. I am most heartily in favor of giving the people a chance to vote on any amendment which is urged by so numerous and important a body of workers.

Now Lodge, who denies the ability of the people to govern themselves, is an enemy of democracy though he is a Roosevelt Republican; while Foraker, in being glad to oblige "a numerous and important body of voters" by agreeing that the people are fit to govern themselves, is a friend of democracy, even though he is a corporation conservative.

TRAINING THE CORPORATIONS.

Jacob M. Dickinson, former United States assistant attorney general, writing in Leslie's Weekly, undertakes to teach the newspapers of the country their duty, which he conceives to be to bring about a change in sentiment in this country which will undo the work that has, as he puts it, "paralyzed the capacity of railroads to respond to the present demands of congress," and that has set up "an impassable barrier to the economic development of a large part of the country."

This is rather vague, but his argument makes his idea more clear. He says that "all that is wholesome and sane in the way of guarding the public welfare will stand," intimating that certain other things, not mentioned, must give way because they are neither wholesome nor sane. The only way to find out what manifestations of the crusade for better conditions for the common people he condemns is to read his list of reforms that are "wholesome and sane," and find out what he has omitted.

"Capital should not object," he says, "to laws that provide for the safety of employes and the traveling public, the prevention of all kinds of unjust discrimination and favoritism, the elimination of corporate influences from political affairs, and the publicity of such corporate accounts and transactions as may affect the public interest. These constitute the main features of the policy inaugurated and pursued by President Roosevelt. The legislation that is harassing the railroads is mainly upon lines not advocated by him."

Now the reforms which this gentleman approves are all very good ones, in their way. The limitation of publicity of corporation accounts and transactions to such "as may affect the public interests" involves the ticklish question of who is to judge what matters are of public interest and what are not. If part are public, and part are to remain private, obviously the corporation managers must decide which is which. The great corporations affect the people so closely and in such varied ways that full publicity is the only kind of publicity that can be considered. They are quasi-public concerns, and the fullest protection to the people requires that their affairs shall all be conducted in the brightest glare of complete publicity.

By elimination, it is quite clear that the reforms which the newspapers should reverse public sentiment upon are reforms seeking to regulate rates. And yet rates are the very thing that the people are most vitally concerned in. The corporations tax the people for the benefit of a few, and if their charges are to be beyond public regulation the other reforms will not help much.

No, it is not the duty of the newspapers to bring about a reversal of public sentiment and to turn it against regulation of rates.

There must be, in addition to the reforms approved by Mr. Dickinson, reasonable limitations of capital, reasonable limitations of profits, and rigid regulation of the methods of making profits, and of distributing them.

There can be no compromise, in dealing with the great corporations, short of that.

IS IT A POOR MAN'S "LID" ONLY?

The district court of Ramsey county has decided that the liquor laws of the state do not apply to clubs, such as the Minnesota club of St. Paul, insofar as these laws require the taking out of licenses and the closing of drinking places on certain days and at certain hours.

In short, the decision is that the "lid" does not apply to clubs which sell liquor to their members and to friends of members who are properly vouched for.

At the risk of becoming the subject of "disbarment proceedings," or some other concealment of lese majesty prosecution, The Herald would point out that this decision means that if a man has money enough and has sufficient standing in his community to become a member of a club he can get all the liquor he wants on Sundays or after hours, and that if he is a poor man he simply has to be good whether he wants to be or not.

Possibly it is better to force part of the community to be good, even if it is impossible to make such regulations apply to all; but on its face this ruling makes the "lid" a class affair. It makes it apply to the workingman who cannot join a club, but not to the business man who can afford to pay club dues.

If we are going to have the "lid" in Minnesota, it ought to apply to all. It should not be a lid that fits only over the poor man, and that leaves ample loopholes through which the most corpulent man of means can wriggle. If this decision is good law, the liquor laws become class legislation, and class legislation is "unconstitutional."

In Washington a strictly enforced Sunday "lid" has been in vogue for a number of years. One result is that "clubs" are scattered all over the capital city. It costs a nominal sum to join, and the annual dues are nominal, too. These clubs do an enormous business on Sundays, and practically none on week days. If you wish to get out from under the "lid," all you have to do is to pay a dollar and become a member of the "Jolly Fat Men's Club," or the "Traveler's club" or some other club, and that entitles you to join a thirsty crowd of a Sunday in a packed and smoke-clouded room where you can acquire a "souse" as quickly as you desire.

It is not going to add to public respect for the "lid" if it is discovered that it applies only to the poor man, and that the rich man is exempted from its provisions by his club membership.

A BRITISH SPECULATION.

Americans are not the only gamblers in the world by any means, nor is mining stock the only subject of reckless exploitation.

For instance, when the coffin of T. C. Druce was opened in London the other day, and found to contain a human skeleton instead of the roll of lead it had been asserted to contain by the claimant to the estates of the Duke of Portland, it had very much the same effect upon a lot of London stockholders as the playing-out of a gold mine has upon speculators in mining stocks.

The case has been briefly described by The Herald. The heirs of T. C. Druce, a former London merchant, had asserted that he and the Duke of Portland were one and the same, and that when the duke tired of being Druce, he had a roll of lead put into a coffin and buried, giving out the news that Druce was dead. When the duke died, later, the estate went to a collateral heir, there being no direct descendant. If the descendants of Druce were descendants of the duke, the estate belonged to them. The whole case hinged on the contents of the coffin, and for a long time efforts to have it opened were futile. When it was finally done, as the dispatches stated, and the grave found to contain human remains, the case fell to the ground.

But in the meantime a company had been formed called the "New Druce-Portland Company, Limited," and five-shilling shares were put on the market. It was assumed that the estates are worth $80,000,000, and if the suit had been successful, each five-shilling share in the company would have received $80, or sixty-four times the amount subscribed.

This was very tempting, especially as there seemed to be some prospect that the Druce claimant might succeed. In that event it should have been as though a gold mine had been stocked at $10 a share, and the shares had subsequently risen to $640 each. This prospect formed a very good "gamble," and it is not at all astonishing that the stock found many purchasers, all of whom, no doubt, indulged in golden dreams of rich futures to come when the case was finally won. Most of these stockholders had probably spent their profits—in their dreams—many times over.

But when the anxious moment arrived for the opening of the coffin, their dreams disappeared at the shock of a rude awakening. There is a body in the grave after all, and all the moonshine about its containing nothing but a roll of lead placed there by the eccentric duke when he tired of leading his double life is shattered. The shareholders will go back to work and earn more money, which will be ripe and ready for the next fantastic scheme that comes along with its promises of sixty-for-one.

Never mind getting down off the water wagon to get the whip; let that fellow in the gutter hand it to you.

A St. Paul judge says the "lid" does not apply to clubs. It certainly applies to the "poor men's clubs."

This fine weather is all very well, but the boys who are preparing for a ski tournament here pretty soon would just as soon see a comfortable snowfall.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The latest New York theory advanced for the cure of the Manhattan brand of nervousness is the flying of kites. Toying with air ships, dodging automobiles, and when not doing the dodge act being skidded around streets and veneering the pavement with a coating of human being, have conspired to generate a species of nervous wrecks in New York that have long been the source of flowing scheckels to the M. D.'s who spelled their names with the proper accent, and charged enough for looking wise.

But behold, now has arisen a genius and speaketh. He sayeth that the flying of kites is a panacaea for the ills and troubles and wires that afflict the sons and daughters of the rich. This information, that threatens to work wonders among the Gothamites, was bought to Duluth by Walter Townsend, at the St. Louis, who, with that credibility possessed by all residents of the island of masonry, professes to believe that the new idea possesses some merit.

So dear reader when you take your New York trip don't be surprised should you see John D. Rockefeller or Andy Carnegie attached to the end of a string—no purse strings, either—skipping up the wind swept street in the pursuit of a big fancy decorated kite. The purcuit of the kite is incident to the pursuit of forgetfulness of worries, incident to the giving away of money, and other ills of mind that possess the owners of stacks of the magnitude of John's and Andrew's.

It will be fine when the Hodkin's corner youth and the Sianna Mills wiseacre hit the metropolis for a little polish. They will be afforded an opportunity of studying some of our well known financiers in a moment of temporary abandon. Imagine Hetty Green skipping lightly over Central Park, dodging horses and attendant policemen, forgetting about the day's quotation on call money, intent in the pursuit of the big paper dragon that floats bravely on the morning air.

Imagine fat and sleek Chauncey Depew, clad in morning knickers and a Depew smile, chasing a kite with the coat of arms of the New York Central engraved upon it. William Randolph Hearst might be observed chasing a kite with a picture of the White House engraved upon it. Soubrettes and millionaires and others who could afford to give up the time to the pursuit of happiness, could be seen each morning on the parks and drives flying their little kites. After a morning's gambol with the kites the millionaires could return to the counting house, rejuvenated and ready to take up anew the struggle for the prize of dying poor. The members of the "profesh" could return to the rialto and cease to worry about being out of work, for does not the new theory promise to drive the woes of humankind from them.

So the sights of the metropolis will be increased greatly for the out of town visitor. It will be quite a startling innovation to see millionaires gambling on the sward of Central Park instead of gambling on the stock market. No doubt, also, but this pleasant route to health and freedom from twitches will be the means of uniting many estranged personalities. It might not be surprising to see "Stuyy" Fish and Eddie Harriman holding hands and chasing a huge kite bearing the commerce motto of the Illinois Central. Pierpont Morgan, forgetting in the spirit of airy abandon the enmity of years, might be observed assisting Mr. Harriman in making his kite float. Mr. Heinze and the members of the New York clearing house might be seen gamboling together. Ida Tarbel, in a pink pinafore, might be observed assisting Mr. Rockefeller in flying his worry eliminator.

Yes, taken all in all, the kite-flying idea promises to be productive of great good. The M. D. who invented the theory surely ought to receive a Carnegie medal and be rewarded further by some study chair in a thought institution in keeping with the profundity of his discovery. Verily, the times are advancing.

They have a new bell hop at the Lenox. He has been carefully coached not to fall for the gags with whiskers on them, and so yesterday was prepared to act the duty.

His first call was to the room of a traveling man who happened to be entertaining two friends.

"Bring us three old crows, boy," came the order.

The boy burst into a hearty laugh, prepared to show his appreciation of the joke.

"I'm wise, I'm wise; nix wid tryin' to kid me," he informed the man who did the ordering.

His mirth was so unrestrained that he was finally shoved out of the room and another bell boy sent for who was not quite so wise. He had heard of Old Crow somewhere, he thought, and the man behind the wet goods department counter confirmed his opinion.

They say this experience happened to a prominent Duluth family. The story is vouched for at the Hotel Lenox, vouchee requesting that his name be withheld from the limelight of publicity.

It is said that the family recently returned from a foreign trip, bringing with them a number of Oriental rugs. You know that the older and more antiquated Oriental rugs are the more they are valued by the true collector. This family is reputed to have secured some prayer rugs that were worn to fringes by contact with the humble and penitent knees of praying sinners. This, of course, gave the rugs a high artistic value.

It seems that Bridget, or whatever her name may be—the girl that kept the rooms straight—hadn't read the Koran or ancient Turkish history, or how to choose Oriental rugs, and so consequently wasn't privy to the high value of the ragged fringe that decorated the jagged outlines of the rugs. So one day, when the family was away, and she had finished her work and had called up all the friends she knew on the telephone, she thought she would improve the appearance of the rugs. She secured a pair of scissors that the coachman used to clip the cobs with, and, warming to her work, soon had the Oriental rugs looking like rag-carpet rugs at a 69-cent sale. The flavor of the Orient was loped off without a pang of artistic regret. Before the mistress of the house returned, Bridget had destroyed fully $50 worth of Oriental shabbiness.

Now the rugs adorn the second girl's room. No; Bridget isn't working there any more.

THE WEATHER.

People who go South for their winter this year miss it. The winter that Duluth is having is as fine as anything the world can produce. Today, for instance, was absolute perfection. Yesterday it thawed a little, for about the first time, but the night was cooler. While it has kept warm enough to be pleasant, it has been still cool enough to be wholesome and healthful and to prevent unpleasant conditions underfoot. Last night's lowest temperature was 16 degs. and yesterday's highest was 24 degs. The weather man says it will be colder tonight and warmer again tomorrow afternoon.

A year ago today it was cloudy and mild, though a cold wave prevailed elsewhere.

The sun rose this morning at 7:54 and sets tonight at 4:32, making 8 hours and 38 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Snow or rain fell during Friday or last night over most of the lake region, Ohio and Lower Mississippi valleys, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Pacific coast states due to barometric depressions central this morning over eastern Lake Superior and British Columbia, respectively. The rainfall was quite heavy over Arkansas and Western Tennessee. Temperatures are mild generally except throughout the Northwest where the weather is somewhat colder because of a high pressure area overlying the Dakotas. Zero temperatures prevail this morning in Northern North Dakota and Saskatchewan. Indications favor colder weather in this locality tonight followed by rising temperature Sunday afternoon, the weather in the meantime continuing mostly clear."

Abilene	24	Marquette	28

MIRTHFUL REMARKS.

Baltimore American: "If the famous Ananias club gave social functions, I wonder what would be the favorite instrument of entertainment?"

"Naturally the lyre."

Washington Herald: "My boy, if you want to stay in the public eye—"

"Yes, dad."

"Don't be a human cinder."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

The reason a girl likes to have a chaperon is so it won't be her mother.

A man would have to be mighty smart to make a fortune without having other people to make it for him.

What a girl likes about a secret engagement is how many more people she can tell about it than if it were announced.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Tim Barrett has been convicted at Minneapolis of murder in the first degree and has been sentenced to be hanged.

Frank McWhorter is at Erie, Pa., visiting his brother, W. H. McWhorter, this being their first meeting in seventeen years.

The remains of the burned frame building at the northwest corner of Superior street and First avenue east are being removed, and plans are being prepared for a handsome four-story brick block with a frontage of 125 feet. Nick Pastoret owns the corner fifty feet, Olaf Stenson the next twenty-five and Nils Hoff and John Erickson the next two lots of twenty-five feet each.

The gas well of the Duluth Natural Gas, Oil & Mineral company at Fond du Lac is now down 340 feet.

The snow is reported so deep in the woods, especially on the north shore, as to seriously incommode loggers.

Last evening Judge Martin united in marriage Thomas F. Allen of St. Paul and Sarah M. McDonald of Rice's Point.

The result of the Park Point election was as follows: President, H. F. Smith; trustees, Messrs. Robinson, Grady and Blagh; recorder, C. H. Lawrence; treasurer, Walter Murray; justice, Charles Winters; constable, M. Gallagher. The total vote polled was sixty-one.

C. E. Dickeman will build a 50x100 brick building for wholesale purposes on the lower side of Michigan street, between First and Second avenues west.

Directors for the Duluth Electric Light & Power company were elected yesterday as follows: John F. Patten, William S. Woodbridge, J. W. Norton, W. Van Brunt, James T. Hale P. M. Graff, O. P. Stearns. New machinery is being installed, and within two weeks the company will have a capacity for 150 arc and 1,000 incandescent lamps.

F. R. Sherman, superintendent of the Duluth Life, is on his way to Lafayette, Ind., for his family.

Charles Hume of Breeze & Hume is passing a week at his father's home on the White Earth Indian reservation.

Announcement has been received of the appointment of James C. Pond as assistant general ticket agent of the Northern Pacific railroad. Mr. Pond has been chief clerk in this department and has many friends in Duluth.

Prof. T. P. Brooke, formerly of this city, has been made director of the new orchestra at the Hennepin Avenue theater, Minneapolis.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Charm of the Impossible.

I frankly confess that the phrasing of my subject is borrowed from the topic of a lecture to a group of Sunday school teachers, but as I did not hear the lecture and have no idea how the topic was treated I may, perhaps, be allowed to make it the theme of my New Year's talk.

It is such a fine watchword for the beginning of another twelve months. Would that we all could come during these opening days of the year within the influence and under the spell of the Impossible! What a big difference it might make to us and to others with whom we shall have to do all through this coming year.

Take it first in the region of individual habit. As we look back over our pathway thus far we see the wrecks of many good resolutions and heroic but spasmodic endeavors. And still, some of the objectionable habits against which we have waged fitful warfare, persist. Indeed, their grip upon us may be stronger than a year ago. "I can never get rid of it," you say. But wouldn't you like to be free? "Of course." Well, then, indulge for a moment in the luxury of thinking of the impossible. Act for today, at least, as if you were free from your disability, whatever it may be—the habit of stooping when you ought to walk erect, slavery to a cigar or a cup of coffee, procrastination, tardiness, censoriousness, despondency, the habit of living beyond your means, jealousy, envy, avariciousness. This is but a partial list of the things that are a blemish on character and maybe your particular fault is not mentioned, but you know it, or ought to know it, and here, at the turning of the year, you may decide to make shrift of it in time to come.

Then there is also for every one of us the charm of the fresh endeavor to attain heights hitherto unscaled and which seem to stretch far up into the clouds. There was a bright story in a magazine not long ago of a Japanese young man in this country who was bent on becoming a musician. He had not a particle of native ability and the teachers at the conservatory of music, where he applied for instruction, soon found out his limitations and tried to dissuade him, but it was no use. He had plenty of money and unlimited self-confidence and ambition. So, despite rebuffs, he worked away persistently and cheerfully and in the long run to some good effect. "What are you going to do" asks the author of the story in conclusion, "with a race characterized by this indomitable determination?"

A young lady applied for a position in the office of a friend of mine. He was pleased with her and after outlining the duties expected she hesitated, and when he asked why she replied: "There does not seem to be anything particularly hard about the position." Noble souls want to throw themselves against the hard, the heroic, the impossible propositions in the line of personal achievement.

We should feel the charm of the impossible in its relation to the betterment of this world. "Oh," you say, "we shall never get rid of poverty or sickness or discontent or strife between classes and between races. We shall never have entire honesty in business or peace in every home and heart." A counsel of despair is this. Once at a Lake Mohonk conference in the interest of oppressed people, some one spoke of a certain proposed policy as impossible of realization. Instantly the late Gen. Armstrong, the founder of Hampton institute, the great school for the blacks in Virginia, sprang to his feet and said: "What are Christians in the world for unless to do the impossible?"

Behold, then, on the opening days of this New Year the beauty, the fascination, the glory of the impossible. For if you look at it long enough and steadily enough and sympathetically enough, it will melt into the possible and then into the feasible, and then, perhaps before this year ends, into the actual.

PRESIDENTS PRO TEMPORE

BY SAVOYARD.

(Copyright, 1907, by Dexter Marshall.)

IN 1867 the Democratic party was on the verge of despair. The South was prostrate. The West solidly Republican. New York was a doubtful state, and New Jersey Democratic. Kentucky, Maryland and Delaware were also Democratic. Ohio was a traditional Whig, Abolition and Republican state, and nobody dreamed that the very first streak of dawn was to come to the Democratic party in the then Empire State of the then great West. Ben Wade, president pro tempore of the United States senate, was a candidate for a third term in the senate, and it was the general understanding that Clement L. Vallandigham was to be his Democratic competitor. R. B. Hayes was the Republican candidate for governor. He had been a soldier of the war and a prominent member of the congress from Ohio. What a lapful ot successes came to him. At his belt were the scalps of Thurman and Allen, and Tilden, and, I believe, Pendleton.

Allen G. Thurman was the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio in 1867. The issue was whether the word "white" should be stricken from the suffrage clause of the constitution of the state of Chase and Wade and Giddings. On the night of election it was ascertained that negro suffrage was beaten by more than 50,000, and it was some twelve hours before the Democrats ceased to jubilate over what was very nearly conceded as a Democratic victory on the state ticket. However, some of the remote precincts of the Western Reserve came up with votes enough to elect Hayes by some 2,000 plurality; but the legislature was Democratic, and every Democratic heart in every state exulted when Allen G. Thurman was chosen Ben Wade's successor in the United States senate. He took his seat in 1869, and served until 1881

* * *

Henry B. Anthony, whose physical resemblance to Thurman was notable, succeeded Wade as president pro tem, and served four years, when he was succeeded by Matthew Hale Carpenter, whom Judge Jeremiah S. Black pronounced the greatest lawyer who ever spoke the English tongue. I am not much of a judge of a lawyer, but I am very nearly persuaded that Carpenter was the greatest orator I ever heard. His voice was perfect, he never raised it above a conversational pitch, and yet it was distinct to the occupant of the remotest niche of the farthest gallery, and the music of his speech so simple, and yet so rich, that to employ the eulogy Ben Johnson pronounced on Francis Bacon, "Your only fear was that he should make an end."

About 1872 or 1873, congress perpetrated what was known as the "salary grab." My recollection is that Carpenter supported it; but some weeks ago I read a very entertaining narrative about him, in which it was asserted that Carpenter voted against it. However that may be, he defended it on the stump, and made a most audacious speech in one of the Wisconsin counties, then inhabited by staid Puritans from New England, that cost him his election. He was himself a Vermonter, and in one of the first cases in which he was ever retained his adversary was Senator George F. Edmunds.

Carpenter was a Douglas Democrat, later war Democrat, later yet a Republican. Had the South adhered to Douglas, how different might have been our history! Had the South not gone rabid in 1893-97, what a different story might be told! When the South goes to Denver, next July, she ought to put the thinking cap in the suit case. It will be needed.

* * *

Thomas W. Ferry of Michigan succeeded Carpenter as president pro tempore of the senate. Donn Piatt declared that Dick Merrick, a great lawyer of that day, was the only man in America who could wear chin whiskers, shave his upper lip, and stay virtuous. He was writing of and concerning a certain chapter in Ferry's life at that time. We all recollect what a great big load of responsibility it was sought to put on Ferry—that he should count the vote in the election of 1876. It was an absurd proposition that the two houses of congress were to be convened a certain Thursday of February, 1877, just to look on while the president pro tem opened such certificates as he deemed legal and counted the vote without appeal from his decision. And yet that is what Morton and Edmunds and Sherman and Logan insisted on. Conkling revolted or it would have been attempted, and violence would have resulted.

A way was found to perpetuate the outrage no less effectively, however—the partisan electoral commission. All the Democrats had to do was to stand pat. The Republicans knew that. They knew that the vote of the disputed states could not be counted for Hayes unless the house of representatives, overwhelmingly Democratic, assented to it. So they got up the electoral commission. Tilden opposed it in a letter to Hewitt that showed that he was a prophet, as well as a sage. Here is a passage: "Why surrender before a fight? After defeat is the time to surrender." Hewitt did not dream that fifteen men—five senators, five representatives, and five members of the supreme court, chosen as the act provided, could be found who would decide for Hayes. Had he thought so, he would have made public Tilden's letter; there would have been no electoral commission; the vote would have been counted in a constitutional way, and Samuel J. Tilden inaugurated president.

Thomas W. Ferry's name will always be associated with that great contest. He bore himself well, and to this day the public is at a loss to know whether he intended to take the revolutionary advice of Oliver P. Morton or hearken to the warning of Roscoe Conkling. During the entire controversy—three long months of suspense—he never gave a hint as to what he would do. No doubt it was a great relief to him when the electoral bill passed and lifted off his shoulders the great load of responsibility.

* * *

The forty-sixth congress was Democratic in both houses. Samuel J. Randall was speaker of the house, and Allen G. Thurman president pro tempore. One day the senate was in a parliamentary perplexity when Carpenter rose and said that in such difficulties he always sought the counsel of the senator from Ohio, and in his absence he turned to the senator from Vermont, Edmunds, the two great parliamentary authorities of the body; but as both were then out of the chamber he was left to his own resources and that he would venture a guess at it.

But Thurman was more than a great parliamentary lawyer. He was all sorts of a great lawyer, the equl of any man of his day and generation. It was his masterly expoundings of the Constitution during the miserable reconstruction era, more than any other single agency, that worked to overturn carpetbagging at the South and change the Democratic membership of a very small minority in the senate when he entered it, to an actual Democratic majority. But if the "old Roman" were to revisit these scenes he would search long before he found the Democratic party he left here and led in the senate for twelve glorious years.

Thurman gave place to John Sherman as senator from Ohio in 1881. There was a special session immediately after inauguration, called by Garfield to consider appointments, and that was prolonged into May. It had momentous consequences. At first several seats on the Republican side were vacant. Blaine and Windom had gone into the cabinet and their seats, thus vacated, were unsupplied. Besides, there were two or three other vacancies on the Republican side, due to one cause or another. Thus the Democrats were able to elect Thomas F. Bayard president pro tem; but it was not for long. When the vacancies were supplied and Mahone renegaded the Republicans were able to depose Bayard, but not with a straight Republican. David Davis got the job.

A little later the quarrel between Conkling and Blaine was fought to a standstill over New York patronage; the Democrats for Mahone's scalp, came to the rescue for the administration; Conkling and Platt resigned; the president was assassinated, and these and other things like them brought about the Democratic victory of 1884, when Grover Cleveland was elected president over James G. Blaine.

* * *

George F. Edmunds was the next president pro tem, 1883-85; followed by John Sherman, 1885-87. John J. Ingalls served from 1887 to 1891 and Isham G. Harris came in, the third Democrat so honored since Benjamin Fitzpatrick, 1857-61, counting Bayard, who was in the chair only a short while. I omitted C. F. Manderson, 1891-93, who preceded Harris, whom Mr. Frye, the present occupant, succeeded.

A volume containing accurate and concise biographies of all the presidents pro tem of the United States senate would be a valuable contribution of our political history.

The Pure Food Law.

Secretary Wilson says: "One of the objects of the law is to inform the consumer of the presence of certain harmful drugs in medicines." The law requires that the amount of chloroform, opium, morphine, and other habit forming drugs be stated on the label of each bottle. The manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have always claimed that their remedy did not contain any of these drugs, and the truth of this claim is now fully proven, as no mention of them is on the label. This remedy is not only one of the safest, but one of the best in use for coughs and colds. Its value has been proven beyond question during the many years it has been in general use. For sale by all druggists.

YOUNG SCANLON LOSES BOTH LEGS

Run Over at the Sellers Striping and in Very Bad Condition.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lying at the Rood hospital with both legs gone, and so weak from the shock of the accident, that he was unable to talk, the New Year was ushered in, with anything but happiness for young Arthur Scanlon, or for his parents who live at the Penobscot location.

On Dec. 28, while employed as a brakeman at the Sellers stripping works, in some manner not known, the young man was run over by one of the engines. The wheels passed over both legs, and one was later amputated above and the other below the knee.

No one is able to give a satisfactory account of the accident, for the sight of the unfortunate man lying across the rails and unconscious, was the first knowledge the engine men or any one else had of the affair.

The man was taken to the Rood hospital and operated upon forthwith. The physicians have hope for his recovery, but the shock so weakened him that he has not yet become able to speak to his attendants.

LEASE MINNESOTA HALL.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the fact that the Minnesota Dry Goods company demands larger quarters the company has taken a lease on the room known as the Minnesota hall, on the second floor of the Minnesota block, formerly occupied as a lodge room. A stairway will be cut through from the store below. The Eagles, which formerly held a lease of this room, will meet in future in the new hall of the Scandinavian Aid society on Central avenue and most of the other lodges which subleased from the Eagles will do likewise.

BECOMING EFFIMINATE.

Iowa Educator Says There Are Too Many Women Teachers.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 4.—President G. Stanley Hall of Clark university, stirred the delegates to the Iowa state teachers' convention yesterday, in an address in which he declared that there were too many women teachers in the schools, and that American schools were becoming "effeminized." There are 1,400 teachers attending the convention, and nearly three-fourths of them are women.

"The time has come," said President Hall, "for a movement for men's rights. For thirty years we have had a war for women's rights, and now the pendulum has swung too far. This is an age of over-feminization, especially in the schools. Men should be principals, with men under them, so that they will be contradicted once in a while. In the schools now, where we find men principals, they have only women under them, and the men are becoming sissies."

He also deplored the ban on corporal punishment and opposed co-education. He compared the schools of Germany with the schools of America, to the advantage of Germany.

DANGERS OF FAT.

Fat folks of both sexes should remember that they are not only fat outside but also very fat within. This inward fat causes fatty heart. A person in this state should surely reduce, but fasting or overexertion is dangerous. This mixture, ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz. Syrup Simplex, is safer and reduces fat without the necessity of dieting. Take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

MANY ARE VACCINATED.

About Fifteen Hundred Received Little Points at Ely.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—There have been over 1,500 cases of vaccination here since the recent action of the board of education and board of health, requiring certificates of vaccination or certificates of refusal before admitting children to the schools. This, with the fact that all foreigners are required to be vaccinated in the old country or upon landing in this country, ought to forestall any great epidemic of smallpox in this community. Out of this great number of vaccinations no deleterious effects are as yet noticeable.

TEACHER'S TOUGH JOB.

Must Teach in Settlement Where English is Not Spoken.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The county board of education is getting the Birch Lake school ready this week for opening Monday. Second-hand desks and furniture have been purchased from School District No. 12, and a log house rented from a farmer in one of the townships south of this school district. The children are all Finns, and much difficulty is being experienced in getting a teacher who will be at home to speak English, and there are very poor accommodations for a teacher. The board hopes to get a Finn-American teacher.

WERE HANDED A LEMON.

That is Opinion of Those Who Banked on Town of Gilbert.

Sparta, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The Gilbert townsite is somewhat of an orphan," said a well-known Spartan, "and Sparta people are suggesting it be sent to the orphans' home, if such arrangements can be made. Most of the original promoters deny having any interest in the promotion scheme. The booster they imported from Michigan, who pointed out to the investing public how they could suddenly become millionaires by buying a few lots in Gilbert, has gone, and some of the other promoters are away for vactions, and three lone tar paper shacks, besides a half completed cement block building is all there is in Gilbert today.

"The three tar paper shacks are to be Austrian saloons if licenses can be procured, which is doubtful.

"It is reported the recently appointed postmaster was sick of his job before he started, and it is said he will not accept if there is any way he can get out of it.

"There is a question that confronts the few residents of Gilbert that looks anything but rosy, is how to get public improvements, a waterworks system would cost at least $50,000, their assessed valuation is almost nothing, which prevents bonding and to raise the money by taxation would be impossible. After looking over the situation, the investors have come to the conclusion they have been handed a lemon."

MEAT STEALER PUNISHED.

Finn Badly Cut; and Some Other Hibbing Events.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Olmstead was taken to Duluth today to serve ninety days in the county jail for stealing some meat, ducks and chickens from the storehouse of Mike Somers' restaurant. He was convicted of petty larceny in municipal court.

John Jartovich, who was shot in the thigh several days ago during a drunken row on the road between Hibbing and Nashwauk, is in a critical condition at the Rood hospital, the surgeons holding out little hope for him. Mike Donnenovich, who is alleged to have fired the shot, is in jail.

John Kirby, a Hibbing saloonkeeper, has procured the arrest of Gus Smith, a negro porter, at a local hotel on the charge of passing fraudulent checks drawn on a local bank.

JUNE HEALTHY MONTH

In Hibbing, But Not So With May and November.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The month of June brought less deaths to Hibbing than any other month in 1907, according to the vital statistics report for last year, while May and November reported the largest number of deaths. There were only six deaths in June, while twenty-five people passed away in May and the same number in November. There were thirty-five births reported during May and a similar number during December. There were 328 births during the year and 100 deaths.

HECTOR MEN QUIT.

Decline to Accept Cut of Twenty-Five Cents Per Day.

Biwabik, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Declining to accept a cut of 25 cents per day in their wages, from $2 to $1.75, about 100 men working in the open pit of the Hector mine, an independent property near there, have gone out on a strike.

Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately and five deputies are guarding the property. The mine is operated by the Hector Mining company, of which George A. St. Clair of Duluth is president. It is reported other independents contemplate cutting wages, and it is anticipated more men will go out if this is done.

TWO MINOR FIRES

Call Out Eveleth Department---Other Brief Notes.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department was called out twice Friday by two minor fires. The first was at Peter Junke's smoke house, which a stranger thought was on fire because he saw smoke pouring out of the windows. The other was a still alarm at the Tower hotel, where there was a chimney fire. The damage in both instances was nominal.

The owners of the building that is occupied by the Eveleth pharmacy, which was damaged as a result of the fire above early Thursday morning, have decided to expend $300 in improving the ceiling and putting in a new floor.

MANY HERE RELIEVED

Tells of a Fine Mixture Easily Made at Home.

No Sufferer of Kidney Trouble or Rheumatism Should Leavelt Untried.

That the readers of this paper appreciate advice when given in good faith is plainly demonstrated by the fact that one well known local pharmacy supplied the ingredients for the "vegetable prescription" many times within the past two weeks. The announcement of this simple, harmless mixture has certainly accomplished much in reducing the great many cases of kidney complaint, and rheumatism here, relieving pain and misery, especially among the older population, who are always suffering more or less with bladder and urinary troubles, backache and particularly rheumatism.

Another well known druggist asks us to continue the announcement of the prescription. It is doing so much real good here, he continues, that it would be a crime not to do so. It can not be repeated too often, and further states many cases of remarkable cures wrought.

The following is the prescription, of simple ingredients, making a harmless, inexpensive compound, which any person can prepare by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Any first class drug store will sell this small amount of each ingredient, and the dose for adults is one teaspoonful to be taken after each meal and again at bedtime. There is enough here to last for one week, if taken according to directions. Good results will be apparent from the first few doses.

ELKS CHARITY BALL

Will be Held at Hibbing the Latter Part of Month.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Elks' annual charity ball will be given the latter part of this month, though the date has not yet been definitely decided. The first charity ball given last year is yet fresh in the memory of the great number of people who attended. It far outshone any ball ever given in Hibbing before, and in giving it the Elks established a reputation that will make invitations for the coming event in great demand. Arrangements for the party are in the hands of E. D. La Chance, George O'Sullivan and William Brown. La Brosse's orchestra of Duluth will provide the music. The price of tickets will likely be fixed at $5, and the proceeds will be devoted to charity.

HOLIDAY VACATION DAYS END FOR VIRGINIANS.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.) — Several Virginia young men, students at outside colleges and universities, who have been home for the holiday vacation will return soon to their school duties. Among the number are M. C. Butler, who returned Wednesday to Madison, where he takes an engineering course at the Wisconsin U.; Henry Sincock, who left yesterday morning for Chicago, where he studies medicine; Albert L. Shipley, who takes a law course at the Minnesota U., leaves this morning; Leslie Reid, who studies dentistry at the Iowa U leaves Monday for Iowa City; Sigvert Dahl, who studies law, James Ballie, Adolph Hohner and Leighton Simons, who take the academic course at the Minnesota U. will return to their school duties next Monday.

MILES HOLDING LOT; MAY YET REBUILD.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—If Mr. Miles has decided upon any plans for the rebuilding of his hotel, he has not made them public; but the fact that early this week he refused to accept $7,000 for the alley lot, from Kohrt Bros., is significant. Shortly after the fire Mr. Miles offered the lot to Kohrt Bros. for that price.

TOO MUCH CHRISTMAS COST MINERS POSITIONS.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Quite a number of miners were laid off at the Pioneer mine after Christmas because of their failure to show up next day as the result of too much Christmas. The Zenith, Loboy and Shirley mines have discontinued the night shifts as not enough men can be had to properly run both shifts.

NELSON FOUND DEAD.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Charles Nelson, a laborer, aged about 40 years, was found Friday in the vicinity of the Iron Range shops. The indications point to death from natural causes, but it will be thoroughly investigated.

SOCIETY

"WHAT TO EAT" for January devotes valuable space to lengthy directions on "How to say 'No' when Woman Proposes," presumed to be written by a bachelor for the aid of his pursued brothers. A part of the advice is as follows:

"Courage and firmness are the first requisities. For the courageous man in full possession of all his faculties, it might do to hesitate and evade the question, and thus delay the matter until Leap Year is over. But for the timid man such a rule will never apply. He must come right out and say 'no,' without any hesitatancy at all. Don't think of the consequences. Don't think at all. Just say 'no,' and then jump out of the window or by other means get away from the scene as quickly as possible and leave the town. Go somewhere else, begin life all over again, and make it a rule to take a year's vacation every Leap Year thereafter and spend the time at some hunting resort or mining camp where no females can be found.

"For the courageous man, the man who has nearly as much nerve as a woman, a different policy may be pursued. If the girl is not too persistent—if she live somewhere else than in Boston or the Twin Cities or Chicago—he may be able to avoid the marriage and at the same time not come right out and say 'no.' No better direction can be given to this man than to employ the tactics used by women. Say 'I will be a brother,' or 'this is so sudden,' or better still, tell the girl that you had intended proposing yourself, that you object to Leap Year proposals and ask her to wait until next year when you will have another chance to propose. Tell her anything. Don't mind a little white lie; resort to any kind of scheme or device, but avoid the marriage. Be very careful to word your utterances so as to not become involved in a breach of promise suit, however, for here is another grave danger of Leap Year. It may cost you a large sum of money, or it may cost you your life, or worse, you may be forced to marry the girl.

"Intoxication or any other kind of mental derangement, whether permanent or temporary, often causes a man to have an undue fondness for women and sometimes he will seek instead of avoiding their companionship. Never think of suicide until all other expedients have been resorted to. And remember Leap Year is but one day longer than any other year."

The wedding New Year's evening of Miss Rosamund Patrick, daughter of F. A. Patrick, to Mitchell Ford Jamar, Jr., was one of the most beautiful of the winter functions and was a fitting climax to the series of delightful affairs which have been given during the past three weeks in honor of the prospective bride and her fiance. Yellow was the color scheme followed out in the bridal appointments. About the living room, in which the ceremony took place, bowls and vases of yellow roses were placed. From the newel posts of the stairway yellow satin ribbons were carried by the ushers, marking an aisle for the bridal party to the improvised altar at the opposite end of the room. The altar was hung in white and decorated in yellow roses and lighted only by a seven-branch candelabra. The ushers, Joseph Harrison and Warren Jamar of Chicago, entered first and were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Patrick and Miss Mary Pratt, and next came the maid of honor, Miss Isabel Patrick, immediately preceding the bride with her father, Mr. Jamar, with his groomsman, Walker Jamar, awaited them at the altar, and the Episcopal wedding service was read by Rev. A. W. Ryan of St. Paul's church.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin, the waist fashioned with duchess and English point lace. She wore a long veil with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of white satin striped tissue with gold trimmings and she wore an empire wreath of gold leaves in her hair and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The maids wore gowns of yellow messaline satin, with coiffure ornaments of gold leaves and roses, and carried bouquets of yellow roses.

At the informal reception which followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick, and Mr. and Mrs. Jamar of Chicago, parents of the groom, received with Mr. Jamar and his bride. Mrs. Patrick wore a beautiful gown of apricot satin embroidered in silver, and Mrs. Jamar wore a gown of silver gray silk, trimmed in duchess lace and panne velvet. Assisting about the rooms were Mrs. A. M. Marshall, Mrs. F. L. Gilbert, Mrs. F. B. Spellman, Mrs. W. J. Olcott, Mrs. G. C. Stone and Mrs. E. T. Buxton. At the punch bowl Mrs John T. Pugh presided, assisted by Miss Larue Sellwood and Miss Richardson.

Mr. Jamar and his bride left for a wedding trip and after their return will be at home in this city.

THE END OF HER VISIT

By Violet Etynge Mitchell.

"Phoebe! ain't it about time we had mother here on a visit?"

Mrs. Penny paused in her washing and looked back at him over her shoulder, timidly. She was a pretty little woman with a clear pink and white complexion, and dark eyes which fairly sparkled with mischief when she laughed.

"I suppose it is, Josiah," she spoke hesitatingly, and her face clouded. "If you say the word I'll send her an invitation at once."

Mr. Penny was driving a nail into one of the kitchen chairs which had for some time needed repairing. "'T seems to me, Phoebe,' said he, "as if there never was time when it's real convenient for mother to come. We've been inerried goin' on a year, yet every time I speak of it to you—well—I dunno jest what you do, but you act sort of uncomfortable. I should think my mother had oughter be welcome."

Mrs. Penny sighed. "I know it, Josh," she replied; "I've been awful mean about that visit, but soon's the milk's attended to I'll set right down and ask her to come; and—and—I'll give her the best room and goffer the piller cases a purpose. I can't do no more?"

"No," Mr. Penny stammered, running his fingers through his long, reddish hair in a dazed kind of way. "Mother's a little peculiar, likes powerful well to have her own way. You'll humor her, Phoebe?"

Mrs. Penny was hidden from sight behind the door as she answered. "Yes, Josh."

Josiah, with his hands buried deep in his pockets, went slowly down the lane leading to the barn.

Phoebe watched him, shading her eyes with one hand from the setting sun, and, as if caught in a sin, she wiped away from her flushed cheeks the last traces of tears, then called out cheerfully: "Come in!"

"Why, Mrs. Wigger!" exclaimed she, brightening as the door opened to admit an elderly woman. Her shrewd black eyes were full of keen intelligence.

"If I ain't glad to see you!" cried Phoebe. "A talk with you always chirks me up when I'm blue. It seems to me as if you was a kind of mother to me."

"What 'pears to be the matter with you, my dear?"

Mrs. Penny hesitated. "Mother's comin' to pay us a visit," said she at last, a little irrelevantly, as it might appear.

Mrs. Wigger started, and leaning forward with a hand on each arm of the rocker, looked scrutinizingly at her companion.

"You don't mean Josiah's mother, ole Mis' Penny?"

"Yes, I do," replied Phoebe limply.

The elder woman relaxed her hold on the arms of the chair and, throwing her head back against the padded pillow, began to rock violently.

"My lands!" she exclaimed. "You let me know when she's gone home, and I'll come along and take up what's left of you on a dustpan."

Mrs. Penny was crying softly. "Is she as bad as that? I hadn't never seen her, you know. Josiah and me was married down to my home, and then he brought me straight here. I never hearn tell much about her, but I jest—mistrusted—that she ain't very—comfortable."

"Comfortable!" sniffed Mrs. Wigger. "I was brought up in Elmiry, whar she lives. She'n I's most of an age. Oh! I know Ann Eliza Penny well; there ain't one thing about her I ain't pizen well acquainted with, and she's one of the cantankeringest, interferingest, all-'round, all-firedest old woman I ever——"

"Hush!" exclaimed Phoebe, with her finger on her lips. The sound of her husband's approaching footsteps upon the gravel path had reached her ears.

Mrs. Wigger made a long visit. She took tea with Mr. Penny and his wife, but no further opportunity for confidential talk occurred between the two women until, as she bade Phoebe good-night at the door, she managed, in squeezing her hand, to whisper:

"I dunno as you'll set any great store by my tellin" you of it, Phoebe, but caraway seeds in cake always brings on a sick spell in Mis' Penny. I know it, because I've heard her say them was the only times she ever had a bilious attack, and when she had one of them she's very partik'lar about bein' home."

It was the end of the second week of Mrs. Penny's visit, and the effects of it were already visible upon the face of her daughter-in-law, whose worst fears were verified. Things might easily have been better, but they could not have been much worse without an open declaration of war between the two women. Phoebe, brought up tenderly, and unaccustomed to penury and stinginess, was disgusted by the pettifogging ways of her husband's mother, whose disapproval of any little luxury set upon the table was openly shown.

Ungracious in manner, angular in appearance, she sat bolt upright in the cane rocker from early morning till bedtime, criticising and interfering with Phoebe, or nagging at Josiah, who was showing a wonderful agility in disappearing immediately after meals.

On this particular morning Mrs. Penny had tasted everything on the neatly-spread breakfast table with aggressive disapproval.

The old woman took up her knitting and sat down by the dining room window. Phoebe saw that she was comfortably settled, then left the room, carrying with her a pile of heavy dishes.

From the kitchen, as she washed the cups and saucers, she heard the sound of the butcher's cart approaching. He came three days in the week for orders, and generally paused to take them from her own lips at the window near which old Mrs. Penny sat with her knitting.

Phoebe waited, expecting that when he failed to find her there he would come to the kitchen door. But suddenly she was attracted by the sound of the window softly opening, and the harsh accents of the old lady's crooked voice.

"Porterhouse steak! She buys porterhouse steak, did you say? My land! who ever heard of such fol-de-rol extravagance? She ain't give you no order yet, has she? Well, I'll give it: I'm Mr. Penny's mother, and I'm old enough to teach them young folks sense. You jest bring 'round one pound of beef, off the round."

Down slammed the window, and all was silence.

Phoebe stood, still holding the undried dish in her hand. Her face was scarlet and her teeth set. Then, laying the plate upon the table, she ran quickly through the door and down the garden path in a frantic endeavor to catch the butcher, whose cart was already disappearing among the alder trees at the gate.

Flushed by disappointment and exercise, she slowly retracted her way to the kitchen, and sitting down in a low rocking chair near the fire, buried her burning face in her hands. From the adjoining room came the irritating click, click, of the old woman's needles. The tears trickled through Phoebe's fingers and dropped in a tiny salt lake on the kitchen table. Suddenly she looked up and fixed her eyes meditatively on a little closet, the door of which stood invitingly open, revealing shelf after shelf of neatly arranged dishes and glass jars containing preserves. She arose, and walking to it, stood for some time, examining the labels on the jars, finally pausing with her hand on one which was marked "Caraway seeds." Taking it down with a half smile on her lips, she glanced over her shoulder through the door into the next room. Then crossing the floor she noiselessly closed it, and after rolling up her sleeves opened all the draughts in the stove.

When Josiah came in to ask his wife for a pair of scissors about an hour later, he was surpised to hear her voice singing, while with deft fingers she was taking from the oven a beautifully browned cake.

That night at supper Josiah lifted the snowy cover of the old-fashioned silver cake basket and pushed it toward his mother. Pride shone in his eye.

"I'll bet a cent there ain't a woman in the country can beat that," he exclaimed; then, less assuredly, "less it's yourself, mother."

"Caraway seed!" she cried suspiciously; "I've my doubts about eatin' it. 'Pears rich cakes used to make me sicker'n a dog, especially when the butter ain't sweet and the seeds is from a man who don't know 'em from hen corn."

Phoebe smiled. She seemed to have regained her usual sweet temper.

"I'll guarantee the butter," she said, "and as to the seeds, the man I bought them from is pretty good ways from a fool. How does it taste, mother?"

"Fair to middlin'," grunted Mrs. Penny. "I've tasted worse and I've et better. You young folks put in too much shortenin'. Give me another piece, Josiah. Some one must eat it up or you'll be feedin' it to the pigs."

When breakfast was ready next morning Josiah and Phoebe were much surprised to see his mother enter the room dressed for a journey, and her head crowned by a funerel looking black bonnet.

"I want you to hitch right up, Josiah," she exclaimed, turning her back on the table and throwing herself in the cane rocker. "I ain't feelin' well this mornin', and I think there's one of sick spells of mine comin' on. I ain't got my bottle of 'Bassett's Mixture' with me. I guess I'll go home."

"We could send for the bottle," suggested her son weakly.

"No, I guess not," insisted Mrs. Penny. "I'll be better at home. I think like's not 'twas that heavy seed cake set on my stummick."

Phoebe hid her face behind the coffee pot, but said nothing.

As the tip of the funerel bonnet worn by the old woman disappeared over the hill which lay between the house and the main road, Mrs. Wigger's quaintly gowned figure made its appearance at the gate. Phoebe, dressed in a blue and white gingham, stood in the open door. She was shading her eyes with her hand, and her face was wreathed in smiles.

"Who's that Josiah's drivin' off in the buggy?" asked the visitor, sitting down on the lower step of the back piazza, and moving violently to and fro the palm-leaf fan she carried.

"It's mother-in-law," replied the girl. She looked mischievously at the old lady, and added: "She's got a sick spell."

The piercing black eyes of the elder woman were turned full on Phoebe's face.

"Cake?" she asked, tersely.

Mrs. Penny nodded.

"H'm!" exclaimed Mrs. Wigger, intelligently. "Well, I'm right glad you done it." She shook all over with suppressed laughter.

As Josiah returned, after a long and dusty ride, to his home, he met Mrs. Wigger leaving the house. She stopped and, holding out a black-mittened hand, remarked:

"It's a dreffal pity your mother had to go home right in the middle of her visit."

Josiah looked quizzically at his wife and, giving a nervous hitch to his trousers, stammered:

"Yes, yes; so 'tis a dreffal pity."

Then, as he walked into the cheery kitchen and the appetizing odor of freshly-made gingerbread greeted his nostrils he expanded his chest and drew a long breath.

"What's the matter, Josiah?" asked Phoebe, smiling at him from behind a large dish of potatoes that she was placing upon the table.

"My lands!" ejaculated Mr. Penny, "the Lord knows, I've got more appetite for a meal of victuals than I've had for two weeks."

THE STAGE

AND IT'S INFLUENCE ON PRESENT DAY FASHIONS

COSTUME AND EVENING COAT WORN BY MISS BILLIE BURKE OF "MY WIFE" CO.

Popular Plays and Their Costuming - Individuality Is Not General - Simplicity the Keynote - House Gowns of One Well-Known Emotional Star.

Of the many, many popular plays of the season nearly everyone is a drama or tragedy of modern times—of the present decade—with modern emotions, modern settings, and not only modern but strictly up-to-the-minute costuming. This is the simple reason why fashions of the day are so materially influenced by the stage.

A play is laid, for instance, in a luxurious modern home. Then, very naturally, the clothes or costumes are such as wealth would buy, and as wealth is generally credited with possessing the best that the market affords the stage has long since earned a creditable fashion reputation, and many a Broadway star has climbed her way to public favoritism with the aid of her artistic wardrobe.

Individuality in Stage Clothes.

Few actresses of the day show marked individuality in their dressing. Aside from the Russian Nazimova, who plays to crowded houses in empire gowns of every description, from empire sailor suits to empire ball gowns, there are none whose clothes may be said to be truly characteristic of the wearer, unless it is the petite Ethel Barrymore, who always manages to introduce the faintest note of quaintness in everything she puts on. The straight, gathered skirts and round waisted, draped bodices of soft chiffons, nets and laces are suited to no one so well as herself, and no one of our popular stars is quite as piquant with a black velvet throatband, an accessory very much worn with evening gowns both on and off the stage.

If we should see one of the best dressed as well as the most attractive actresses of the day let us to John Drew's light comedy "My Wife." The play is good; it is interesting, and each one plays his part well, from the dog, up, but the clothes are what attract many. Winsome Miss Billee Burke, as the youthful bride of a middle-aged English clubman, is charming in a costume of gray crepe de chine, contrasting beautifully with the burnished gold of her fluffy hair. The art of this gown is its simplicity—a simple long, circular skirt, outlining the curves of her graceful young figure, and a bodice with Japanese drapery of the crepe over a guimpe of net so fine as to give the effect of decollete at a distance. The simplicity of this toilette is made the more apparent by the absence of all jewels, excepting a plain gold bracelet and the circlet of gold on the third finger of her left hand.

A Paquin Model.

Another costume in this same production and worn by Miss Burke is a Paquin model of gray and white striped cloth with brilliant red satin trimmings. This dress has been copied and adopted by a number of New York designers in various materials, but its best expression is always in stripes like the original model.

Tunic Skirts.

Tunic and overskirts, and overskirt effects appeared this winter with the opening of several metropolitan show houses. Robert Edeson's leading woman in his new play, "Classmates," wears two costumes in which the tunic idea is strongly featured. Miss Bowley is a tall, willowy girl of the classic type, to whom present-day modes are extremely becoming.

One of the costumes has a simple long circular skirt of white cloth, topped with lace bodice and skeleton overwaist. The graceful skirt shows the tunic effect attained with rows of white silk soutache applied in Greek key design on the front and sides, and in straight lines across the back. The overwaist of cloth is heavily embellished with braidings. At the bustline is a chou of ribbon in rich Oriental color in which a brilliant blue and much gold predominate.

While the overskirt, or draped skirt, as some prefer to call it in its new modeling, is not looked upon with any favor for street wear in short-skirted costumes and suits, there is some tendency toward its use, though it is doubtful if its adoption along these lines will ever become general. In the shortened length it is not graceful, and no one wants to wear anything unbecoming in these days of artistic dressing.

With overskirts have come fringes, a trimming which has always gone hand in hand with this mode. As a finish for the tunic there is nothing prettier, but this is not their only use this season. A costume of pale pink pagoda silk, with skirt panels of darned filet, worn by a now touring star, has the bottom of each panel finished with a deep silk fringe of the gown color. The front panel extends over the waistline to the bust, at which point the fringe is arranged between the rever-shaped fronts of the bodice and hangs an inch or more below the waist.

Long Sleeves.

In this Parisian confection one sees the new mousquetaire sleeve wrinkling down over the hand to the knuckles. In combination with jumper modes this sleeve is particularly attractive. Sometimes it is made of plain net and as part of a smooth-fitting guimpe. A number of actresses are wearing these net guimpes with plain princess low-neck, dark-toned gowns, and the effect is really worth copying.

House Gowns.

It is rarely one meets with such a treat in house clothes on the stage as Margaret Illington revels in this year. The simplicity of a soft, clinging white silk negligee in which she robes her graceful figure in the third act of "The Thief" is strangely in contrast with the emotions of her role, though strongly indicative of the femininity of the charming actress herself.

The French maker of this gown has given us his best adaptation of the Japanese kimonn, and accomplished it so simply and artistically that one marvels at its cleverness in defining the best figure lines and at the same time keeping it within the class of loose flowing draperies.

The fronts of this robe cross surplice-wise and fasten at the waistline with the silk belt, which threads through embroidered slots and ties in a bow at the left side. This belt is of heliotrope silk like that banding the opening and the bottom of the skirt and facing the sleeve drapery. A collar of rich cluny overspreads the shoulders and points into the belt.

A Popular French Actress.

We always hear more or less about Miss Held's dressing. And why not? Her figure has been her fortune ever since she came to America, some dozen years ago, and her successes have been scored in plays where the costuming was a big feature. Her present play, while nothing but a musical comedy, created a sensation and made a big hit on the Rialto, scoring another success for la petite Francaise. As to its costuming, there is little we might copy or wish to copy in our own wardrobes. But many of us would like to know what secret means Miss Anna employs in keeping down her flesh to fashionable proportions.

Statistics show that, though fair-haired people are, as a rule, less strong than those who have dark hair, yet the former live longer than the latter.

Young Girls' Winter Wardrobes.

No longer is the young girl's wardrobe deemed worthy of only scant consideration by mothers and modistes. Although several winters, destined to be divided between day schools and evening dancing classes, may separate her from the debutante season and the era of long gowns, she takes a great deal of interest in her short frocks, has a voice in their selection and insists that they shall be smart.

Perfectly fitted and finished sailor blouse suits are still in high favor for school costumes, as are also clan plaids, Scotch serges in dull brown, blue, green and red mixtures, made with plain gored skirts and simple waists whose square or pointed necks reveal dainty lingerie gulmpes.

Dark corduroys make natty street suits for girls, and because the material is of itself so effective they are rarely trimmed. The prettiest models are severely tailored, with deeply side-plaited skirts and elongated Prince Chap coats, which are infinitely more becoming to unformed figures than tight-fitting garments. The modified continental coat is popular and wonderfully attractive when developed in dark red, smooth-faced cloth, brightened with slender lines of gold, outlining the self-colored braid and velvet trimmings.

A girl whose elder feminine relatives are in deep mourning usually wears black broadcloth, corduroy or serge on the street, and white in the house, utilizing her linen skirts and blouses for mornings, and for afternoons any of the lightweight woolen or silken fabrics like veiling and voile, made with broadly box-plaited, deeply hemmed instep length skirts and jumper waists over white embroidered net blouses. An afternoon frock which is pretty in any dark or light shade of voile has a box-plaited skirt, trimmed with double rows of narrow bias bands of self-colored taffeta, diversified with semi and full circles, points or squares. The similarly trimmed overwaist has a transparent blouse of St. Gall embroidery, tacked to a fitted taffeta body. Practically the same design developed in dark blue lansdowne has an untrimmed skirt and a jumper outlined with two bias bands of blue velvet, lapping in front, with white corded silk buttons, embroidered with gold thread.

Lansdowne, tussorah, crepe de chine, silk muslin and net are largely employed for girls' dancing frocks and show more diversity of design than do the simpler costumes. A white crepe de chine, for instance, had groups of three tucks and bands of lace insertion, entre deux, at the skirt bottom, a blouse of lace and tucks with a lace-edged Dutch neck, and a yellow satin-draped girdle. A pale blue silk muslin skirt had three deep tucks and a front panel of elaborately embroidered self-colored chiffon satin, while its fancy white net blouse had an embroidered chiffon satin plastron and plain satin girdle. A rose silk muslin skirt had a hand-embroidered four-inch band above three deep tucks and a wide hem, and is shirred four inches below the belt. Its draped blouse is trimmed with fancy lace, has short puffed sleeves and a rose chiffon satin girdle.

Dresden embroidery relieves the tuck and lace border of a white mousseline shirred skirt which had an embroidered net baby blouse, a lace yoke, puffed mousseline elbow sleeves and a white taffeta girdle. A similar frock is mounted on Dresden silk, and one of maize net had a half-inch side-plaited skirt, bordered with graduated rows of maize chiffon velvet, and a baby waist with chiffon velvet trimming and girdle.

Exceedingly smart are the three-quarters, loose school and traveling coats of smooth-faced cloths, cheviots and tweeds, on which large buttons are prominent, as in the case of a wide-checked black and white cheviot double-breasted coat, finished with rows of stitching, and fastening with buttons of cut jet, surrounded with rhinestones. A dull green and gray mixture had plain green straps and buttons, and a dark blue coat with a wide shoulder cape had narrow turned-over collar and cuffs, pocket lapels and buttons of wine-red kid. Another blue coat, somewhat on the conventional automobile model, had a deep rounded attached hood, lined with seafoam green satin; a design developed in wine and hunter's green, with black satin hood lining.

Exceedingly girlish are the recently imported three-quarter coats of caracul kid—a soft, fine-haired, silver-gray pelt—with standing collar and flaring cuffs, lined with natural colored mature caracul and fastening with large tan kid rhinestone-set buttons. Although these coats cost several hundreds of dollars, they may be used for both day and evening purposes, and are, therefore, more practical than are the ermine bib coats, with long sleeves and collarless necks, or those of white broadcloth trimmed with ermine or chinchilla bands.

All-white fur sets, like ermine and fox, are worn by young girls for ceremonious occasions, but for general purposes their short boas and moderately-sized muffs are of natural beaver, squirrel, marten or mink.

School hats are simple. They are principally of fine French felt of the shade of the long coat, trimmed with a bright scarf or a band of fluffy fur. White felt hats, worn with corduroy and serge street suits, are of medium size, and many of them are effectively trimmed with black satin choux. An exceedingly smart continental is draped with a green and gold-striped scarf, edged with sable, and one of black caracul has its brim looped by with large jet buckles.

Evening hats, large and correspondingly elaborate, appear in white and very delicate tints of satin, silk or felt. They have rounded or square crowns, drooping or irregular brims, unwired, and are trimmed with large shaded taffeta bows, clustering ostrich plumes and tips, mousseline and figured net choux, foliage and accordion-pleated, lace-edged frillings.

Little Frills of Fashion.

With the simplicity of reigning modes it seems quite the right thing to be wearing the military cape for evening again. It is a graceful garment, adding height to the small of stature and grace and dignity to the stately. Unlike many garments it is becoming to women of all ages, from the debutante to the grandmother. The new model is almost to the hem of the dress and very full. It is singularly plain, sometimes being finished with only a heavy cord at the neck. This for the reason, doubtless, that one is supposed to wear some sort of a fancy fur or feather neckpiece for warmth and ornament. They are usually made of cloth, though satin is very effective, and being a fashionable fabric just now is often seen in these capes.

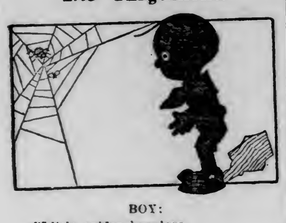
Those of us who have thought velvet and velveteens were not good style this season and accordingly purchased handsome cloth suits for dressy wear, are doomed to disappointment. Pile fabrics needed only the impetus of cold weather to bring them out, and now since winter has really set in, any number of handsome costumes in both these fabrics are to be seen in those vicinities which the ultra fashionable frequent.

China and Jap silk shirtwaists are coming in again. It will be remembered that when the shirtwaist first became the fashion soft wash silk models were popular. And this was at the same time when front frills and ruffle edge collars and cuffs were in; the front frills and tiny ruffles are here again, so the wash silk waist has come, too. It is in colors as well as white and made very much like the first silk waists. Tucks or pleats in the front and back, and collar and cuffs and front pleats edged with a tiny ruffle or pleating of the silk. It is expected that the summer will show quite a fad for these wash silk waists, in which case the price of wash silks will probably ascend.

With neckwear growing dressier every day, it looks a little discouraging for the continued vogue of the stiff white linen collar. We are still wearing it in the metropolis and in goodly numbers, but a great many lace stocks are seen. Some are plain and high as one can comfortably wear them, while others have pretty attached jabots and frills of lace or lingerie materials.

A PAGE FOR THE BOYS & GIRLS

The Argument.



BOY:

"Little spider long-legs,
Sitting up so high,
Why are you so cunningly
Watching that poor fly?"

SPIDER:

"Just because, my dear boy,
I should like some meat.
'Tis my dinner hour now
And time for me to eat."

BOY:

"Little spider long-legs,
You're wicked thus to kill
An unoffending tiny fly
That you may eat your fill."

SPIDER:

"And what about yourself, sir,
Who dined a bit ago.

On chicken, nice and tender?
Ah, ha! my friend, how so?"

BOY:

"Now, Mr. Spider Long-legs,
You'd best take care, or I
Will get a stick and knock you
And your fine web sky-high."

SPIDER:

"I see, I see, my young chap,
While you will kill to eat,
You cry out loud in horror
If another asks for meat.
But 'Live and let live,' sonny,
Is a motto good and true.
If eating fly is wrong for me,
Eating chick is wrong for you."

CONUNDRUMS.

When is a fish like a drunkard?
When it is a bloater.
When are trees like seams in fine linen?
When felled.
When is a ship like an aching heart?
When overladened.
When is a shoe like a beer barrel?
When tapped.

WHEN BILLY "SAW THINGS STRAIGHT."

BY MAUD WALKER.

Billy Simpkins was 14 years old, and a big, strong fellow for his age. He stood well in his classes and was captain of the baseball nine of the high school "force." Billy was an only child and had things pretty much his own way at home, his parents being proud and foolishly fond of him.

But in Billy's case, as in many cases of a like nature, "peace and plenty" became a bit flavorless, and Billy longed for excitement, adventure and hardship. "I want to get out and knock about on my own hook," he would say to his comrades. "I don't like the soft bed, the linden dinner table and the carpeted floors of plenty. Give me a few hard thumps now and then to let me find out what sort of stuff I'm made of. How can a boy amount to anything when he's got everything he wants for the asking? Nope, I'm going to make a toss up of it: I'm going to take foot in hand and seek for pastures new."

"You'll be glad enough to come home for dinner," laughed Tom Pratt, Billy's chum. "It's all right to starve during the day, but when the evenings gather your appetite will howl loudly for the dinner you know is cooking in the kitchen of the 'dear old home.' And you'll make tracks toward the kitchen door and ask cook to please give you a handout, seeing that you've discarded home and mother and become a tramp, thus barring yourself from the table and a napkin."

Tom laughed gaily at the mental picture he was drawing of Billy; but Billy's face was serious, as he said: "You've got a wrong idea of my plans, Tom. I have no notion of becoming a tramp—a knight of the railroad tracks, so to speak. No, I'm in earnest. I mean to go to some distant state and find employment—get a job. I want to work. I've got enough schooling. There's no use keeping at books till one turns gray."

"Then you're going to drop out of your class?" Tom asked the question in a voice of surprise. "Why, you'll graduate in two years, Billy. I hate like the deuce to see you drop out now. You and I have gone from the primary grade together, climbing side by side. And if you quit now—leave me alone, so it will seem—why, I'll just about go to pieces when exam. comes. Now, Billy, for your own sake, for the sake of your pal, and for the sake of your mother—for I know it will be a great disappointment to her if you don't graduate—be sensible and stick it out for another two years."

But to all Tom's pleading Billy shook his head. And Tom was shocked when he went on to say: "You see, old chum, I know how mamma and papa will object to my going out to root for myself, so I mean to go without telling them. Of course, I'll leave a note explaining what I am about; but I'll not tell them where I'm bound for. I must get work first. Then I'll write the news home. You see, I've got a little money—some of the pocket money papa allows me every month. I've had this scheme in mind for a long time, and I've been saving for it. I guess I've got about $15 in all."

Tom saw there was no use arguing the matter with his determined friend, and, with a hearty slap on Billy's back, said in as hopeful a voice as he could muster: "Well, Billy, old chum, I don't approve of what you are about to do; but since your mind is made up I'll wish you good luck and success. Also, that things will so shape themselves that you'll return home soon again, and that you'll resume your place in the class."

The next morning when Mrs. Simpkins went into her son's room to call him from sleep she was astonished to find the bed unoccupied and no sign of its having been slept in during the previous night. And there were no signs of Billy anywhere about. Mrs. Simpkins was looking around questioningly when a note—stuck in the edge of the mirror on the dresser, and addressed to her—caught her eye. She quickly tore open the envelope and read the contents of the note: "Dearest Mamma," it read, "I've decided to go away from home for awhile. I want to rough it a bit and see what sort of metal I'm made of. You and Papa must not worry about me, for I'll be O. K. I'm going to hunt some sort of a job and work like a Trojan all winter. When you see me next summer I'll be so big, strong and brown that you'll hardly know I'm your son. Now, as soon as I get work I'll write you. Then you'll hear from me regularly every week. And I shall be homesick to hear from you two dear ones. With a kiss for each, and a hope that you'll not miss me much, your loving but independent son, Billy."

Mrs. Simpkins sat on the side of the bed, her hand pressed against her beating heart. Billy gone! Billy, her only child—her baby! Oh! it could not be true. He was merely playing some trick on her. She sprang to her feet and began searching every nook and corner of room and closet. No, he was surely gone. His best suit, his underwear, his sweater, leggings, mittens, overcoat, hat, cap, his every-day suit, were gone from the closet. Also, the big telescope valise that he used on camping expeditions was missing. He had carefully packed his things and crept from the house while they—his unsuspecting parents—slept!

Mrs. Simpkins ran to her room and placed the note in her husband's hands. He read it with growing surprise and horror. "Billy gone away," he gasped. Then he stood up like a great child, looking about him in a dazed sort of way. Mrs. Simpkins was weeping softly in her handkerchief. She could not speak. Her husband watched her for a moment, then put his arm about her, saying tenderly: "Don't worry, little mother. Our boy is a good boy and will soon see things straight. Then he'll come home again. It's just the wild notion of a growing boy—he has so suddenly grown out of little childhood that he can't quite get himself adjusted to the new physical condition. He thinks himself stronger, older than he really is. But, thank goodness, he has a good home to return to whenever he finds it advisable to do so."

"Oh, but how can we live without our boy?" cried Mrs. Simpkins, her grief pitiful to behold. "We've had such hopes for him. We've made such plans for his future. In fact, what else have we thought of but Billy? He has been our one ambition. Now, by his childishness, his foolishness, he has wrecked his future, perhaps."

"No; we'll not look at it that way," said Mr. Simpkins. Now that he was recovering from the shock of the letter he was trying to make the best of the matter. "It may be that this lesson will do him much good. He will find the world cold and selfish, work difficult to obtain and masters hard to please. Our boy may be doing for himself a great and grand thing—learning a lesson that may stand him in stead during all his after life."

But though the Simpkins tried to make the best of Billy's going away, the matter lay nearest their hearts, and neither of them could become reconciled to the new condition. A week went by without a word from the absent son. Then, just as Mrs. Simnkins was on the verge of nervous collapse, came a letter. It was a relief to see the dear handwriting, but the contents of the letter were not cheering. It ran:

"Dearest Papa and Mamma: I'll not write much today, for I've got a job of work which keeps me very busy. Will write you more fully Sunday. I'm well and O. K. Don't write me till you hear again. I may not remain here the week out. Your loving and hopeful son, Billy. Say hello to Tom and the rest of the fellows."

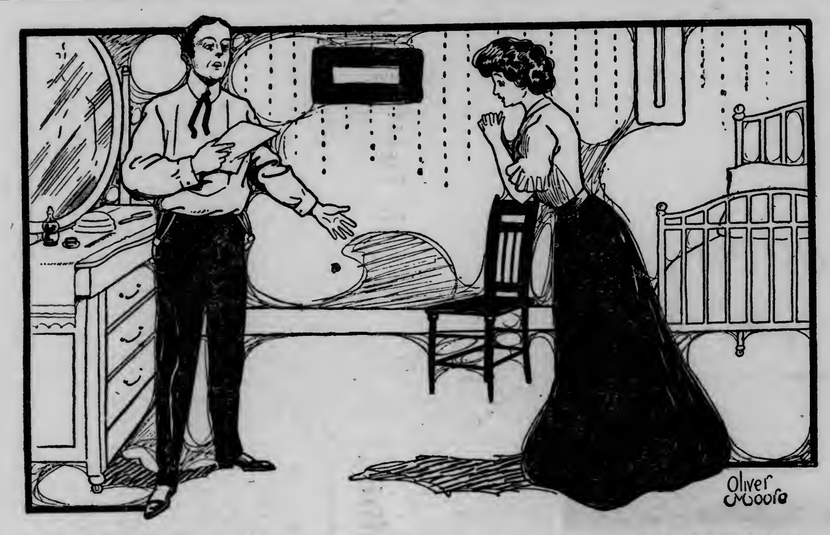
But the next week brought no letter, although Billy had promised to write one on Sunday. However, he must have gone away from the town where he had been busy with "a job of work which kept him busy," for no more news came from there. Mr. and Mrs. Simpkins watched with anxious hearts for the promised letter, turning away their faces to hide tears of disappointment—of fear—when the postman went by without turning in through the gate.

One morning, just two weeks after Billy had gone away from home in quest of "hard bumps" Mrs. Simpkins found herself so ill with suspense that she declared she could not survive another day without word from her absent boy. "Oh, if he only knew how he is killing me," the poor woman sobbed.

"A telegram fer yez, mum," said Bridget at the bedroom door. Mrs. Simpkins sprang from her couch with the vigor of a well woman. The telegram must be from Billy! She tore it open. "Come at once to Mulberry Hospital. Your son very ill." The telegram was signed by a doctor. The town from which the message came was but a few hours distant by rail. The next outgoing train carried Billy's parents, their hearts too full of hope mingled with fear to speak. Just as the clock pointed to the hour of one Billy, in a little white hospital bed, opened his eyes wearily to welcome two loving ones. He did not talk much, for the doctor forbade any exertion or excitement on his part. But the nurse told Mr. and Mrs. Simpkins all about the cause of Billy's sickness. He had been employed cutting ice. For three days he worked at the dangerous occupation. Then he had been taken sick with pneumonia and the woman from whom he had rented a cold, barren little room, had phoned to the city hospital doctor to come and remove him from her house as she had "no time to nurse folks what couldn't pay for their trouble." And so it had come about that Billy was a charge in a charity hospital.

A few days after Mr. and Mrs. Simpkins' arrival at the sick bed of their beloved child the doctor, to their great joy, told them that the boy was out of danger and would now quickly recover. "It's the presence of his mother and father that has done the work," said the nurse. "Oh, how he has been praying for them ever since he was brought here!"

"Yes, and once I get home I'll stay there," said Billy faintly. "I've learned a lesson, Daddy and Mamma, that I'll never forget. And now I see things straight."



Mr. Simpkins read the note with growing surprise and horror. "Billy gone away!" he gasped.

The Snowball Battle.

Fierce and long the conflict raged;
Strong foes were in the fight.
Each warrior bold, with steady aim,
Did battle with his might.

Stern breastworks stood of beaten snow,
With ammunition near;
And as the battle fiercer grew
Wild shouts did rend the air.

At length one side was beaten back—
They fled in sorry plight.
The conflict was about to end
When the school bell stopped the fight.

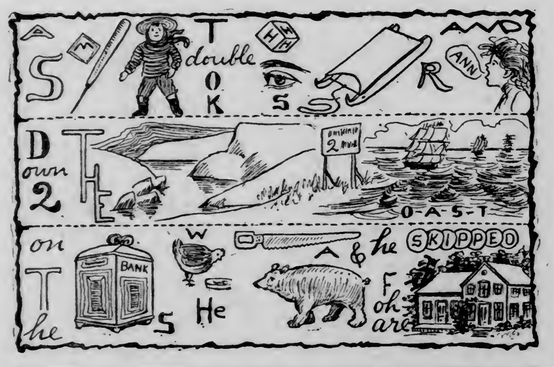
An Easy Rebus for Little Folks



The Riot in the Nursery.

By Helena Davis.

Peggy Pepper, five years old, was queen of the nursery. She had a great domain, too, over which to rule. There were three nice dolls, with natural hair, and eyes that would open and shut. There were two "coon" dolls—Sambo and Samanthy, by name—and a Japanese doll with a comical face. Then there was the animal kingdom! And how funny it was, too, to see the four-leggers living in peace with the two-leggers! You'd have thought that the lion would have eaten Sambo and Samanthy, and that the Teddy bear would have hugged the beautiful dolls to death, and that the watchdog would have chased the Japanese doll out of the nursery. But no, there was never a bit of trouble in the nursery till one day Peggy came in with a toy kitten. As soon as the kitten—a white, woolly mite, with a pink nose—was placed on a rug near to Rover, the watchdog, things became a bit unsettled. Rover snarled, and the kitten—by name Lucretia—spat and struck out with her pretty paw. This excited the lion, and he gave vent to a roar that frightened everyone, the two-legged as well as the four-legged creatures. Peggy tried to reason with Lucretia and Rover, saying: "Now, ain't you ashamed of yourselves, fighting and quarreling like cat and dog? I'll punish you both if you don't behave better."

But Rover kept on snarling at Lucretia till it got on her nerves. (You know, cats are very nervous animals and can't stand to be teased or quarreled at.) So after enduring about as much as she could she made a leap at Rover and caught his face between her paws, holding on like grim death, as the saying goes. Well, Rover snarled, bit, snapped, jumped about in the air like one bereft of reason, and still Lucretia hung on to his nose with firm and sharp claws. And so noisy did the melee become that Teddy bear became excited and chased the three beautiful dolls up the bedpost, where they perched in mortal fear, while Teddy remained below looking up at them with flaming eyes and mouth wide open, displaying his sharp teeth. The lion took out after Sambo and Samanthy, roaring with deafening loudness as he cornered a pair of frightened "coon" dolls behind a doll's cradle. There he would have killed and devoured them had it not been for the Japanese doll, who, with drawn sword in hand, came to their rescue. With true aim the Japanese arm struck a blow, sending the lion's head tumbling across the room. Then, turning in defense of the three beautiful dolls that were "treed" up the bedpost, the Japanese doll put the Teddy bear to flight.

And all the time Rover and Lucretia fought, Lucretia holding on to the howling and fighting dog's nose. About the room they tumbled and rolled, the other occupants giving them a wide berth, for so terrible was the claw-to-nose conflict that none dared to interfere.

And Peggy, the queen of the nursery, sat on her chair, with feet drawn up for safety, and watched the battle. She saw that there was no use her interfering. Rover and Lucretia must fight it out, one of them becoming the victor.

After about half an hour Rover became exhausted and dropped on a rug as limp as a rag. Lucretia slowly loosened her sharp claws and withdrew them from Rover's nose. Then, purring victorously, she walked to the other end of the rug and sat down, washing her face. The fight was over, and Lucretia's supremacy established. From that day on Rover—nor any of the others of the four-leggers—would not dare to wink an eye at her.

And Peggy, queen of the nursery, picked up the maimed lion to carry to the toy's hospital, saying as she did so: "Even a weentsy-teentsy kitten can make an awful riot when it tries."

Bobby, May and the Rabbit

BY ANNIE JAMES.

Bobby and May were twin brother and sister. Bobby was seven years old. And May—but, of course, if they were twins, May was seven years of age also. They lived in the country on a big, big farm, and all about them were great spreading valleys, sloping hills and deep woods; and there was a fine river running close by their house—a river on which they went skating with Big Brother in the winter and in which they went bathing with Big Brother in the summer.

One very cold day in January — soon after the festive New Year—Big Brother was preparing to go rabbit-hunting. Bobby and May watched him with deep interest, a longing in their hearts to accompany him. They had never gone rabbit-hunting in their lives, and they fancied it would be great sport. Big Brother, seeing the desire in the faces of the dear little twins, laughed and said: "Ah, do you kiddies want to go hunting with me? Come, hustle round and get into your togs. I'll be ready to start before a dead dog can wag his tail."

How jolly Big Brother always was! Bobby and May laughed till their little sides shook at the idea of a dead dog wagging his tail. Then they ran to mamma's room, got into their warm cloaks, leggings, mittens and overshoes. May wore a warm hood and Bobby had an "earcap." Do you know what an "earcap" is? Well, it is a cap with a deep warm band, which draws down over the ears.

As soon as Bobby and May were ready to go with Big Brother the three set out over the frozen road toward the wooded hills half a mile distant. But after going a little distance Big Brother said: "Ah! here's a rabbit trail. See the fresh tracks in the snow?" And he pointed to some wee prints that made a regular path across a snow-covered meadow field. "We'll just follow this trail and soon we'll come to Mr. Rabbit." And Big Brother shouldered his gun—he had set it down when examining the tracks—and away the three hunters went, running to earth a poor little rabbit who had been so thoughtless as to leave his tracks behind him.

The tracks led them down to the edge of the road. There they were lost in a medley of other tracks, some of rabbits and others of men and boys.

"You kiddies stay here till I come back," said Big Brother. "I want to drop off over the bank and see if there are any fresher tracks than these. I'll call to you after a few minutes, or return." Then Big Brother went out of sight under the high bank bordering the river.

"Suppose we hunt for a rabbit now," said Bobby. "Big Brother has left us to ourselves."

"But how can we kill it if we find it?" asked May. Then, the full meaning of her words dawning upon her, she quickly added: "But I wouldn't want to kill a dear little rabbit; would you, Bobby?"

Bobby thought seriously for a minute. The picture of a dear little bunny that he had once owned, a cunning little pet which had been given to him by his grandpapa came to his mind. He shuddered at the thought of any one killing his dear little bunny. And were not all rabbits alike? And might not any chance rabbit that came in their path be his little bunny that had run away one night when the cage had accidentally been left open? Ah, yes, so it might. "No-o-o, May," Bobby answered slowly, "I wouldn't want to kill a rabbit. It might be Bunny what run away last summer."

"Oh-h-h, so it might!" And May opened her brown eyes very wide. And just at this minute Bobby's eyes caught sight of something which made them open very wide too. He was looking inside a fallen hollow tree. He stooped over, that he might the better see the object which had so suddenly caught his attention.

"A rabbit," he whispered to May. "See him sitting all huddled up inside that rotten log? Oh, isn't he a pretty one, though? Just see his eyes, how big they are. And what fine ears! Doesn't he look for all the world like Bunny?"

May went closer to the fallen, hollow log, peering within its cavity. "Ah, you sweet little darling," she said in caressing tones. "Oh, how I wish I had some bread and sugar for you. Come, you dear bunny; don't be afraid. We wouldn't hurt you for the world."

"Well, kiddies, no rabbits in sight so far!" It was Big Brother's voice, and his head and shoulders were in sight as he climbed the bank, returning to the spot where he had left them. Bobby and May looked at each other quickly, knowingly. Each knew the other's determination. Big Brother was almost there. If he got a peep into that log—! Bobby and May both shuddered at the thought of the cruel gun. Again their eyes met, such innocent, loving, brown, baby eyes, eyes so full of sympathy, and Bobby said: "Let's run to meet him. Then he'll go round another way."

Off they ran to meet Big Brother on the edge of the steep bank, crying out: "Let's go home, Brother, it's so cold. There are no rabbits out this sort of weather, anyway. They are all in their little houses under the ground, and the snow hides their doors so you can't find them."

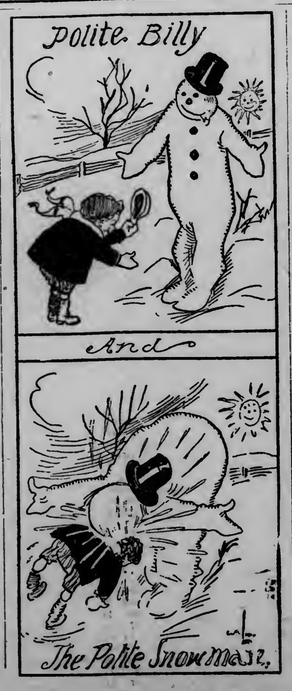
"Well, I guess you're right, Kiddies," laughed Big Brother. "I find plenty of tracks, but the fellows that made them somehow dodge me on every hand. Guess we'd better make tracks for home."

"And who'll be running after our tracks to shoot us?" asked May, innocently.

"Ah, the Indians used to do that," laughed Big Brother. "But now we are safe to make tracks wherever we wish to."

"I wish the bunnies were as safe as we are," sighed May. "Yes, so do I," declared Bobby, as they followed the Big Brother homeward. But they were glad they went, for they felt that they had saved the life of one little rabbit at least.

He would have killed and devoured them had it not been for the Japanese doll.



May went closer to the fallen hollow log, peering within its cavity.

AN EMBARRASSMENT.

"Well, my boy, I once heard of a woman who had a $25,000 set of dishes, and she was so afraid of the servants breaking them that she washed them herself."

Tommy (aged 6)—So you're going to marry sister?

Mr. Jonson—Yes. What does your papa say about it?

Tommy—Oh, he said it was better than nothing at all.

And his name is Dearest Son.

MANY MILES OF WATER MAINS HAVE BEEN LAID DURING THE PAST YEAR

THE PIPE LAYING GANG AT WORK.

The year 1907 has been one of the busiest seasons for the laying of new water and gas mains that the water and light department of the city has experienced since the city assumed control of the water plant.

As The Herald recently stated, the department actually laid twenty-eight miles of pipe in 1907, and has a considerable amount of pipe to lay to complete contracts already awarded, to say nothing of the extensions planned for this year.

One of the most important contracts for the laying of pipe last year was the hillside system, as that part of the city water system is termed along the hill, above Fourth street.

The accompanying picture shows the gang of men employed by the department, excavating for and laying the water and gas mains along the boulevard, at a point just east of the Seventh avenue west incline railway.

In order to get the pipes below the frost line it has been necessary to put them at quite a depth along the boulevard, in practically solid rock.

It was the intention of the department to push the work up the hillside system as far as possible during the winter, and a large crew was put on by the contractors having the work in charge. The picture shows the gang with the several steam drills in place, ready for operation. Eight drills were in operation at one time in the locality where the picture was taken. Holes were drilled at regular intervals in the solid rock, and dynamite was used to blast out the trench in which the pipes were laid and covered.

The slight was an unusual one for the boulevard, and many Duluthians who have had occasion to drive along that roadway lately have been much interested in the progress of the work.

The laying of the mains on the boulevard opens great possibilities for that thoroughfare in the way of home building during the next few years. There have been quite a number of nice homes erected along the boulevard within the past two years, in anticipation of the water and gas service, and it is expected that the building movement from now on will be even brisker, as there is no more favorable location in the city where the outlook over the city and the harbor is so interesting as along the boulevard.

SNOW RATHER LIGHT IN WOODS FOR BEST LOGGINC CONDITIONS

A HEAVY LOAD.

The snow is not as deep this winter as loggers could wish, but they are making the best of it. In most places, where logging operations are being carried on, there is only a thin covering of the white stuff, making the construction of logging roads a harder task than usual.

However, whether the snow is deep or not, the logging road is something more than a mere track through it. The construction of the roads is a task for experts in their line, who spend days perfecting thoroughfares of a few miles length, for the transportation of the season's cut.

In the woods, the perfecting of a logging road for the winter is a serious matter.

Grooves for the sled runners are carefully made. They are of ice and as smooth as the finest piece of track along the Hudson river. The runners on the logging sleds are rounded to fit the iced grooves in the snow.

The load of logs, shown in the picture, is a big one. Two sleds, heavily laden, have been hitched together and the whole hauled by six horses. The picture was taken in this county and is a typical winter scene in the woods.

BLIND MEN WHO HAVE RISEN

(Mrs. Alexander Van Alstyne) Is to live to write songs in her 103rd year. That was the age attained by her favorite grandmother, and Miss Crosby believes that sometime during the next fifteen years she will write her best hymn. To date she has composed more spiritual songs than any other person, living or dead, except John Wesley. His record was 8,000; Miss Crosby is now about 2,000 behind the great Methodist.

Miss Crosby declares that she acquired the knack of making words flow rhythmically by taking lessons during her childhood years from the musical little stream that flowed by her home. From the time she entered the New York institution for the blind, at the age of 15, until she was 45, she wrote secular songs exclusively, her best known profane song being "There's Music in the Air." Then, at the solicitation of W. D. Bradbury, a publisher of sacred music, she turned to religious songs, and this has been her field ever since. Her first hymn, written in 1864, began,

"We are going, we are going,
To a home beyond the skies," and four years later it was sung at the funeral of the man who induced the author to take up hymn writing.

That same year Miss Crosby wrote what is perhaps her most famous song, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." This is how she came to write it:

One day Doan, the famous Cincinnati composer, came rushing into Miss Crosby's room; she was in Cincinnati attending a religious meeting.

"Miss Crosby, I want a song," he exclaimed, excitedly. "I must leave the city in forty-five minutes. Can you write me one in that time?"

"Hum me the tune to which you are going to set it," Miss Crosby requested.

When Doan had done this, she asked him if he had any suggestion as to the character of the song he desired.

"Why, yes," he replied, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

The blind woman rapturously clasped her hands.

"Oh, what a beautiful thought!" she cried. Then she fell to work, and in thirty minutes had produced eight verses, three of which are still sung around he world.

Another Author of Mathematics.

Like Miss Crosby, Dr. Newell Perry, tutor in mathematics for Columbia university students, believes that if he ever regained his sight the development of his work would be greatly hindered. He has been able to concentrate because of his blindness, he says, and he fears that with his sight restored he would lose to a great degree his power to concentrate.

He, too, is the author of a mathematical treatise, which he wrote while a student at Munich, and which that university has adopted as a standard. He went abroad after graduating from the University of California, and taking a post-graduate course at the University of Chicago. He was only 19 when he graduated from California and his mthematical and other student feats caused him to be known on the coast as "the brilliant blind student." He went through college on the money he made as a coach.

Unlike most blind persons, Dr. Perry walks neither with a cane nor an attendant. He moves about in a crowded street as easily as Herreshoff does on the deck of a yacht plunging in a frothy sea. So far he has never met with an accident, because, he says, he can tell something about the size of objects he approaches by the sound of his footfall, and governs himself accordingly.

As a student in California, he got his recreation by riding a bicycle. On these trips he was accompanied by a friend, who rode ahead a little way and signaled with his bell when vehicles were approaching. When he was in Munich Dr. Perry endeavored to persuade some of his fellow students to ride with him, but they could not understand why even a Yankee should desire to be so foolhardy, and so refused. The professors, too, forbade Perry to ride, and he had to content himself with walking.

The Blind Boss of Rhode Island.

Gen. Charles R. Brayton, lately deposed as "boss" of Rhode Island, and blind sfince 1900, was college bred, like Campbell. Carll, Perry and Gore. Indeed, Buckley is the country's only "big" blind man who did not go to college. Instead he ran away from home when a boy, and at 20 started in the saloon business opposite the Mare Island navy yard. Brayton was a "boss" before he became blind; Buckley developed into one after he lost his sight. Brayton, like Prof. Campbell, did not let the loss of his sense interfere with his life's work; he kept as strong a grip as ever on the Rhode Island Republican machine, loosening his hold only recently after his failure to elect his man United States senator. He was the political power in little Rhody for upwards of twenty years.

A good deal might be written derogatory of his political methods, but not of his Civil war record. He left college in his sophomore year to organize a company to fight for the Union. When the war closed he had risen to the rank of colonel, as a member of the Heavy Artillery having participated in numerous important engagements, among them being the capture of Port Royal and the reduction of Fort Sumter.

and that three units each, with a daily capacity of 250 tons, will be operated in the beginning. The company has been engaged for several weeks in filling the immense ore bins at Garfield. A full force it at work again on the porphyry deposits.

Utah copper in November produced 2,705,000 pounds of copper, and earned net profits of $90,000 for October.

A rich strike is reported in the old Illinois mine of the Bingham Amalgamated company. The vein has widened out to nine feet, two feet of which runs 25 per cent copper, while the entire vein averages 5.07 per cent, which is far above the average in the Bingham zone. Two shifts are at work driving a raise from the 400 level.

failed the collections ceased. At the time the company stopped work, it was drifting on a very promising vein northeast from the north crosscut of the Calumet shaft, although the vein is entirely outside the Calumet ground, being drifted on through the Suez and Silver State claims, a little southeast of the Berlin shaft. It is understood that all the money the company will need for development work has been pledged by Pittsburg men as soon as there is a relaxation of money.

The publication of the fact that the treasury of the Davis-Daly Estates Copper company had been provided with but $500,000 upon the organization and flotation of the company, instead of $2,000,000, as the public had been led to believe, had added to the surprise of stockholders. It is promised, however, that the remainder of the fund will be provided by the vendors as soon as money conditions improve and that development work on the properties in Butte will be resumed.

The Cable Consolidated Mining company, which is operating the Cable mines some distance above Anaconda, has also been compelled to suspend operations because the company had all its funds in the Fort Pitt National bank, which has failed. For some time the Cable company took out enough copper ore to pay all expenses of mining and development during its exploration of the gold veins in the property, but when the smelters ceased purchasing copper ore the company had to fall back upon its treasury for development funds. The failure of the Pittsburg bank shut off that supply.

Owing to the closing down of the Washoe smelter at Anaconda, and the consequent suspension of operations at all of the Amalgamated mines in the Butte district, with the exception of those known as the Boston & Montana, the copper output for December was materially smaller than for any preceding month of the year. The output for the month of December was 5,845,400 pounds against 8,310,550 for November, and 9,775,225 pounds for October. The Amalgamated and North Butte properties were operated for six days during the month of December. The output in detail was as follows:

Boston & Montana	48,800	60	2,839,000
Anaconda	9,000	68	612,000
Butte & Boston	1,200	61	73 200
Washoe	900	58	52,200
North Butte	2,400	75	180,000
W. A. Clark	26,000	61	1,586,000
Pittsburg & Montana	6,000	70	420,000
Miscellaneous	800	70	42,000

impregnated with sand that it must be washed to bring it up to commercial grade. Some sixty-five miles southwest of Coleraine is the Cuyuna range, in Crow Wing county, to which much attention has been paid the past few years. The Steel corporation, Pickands, Mather & Co., the Shenango Furnace company, Rogers, Brown & Co., and other operators have conducted a great deal of exploratory work. No little ore has been proved up, but in general it is low in iron and high in phosphorus. Hematite running 62 per cent iron has been brought up in the drill cores, though for the most part the ore is a limonite. It doubtless will be many years before the Cuyuna becomes the scene of any extensive mining operations.

The Longyear District.

Sixty miles west of the Cuyuna and 100 miles southwest of the western end of the Mesaba range as now determined is a new district, styled the Longyear. This lies in the northeastern portion of Otter Tail county, Minn., and as far as exploration for mineral goes, it is a virgin territory. It cannot be learned that any ore has yet been found there, but as there are some favorable surface indications the opinion has been expressed that possibly the "Longyear range" may be a continuation of the Mesaba, but beyond the fact that it appears to be along the general strike of that formation, if projected, there is little in support of such conjecture. Still another possible iron ore field is the so-called "Hiago" range, lying near the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary, southeast of St. Paul. Over in Wisconsin, exploration still continues in the Baraboo district. The limits of the field are pretty well defined. Little has been done latterly on the Vermilion range, and except for the discovery of the new ore body at the Steel corporation's Soudan mine no finds of importance have been made during the year.

Exploration has been very active on the Gogebic range, and much of it is being done at depth from present workings. This is particularly the case on the Michigan side of the Montreal river. Ore has been found much deeper on the Gogebic than was suspected in the early days, and it is evident the district is one with tremendous reserves. West of the Montreal, on the Wisconsin side, the old Penokee range, so-called, is receiving much attention. The ground is being tested as far west as Mellen, Wis. There is much ore in this portion of the Gogebic country, but so considerable a proportion of it is low in iron that the district has been neglected for many years. A similar revival on the western end of the Marquette range has been a feature of the year. Drills have been in service also in th Ishpeming and Negaunee fields, and in the Cascade district, to the south. The most important exploratory and development work in the Marquette region, however, has been that under way in the Swanzey district, some twenty miles south of Negaunee. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company has had a large number of drills in commission in this territory during the past four or five years, and the work has been attended with great success. An immense tonnage of ore has been proved up, and the fourth mine—the Smith—is now being developed. Diamond drill work has been productive of important results at the western end of the Menominee range. A large number of deposits have been found during the past few years. Some exploration has been in progress at the east end of the Menominee, notably in the Felch Mountain country. There are large deposits of ore here, that of very low grade for the most part, and something better is being sought.

Bessemer Ore Decreasing.

The proportion of the mines producing Bessemer ore is constantly diminishing, while the greater number of new finds are not of Bessemer character. Comparatively little Bessemer ore is mined on either the Marquette or Menominee ranges, practically none on the latter; much of the Gogebic production is Steel corporation ore, and a good deal of what is left is owned by other steel-makers who are no more anxious to sell than is the bigger company; the Vermilion is owned almost entirely by the corporation. On the Mesaba, all the principal steel concerns are quite well entrenched. Aside from these, the operators with ore to sell can be counted on the fingers. While much the biggest bulk of its holdings are on the Mesaba, the Steel corporation controls the greater number of the best mines on all five ranges.

The independent interests may be divided into two classes—those with small properties of comparatively trifling value, and a second class comprising a very few mining concerns of first rank, such as the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, Corrigan, McKinney & Co., Pickands, Mather & Co. and Oglebay, Norton & Co. The mines that remain independent producers on a considerable scale are without exception properties that in addition to possessing large and valuable ore bodies have been managed with great skill and prudence. The short-sighted concerns are out of business, and what were once their mines are now in the hands of the Steel corporation and other big interests. There is no question that the advent of the United States Steel corporation into the Lake Superior region has inured to the decided benefit of the district as a whole. Not only has it given greater stability to the trade, but there is scarcely a doubt that it has been productive of the maintenance of higher wages and has insured steadier employment.

While because of the depressed condition of the trade it is doubtful that the Mesaba range will ship as much ore as the 27,300,000 tons sent out the past season, the district will be ready next spring to considerably better this record-breakouge in 1908. With twenty-one new mines opened or brought to the shipping stage in 1907, there are now some 120 properties, big and small, that are prepared to produce on a more or less heavy scale.

On the Vermilion.

The past year has not been productive of the opening of new mines on the Vermilion range, but it has been fruitful of important discoveries adding very largely to the life of the Steel corporation's Soudan property at Tower. This mine, formerly known as the Minnesota, was the first property developed in the state. It entered the shipping list twenty-four years ago and a year ago was supposed to be pretty well exhausted of its mineral wealth. A new and important strike was made last winter, however, this at a depth of 1,400 feet, when it had been feared the ore petered out entirely at the 1,200-foot level, and a few months ago, when the development of the new deposit had been started, a second ore body was cut into.

While nothing has yet been done in the way of fixing ore prices for the coming season, there is expectation of a reduction of 25 cents on Bessemer ore and 50 cents on non-Bessemer. This would make the quotations $4.75 for old range Bessemer, $4.50 for Mesabe Bessemer, $5.70 for old range, non-Bessemer and $5.50 for Mesaba non-Bessemer. However, if the price is to be cut it is also the expectation that it will be more than offset by a further reduction in the Bessemer guarantee. The standard was put down from 56.50 per cent to 55 per cent. a year ago. There is talk of a reduction now to 50 per cent, but, if any is made, the cut in the basic standard will hardly be as drastic as that.

CONSTITUTES ADULTERATION.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 4.—Circuit Judge Wiest yesterday afternoon in an opinion held that the use of cereal and water in sausage is an adulteration of the product and brings it within the scope of the state pure food law prohibiting adulterations. The decision was made in the application of Armour & Co. for an injunction against the state from interfering with the sale of their sausages because of cereal and water used in its manufacture.

Don't Take the Risk.

When you have a bad cough or cold do not let it drag along until it becomes chornic bronchitis or develops into an attack of penumonia, but give it the attention it deserves and get rid of it. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you are sure of prompt relief. From a small beginning the sale and use of this preparation has extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. Its many remarkable cures of coughs and colds have won for it this wide reputation and extensive one. Sold by all druggists.

MINNESOTA

SAY THOMAS BROKE JAIL

In Walla Walla Before Being Caught in Minneapoiis.

Since His Arrest He Has Been Sent to the Asylum.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Thomas, who was captured two months ago by C. F. Britt, 1022 Eighth street south, whom he atempted to hold up and rob, is a jail breaker from Walla Walla, Wash., according to the police of that city.

Thomas is now in the hospital for the insane at Rochester, where he was taken after the attempted to kill himself in the county jail. He will not be sent to Walla Walla, at least until he recovers. He is said to have been convicted and sentenced to fourteen years in the Washington state prison, but escaped from the county jail immediately after he was sentenced.

When he attempted highway robbery in Minneapolis he met his Waterloo. He met Mr. and Mrs. Britt on their way home, and aiming a revolver at them, demanding their money. Britt knocked him down, disarmed him and turned him over to the police.

BRAKEMAN KILLED.

William Conlon Slips and Falls Under Wheels at Aldrich.

Staples, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Conlon, a brakeman on No. 57, a way freight of the Northern Pacific, was instantly killed at Aldrich, a station a short distance east of here, Thursday morning. While attempting to get onto a moving car, he slipped and fell under the wheels, being killed instantly. Deceased was about 30 years old and leaves a wife and one child at Staples. He had been in the employ of the company for eight years, and had a host of friends all along the line.

ABDOMEN TORN OPEN.

Frightful Experience of Young Man Helping His Father Butcher.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Theisen, residing six miles from St. Joseph, was seriously injured while at work at his home.

The young man and his father began work Monday morning doing some butchering. The young fellow was fastening a chain to three poles when he slipped and fell down. The hook of the chain caught his abdomen and his own weight and the force of the fall laid open his abdomen. Young Theisen fell in a faint and Dr. Pinault of St. Joseph was immediately summoned. The condition of the lad is still serious, although the physician believes he will recover.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Winona—Jesse C. Higbee, a cigar dealer of Dodge Center, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with Referee Burns. His assets are placed at $2,700 and liabilities at $765.

Moorhead—The directors of the Moorhead National bank, at a meeting on Tuesday evening, declared a 10 per cent dividend and carried $10,000 to the surplus fund, which now reaches $40,000, giving capital an surplus of $100,000.

St. Cloud—Der Nordstern Thursday took possession of the Anzeiger, a German weekly paper which has been published by A. E. Fritz for several months past. The deal for the sale has been pending for several weeks, but was not definitely closed until Thursday.

Pine City—While hauling wood from their farm, George and Henry Resch were nearly shot by a stray bullet from a rifle. They were lifting a piece of timber, when five or six shots were fired from the Maves place, which adjoins theirs. One of the bullets came whizzing between the lads and lodged in a nearby poplar tree.

Perham—The electric light plant was shut down Wednesday night, and the prospects now are that it will not start in again for ten days. The trouble is in the lines of the large boiler, which are being replaced by new ones. The small boiler is not heavy enough to carry the load.

Mora—John Harr of Peace received word this week that his aunt, Sophia Blair, who died recently at Chenoa, Ill., left a fortune of $50,000, and that he was one of eleven heirs who would inherit this sum. Mr. Harr is one of the new settlers of Peace.

Ada—P. L. Herwin, a civil engineer in the employ of the Great Northern railroad, spent a day here conferring with F. L. Hampson, Senator A. L. Hanson and County Attorney Brattland on the matter of using Long lake and the state ditch north of town as a drainage system to carry off the overflow from the Wild Rice river.

Crookston—H. Arter and Robert Wade, the two men who were arrested on suspicion that they were train robbers, were given a hearing in justice court and on advice of their counsel they pleaded guilty to being suspicious characters. They were given a small fine, which they paid, and were thereupon released.

Rush City—The new M. W. A. hall here will be formally dedicated Jan. 16. Attorney General Young, Judge Jaggard of St. Paul, Harry Lund of Minneapolis and others will speak, and there will be music by the famous M. W. A. male quartette of Minneapolis, and an orchestra from St. Paul.

St. Paul — Governor Johnson has been invited by B. F. Nelson, president of the Minneapolis Commercial club, to be one of the speakers at the dinner to be given Tuesday evening to the jobbers of Minneapolis by the directors of the club. The governor accepted and will be one of the attractions of the evening.

Barnesville—Friday was the warmest day ever known there at this time of the year. At 1:30 p. m. the temperature was 64 degs. above zero.

St. Paul—French and French literature will no longer have a place in the examination subjects prepared for those who apply for professional certificates. The elimination of the two was decided at a meeting of the state high school board Friday.

WISCONSIN

MILWAUKEE MAN AWARDED MEDAL

By President for Braving Death to Save Child's Life.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The president has awarded a railroad medal to Edward McGrath of Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. McGrath is station agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad at Stowell station, Milwaukee. He is crippled, making it necessary for him to wear a piece of wood attached to the bottom of one shoe. In August, last year, while McGrath was on the station platform, the crossing gates being closed, Emma Hummich, 6 years old, attempted to cross the tracks in front of an approaching train. McGrath shouted to her, but she failed to heed his warning and was in imminent danger of being run down. McGrath ran to her aid, and with great risk to himself, succeeded in lifting her from in front of the train as it rushed by.

McGrath was struck by the pilot of the engine, but escaped serious injury. The child was uninjured.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Milwaukee—William Gutknecht, 56 years of age, veteran brewer and grading contractor, died early Wednesday morning at the Milwaukee hospital. He was taken to the hospital Dec. 22, when he was operated upon for appendicitis, and although the operation was successful, complications set in, resulting in death.

Whitewater—Mrs. M. Maher, living near Johnstown, had a narrow escape from burning to death. She placed a hot flatiron in her bed and it set the bed on fire. Her son, in the next room, was awakened by his mother's screams, and rescued her after himself being seriously burned. The fire was extinguished.

Oshkosh—City Attorney Cowley declares that he will begin suit against the Eastern Wisconsin Railway & Light company unless it pays into the city treasury the money which he claims to be due as back taxes during the time the company was paying 2 per cent on its receipts instead of the 2½ per cent which the city attorney claims to be due.

Green Bay—Bandits entered the general merchandise store of R. M. Prust & Co., at Greenleaf, this county, blew up the safe and robbed it of over $500 and escaped by means of a handcar. The robbery occurred at midnight. The robbers left over $1,000 in checks and notes.

Evansville—Fire destroyed a large tobacco shed on the homestead of Col. George W. Hall, the veteran showman, at noon New Year's day. Several valuable horses narrowly escaped, that are connected with the Hargreave show, which is owned by Col. Hall. The elephant was at large for a short time, but was captured by his keeper.

Ashland—Mrs. E. Ryder, mother of Mrs. Joe M. Chapple, died Wednesday morning at her home in Winthrop, a suburb of Boston.

Hudson—The Sunday lid and the 11 o'clock lid are on tight. Acting Mayor J. W. Muncy has ordered that the closing ordinance become effective at once. Some of the thirsty element are talking special election.

Madison—The funeral of John B. Cassoday, chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, who died last Monday from the effects of a surgical operation, was held Thursday afternoon and was largely attended. Delegations of lawyers were present from Milwaukee, Janesville, Wausau, La Crosse, Richland Center and other cities of the state.

WANT LOWER WATER.

Object of Rainy River Low Water Association.

Spooner, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—An organization known as Lake of the Woods and Rainy River Low Water association has been formed by settlers on Lake of the Woods and Rainy River.

The officers elected are as follows: President, Paul Marschalk; vice president; Helie Clementson; secretary, James D. Taylor; treasurer, A. M. Dandby; trustees, H. V. Curry, B. A. Arneson and William Lyzsel, Sr.

The object of the association is to lower the water level of Lake of the Woods, and to devise a method for removing some of the obstruction to the outlets of the lake. The water during the last year has submerged a number of valuable farms and meadows, and the settlers think the rise of water is due to the dam built at the outlet of Winnipeg river, at the Lake of the Woods.

HANDY WITH HIS PEN.

Brakeman Dunham Leaves Some Bad Checks at Crookston.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. E. Dunham, a well known Great Northern brakeman, running out of this city for the past six or seven years, turned up missing yesterday, and Louis Roy, a furniture man, has a souvenir in the shape of a $40 check with the name of Conductor Gould attached, which Dunham had passed, and the Union saloon had one of the same manufacture for $25. It is supposed Dunham went to Canada. He came here from St. Paul, where his record was not clear. He leaves a wife in straitened circumstances.

NORTHERN PACIFIC ALSO AGREES TO LIQUIDATE.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific is following suit with the Great Northern and will pay the 5 per cent penalty on its gross earnings tax, which was allowed to become overdue in 1905. Suit has been brought by the attorney general, but word was sent yesterday that the penalty would be paid, and asking for the amount. It is $11,880.63.

LOGGER'S INJURIES FATAL.

Pine City, Minn., Jan. 4.—Ten days ago John Hotin, for forty years a logger and trapper in this county, was caught between two horses and squeezed as in a vice until several of his ribs were broken. After suffering intensely from his injuries, he died Friday. His family consisted of his wife and six children.

UPPER MICHIGAN

ROMANCE ENDS IN THEIR MARRYING

Rapid River Doctor and a Nurse Combine Professions.

Gladstone, Mich., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another Delta county romance has been culminated here in the marriage of Miss Mildred McLean of Rudyard, Mich., and Dr. A. I. Laing of Rapid River, at the residence of G. E. Sampson.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George E. Empson, pastor of the Gladstone Congregational church, and was witnessed only by a few close friends of the bride and groom. The marriage is the result of a friendship which developed when Miss McLean came from the home of her parents at Rudyard some time ago to accept a position as nurse in the hospital conducted by Dr. Laing at Rapid River. The two were peculiarly attracted to each other and the friendly feeling developed into a more tender relation which resulted in the wedding ceremony.

DIED AT BRAINERD.

Ishpeming, Mich., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Mrs. Fred Duhaime, who died at Brainerd, Minn., Thursday, has arrived here and the funeral will be held this afternoon.

The deceased had been living with her son, Wallace Duhaime, at Brainerd. For a few years before going to Minnesota she lived at Beacon, also at one of the towns on the Menominee range, where her sons were employed. She is survived by several sons and daughters, one of the latter being Mrs. P. Mulally of Marquette.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet — William Thomas, Dennis Harrington, John Rowell and Thomas Matthews have been appointed under ground captain in Nos. 5 and 6 shafts, Calumet branch of the C. & H. mine. Other appointments have been made at the Hecla branch of the property during the past two weeks.

Houghton—The close of the year found the college of mines with 236 students on the rolls and several more coming to enter after the holiday vacation. This is the highest number of students that have ever been in the college at this season of any year.

Calumet—The Eagles at a social Saturday night will install the following officers: President, B. Barnham; vice president, A. Curto; secretary, A. Burkman; treasurer, J. J. Kaufmann; inside guard, John Wills; outside guard, James Gribble; trustees, W. S. Paddock, John Nelson and William Wills; physician, Dr. O. H. Kohlhas.

Houghton — W. W. Cushman, recently resigned from a position in the office of the Houghton County Electric Light company, has accepted a similar position in Minneapolis under A. L. Leonard, formerly Houghton manager of the Stone & Webster interests.

Hancock—Alex Stevenson, copper country representative of the Kelly - Howe-Thompson Hardware company, Duluth, has returned from Duluth where he attended a meeting of the salesmen of this firm. The meeting was not only well attended, but was also one of the best ever held.

Ishpeming — John Ralstone, aged sixteen years, son of Mrs. N. J. Ralstone, a widow residing at Humboldt, died, Thursday, of appendicitis. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon, with services at the home, conducted by Rev. G. Adamson of Champion. Interment was in the Beacon cemetery.

Marquette — The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the fraternal order of Modern Woodmen was celebrated Thursday night at Fraternity hall. Preceding the program, the installation of the new officers of Lake Superior Pioneer camp, No. 391, and of Oak Leaf camp, No. 291, took place.

Mrs. Margaret Holly of Alston, who was appointed financial agent of Good Will Farm, has arrived in Houghton to assume her duties. She takes up the work dropped by Mrs. Walker when the latter was made superintendent of the institution.

SIX SOLDIERS PUNISHED.

Some Wearers of the Blue at Fort Snelling Are Tried.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six Fort Snelling soldiers were this week tried and sentenced by court-martial at the fort.

Private John T. Omohundro, Battery C, Third field artillery, was sentenced to one year at hard labor, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and dishonorable discharge for disobedience to the orders of Capt. G. de G. Catlin.

Privates Lawrence H. Lowder and Alfred A. Nesham of the same battery, were fined $10 each and will serve three months at hard labor for leaving their posts without permission while on guard.

Private Harry Martin, also of Battery C, Peter Bauman, Troop F, Fourth cavalry, and John Haley were also tried. Martin, for desertion, was sentenced to eighteen months at hard labor and dishonorable discharge; Bauman to twenty days and $20 fine for attempting to shirk work in the kitchen, and Haley to eighteen months at hard labor and a dishonorable discharge. Haley tired of the soldier's life even before he had been enlisted long enough to be assigned to a company.

DECAPITATED BODY IS SENT TO MINNEAPOLIS.

Bemidji, Minn., Jn. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Ole Espen, who was accidentally killed at Kelliher last Saturday morning, the wheels of the train entirely severing his head from his body, was taken to Minneapolis yesterday morning, Washington Smith, son of A. M. Smith of Minneapolis, acting as the escort of the remains.

When Espen was killed, there was considerable trouble to complete the identification of the body, but later it was learned that the name of the dead man was Ole Espen, who had been working in the camps near Kelliher, and who came to Kelliher recently from Minneapolis.

DAKOTAS

BOY WITNESSED BRUTAL MURDER

Saw James O'Brien Deliberately Kill Arthur Le Claire.

Pembina, N. D., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the district court, before Judge Kneeshaw, next Tuesday, James O'Brien, the self-confessed murderer of Arthur Le Claire, the young railroad man whose body was found in the river at Neche, will learn his fate. It is expected he will be given a life term in the penitentiary, because of his youth.

He waived a preliminary hearing when arraigned before a justice of the peace.

Detective Crawford has obtained an affidavit from a 17-year-old boy, whose name is not given, to the effect that he left Gladue's rink at Neche on the river twenty rods north of the scene of the Le Claire murder at 11:45 the night of the crime. When about fifty feet from the place where Le Claire was killed, the boy saw two men standing in the road and recognized them as O'Brien and Le Claire. He heard O'Brien say, "Come on 'Goose' (Le Clare's nickname), let's go down to the rink."

"No," was the reply, "I am sick and am going home and go to bed." O'Brien then said, "Come, walk to the woods and walk off your jag." "No," again said Le Claire. "Afraid of the wolves," sneeded O'Brien. "Not afraid of anything, going home to bed," replied Le Claire.

The boy witnessed the brutal murder of Le Claire by O'Brien, which was not done in anger or in a quarrel, as stated in O'Brien's confession, but in cold blood.

MEET AT VALLEY CITY.

North Dakota Educational Association Ends Its Session.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual session of the North Dakota Educational association has ended, and Valley City has been selected as next year's meeting place. The choice was made unanimously.

The amendment to the constitution, making it possible to hold the convention in cities other than Fargo and Grand Forks, was adopted by a vote of 74 to 29, and a lively discussion followed as to whether it would be possible for Valley City to provide accommodations for the big crowd in attendance. The association was assured that there are ample hotel accommodations at this time.

The following officers were elected:

President—Mattle M. Davis, superintendent of Cass county.

Vice president—Supt. G. W. Hanna, Valley City.

Second vice president—Frances Merrill, Jamestown.

Secretary—Prof. Clyde R. Travis, Mayville normal.

Treasurer—C. Ellithorpe, Williston.

An interesting feature of the session of the department of higher and professional education was an attack on college education by some of the speakers.

TRUCE IS DECLARED.

Hansbrough and His Opponents Said to Have Made Peace.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Hansbrough has made his peace with the McKenzie and railroad interests which have been opposing him and supporting C. B. Little of Bismarck, according to information secured here and Little is to be withdrawn from the field in favor of Hansbrough. This program is stated on good authority to have been fully decided upon by the stalwarts. Instructions are stated to have been issued to the lieutenants in many sections of the state to work along these lines from now on.

SMALLPOX OUTBREAK IS VERY EXPENSIVE.

Fessenden, N. D., Jan. 4.—The most extensive and most general outbreak of smallpox ever known in this country, came to public notice in this city when five families were simultaneously quarantined. It appears the disease has existed among the Russian families for some time, but it was unknown to the rest of the public. Upon investigation it appears extensive and severe. The public schools are closed.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Pierre, S. D.—A meeting of the Missouri river navigation convention is to be held in Sioux City, Jan. 22-23, at which methods for again making the big river a factor in Northwestern transportation are to be discussed.

Fargo, N. D. — The sleighing is still very good and almost every description of vehicle is equipped with a pair of bobs. The dealers in sleighs, bobs and like equipment are doing considerable business, although it is not what it would have been had the snow come earlier in the season.

Grand Forks, N. D.—There were 257 arrests made in Grand Forks in 1907, according to the record in the office of Chief Lowe. This is about the usual average and shows that Grand Forks, although growing in population, is not becoming more criminal.

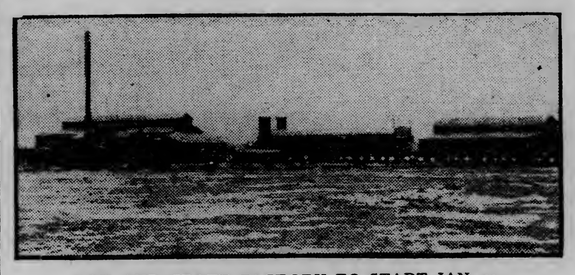
Fargo, N. D.—Attorney Frank A. Nye of Moorhead appeared in the federal court for Ralph Pederson, president of the Pederson Mercantile company, Anton H. Erickson, treasurer; and Peder H. Pederson, secretary, and entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of selling liquor to Indians.

Rolla, N. D.—The large Belcourt convent was totally destroyed by fire. The pupils were enjoying the holiday vacation at their homes and consequently many escaped a terible death in the flames. The loss is estimated at $15,000, partially covered by insurance.

PIGEONS REACHED BOSTON.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Telegrams from Boston tell of the arrival there of the carrier pigeons bearing a New Year's greeting from the mayor of Minneapolis to the mayor of Boston. The birds reached their loft at Roxbury at 9:16 Thursday, that had been released at St. Paul Saturday noon.

CASS LAKE'S NEW INDUSTRY



BOX AND CRATE FACTORY TO START JAN. 20.

Cass Lake, Minn., Jan. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The box and crate factory which will occupy a foremost place in the industries of Cass Lake has been completed and will begin operations about Jan. 20. Already the firm has received several hundred orders for boxes and it will take several months after the mill is in operation to fill the orders now on hand. Over 100 men will be employed in the factory, and it will be run all the year round. It was thought for a time that the factory would not begin operations until late in the spring, but the owners, Messrs. Kenfield and Lamereaux, have announced that everything is in readiness and as soon as the employes can arrive the mill will be in operation.

NOT HEARD FROM.

Steamship Mount Royal May Have Been Picked Up by Hungarian.

St. John, N. B., Jan. 4.—No word has yet been received here of the Canadian Pacific line steamer, Mount Royal, which left Antwerp on Dec. 7 for St. John, having on board 594 emigrants, besides a crew numbering 100 men. The Canadian Pacific officials in this city state that they believe that the steamer probably had met with an accident to her machinery, which made her drift out of her course and that she would be heard of in due time at some other port. The Mount Royal is not fitted with wireless apparatus. Capt. Purchell is in command of the Mount Royal and S. A. Murray is chief engineer. The Canadian Pacific officials have no list of the officers or crew. The Mount Royal, which was built at Newcastle, England, in 1898, registers 4,955 tons. She is 700 feet long and 96 feet beam.

London, Jan. 4.—The non-arrival of the Allan line steamer Hungarian, which sailed from Greenock, Scotland, Dec. 14, and is now a week overdue at Portland, Me., leads shipping men to believe that she has fallen in with the Canadian Pacific liner Mount Royal, which left Antwerp Dec. 7, and is now long overdue at St. John, N. B. The course of the Hungarian would naturally cross that of the Mount Royal and underwriters would not be surprised to hear that the Mount Royal is being towed by the Hungarian.

VASSAR GRADUATE

Takes Up Fancy Roller Skating as a Profession.

Vassar graduate, former newspaper writer, and now a fancy roller skater, tells the story of the rather strange career of Miss Jennie Houghton of New York city.

Miss Houghton is now in Duluth and will be seen next week in exhibitions of roller skating at the Temple rink.

"I have been on roller skates since I was 8 years old," said Miss Houghton. There were several years during which I did not do much skating, but with the revival of the craze I have taken it up more enthusiastically than ever."

Miss Houghton is a graduate of Vassar college, and after completing her studies went into newspaper work in New York and Boston. She left her position last summer to go on the road in her roller skating act. She has evidently made a success of it, as her act is most gorgeously costumed.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Costs Nothing to Try.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant-tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Bullish Situation Causes a Firm Advance in Prices.

Flax is a Little Easier at the Close Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 4.—Wheat enjoyed a healthy advance in the American markets during the short session today, the closing prices showing a good gain over yesterday.

The strong Northwestern situation and a firm demand for cash wheat were not the least important of the bullish influences. Car receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis are very light as compared with last year, although where now there are long lines of empty cars waiting to be used, a year ago they were very hard to get hold of.

The cash wheat situation is very strong. Millers have been good buyers for several days.

The Liverpool market was higher at the close, but the continental markets were off. Liverpool closed ⅜d higher, Paris ¼c to ½c lower, Budapest 2⅝c lower and Berlin unchanged.

The May option closed ¾c higher in Duluth and New York, 1⅜-½c higher in Chicago; 1⅛c up in Minneapolis, and 1c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1⅛c higher in New York.

May corn closed ⅛-¼c higher in Chicago and ⅛d higher in Liverpool. May corn closed ⅝c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a firm undertone to the speculative wheat market at the start and values showed an advance of ¾d to ⅞d. The easiness in America was counteracted by the fact of the smaller offers in hand in La Plata offerings and good support by the leading bull interests. Following the opening, the market turned weak and sold off rather sharply on less inquiry for La Plata parcels which were offered 3d lower, and lack of support. Toward the close, however, shorts became nervous and covered some and prices recovered some of the decline. Values at the close were ⅜d higher than Friday.

"Corn was firm at the start and ¼d higher and further gained ¼d during the morning. Support was the result of the continued cold weather in Europe and a good demand for spot. Spot wheat was steady and unchanged, corn firm and ¼d to ½d higher."

Car receipts at Duluth were 54 against 81 last year, and at Minneapolis 135 against 271 last year, making a total for the Northwest 189 against 352 last year. Chicago received 18 against 85 last year. Winnipeg received 220 against 37 last year.

Wheat trading was rather quiet in the Duluth market. Offerings were light and prices were up. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.14⅝, went off to $1.14½, railed to $1.15, declined to $1.14⅞, rallied to $1.15⅜ and closed at $1.15¼, a gain of ¾c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed at $1.16, a gain of 1⅛c over yesterday.

Cash spring wheat closed here on a basis of 4c under May for No. 1 northern. Durum wheat closed ¾c higher.

Flax was lightly traded in and closed a little weaker. The demand was off. May flax opened ¼c higher at $1.23½, declined to $1.22½, rallied to $1.23 and closed at that price, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July flax opened ½c lower at $1.24¼, advanced to $1.24½ and closed at $1.24½, a loss of ¼c from yesterday.

Oats closed ⅛c higher and other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Firm on Account of Light Northwest and World's Shipments.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The wheat market opened firm today because of light receipts in the Northwest and world's shipments, which were about 1,500 bushels below that of last year. May wheat opened ¼@⅜c higher at $1.07⅞ and then declined to $1.06¾. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 207 cars against 305 cars last week and 407 a year ago.

The market became strong at the end of the first hour. The close was strong, with May 1⅜@1½c higher at $1.08¼@⅜.

The corn market was firm because of unsettled weather throughout the corn belt. May corn opened ¾c higher at 61⅜@61½c and then sold off to 60⅞c. Local receipts were 141 cars with one of contract grade.

Prices ruled steady with the exception of a small decline shortly after the opening. The close was steady with May ⅛@¼c higher at 61⅜c.

The oats market opened firm, but soon lost the advance because of slight support. May oats opened ⅛c higher at 54⅝c and sold off to 54½c. Local receipts were 122 cars.

The provisions market was weak all around, because of heavy receipts of live hogs here and at all other receiving points. May pork was 2½c lower at $13.25. Lard was down 5c at $8. Ribs were off 2½@5c at $7.17½.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Jan. 4.—The flour trade continues in a neutral position. Buyers are in a conservative mood. The strong tone in the wheat market, especially in cash stuff, holds quotations very firm. Flour is being ordered out quite freely. Shipments, 64,800 barrels. First patents, $5.70@5.80; second patents, $5.60@5.70; first clears, $4.30@4.40; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

Minneapolis Wheat.

Minneapolis, Jan. 4.—Close: Wheat, May, $1.14⅝; July, $1.14¾; No. 1 hard, $1.16½; No. 1 northern, $1.14½; No. 2 northern, $1.12½; No. 3 northern, $1.08½@1.10½.

New York Grain.

New York, Jan. 4. Close: Wheat—May, $1.14¼, July, $1.07¼.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: There was absolutely no reason for selling wheat short this morning in face of a higher cables, light Northwest receipts and strong Northwest prices. The only thing which induced selling by the local crowd was a little reaction in corn due to some profit taking at the opening. Before the close, when the early shorts tried to cover, the market went through the $1.08 mark and pushed right up to $1.08½. This is a new high record. Dispatches early reported further gain in cash wheat prices at the mills. New York houses claim improved foreign bids both from United Kingdom and continent. The world's shipments estimated at only 7,600,000 bushels. Primary receipts have fallen short of last year 500,000 bushels for two days. Winnipeg wheat receipts today graded 76 per cent feed stuff. It is believed that the bull leader who sold out early in the week has made further efforts today to replace lines. Making allowance for the natural reactions due to profit taking, we think it wise to keep close to the buying side on all soft spots.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Prices are unchanged and the market is quiet today. Receipts are expected to pick up Monday and the market to settle down on a more even basis.

PROPHETS WERE WRONG.

London Answers: To us who cannot imagine existence possible without our railways it seems extraordinary that when it was first proposed to run carriages on rails there was an amount of opposition in the country little short of a revolution. Sensible, educated men predicted that they would destroy more lives than war; that it would be perfectly impossible to attain a speed of twenty miles an hour with safety; that people would be run over, and, most curious of all, that trains careering over the country would so frighten the cows that they would cease to give milk.

Old newspapers and periodicals are full of such mistaken forecasts, in the London Morning Post, published some day in the third week of January, 1840, may be read the following absurd prophecy concerning what has proved to be the most successful of undertakings—the penny post.

"We are a good deal surprised to find the Spectator, which generally sees through quackery, and is above giving countenance to mere ministerial cant and humbug, writing of this penny preposterousness as if there were really something in it deserving of public esteem."

Last year (1905-6) the postoffice delivered 2,707,200,000 letters, 168,000,000 postcards, and 1,077,000,000 newspapers, bookpackets, circulars and samples, all because this "penny preposterousness" was just what the country wanted.

The telegraph was regarded by many people with the same scorn. How could any one possibly communicate instantly with a person one thousand, or even one hundred, miles away? they asked. It was all moonshine, just a waste of public money! How chagrined these folk must be now, if any of them are still living. We have 12,687 telegraph offices in the country, using 81,385 instruments, with a length of wire that would reach to the moon and back—588,164 miles..and a working staff of 192,454 men, women and boys. The number of home and foreign messages transmitted last year was 92,625,176.

The idea of driving ships by steam was laughed at in the same way. No one, it was said, would risk his life on a ship that might be blown to atoms in mid-ocean by a bursting boiler. But the most surprising prophecy on this subject was made by no less an authority than a member of the Royal society. He warned the inventors that the coal required for fuel would sink the ship. England alone now owns close on 11,000 steamships, with a capacity of nearly 16,000,000 tons. So much for the foreknowledge of the Royal society member.

There are many still living who remember when George Francis Train came over here from America, and proposed to run tramways in the streets. The idea now seems simple enough. Indeed, the wonder is that the world lasted so long without discovering it. But Train was held up to ridicule, and only by the greatest perseverance did he succeed in getting a trial for his invention. Even then the country was very slow to take it up. But now our 2,200 miles of tramways are far less than we could do with.

When the tramways proved a success, however, another extraordinary miscalculation was made. Writing of London, the Times prophesied that in a few years' time the omnibus would disappear, and even that London institution, the cab, would cease to be used to any extent. "Who will suffer the jolting and churning of an omnibus ride," asked the Times leader writer, "when he can travel with ease and comfort in the smooth-running tramway car?" But, so far from disappearing, the omnibuses still flourish.

A curious prophecy on lighting by electricity, made in 1879, is remarkable because it came from a commission appointed by parliament, which consisted of some of our ablest men, and was helped by all the expert knowledge in the country. In those days we had only the big arc light, which is still used in many of our streets, and the question was—could this big light ever be divided up so that we could use it in our houses? Quite impossible, said the wise commission. In a parliamentary blue book their opinion is published.

"Although electricity can be used for lights of great power, its economical subdivision is impossible. Its use in small lights for domestic purposes is the dream of the visionary and the enthusiast."

But, as with the tramways, so, when electrical lighting proved a practical success, the prophets set to work again. This is to be the only light of the future, they vowed. Gas will disappear, and the shareholders will suffer the loss of all their investments. Well, on the contrary, electricity is giving way to the incandescent gaslight, and more gas is manufactured and consumed now than ever before.

These failures ought to shut the mouths of would-be prophets. Just now some shareholders in electric telegraphs are shivering in their shoes. Wireless messages are to be sent to Canada at half the price charged by the submarine companies. What is to become of these companies? Very likely they will be put on their mettle, like the gas companies, and make such improvements as will enable them to thrive better than they ever did.

Another current class of prediction relates to women and votes. When women have votes the country will be ruined, say most of the prophets. They will destroy the army and navy, close the public houses, stop horse racing and betting, tax bachelors and turn everything topsy-turvy.

But if a parliamentary committee could not correctly prophesy concerning electrical lighting, who can calculate on what the women will do? Let us give a final prediction relating to them.

When women were struggling for admission to the medical profession some twenty years ago, it was said that, as doctors, they would do incalculable benefit to their own sex. They would at once put an end to tight-lacing, high heels, low dresses, bare arms and all the other fashionable practices that ruin their health.

But since then ladies' heels have grown two inches, the low dresses are worn even in the streets, and it is said that waists are 30 per cent smaller than when women were shut out of the medical profession.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Some Shares Scored Good Advances During the Session.

Market Sold Off in Early Hours But Gathered Strength.

New York, Jan. 4.—Opening prices of stocks today showed mixed changes from last night, which were small for active stocks. Some of yesterday's strong features reacted sharply. American Sugar and National Biscuit declined 1 and Northern Pacific and Southern Railway large fractions. American can preferred rose 2½.

After considerable irregularity during which many of the active stocks sold well below yesterday's closing, the market gathered strength and rose briskly in spots. The Hill and Copper stocks were in the best demand. Canadian Pacific gained 1 point; Northern Pacific, 1⅜; Delaware & Hudson, American Sugar and National Biscuit, 1¼, and St. Paul, Great Northern preferred, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelter, 1. Reading receded a point at 11 o'clock and checked the rise. Union Pacific preferred fell 1 and Missouri Pacific 1½.

The market closed irregular. Prices in the last portion continued to move very irregularly. A rise of 3½ in Northern Pacific overcame the effect of the fall in Reading. American Woolen gained 5; Atlantic Coast, 3¾; the American Agricultural Chemical Stock, 2; Great Western, International Mercantile Marine preferred and Consolidated Gas, 1½, and Colorado Fuel & Railway, 1. Northwestern; Great Northern Ore, Third Avenue and American Ice fell 1. There was some profit-taking towards the last.

Stock Gossip.

New York to Walter Carr: The stock market ruled irregular again today with trading largely confined to floor traders. Nothern Pacific has been a feature of strength and the buying in it has been based on extra dividend rumors. Elsewhere in the list there was more or less realizing which tended to hold the market in check and cause more or less recessions from the best prices made early in the day. It was thought in some quarters that the strength in Northern Pacific was used to market stocks elsewhere in the list. Van Emburg & Atterbury were the large buyers of Northern Pacific. In the industrials, copper held well throughout and advanced easily on small offerings. The close was irregular, but with no great changes in either direction. The bank statement was very good.

* * *

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Another day of bullish activity in stocks. Northern Pacific was the reader on rumors that either dividend would be increased or an extra disbursement made. The bank statement was favorable. It has been noticed on the bulge that quite a few stocks have been distributed which was probably the purpose for the present move. We do not regard the movement as substantial and think advantage should be taken of advance to take profits.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: "We had the best market in months. The floor traders were all taking profits, but commission houses had plenty of orders and all offerings were easily taken and the close was strong all through the list. Money begins to show signs of getting easier and the metal market much better. Butte, Butte Coalition, Copper Range, Old Dominion, Allouez, Centenial, Shannon and Calumet & Arizona will be leaders in any speculative advance.

* * *

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: Another day marking very material progress towards a normal price level has occurred and advances were numerous and substantial stocks are still scarce and the short interest still large. At the same time a very extensive recovery has occurred and a reaction is due. The patient is getting better fast, but is not yet well. Sales on further rally look like being profitable.

Bank Statement.

New York, Jan. 4.—The statement of the clearing house banks for the weeks (five days) shows that the banks hold $11,509,550 less than the requirements of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $8,660,800 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week. The statement follows: Loans, $1,132,871,800; decrease, $14,822,600. Treasury Balances.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $269,785,696; gold, $38,391,336; gold certificates, $58,375,300.

St. Paul Livestock.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—Cattle receipts 100, steady and unchanged. Hogs, receipts 1,00, 5 cents lower, range, $4.22½@4.35; bulk, $4.25@4.30. Sheep, receipts, 200; 10@15c lower quotations unchanged.

New York Money.

New York, Jan. 4.—Close: Money on call nominal; time loans quiet and easier; sixty days 8 and 90 days 7 per cent; 6 months, 6 to 7 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 8@10 per cent. Sterling exchange, strong with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.70@4.85.80 for demand and at $4.81@4.81.25 for 60-day bills. Commercial bills, $4.80¾@4.81.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 4.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 6 to 8 points, and during the early session sold off to a net loss of 10 or 12 points under liquidation and bear pressure promoted by weak cables, labor troubles in Lancashire and rather bearish week-end figures. Business was quiet, however, and the market during the middle of the session rallied 4 or 5 points from the lowest on covering and buying for a turn, which was encouraged by the idea that the long interest had been largely liquidated, and by more favorable trade reports from New England.

Futures closed quiet. Closing bids: January, 10.50; February, 10.60; March, 10.71; April, 10.70; May, 10.67; June, 10.63; July, 10.60; August, 10.45; October, 9.93. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.40; middling gulf, 11.65; no sales.

DRIVEN FROM THEATER BY FREE CIGARETTES.

New York, Jan. 4.—That new stunt of having a liveried citizen in a brilliant color scheme stand in the foyer of the Herald Square theater and hand out free cigarettes between the acts doesn't go with country folks. At least, not with Glens Falls citizens.

The "peerless peaches" of Glens Falls, who are seeing New York on the strength of 8,000,000 votes, more or less, registered in the "most popular domestic girl" contest, attended the performance at the Herald Square last night, under the chaperonage of one of the Glens Falls matrons.

Between the acts they strolled out into the foyer to look at the pictures of Booth, Edwin Foy and other actors. Just as the Glens Falls product steered through the door the color scheme offered the tray of cigarettes mechanically. The chaperon took one look at the tray, and then she landed on it.

"Young ladies," said the chaperon, "this is a godless place, and the devil is at our elbow. We will go away from here."

So they went.

EXPECTS TROUBLE IN CHINA BEFORE LONG.

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—C. Pothill, an English missionary, who has spent twenty years in China, and arrived yesterday on the liner Nippon Maru, says that shortly before he left his station at Kai Tsein, 1,500 miles from Shanghai, the Boxers had caused considerable alarm to the foreign residents. The imposition of a heavy school tax, and a heavier tax on opium had aroused the Boxers to anger, and started them on a wrecking rampage. No lives were lost in the outbreak, but five buildings, belonging to the Protestant and Catholic missions were destroyed.

Pothill is from London. He expects trouble all over China before many months.

ALL IN THE DAY'S WORK.

One public service not enumerated in the schedule of his duties, but which the street sweeper is liable at any time to be called upon to perform, is that of stopping runaway horses; something that he is enabled to do effectually by the aid of his massive and formidable-appearing broom, says the New York Sun.

When a horse runs away the common thing for most people to do is to stand on the sidewalk at a safe distance and breathlessly watch the runaway go by; though there are always some men who make a more or less brave effort to stop it. One man runs out into the street, well in front of the horse, with the hope that seeing him in the road the horse will stop; but when this man sees the horse still tearing along, the man steps back soon enough to give the horse plenty of room to pass.

Another man steps out and waves his hand at the horse, with equal failure. Men sometimes shake their umbrellas in the face of a runaway, standing themselves to one side of the horse's line of approach.

Sometimes, indeed, a man will step out and hold up both hands in front of the flying horse, and maybe stand there in front of it long enough to opportunity to seize it. But the bulk of the men who thus step forth step back promptly as the horse draws near and their efforts to stop it are all likely to be more or less perfunctory.

Not so, however, with the street sweeper, when he is on the job. When he, pushing his massive broom ahead of him with deliberate movement along the gutter, hears the clattering hoofs of a runaway horse coming down the street, and the shouts of the horse's driver running after, he pauses in his accustomed work and raises the implement of his toil.

With its long rattan broom on one side of its head, and its wide iron scraper on the other, the broom head looks fourteen times as big as normal. Facing the coming horse, the sweeper stands firmly with the length of the broomhandle to give him safety.

Suddenly confronted with this strange and ponderous object thus raised in front of its nose, the horse halts, and the panting driver comes up and jumps into the wagon and seizes the reins and gives the requisite number of yanks on the horse's bit.

GADSKI SANG HER LOUDEST.

"Many a good voice has been ruined in childhood," says Mme. Johanna Gadski in Musical America. "First, there is a tendency to sing too much and too loudly, and later on a restless desire to change teachers.

"I did not inherit my musical gift. My mother could not distinguish one tune from another, but when I was about 7 years old I was sent to a private school in Berlin, where we lived.

"Every morning the pupils assembled in a big room to sing the opening exercises. To my intense delight I discovered that, although I was one of the youngest children, my voice dominated all the others.

"I tried to sing louder and louder and became a sort of show pupil. Before long one of the teachers took me to sing for Frau Schroeder Chaloupka, one of the most famous singers and teachers of the day.

"I can see myself, a solemnly pompous little girl, in a stiff white frock, with two yellow braids down to my knees, determined to sing at the top of my voice, so as to sustain my reputation with the great artist. She listened to me a few moments in grim silence.

"Then she called out with horrible sterness: 'Stop! It is such folly as this that wrecks voices!' Of course I burst into tears, and then she put her hands on my head, and said kindly: 'Child, do not cry. Thou must sing a little now in order to sing much later on.'

"She consented to take me as a pupil, however, and the study I commenced with her continued uninterruptedly for twelve years, until I made my debut."

Despite Mmme. Gadski's Polish name, Germany is the land of her birth, and has all the instincts of the German hausfrau. She is never happier than when she is ordering a dinner or looking after the material wants of her family, be it even in the humble capacity of purveyor of winter hositry.

The Berlin home of Mme. Gadski reveals throughout marked traces of American influence. Nowhere is this influence more pronounced than in her husband's den, which is rich in baskets, rugs and weapons from India, embroidered screens from San Francisco's Chinatown and curios from the Far West and South.

Butte & Ballaklava is strong at $7.12 bid and every share offered is snapped up quick. It may equal the North Butte as far as production is concerned. How can Ballaklava keep from being one of the biggest mines on Butte Hill? They now have the rich ore in the Edith May vein and the Old Joe has been cut for 28 feet. The big Bell Speculator vein should be cut any minute. Bring in your Ballaklava stock and get your money—we can pay you more for it than any other brokerage house in the city.
Butte & Superior is hard to buy at this level. It is a great property.
All the coppers are having strong advances. North Butte will sell at $70 a share this winter; Amalgamated is getting ready for a big advance. Calumet & Arizona is $104 to $105, and will sell away up. The big fellows are picking up the good ones right along, and this winter will be a great money-maker for those that get in at this level.

Mr. R. B. Dear, president of the Butte-Ballaklava, received a message last night from the mine, that another lead of ore had just been cut on the Edith May vein, 8 feet wide, averaging 15½ per cent copper, 17½ ounces of silver, and 1.80 gold.
The management is certainly showing up a bonanza mine in record time. Butte & Superior is hard to get at bid prices, and I consider it very cheap at present prices.
The whole copper list is doing better, and good copper stocks bought now will show good profits in the next thirty or sixty days.

NEW YEAR DEALS NOT ACTIVE IN REAL ESTATE

Transfer Record Shows Capt. Ray T. Lewis' Double Residence Property on West Third Street to Have Been Sold for $14,000—Several Other Deals Became Public Where Consideration Runs From $1,200 to $5,000—I. Friemuth Disposes of Some of His Holdings in Industrial Division for $7,500.

Although there have been quite a number of transfers of real estate recorded during the week, there has been no change, practically, from the usual inactive conditions of the local market at this time of the year. The transfer record shows quite a number of good sales that have been made during the past five months and concerning which publicity is given for the first time. Notable among these is the sale of Capt. Ray T. Lewis' double residence property on Third street, immediately west of the First Methodist church property, to Bertha M. Brown, for $14,000. The property comprises, besides the building, a lot with a fifty-foot frontage on Third street. Another good sized deal is recorded in the transfer from I. Freimuth to David Christopher of the south half of lot 10, block 2, Industrial division, for $7,500. Aside from these two sales there have been several deals involving considerations from $1,200 to $5,000 and a large number of trades in which the consideration was under $1,000, the property being unimproved.

* * *

The St. Luke's Hospital association has purchased from Charles T. Bratten the property at the southeast corner of Second street and Ninth avenue east for $5,000. The property comprises two lots fronting fifty feet on Second street and abutting the hospital property on the rear. The lots purchased contain two old frame buildings used for residence purposes. The property purchased is described as lots 1 and 2, block 41, Portland.

* * *

Theodore Hollister of Lakeside has sold Mabel Mischler a lot on the upper side of London road, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first avenues east for $1,000. The lot, it is understood, has been purchased for improvement.

* * *

J. H. Lanyon has purchased from Emil J. Zauft of West Duluth, a residence property on Grand avenue, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh avenues west, the consideration being $2,250.

* * *

Martha Monson has sold Isabello Chisholm a small residence property on the west side of Second avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets. The consideration was $1,250.

* * *

Z. D. Scott has purchased from Kate C. Long, for $4,000, the southwest corner of Water street and Nineteenth avenue east. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on the lake at the foot of Nineteenth avenue east.

* * *

The Bay State Investment company has acquired title from E. J. Williams of an unimproved property on the upper side of Superior street, west of the corner of Eighth avenue east, for $1,800. The description covers part of lots 19 and 20, block 11, Portland.

* * *

The Standard Oil company has purchased from the Toledo Investment company an undivided three-quarters interest in the whole triangular block lying between Rene street and the Northern Pacific tracks, and between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth avenues west. The property comprises lots 1 to 6, block 7, Hazelwood addition to Oenota.

* * *

J. F. Fredin has purchased a 200-foot property on the southeast corner of Fourth street and Eighth avenue west, from the Jean Duluth company, for $3,000. The property is 128 feet deep and is not improved. It is described as lots 122, 124, 126 and 128, block 35, Third division.

* * *

J. H. Ray has purchased a residence property on the lower side of Fourth street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues east for $2,400. The purchase was made through the E. D. Field agency.

* * *

A. J. Upham has sold Mary I. Kelley a residence property on Second street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues west, for $2,200. The property is described as part of lot 313, block 92, Second division.

The annual report of the building inspector, issued this week, shows that during 1907 permits were issued for improvements aggregating in cost $2,227,949, which is about $500 less than the valuations of the 1906 improvements. The building movement would undoubtedly have broken all records had not the labor troubles that began in November practically put a stop to the applications for any more permits. Up to November the building record for the year was ahead of that of all previous years. The majority of permits taken out last year were for dwellings. But few buildings were erected that required expenditures of large sums of money. The most expensive construction work started in 1907 was the Sellwood building. The permit calls for an expenditure of $150,000. The Missabe company's new coal dock, according to the permit issued, will cost $100,000. Following are the amounts of the permits issued by months during 1907: January, $74,535; February, $36,600; March, $270,905; April, $346,256; May, $136,938; June, $361,955; July, $188,735; August, $212,985; September, $332,765; October, $141,355; November, $63,250; December, $61,670.

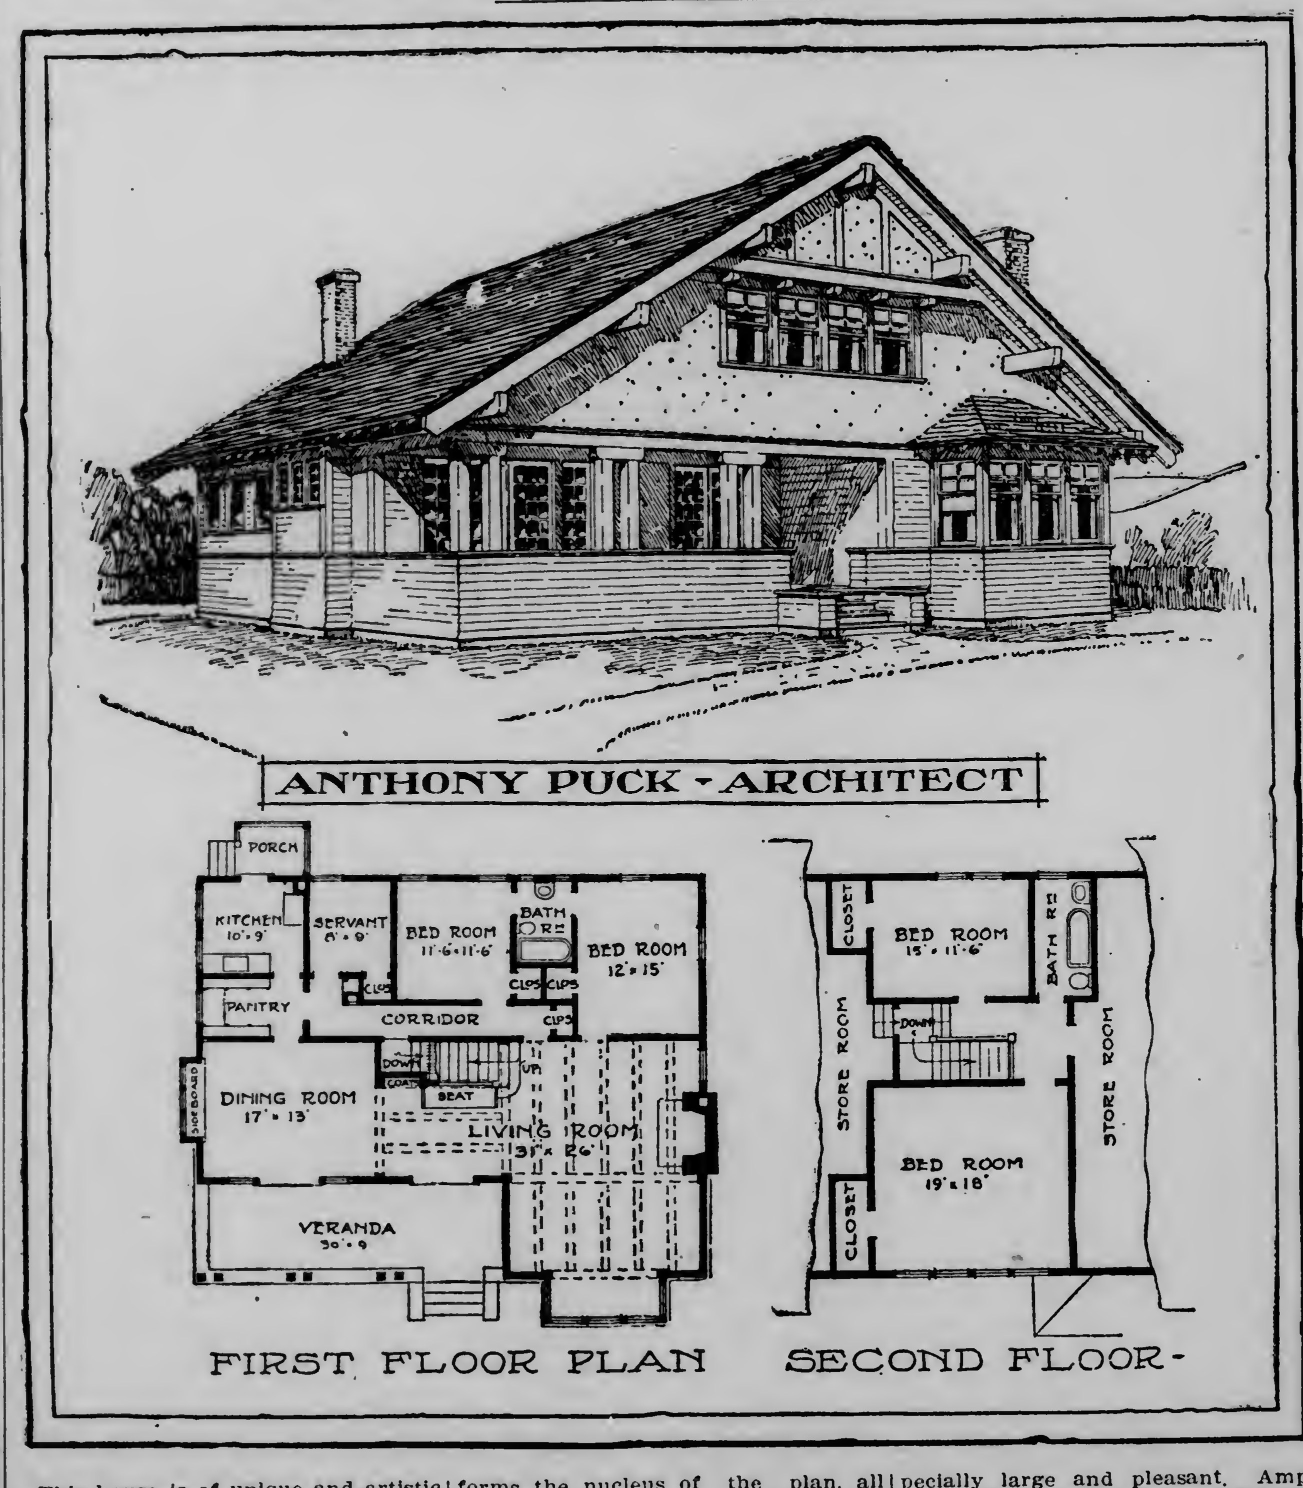
ARE YOU PLANNING TO BUILD? HERE IS A HANDSOME BUNGALOW FOR $6,200



This house is of unique and artistic design and will prove an interesting study to people with original ideas of home planning. The exterior design is one of strong characteristics and good taste. The effect created is entirely homelike and comfortable and should appeal to one desiring a home of true domestic quality. The arrangement of the interior is a departure from the ordinary, yet thoroughly practical and most convenient.

The veranda is well situated and is designed with a view of being inclosed with glass during the cold months. From the veranda the entrance is through French casement windows into the living room. The dining room is lighted by French casement windows, also opening out to the veranda.

The large, attractive living room forms the nucleus of the plan, all other parts of the house being directly accessible from it. The general scheme is that of a bungalow. In the living room the location of the fireplace is ideal, considering the arrangement of the windows, the entrance and the location of the dining room. An unobstructed view through the entire length of the house is one of the most striking features of the plan.

The dining room is of generous proportions and is well located. Through a well equipped pantry is the connection with the kitchen. The kitchen and pantry arrangement is conveniently compact and practical. The especially desirable features of the corridor arrangement are worthy of note.

Besides the servant's room there are four well lighted bedrooms. One bathroom is planned on each floor. The bedrooms in the second story are especially large and pleasant. Ample closet space and storerooms are provided.

The stairway from the living room is broad and easy of ascent. The stairs to the basement open from the corridors.

For the exterior wide clapboards are used for the first story walls, and cement plaster for the second story up to the eaves.

The dimensions of the building are 50 feet front by 39 feet depth. Heights: Basement, 7 feet; first story, 9 feet; second story, 8 feet 6 inches. The floors are of hardwood throughout. The finish in both stories, including a beamed ceiling in living room, is of western fir stained.

In Duluth and vicinity a dwelling of the above design and description can be built, including heating and plumbing, at a cost of $6,200.

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

FACTORY IS ENLARGED

New Duluth Box Factory Will be Reopened Monday.

Has Been Rebuilt on Larger Scale Than Before Fire.

W. H. Rieckhoff's box factory at New Duluth, which has been closed for rebuilding since it was partially destroyed by fire on Nov. 14, will renew operations Monday with increased engine power, larger working force, and producing facilities greater by two-fifths than before.

Mr. Rieckhoff, when questioned this morning concerning the improvements he has made, said: "The fire in November destroyed the engine house, the sawmill and over 4,000 feet of lumber in the yards. Since then I have built a brand new fireproof engine house and a mill, and Monday we will be able to start work again on a two-fifths larger scale than ever before. The factory will employ sixty men, and will easily be able to make, into boxes, from 42,000 to 50,000 feet of lumber a month. In engine house I have installed an up-to-date six-ply rope transmission, which requires 1,000 feet of rope, as the new engine house is located about seventy feet from the main building. The engine house was built so far away for the sake of better fire protection. This style of transmission is something new, and as yet is very little used in this part of the country. The National Iron works, I believe, use one, which is built on a smaller scale than ours. I have a seven-year lease from the New Duluth Land company for the property the plant is on, and I feel justified in making these extensive repairs and improvements.

West Duluth Briefs.

At the annual meeting of the Commercial club last evening all the old officers were re-elected. The only changes made were among the board of directors where five new diretors were chosen out of fifteen. The officers are included as members of the board. The election resulted as follows:

Board of directors: Chairman, H. H. Phelps (re-elected), M. M. Clark (re-elected), Thomas Olafson, E. J. Zauft, G. J. Mallory, P. H. Martin, David Sang (re-elected), H. R. Patterson (re-elected), J. J. Frey (re-elected), C. M. Brooks and W. J. Joiltz.

Last evening on a fine sheet of ice, the young members defeated the older members of the Western Curling club, for the second time by a score of 10 to 6. The line-up:

Younger members: Charles, Silger, Helland, Buckley, Gifford, skip 10.

ADVERTISE FOR BIDS

Public Dock at Foot of Ramsey Street Looks Like Go.

Assessment for Forty-Ninth Avenue Trunk Sewer in Confirmed.

At its meeting yesterday, the board of public works authorized the advertising of bids for the construction of the dock at the foot of Ramsey street, and there is every probability now that by the time navigation opens in the spring, the dock will have been completed so as to be ready for use.

The bids will probably be presented to the board at a meeting Jan. 17, when the contract will be let, provided the bids are within the estimate of $3,200 for the work. Once the contract is let, construction will begin immediately and, if there are no further hitches, the long-looked-for dock will become a reality.

A year ago it was thought that but a few months would pass before the construction of the dock. An estimate was made, bids received and for a time it looked as though the work would go on. But the provision of the specifications placing the approach to the dock on Forty-ninth avenue west from Oneota street, instead of direct from Ramsey street, was distasteful to those behind the project. They registered a protest, which, with the fact that the bids were over the estimate, effectually held up the work.

When Ramsey and Oneota streets were paved, the material taken from the streets in grading, was dumped at the foot of Ramsey street, extending it across a slip of open water, to the shore line. The approach from Ramsey street was thus prepared, and the objection on that score eliminated. New estimates were ordered, the council approved that providing for the earth approach from Ramsey street, and West Duluth will probably finally have its dock.

Despite the protests of owners of nearly 300 lots, assessed for the work, the board of public works yesterday approved the assessment of approximately $13,000 for the trunk sewer on Elinor street, Grand avenue and Forty-ninth avenue west to the bay shore. The sewer will be a trunk outlet and was ordered by the council, without petition from the property-holders, an ordinance relative to trunk sewers, authorizing such action. The assessment is laid against all lots, which will be benefited by the outlet for lateral sewers to be constructed later.

Although recognizing the value of the trunk sewer in Forty-ninth avenue, the property-holders petitioned the council to hold up the work for a year or so, on account of the financial stringency and the fact that the improvement was not pressing at the present time. The council held up the confirmation for three weeks, but the board took action yesterday. There is talk among some of the property-owners of an appeal from the assessment, but they have not yet decided on a course of action.

INSANITY ON INCREASE

Business of the Probate Court for the Year 1907.

Statistics Show More Insane Men Than Women in County.

The year 1907 witnessed a large increase in the business of the probate court of this county. Not only was there a considerable increase in the number of insane cases that came before the court for examination and disposal, but there was a general increase along all lines relating to the settlement of estates.

The records of the probate court, which were available this afternoon, showed that in 1907 there were 119 informations of insanity filed. Of these eighty-one were filed against males and thirty-eight against females. These statistics rather tend to show that last year, at least, there was more insanity among the men than among the women in St. Louis county. There have been years when the conditions were reversed.

Of the insane informations, ten were withdrawn by relatives or friends, and the patients were cared for without expense to the county. Ninety cases resulted in commitments to the state asylum at Fergus Falls. Eighteen of the patients were discharged, as the examination by a board of physicians showed that they were sane, it raised a doubt as to their alleged insanity.

During the year three patients were sent to the detention hospital at St. Luke's for treatment. Six non-residents of the state were examined as to their sanity and, by order of the state board of control, were sent to the asylum at Fergus Falls, at the county's expense.

The files in the probate court have now passed the 5,400 mark. During the past year there weer 505 new cases opened in the court, not taking into account the several hundred cases that came up from time to time during the year, and which were opened, perhaps, several years ago.

The following statement shows the total new business for the year 1907:

Intestate estates (those without wills)..	205
Foreign wills	36
Local wills	44
Determination of descent	18
Guardianships	9
Insanity informations	119
Indigent cases	4
Total cases	505

SUPERIOR NEWS

Will Check Up Officers.

After a somewhat stormy session the Douglas county board of supervisors, yesterday afternoon, resolved to check over the accounts of the county poor agent, county clerk, county treasurer and clerk of courts for the past six years. The resolution is said to have been the result of a controversy over what is known as the "engine and hand press" bill and a bill for special services presented by the register of deeds. A communication was presented to the board from the county poor agent, asking that his office be checked up, by reason of some reflections that have been cast on his management of affairs.

Celebration No Crime.

The jury in the case of the State against Richard Carrigan, charged with keeping a disorderly house, returned a verdict of not guilty in the municipal court, yesterday afternoon. The case against Mrs. Carrigan had been dropped, and it is understood that, following the verdict in the husband's case, the case against the other four persons arrested in the Trowe block, some days ago, will be dismissed. The defendants maintained that they were merely celebrating a double wedding, and the jury seemed to look on their version as the correct one.

Escape on Technicality.

By reason of a technicality in the law, the cases against Alfred Simpson and William Wilson, two of the four men held for passing bogus money, New Year's day, have been dropped, and the men have been discharged from custody. The men are said to have attempted to pass some Confederate bills at a lodging house in the lower end of the city. The statutes do not provide for an "attempt" to pass bogus money, and on advice of the district attorney, the men were liberated. Pat Farrell and William Goodwillie are claimed to have actually passed some of the bogus money, and they are being held for trial.

Vacancy Filled.

Word was received this morning from Madison of the appointment of Judge Bashford of that city to the vacany on the supreme court bench. This announcement, of course, puts an end to the candidacy of Judge Vinje, which was being urged by his friends.

Violating Law.

Complaint was made this morning, in district court, that the eight-hour telegraphers' law is being violated in Wisconsin. The matter will be taken up by the attorney general.

BIRTHDAY DINNER.

Friends of Thomas Martin Surprise Him at His Home.

Mrs. Thomas H. Martin entertained at a surprise dinner last evening in honor of Mr. Martin, the affair being given at their home, 320 Mesaba avenue. The rooms were attractively decorated in the Christmas colors, and poinsettia and ferns were used on the tables. The affair was in honor of Mr. Martin's birthday anniversary, and was a complete surprise. Following the dinner, a program of toasts was given by the guests, with T. W. Hugo as toastmaster, and the concluding toast of the evening, "Our Hosts," by H. Oldenburg of Carlton, was one of the especially delightful ones. A letter of regret from J. Adam Bede, at Washington, was read, and musical numbers were given by Charles Applehagen and William Hancock. The guests were: Messrs. T. W. Hugo, H. W. Richardson, Harry Hurdon, H. L. Dresser, Andrew Porter, A. P. Cook, L M. Willcuts, N. B. Morrison, H. B. McKinney, J. M. Ford, George Martin, Dr A. L. Sukeforth, J. H Darling, C T. Crandall, E. B. Fox, Dr. H. G. Lampson of Washburn, Wis, and H. Oldenburg of Carlton.

CURFEW'S FORERUNNERS.

Bells a Protection From Robberies and Fire.

The curfew bell, which nightly sends children scurrying from the streets to their homes, is a bell of history. In Indianapolis the curfew "bell" happens to be a whistle, so it is spoken of chiefly as the "curfew," but bell or whistle, the alarm warns children that they must hie to their parental roofs.

The ringing of curfew bell of the olden time, of which the bell of today is only a faint reminder, was centuries ago an established custom not only in Great Britain, but in France, Spain, Italy and most of continental Europe, says the Indianapolis News.

In those old times there was nothing like clocks or watches among the common people. They learned to judge roughly of the time of day by observation of the sun, but to know the exact hour was entirely beyond them. Implements for measuring time belonged only to a public body, an institution or to some remarkable person. This led to the imparting of the time of day by ringing a bell or by blowing a horn.

In the Middle Ages a large part of society lived by plundering and cheating. Owing to the want of any effective police there was no safety out of doors at night. Even persons who by daylight appeared to live honestly sallied forth at night to rob and murder. It was attempted, in towns especially, to meet this evil by making it a criminal offense to be found out of doors after a certain hour.

A system of this kind prevailed in the Southern states of this country preceding the Civil war and the slave found out at night was compelled to show a pass from his master, giving him such privilege; otherwise he was taken in custody and placed in the lock-up or calaboose.

In the olden time, as otherwise night wanderers might plead ignorance, it was ordered that the hour should be publicly sounded generally by the town bell, and when that was heard people were compelled to shut the doors of their houses, put out their fires and go to bed. Those who were out of bed after the sounding of the bell were liable to severe punishment. This was certainly an efficacious way of clearing the streets. This rule, of course, was frequently broken by occasions of public revelry, and such masques as those mentioned in the "Merchant of Venice," where Christian fools in varnished faces" made night hideous with their excesive hilarity.

The bell sounded for the purpose of sending folks to bed was in France popularly caled the couvre-feu, or cover-fire. Something of the same kind, tradition says, existed in England as far back as the time of the Saxon King Alfred, but the couvre-feu or curfew as it came to be called, was introduced by William the Conqueror and was regarded as an instrument of tyranny.

It was apparently a municipal and not a state institution and the utility of a general covering of fires at a reasonable hour in that time was obvious as in those days most of the houses were of wood and poorly constructed.

The curfew bell was used in the monastic establishments as well as in the towns. In many places the curfew was sounded as early as 7 o'clock in the evening, for ordinary people went to bed very early and rose before daybreak. In course of time 7 o'clock came to have been thought an inconveniently early hour, and it was moved onward to 8 o'clock. In England in many places, while this continued to be the common hour, it was advanced to 9 o'clock when the cities came to be guarded by an organized body of night guardians.

If seven-tenths of the people who are looking for a place to live should read your ad. in The Herald would it not "help some?"

REPORT OF COMMERCE COMMISSIONERS SAYS OFFICIALS HAVE OBEYED

The New Railroad Laws in a Satisfactory Manner.

Show Sincere Disposition to Meet All Requirements.

Great Progress Made and Further Improvement Assured.

Washington, Jan. 6.—More significant and important, perhaps, than any other statement in the twenty-first annual report of the interstate commerce commission, which was transmitted today to congress, is that relating to the attitude of railroad officials toward the new railroad law. In a discussion of the act, the commission says:

"By railroad managers, almost without exception, the amended law has been accepted in good faith and they exhibit for the most part a sincere and earnest disposition to conform their methods to its requirements."

The commission adds that it was not expected that reforms could be brought about without difficulty or delay, "but it is unquestionably the fact that great progress has been made and that further improvement is clearly assured. To a gratifying extent, there has been readjustment of rates and correction of abuses by the carriers themselves. Methods and uses of one sort and another which operated to individual advantage have been voluntarily changed and it is not too much to say that there is now a freedom from forbidden discriminations which is actual and general to a degree never before approached. As this process goes on, as special privileges disappear and favoritism ceases to be even suspected, the indirect but not less certain, benefits of the law will become more and more apparent."

Construing the Laws.

The amended act has been in force a little more than sixteen months and the commission points out that a considerable part of its time during the past year has been occupied in giving administrative construction to various provisions of the law for the guidance of both shippers and carriers. An incidental respect in which equality of treatment has been promoted is in such matters as switching, terminal demurrage, re-consignment, elevation and other charges making up the aggregate revenue of transportation. Respecting these matters, the report says:

"It is the general and marked improvement in transportation conditions that the commission observes with special gratification. The amended law with its enforcible acts the wider the recognition of its fundamental justice, the quickened sense of public obligation on the part of railway managers, the clearer perspection by shippers of all classes that any individual advantage is morally as well as legally indefensibe, and the augumented influence of the commission resulting from its increased authority combined to diminish offensive practices of every sort and to signally promote the purposes for which the law was enacted.

Many Contested Cases.

"Since the new rate law became effective on Aug. 2, 1906, the commission has granted relief in the form of corrective orders in many cases. Up to Nov. 4, 1907, the commission rendered decisions

MURDERED BY A STRANGER

Wisconsin Hunter Killed by Man He Turned From Cabin.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 6.—A Journal special from Marinette, Wis., says: John Camp, a hunter and trapper, living near the village of Fence in Florence county, was murdered Saturday night by a stranger who became angry because Camp would not keep him in his cabin over night. Camp was shot through the fleshy part of the leg with a charge of buckshot and died next morning from loss of blood.

NEW YORK JANITORS WANT TO BE LICENSED.

New York, Jan. 6.—Janitors of New York, at a meeting held last night, unanimously decided to advocate the passage by the legislature of a bill licensing janitors and preventing the employment as janitor of any one not furnished with a license. Examinations are to be required, and no one can receive a license who cannot show a good knowledge of sanitation, conduct in case of fire and other things which every good janitor should know.

THREE LOSE LIVES IN FRISCO HOSPITAL FIRE.

San Francisco, Jan. 6.—Three persons lost their lives by a fire which destroyed the outbuildings at the French hospital, used as a laundry and electrical power plant, early today. The victims were employes.

There was a panic among the patients for a time, but they were removed as fast as possible by the nurses.

EX-GOVERNOR BOIES IMPROVING.

El Paso, Jan. 6.—Reports from the bedside of Former Governor Horace Boies of Iowa, who is ill at a hospital here with pneumonia, are encouraging. Dr. Henry F. Hoyt, the attending physician, early today issued the following statement: "Governor Boies' condition shows a marked improvement, and he is now resting easy. In the last few hours he has gained considerably in strength."

FRENCHMEN EXERCISED

Over the Reports That They Secretly Desire War.

Between the United States and the Japanese.

Paris, Jan. 6.—The French government is considerably exercised over the reports cabled to some American newspapers, last week, in which it is represented as secretly desirous of a war between Japan and the United States, and the desthruction of the American fleet, with the ultimate object of witnessing the international ownership of the Panama canal.

The Associated Press was today authorized to declare that nothing could be further from the truth. France is the sincere friend of both countries, and she is extremely desirous of seeing the present difficulties settled amicably.

On the other hand, a growing nervousness regarding the outcome is to be seen in diplomatic circles here. A representative of one of the great powers said in this connection:

"While I am optomistic regarding the immigration question, unless there should be a recurrence of the unfortunate attacks upon Japanese in California, I am distinctly pessimistic concerning the settlement of the ultimate issue, that of commercial supremacy in the Pacific. America stands for the open door; she has stood quietly by while Japan proceeded to monopolize Korea and Manchuria. When she seeks to enter China, as she will, America must either call a halt, or abandon the doctrine of the open door, which has been the keystone of her policy in the Far East.

A COLLISION OF ICE BOATS

On Lake Mendota Results in Injury to Minister's Son.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 6.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Madison, Wis., says: Rev. F. A. Gilmore, pastor of the Unitarian church, his two sons, Robert and Albert, aged 10 and 12, respectively, and a 15-year-old girl, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon in a headon collision on Lake Mendota, between Gilmore's little 12-foot iceboat and a 30-footer, run by two university students. Both boats were going fast in a heavy wind. The son Robert sustained a double fracture of the leg and all of the others were badly bruised. Rev. Gilmore declares that it was nothing short of a miracle that all were not killed.

LA FOLLETTE BOOMERS MEET AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Senator La Follette's boom was discussed yesterday, when a committee for the Wisconsin statesman's boom gathered from a number of states, held a conference here, and laid plans for the coming Republican national convention. Those who attended the conference were: Linn Hines, Minneapolis; G. C. Bray, Grinoll, Iowa; D. P. Burns, St. Louis; N. P. Holberg, Renville, Minn.; C. S. Bash, Indianapolis; J. D. Rundell, Towanda, Pa.; J. N. Simons, Canton; O. W. H. Patton, New London, Wis.; I. L. Renroot, Superior, Wis; J. C. Applebate, Canon Falls, Minn., and George S. Loftus, St. Paul.

PROCTOR KNOTT HAS STROKE OF PARALYSIS.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 6.—Former Governor J. Proctor Knott suffered a stroke of paralysis, last night, but is reported today as resting easily.

"LITTLE EGYPT" DIED OF GAS ASPHYXIATION.

New York, Jan. 6.—Catherine Devine, or "Little Egypt," the dancer, as she is better known, who was found dead in her rooms yesterday, died from illuminating gas asphyxiation, according to a coroner's physician, who performed an autopsy. Several marks on the body had caused the coroner to believe she had been murdered. The autopsy, however, disclosed that the marks were due to post mortem tissue changes.

DISCONTINUE USE OF CHECKS.

Omaha, Jan. 6.—Banks in the Omaha Clearing House association began today cancelling all clearing house checks as they are presented. About $51,000 of the checks are still in circulation, but their use by banks was discontinued today, all banks being on a cash basis.

CONTINUE CIVIL SUIT

The Perjury Charges Against Herbert Druce Collapse.

Hollambay Druce Will Try to Recover Estates.

London, Jan. 6.—The perjury charge brought against Herbert Druce by his nephew, George Hollombay Druce, has collapsed, but the civil action for the recovery of the estates of the duke of Portland will be continued. This became known this afternoon when Mr. Atherly-Jones, counsel for George Hollombay Druce, announced that in view of the discoveries made when the coffin of Thomas Charles Druce was opened and examined Dec. 30, it will be impossible to proceed with the prosecution. The statement was made after the presentation of evidence by Prof. Augustus J. Pepper of the University of London, and others, who were present at the exhumation.

Herbert Druce was charged with committing perjury by swearing that his father, Thomas Charles Druce of the Baker Street bazar, died Dec. 28, 1864, and that he saw the dead body placed in a coffin and buried in Highgate cemetery. George Hollombay Druce declared that this must be un-

MORE PAY FOR ARMY

Strongly Recommended by Secretary Taft in Annual Report.

Figures Show Rapid Decrease in Strength of Enlisted Men.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Secretary Taft is a second advocate of increased pay for the army, and his annual report, just sent to congress, completely dispels any doubt that may exist as to the secretary's position. The report begins with a formidable presentment of figures, showing the rapid decrease in the strength of the regular army in recent years (the loss last year being no less than 4,428 men), and the pressing need for officers to replace those now retired is most emphatically set forth.

"I think it highly probable," he says, "that an increase in the pay of enlisted men, including considerable additional inducements for men to re-enlist, and such reasonable increase in the pay of non-commissioned officers as would stimulate men to remain in the service, and to qualify themselves for these higher positions, would have a markedly beneficial effect upon the recruitment of the army."

Recommends Naval System.

So the secretary earnestly favors the adoption for the army of the naval system, under which the president is

DEFECTIVE STOVE BLAMED FOR FIRE

Which Destroyed Two-Story Building at Cloquet Early Sunday.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The two-story frame building on the corner of Tenth street and Cloquet avenue, owned by B. J. Summerfield, burned completely to the ground early Sunday morning. The lower story was occupied by S. Richards, who kept a cigar factory and confectionery store. Fortunately, a family that had been living on the second floor moved out Saturday, or the loss would probably have been heavier. The building was entirely covered by insurance, as was also the stock belonging to Mr. Richards. Summerfield's loss was about $5,000 and Richards' about $700.

The origin of the fire is unknown, although indications point to a faulty stove, which stood in the center of the floor, where the fire was first seen. No water could be obtained until about ten minutes after the alarm was sent in, during which time the blaze gained such a headway that by the time water came the flames were uncontrollable, and about half the streams were turned on the adjoining houses, which had already begun to burn. The flames and heat were shut in by the walls covered with a tin sheeting, so that when the south wall fell in, the heat was so intense that five plateglass windows across the street were cracked.

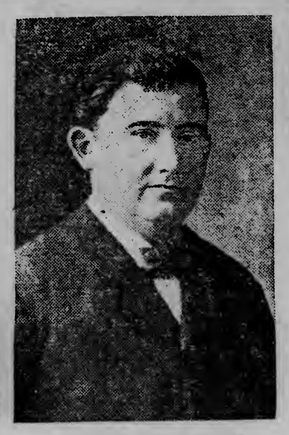
OPPOSING COUNSEL IN SECOND THAW TRIAL.

WILLIAM TRAVERS JEROME
Prosecutor in the Thaw Case.



MARTIN LITTLETON,
Thaw's Leading Attorney.

APPEAL IS REFUSED

Pennsylvania Supreme Court Will Not Hear Hartje Case.

Plaintiff May Take It to United States High Court.

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—The Pennsylvania supreme cour ttoday refused to permit an appeal to be taken to that tribunal from the superior court, in the famous Hartje divorce case. Augustus Hartje was refused a divorce from his wife by the Pittsburg courts, and the decision was affirmed by the superior court. The highest court in the state having refused to hear the case, it is said Mr. Hartje may take his suit to the United States supreme court.

IRISH FAIR IN NEW YORK.

New York, Jan. 6.—The Irish fair, for which great preparations have been made, will open at Madison Square Garden tomorrow, and will continue for three weeks.

JAPS SEND BOUQUETS

To Firemen Who Were Assaulted in Vancouver Streets.

Are Promptly Returned by Chief of Fire Department.

Portland, Or., Jan. 6.—A dispatch to the Oregonian from Vancouver says. Chief of Police Chamberlain has refused a demand of the Associate Laborers' league that the Oriental quarter be searched for firearms and other dangerous weapons. The chief admitted the gravity of the situation, but urged against hurrying a possible crisis in the Japanese quarter by any drastic action, such as the one suggested. Two of the Japanese under arrest were released on $4,000 bail, furnished by responsible Japanese. The other two are still in jail.

The Japanese business community, yesterday, sent Fire Chief Thompson a handsome bouquet of roses to be forwarded to the injured firemen. The bouquet was accompanied by a check for $100 for the firemen, and a letter regretting the action of the Japanese and declaring that the business men were doing all in their power to bring the guilty persons to justice. The fire chief returned the money and the flowers to the Japanese, declaring that the firemen who were maltreated had no desire to accept any gift as a consideration for the injuries done them.

KICKING COW CAUSES A ROW

Five Members of a Family Badly Hurt at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 6.—Five members of the family of Adam Schaffer were injured, two perhaps fatally as the result of the overturning of a milk pail last night. Alec Schaffer drove a cow behind a cow being milked by his brother, Levi. The cow kicked. Then trouble started. Knives were used.

The injured: Adam Schaffer, hip dislocated, may dlc; Alec Schaffer, stabbed in the neck near the juguiar vein and cut in mouth and forehead, may dlc; Levi Schaffer, bruised over back and hips with club and cut over the eye; James Schaffer, stabbed with a knife in the side, left elbow shattered; Mrs. Schffer, hands and arms cut.

Neighbors stopped the row and summoned physicians.

COREY WITH OLD WIFE.

Conference at Home of Father Confirms Report of Conciliation.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 6. — William Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel corporation and his divorced wife are holding a conference at the home of Alfred A. Corey, father of W. E. Corey, at Braddock.

This positively authentic statement was given out by a close friend of the Corey family and confirmed the reports which emanated from New York at Christmas and New Years that Corey and his first wife, whom he divorced to marry Mabelle Gilman, were near a reconciliation.

The meeting between Corey and his first wife at Braddock verifies the reports that the steel magnate, disappointed in his failure to win his way into society with Mabelle Gilman as his bride has decided to give up his actress bride and go back to the mother of his son.

Charles Grommells, Ship Broker, Accepted as No. 1.

No Women Admitted as Spectators by Judge Dowling.

Plea of Insanity Added to That of Not Guilty.

New York, Jan. 6.—The usual curious crowds gathered about the criminal courts building today in thee hope of catching a glimpse of Harry Thaw as he crossed the bridge of sighs on the first day of his new trial. In the corridors of the courthouse several hundred persons had come to witness the opening scenes of this new rehearsal of an old story. Fifty policemen kept the passageways clear. The arrangements were far better than at the first trial, when the crush to get into the courtroom amounted practically to a riot. The word that women were to be barred had been given out, and there was none but newspaper writers present today. Last year at the beginning of the trial women predominated in the courtroom and it was their insistence which caused much of the disorder of the opening day.

Before the Thaw case was reached today, Justice Dowling, who is presiding, charged the January grand jury and attended to other formalities of the opening.

Thaw was elated over the fact that the day of his new trial, so long awaited, had at last arrived.

Mrs. George Carnegie, his sister, and Josiah Thaw, a brother, and his counsel, called on Thaw in the Tombs and brought him a message of greeting from his mother, who is still ill at her home in Pittsburg. It was the first time in several months that Thaw had seen his sister and brother, and his greetings were affectionate.

Thaw Shows No Change.

Thaw was called to the bar at 11:27 o'clock. His appearance showed little or no change from last year.

As soon as Thaw appeared, his chief counsel, Martin W. Littleton, announced that the former plea of not guilty entered by his client, would be amended to read "that the defendant was insane at the time the deed was committed."

Thaw was seated at the counsel table

A WISCONSIN YOUNG WOMAN

Fatally Burned While Lighting Fire in a Furnace.

Viroqua, Wis., Jan. 6.—Miss Helen Munson, aged 22, a student at the University of Wisconsin, and a daughter of Col. O. G. Munson, private secretary to Governor Davidson, and one of the best known public officials in Wisconsin, was fatally burned while starting a fire in the furnace at her father's home, yesterday. The lower part of the girl's body was burned to a blister. Mrs. Munson was painfully burned while trying to extinguish the flames.

REAFFIRMS INNOCENCE

Whitmore Again Declares He Did Not Murder His Wife.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 6.—Theodore Whitmore continues steadfastly to maintain that he is wholly innocent of any part in the tragic death of his wife, whose body was found in a pool in Lamp Black Swamp the day after Christmas.

When pressed to tell about the trunk which was delivered at her mother's home, he broke down completely.

"I didn't write that letter. It must have been written by some other who knew my wife was going away," he cried. As a result of a story told by Whitmore the police are searching for Fred Elliott, formerly a railroad fireman. According to Whitmore, Elliott was with him Christmas night and for several days after. It was Elliott, he told the police, who carried to the telegraph office a message for his sister-in-law in the Bronx and signed "Lena" which had been written by Whitmore after his wife's death. Elliott, according to Whitmore, induced him to send the telegram to Mrs. Whitmore's parents. "He told me I had better tell Lena's folks she had gone away so they would not worry about her," said Whitmore. "We had decided to send the trunk with the clothing, so we thought best to send a telegram saying the trunk would arrive." He says Elliott remained with him until Saturday after Christmas and that he has not seen him since.

SAYS FRAUD WAS MEANT

Evener Manufacturing Company Sues to Recover Patent Rights.

Claims That Inventors Gave It the Double Cross.

The Evener Manufacturing company of this city has come into the limelight again by another action started in the district court. In the case in question, the company seeks an injunction restraining Miles T. Frink, B. J. Cook, J. J. Haley and the Alvarado Manufacturing company from disposing or assigning any letters patent running to the company, unless they are assigned to the plaintiff. Pending a hearing on this feature of the case the court has made a temporary restraining order affecting the defendants named.

The hearing to show cause will be held Jan. 14 in the district court.

It is alleged in the complaint that Allan and Duncan McGregor applied for and were granted letters patent on an invention, an evener, which they are claimed to have agreed to assign to the plaintiff company for a valuable consideration. The company claims that the McGregors have failed to live up to their agreement and that they have, with the purpose of defrauding the plaintiff, assigned the patent rights to Frink and the other defendants. hTe defendants, it is alleged, threaten to sell the patent rights to an innocent purchaser.

The Evener Manufacturing company asks that it be adjudged owner of the letters patent and all rights thereunder; that Frink and his associates be compelled to turn over the letters patent to the plaintiff, and that the defendants be restrained from selling or assigning the patent rights to anybody else but the plaintiff.

Opens for New Year With Large Enrollment.

The Duluth Business University has opened for the New Year with a large enrollment of new members and everything seems to indicate that the attendance at the college during 1908 will be made greater than during any previous year in its history.

Among those from outside the city who began this morning, are David Fryklund, Cloquet, Minn.; Emma Constantine, Sandstone, Minn.; Richard Becker, Grand Rapids, Minn.; Victor Louistin, International Falls; Oscar Johnson, Tower, Minn.; Emma Runquist and Emma Thorin, Grasston, Minn.; Segurd Peterson and Edward Turnquist, Two Harbors, Minn; Edward McCabe, Brainerd, Minn.

Many will enroll on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week and others will begin on Monday, Jan. 13, when classes will be organized to accommodate those who could not enter at the opening. Night school opens at 7 this evening.

JUDGMENT DAY COMING

Present Age Strongly Resembles the Days of Noah.

Men Are Living for Pleasure and Business Alone.

"As the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be," was the text chosen by Rev. Campbell Coyle for his sixth sermon on the second coming of Christ at the First Presbyterian church last evening, and Dr. Coyle attempted to show that the present age was much similar to that preceding the days of the flood, and was significant of the second coming of Christ.

Dr. Coyle spoke in part as follows:

"These words were among those that were spoken by Jesus to his disciples on the Mount of Olives, in portrayal of the closing scenes of this dispensation. Words we must accept as true, because Jesus spoke them. It is as if He had said: 'My dear disciples, I want to impress upon your minds very clearly that just prior to my return to this earth the second time, certain conditions will prevail very similar to those which prevailed just prior to the flood in Noah's time.'

"What were the conditions that prevailed just prior to the flood? and are there any signs of their recurrence in these days? God has not left us in the dark as to the character of the days of Noah, for they are vividly portrayed in the Book of Genesis. By consulting these ancient archives we discover first of all there was a decided and growing tendency to worship God simply as Creator and Benefactor and not as Jehovah. Men failed to realize the sinfulness of sin, and their need of blood atonement, and therefore worshiped God not as a Savior-God, but as a Creator and Benefactor merely. The multitude had left the way of Abel and were following the way of Cain. Abel brought the firstlings of his flock and the fat thereof. Cain deified the necessity of blood. Hence he has been called the 'first Unitarian.' But Abel sacrificed an animal in his worship, thus introducing a blood cement, and thereby confessed his sinfulness and need of expiation.

This is the characteristic tendency of our times. The world is growing deeply sceptical about the blood and the truth about the blood, and the idea that by a natural process all men in due time will attain perfection and heaven is becoming inculcated by evolution. Even many orthodox pulpits are forsaking the simon pure Gospel of the New Testiment and are becoming merely ethical in their tone and accept. They do not announce with proper emphasis that man is a sinner and hopelessly lost apart from the saving influence of the Savious. So manifest is this tendency that it has become one of the marked signs of the present day. While men are not disbelieving in God, they are disbelieving in God in human form in Jesus Christ, and that salvation is dependent of the fact of His blood.

Prominence of Women.

"Another characteristic of the days of Noah, which is very plainly recurring now is the undue prominence of women. I am not speaking of this as if I were antagonistic to the prominence of women, for woman has a right to every preferment in keeping with her nature. In many things she is man's equal and in many things his superior. Nevertheless a woman is a woman and, therefore, must live within very definite prescribed limits. The prominence of woman in Noah's time is being very plainly duplicated nowadays and this prominence is not very complimentary to her sex. This is very obvious from the shades of meaning suggested by the original Hebrew, a prominence suggested not by her virtues, such as modesty and gentleness and goodness, but rather those qualities which shaded off easily into vices, robbing womanhood of her sweetest charms. And, frankly is not this a sufficient characteristic of today to be a definite sign of our times? Of course all woman do not come under this indictment, for nothing could be farther from the truth. Yet, is it not true that a great multitude of women today are prominent in ways not pleasant to consider? It is a sign of misfortune to the world?

Another characteristic of both Noah's day and ours is the wonderful and rapid advancement in mechanical arts. We read of the building of cities, the manufacturing of harps and organs or workers in brass and iron and such like. Our progress along these lines is the dominant characteristic of our times. In Noah's day they progressed mechanically but declined spiritually.

"A tendency to seek pleasure along physical rather than along intellectual lines, and coupled with this a most unusual activity in the business world is another characteristic of Noah's day, being duplicated in ours very rapidly. And as it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and the flood came, and destroyed them all. Likewise also it was in the days of Lot: they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded, but the same day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed.' Judgment came in both instances. People were living lives for pleasure and business, and their judgments are types of that which will come upon the world at the close of this present age. What they did in Noah's day just prior to the flood so will the men and women be doing just before Jesus comes back again.

Close Their Eyes.

"Again, another characteristic of Noah's day which is being strikingly reproduced in these times is the persistent rejection of the preaching of Noah on the part of the people. For 120 years he built on his ark, preaching the gospel of repentance and judgment to come, but he was not listened to. Likewise the masses refuse to believe that this world is moving towards judgment at this present time. People everywhere are saying, as their eyes sweep the horizon, 'Where is the promise of His coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation.' Again evolution is in the saddle, and all men are moving towards perfection, so they think. But as sure as God reigns, things on the earth at this very moment are shaping in the direction of judgment. When it will come no man will positively know, and what will precipitate it no man can tell, but I believe in the Godhood of Mary's Son, and when He speaks prophetically or in any other way, He speaks with the knowledge of God. 'As it was was in the days of Noah, so shall it also be in the days of the Son of Man.' I believe He knew what He was talking about, and that He meant precisely what He said. Therefore, whether men will hear or whether they will forbear, I affirm that this present dispensation will end in judgment, and I believe it on the authority of Jesus Christ, the Son of the Living God, who will not deceive, and who can never lie.'

Next Sunday Dr. Coyle's subject will be "Scriptural Signs that This Present Dispensation is Drawing to a Close."

A Cure for Misery.

"I have found a cure for the misery malaria poison produces," says R. M. James, of Louellen, S. C. "It's called Electric Bitters, and comes in 50-cent bottles. It breaks up a case of chills or a bilious attack in almost no time; and it puts yellow jaundice clean out of commission." This great tonic medicine and blood purifier gives quick relief in all stomach, liver and kidney complaints and the misery of lame back. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores.

The White Sale Joins Hands With the Garment Clearance

In a Remarkable Demonstration of

HIGH CLASS MERCHANDIZE AT LITTLE COST

We propose to conduct this year as in the past a "different" kind of White Sale. Too much stress is usually laid on "sheetings" and other every-day merchandize and not enough attention paid to the really "new" things. It is in this "novelty" feature that we excel. And this is the one store in Duluth where quality is never lowered just for the sake of quoting cheap prices, altho it is a well known fact that quality for quality we never permit ourselves to be undersold. Not for the assurance of double the amount of business we are doing, will we be tempted into this deplorable tendency of sacrificing quality to price and it is for this never-changing policy that women lean on this store for their White Goods needs each succeeding season. It is in truth the "Safe Store."

Every price quoted here is on a lower basis than these goods can be had for later in the season. Every price is on brand new 1908 White Wear, with every new style feature added (no accumulation of old merchandize only represented as new). Every price, too, is based on purchases of almost a year ago, insuring lower prices and better selection than is possible on present day purchases.

Come prepared to share in the greatest and most successful White Sale the store has ever conducted, as witness the prices quoted below:

Annual Exhibit and Sale of White Goods

White Sales at Freimuth's are always largely attended. "There's a reason." The fabrics and commodities offered are always the best to be had. This year we are displaying more kinds and more of a kind than ever before. Stocks that would have swamped us when we began the race for your favor are multiplied eight and ten fold. Hundreds of fresh, new muslin, cambric and nainsook garments—as plain as you please, as dainty as you desire, or as elaborately ruffled, ribbon and lace embellished as good taste allows. And mark you, low-priced as some of the garments are, they do not drop below Freimuth's standard of quality. And every garment comes from factories in which rigid rules of sanitation are enforced.

HAIR RAISING FEAT BY DULUTH SKI JUMPER

All records for hazardous feats upon skis were surpassed yesterday when John Rugg turned a complete somersault in the air during the course of a 60-foot jump at the slide of the Duluth Ski club.

Mr. Rugg was at the slide yesterday with some of his friends. He had been practising the perilous feat for some time. Yesterday was the first time he really succeeded in accomplishing it.

Starting at the top of the big slide, he struck the jump, and shot through the air with the velocity of a cannon ball. Suddenly he gave a twist to his body and turned in the air. His skis shot above his head, trembled for a moment in their inverted position, and then slowly turned earthwards. Rugg struck feet foremost all right, and kept his balance, despite the length of his jump and the difficult feat he had accomplished in addition.

Nothing like Mr. Rugg's feat is know to have been accomplished before. It is believed by the members of the club that Mr. Rugg is the first man to attempt this circus-like, acrobatic feat. It has several highly advertised feats of the bounding wire beaten to death, as far as dare devil spectacular work goes, declare all those who witnessed the long jump somersault.

If Rugg should happen to land on the back of his cranium, instead of striking upon his skis, the result of his act might be fatal. He alighted at a distance of over thirty feet from where he gave the twist to his body, so that his huge revolution covered some space.

Rugg says that the feat is exhilarating, to say the least. He believes it has looping the loop beaten to death.

CONVICTED MAN PUTS UP FIGHT

Judge Dibell has taken under advisement the motion of William Marx, attorney, for a new trial of the case of the state against Angelo Giangarello. The latter has been tried and convicted for manslaughter in the second degree. It is claimed that he shot and killed Basilo Romano, a fellow countryman in a saloon quarrel at Eveleth, the morning of July 4, 1905. Giangarello, after the shooting, fled to the Pacific coast, and was arrested nearly two years after the tragedy, at Spokane, Wash.

Mr. Marx, who has assumed charge of his case since the trial, based his motion for a new trial on the claim that the county attorney's course at the trial was prejudicial to the defendant and that the conduct of that official at the trial should have been objected to. Giangarello's attorney claims that the state tried its case, principally, by leading questions to the witnesses.

A GENUINE WHITE SALE

The Glass Block Takes Care of a Record-Breaking Crowd.

It didn't take the casual visitor to the Glass Block store today long to discover that there was "something doing" of a very unusual character.

Panton & White Co. announced in the Saturday Evening Herald and Sunday Morning Tribune the "White Sale of all White Sales," to begin this morning, at 8:30. It did begin at 8:30, too, for there were people waiting for admission to the store when the doors opened this morning, and the crowd continued to pour in and out all day long.

Very unusual features in connection with this store's 1908 white sale are the sales in white china, men's and boys' shirts, white notions, infants' wear, and a sale of beautiful, fancy slippers, at amazingly low prices.

Panton & White Co. announced at noon today that every indication pointed to the sale being the greatest success possible, and far outdistancing all previous endeavors.

"SCOTTY" IS EXONERATED.

James Lang, known to his friends in the West end as "Scotty," will not have to serve out the jail sentence of thirty days, which was meted out to him in municipal court, last Thursday. Lang was charged with petty larceny, in the theft of a check for $10.50, from one James Saunders. He was convicted on the testimony of three witnesses, and his own actions, but it develops that the check was given to him, and he was innocent of the charge. Application will be made to the municipal court today to reduce the sentence, and he will be released.

Lang's actions when he was arrested were queer. When the officer started to take the check from him, Lang crumpled it up in his hand and refused to give it over. That fact, together with the testimony of the witnesses, made a strong case against him, and he was found guilty.

Fred Taylor, who was held to the grand jury this morning on a burglary charge, was one of the witnesses who helped send Lang over, and he straightened the matter out today. The exoneration of "Scotty" is complete, and he will go free.

LOCKED OUT UNION MEN

Men Will Have Their Innings at Next Session.

When the members of the Duluth Ministerial association gathered this morning at the public library to hear Dwight E. Woodbridge deliver an address on "The Open Shop," they found themselves the embarassed hosts of a number of labor leaders, and some contractors who are prominent in the fight for the open shop.

Like the man in the song, the preachers didn't know exactly what to do.

In view of the character of his audience, Mr. Woodbridge was loath to give his address and had no hesitancy in communicating the fact of his unwillingness to the ministers. They had asked him to deliver an address to them, not to a number of trades union men and he disliked to provoke arguments, not to say debates, in the meeting.

Indeed, the session promised to be very interesting.

The preachers finally explained to the trades unionists and the representatives of the other side of the controversy, the contractors, that it was not their intention to take sides in any movement against union labor, nor was it their intention on this particular occasion to conduct an open meeting or a debating society session.

They explained that today they proposed to have Mr. Woodbridge, who is managing the open shop campaign for the contractors tell them something about the situation and that at their next meeting a trades union man would be invited to do the same thing.

The point of their explanation, however, was a request that all persons with the exception of bona fide ministers of the gospel leave the room, the speaker of the occasion being excepted. Not being able to qualify as sky pilots, the labor leaders and the contractors filed out, and the pastors proceeded to lock themselves in, after appointing Rev. Baxter Waters inside sentry and keeper of locks and seals.

To the purely ministerial gathering, Mr. Woodbridge delivered a safe and sane talk, giving his ideas about the open shop, about trades' unions and other things.

He did not decry trades' unions, according to one of the ministers who heard—for reporters were excluded—but said he was in favor of them to a considerable extent. He did think, however, that they were wrong in insisting upon the closed shop, something he described as a menace to the liberty of American labor.

He said the unions were too tyrannical in some of their demands; that they did not permit enough apprentices in their ranks, and that many of them wanted higher wages than they were entitled to. Mentioning plumbers, he said he doubted whether they were entitled to $5 a day, when they could probably work 300 days out of the year, when school teachers and other workers—a little more skilled, perhaps—received very much less.

Mr. Woodbridge declared that he believed in a fair day's pay for a fair day's work, and that the unionists should raise no objections to working alongside a man who did not belong.

He was heard throughout with great interest. The preachers were attentive listeners and, when he had finished, plied him with questions.

The attendance was the largest ever recorded at a meeting of the Ministerial association.

The trades' unionist who is next to address the pastors has not been named.

CARELESS CHRISTIANS

Rev. Lowrie Scores Those Who Are "Neither Cold Nor Warm."

Lukewarm Churchman is Worse Than Agnostic Before God.

At the Westminster Presbyterian church last evening Rev. W. J. Lowrie spoke on the subject "The Lukewarm Church." His theme was from the third chapter of Revelation when the church of Goodicea is reproved for its indifference.

Mr. Lowrie said in part:

"The indictment against the people of Goodicea was lukewarmness or indifference to their high obligations as Christians. It is a reproof which may justly be administered to a large proportion of present day Christians. The sin of the churches is in carlessness to the higher demands of conscientious living.

"Our philosophy of religion may be reduced to beautiful terms or sententious homilies, but our daily living may fall short of the mark. In other words, the vital part of true religion may be higher.

"Jesus makes the sin of luke-warmness greater than that of open hostility to religion. He said, 'Because thou art neither cold nor hot but luke-warm, I will cast thee out from my presence.' Carried to its logical conclusion this makes the careless church man more guilty than the skeptic or agnostic.

"Religion expressed in the worship of God is wholly right or wholly wrong. From the nature of things it cannot be half right or half wrong. God either exists or does not exist. He either must be worshipped as God or repudiated as not worthy of worship.

"The lukewarmness of the Goodiceans was caused by their inability to see themselves from a proper perspection, as Robert Burns said 'to see themselves as others see them.' They said of themselves 'we are rich, have vast properties, in fact, are in need of nothing.' They mistake the shadow for the substance, outward prosperity for spiritual wealth. With this form of things they were content. The vital elements of Christianity, humility, prayer, sacrifice and consecration were lost sight of."

RETURNED TO JAIL.

John Byron's Bonds Taken Down in Fear of Outbreak.

Drinking and loud-mouthed complaints of the injustices put upon him by his family and the police court, have forced the police to put John Byron, who has been out on bonds of $100 to keep the peace for one month, back into the county jail.

Complaint was brought against Byron by his wife, three weeks ago, on the grounds of ill treatment, abuse and fear on her part of bodily harm at her husband's hands. Judge Flack sentenced him to a month in jail unless he could produce $100 bonds assuring the peace between him and his wife. Yesterday, the bonds were withdrawn by the parties who put them up as Byron had been drinking hard and making himself disagreeable in general about his home and they feared that he might abuse his wife or in some way break the peace thus forfeiting the bonds. Bryon will spend the rest of his term in the county jail.

DEANERY MEETING.

Episcopal Ministers Will Hold Session in West Duluth.

The Duluth deanery of the Episcopal church will hold epiphany meeetings tonight and tomorrow at the Holy Apostles' church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elinor street, of which Rev. R. S. Mooney is the rector.

At the meeting this evening at 8 o'clock there will be addresses by Bishop J. D. Morrison of Duluth, Rev. R. S. Reed of St. Paul's church, Duluth, and Rev. E. Spencer Murphy of Grand Rapids, Minn.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock holy communion will be conducted by Dr. Regan. Bishop Morrison will preach, and following the sermon there will be a session, at which Rev. Frank Coolbaugh of Cloquet will read a paper on "Suffragan Bishops."

The Ladies' guild will serve lunch at the rectory at noon to the members of the deanery.

The afternoon session will begin at 2 o'clock, at which papers will be read by Rev. Frank Durant of Hibbing and Rev. A. Carswell of Virginia. The meetings are open to the public.

Form Gun Club.

Yesterday afternoon a number of West Duluth's young sportsmen held a meeting for the purpose of organizing a gun club. The name Zenith was chosen for the club, and officers were elected as follows: Fred G. Harris, president; O. C. Genrich and Arthur Jacobi, captains, and D. G. McLeod, secretary and treasurer.

The foot of Fifty-fifth avenue west has been chosen as the shooting grounds, and by next Sunday, when they hold their regular shoot, the traps will be put up and all in readiness for the pigeon breakers.

A large membership is expected, and on Jan. 19 the club will hold a meeting to draw up its constitution.

West Duluth Briefs.

The Missionary society of the Westminster Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. W. J. Lowrie, 629 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

At a meeting held yesterday by the Sunday school teachers of the Westminster Presbyterian church, the following officers were elected for the year 1908: Charles I. Towner, superintendent of the main Sunday school; Charlotte Howard, superintendent of the primary department; L. A. Barnes, assistant superintendent; A. P. Johnson, treasurer; William Ritchie, secretary of main room; Alexander Anderson, secretary of primary; Clarence Lunding and Earl Brayden, assistant secretaries, and Miss Melnid organist.

"RIPPER" CRIME AT BERLIN.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—Another mysterious "ripper" crime was committed last night in the suburb of Charlottenburg. A little girl, 4 years old, was enticed into the hallway of a house and fatally stabbed in the abdomen. No trace of the criminal has been found.

JESSE DIDN'T MISS A STEP

Jesse Clearwater fell down a flight of stairs last night. He must have done the slide act on his face, for the appearance of his countenance bears out the theory that every step took a wallop at his eyes and nose. A livid streak of black, blue and pink showed across his face when he appeared in court this morning, taking in both eyes and the bridge of his nose. He pleaded guilty to a drunk charge, and drew $1 and cost or three days.

Joe Portras' hat nearly fell from his hand when he arose in answer to his name. He held on to a chair to support himself, and his knees would hardly do their duty. He was a perfect specimen of a booze-wrecked frame, and, in order that he might sober up, a straight jail sentence of five days was given.

Lon Bean didn't think he was drunk, so his hearing was set for this afternoon, at 2 o'clock. He was released on $10 bail. William Raible didn't have a word to say but "guilty," and he was given the minimum fine.

JURORS ASSEMBLE FOR BUSINESS

The petit jurors summoned for service during the January term of the district court assembled this morning, but as there were no cases ready for trial until tomorrow, the jurors were excused until that time. The trial of the jury cases will begin at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and will be continued right through the term, Saturdays and Sundays excepted.

Following is the setting of jury cases:

Monday—Nos. 3, 18, 20, 21, 27, 28, 33, 35, 36, 37, 38, 40, 41, 42 and 43.

HAS PNEUMONIA HABIT.

K. L. Fenney Recovers From Third Attack of the Disease.

To suffer three successive attacks of pneumonia and live to tell the tale is an experience not often recorded.

K. L. Fenny, the photographer, has just recovered from his third attack of pneumonia, and is once more able to resume his work. He was stricken the first time on Sept. 16, and after a serious illness, recovered, and again he suffered a relapse after being out a few hours. The third attack nearly proved fatal, but after nearly five weeks he has once more regained his strength sufficiently to return to work. This time he will take every precaution against another relapse.

NORTH DAKOTA CLUB

Formed at Washington by Congressional and Department Employes.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The North Dakota congressional and department employes and others hailing from that state have formed a North Dakota club, such as residents of the other states in Washington have had for years. Maj. J. G. Hamilton is president, R. W. Farrar, vice president; C. A. Lounsberry, secretary, and W. A. Kelly of Hillsboro, treasurer. The directors are composed of these officers and Theodore Elton, E. G. Elston of Bismarck, and Laurin Nelson of Grafton.

DEPOSIT INSURANCE SPREADING.

Government insurance of bank deposits is not so far off as you might think, even in the gloom cast by the congressional frown upon the scheme.

It is coming much quicker than those who had expected it to come from congress had dared to hope for. It has come already in one state, and that means that it will spread very quickly.

It is very clear that it must spread, because its very nature is such that it cannot help spreading. Once started, it cannot be stopped.

Here is how it will spread and how it is spreading:

Before the passage of the Oklahoma banking laws, which provide for a state guaranty fund acquired by assessing the banks protected by it, the people of Oklahoma were rather distrustful of some of the Oklahoma banks, so they carried deposits in Wichita and other Kansas towns along the southern border.

Since the new law was passed, these deposits are being rapidly withdrawn and put into Oklahoma banks, where the depositors feel that they are safe because of the protection that has been thrown about them by strict regulation of the banking business and by the deposit guaranty fund.

But that means that the Kansas banks are losing these deposits. It also means that many depositors in the southern tier of Kansas counties will take advantage of the assurances of safety held out by the Oklahoma laws, and that their deposits will follow those of the Oklahomans who are moving their money back into their own state.

This is why the bankers of Kansas are clamoring for a Kansas law guaranteeing bank deposits. Two years ago they were almost unanimously against the scheme, and now they are so anxious for it that they would like to see a special session of the Kansas legislature take it up.

In these circumstances, a Kansas guaranty law cannot be long delayed. If Kansas has such a law, it means that Kansas banks will draw a good deal of money from Missouri, and already it is stated that the Kansas City, Mo., bankers are beginning to fear that their deposits will suffer from withdrawals in favor of Kansas banks just over the state line. That would drive Missouri to the adoption of a guaranty law; that in turn would force Illinois, Arkansas and Iowa into line; and Iowa's action would compel Minnesota and Wisconsin to follow suit.

In short, it looks very much as though the plan were going to work out very nicely. When it becomes evident that the spread is inevitable, most of the states will anticipate necessity by providing state guaranty laws at the earliest sessions of their legislature.

And finally, when it becomes evident to the national bankers that the states are generally providing the state banks with this assurance of the safety of deposits, they will lose no time in calling upon congress to provide a federal system of guaranty of deposits that will cover the national banks.

A MYSTERY.

That stalwart organ of Democracy—and other things—the Duluth News Tribune, seems fearfully disturbed by alarms lest Mr. Bryan should not receive the Democratic nomination for president.

Wonder why.

IS A FRANCHISE PROPERTY?

Recently The Herald pointed out the importance of the decision of the United States court in New York holding the 80-cent gas bill unconstitutional because it is confiscatory and therefore in violation of the over-worked fourteenth amendment to the Constitution. It is important because it involves the question of whether a franchise is property that may be capitalized, or whether it is merely a license to do business, like a liquor license or a peddler's license.

The New York World shows that the supreme court of the United States has already decided that question, and the decision is encouraging to those who hope to see the government, state and national, regulating the charges of public service corporations in the interests of the people.

Jan. 18, 1904, the supreme court handed down a decision in the Stanislaus irrigation case, which seems to be parallel with the New York gas case. The San Joaquin Irrigation company was incorporated in California in 1871 under an act of the state legislature passed in 1853 and amended in 1862, which allowed irrigation companies to charge certain rates. In 1885 the legislature passed a law giving boards of supervisors power to reduce water rates. Under this authority the supervisors of Stanislaus county, Cal., appraised the value of the irrigation company's investment at $337,000, and reduced the rates to provide a fair income on that valuation. The company claimed that it had actually invested $971,114; that the reduced rates would not allow it a profit of 6 per cent on this investment, and were, therefore, confiscatory.

The franchise question was involved in the case, and Justice Peckham, who wrote the opinion of the court, said that "such a franchise is nothing but in the nature of a privilege." The act of incorporation "was not intended to form a contract," but was "the statement of the then pleasure of the legislature, to so remain until subsequently altered by it." The court furthermore said: "It is not confiscation, nor a denial of the equal protection of the laws, nor a taking of property without due process of law, to fix water rates so as to give an income of 6 per cent upon the then value of the property actually used for the purpose of supplying water as provided by law." That value is stated by the court to be "the present cost of the construction of the canals, based on the prices of material, supplies and labor when the estimate was made."

In effect, the court declared that a franchise is merely a privilege, and that it cannot be given a value upon which dividends can be demanded.

The New York court, however, has held that a franchise is property, and it declared the 80-cent gas bill unconstitutional because the charge fixed by the law would not return proper dividends upon the capitalization of the gas company, a capitalization which included not only the franchise, but other property not "actually used" in the manufacture of gas.

If the New York court is right, attempts to regulate rates will be futile. If the supreme court is right in the Stanislaus case, rates can be made reasonable by public regulation.

NOT GUILTY.

The jury empanelled to try George H. Pettibone of the Western Federation of Miners on a charge of being a party to the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, rendered a verdict of not guilty Saturday.

William D. Haywood had already been acquitted of the same charge, and the state has dismissed the pending case against Charles H. Moyer, the president of the Federation.

This leaves only Harry Orchard and Jack Simpkins to be disposed of. The latter, who was a member of the executive board of the Federation, is a fugitive from justice. Orchard, who confessed to a voluminous and appalling list of crimes, and who implicated the other defendants with himself, is at the disposal of the state.

The acquittal of these men is not surprising. The story told by Orchard was so incredible, and his character was so blackened by his own relation, that even men who may have believed that there was some truth to it would hesitate to condemn any man to death on such testimony. It is presumed that some hope had been held out by the state to Orchard in consideration of his confession, though this is denied. His confession, though it did not suffice to convince the other accused persons, furnishes ample ground for hanging him several times over.

The outcome of the case leaves the outside public about where it began: in the belief that the labor troubles in Colorado and Idaho formed a very nasty mess, with altogether too much guilt on both sides.

Haywood and Pettibone, having been acquitted upon trial, must be legally presumed to be innocent, and the same thing is true of Moyer, whose trial, if it had proceeded, would undoubtedly have had the same result. Yet the Federation and the Mine Owners' association both stand convicted in the minds of the public of having gone beyond the bounds of law and order to accomplish their ends.

REORGANIZING THE MILITIA.

The Dick bill, the national law for the organization and maintenance of state militia, was to have become effective Jan. 21, 1908, when the state militia was expected to be officered and manned in accordance with its provisions and to receive additional aid from the government. However, few or none of the states are ready, and it has been necessary to introduce a new bill postponing the time when the law goes into effect for two years more.

There appears to be a disposition in many quarters to criticise the militia of the various states for failing to comply with the provisions of the law in time, on the ground that it indicates a lack of proper interest, which fails to justify the objects of those who are responsible for the Dick law.

According to members of the Minnesota national guard, however, the fault is not with the states, but with the war department, which did not issue its orders providing in detail just what is expected of the states until four months ago. This did not give time enough in which to reorganize the state troops, especially as in most cases the reorganization required is radical indeed.

The object of the Dick law is to put the state troops on the same plan of organization as the federal troops. This is proper, of course, because in the event of war much valuable time would be wasted, after the state troops are called into service, in readjusting their organization to make it conform to national requirements. The Dick law was intended to bring about this reorganization in a time of peace, so that in the event that necessity called the state troops into the service of the federal government, they would be ready for use.

In view of the fact that the war department delayed the publication of its orders so long, criticism of the unpreparedness of the state troops is unwarranted. It was not to be expected that the state troops could be reorganized before the war department had informed the state authorities just what was required of them, and to give the states only four months in which to accomplish the task set for them is unreasonable.

The bill which Senator Dick of Ohio has introduced postponing the operation of the law for two years should be adopted by congress. The measure is very important, for the time to put the state troops in such condition that they will be ready for service when called upon is now, when peace prevails, and not after war has broken out and men are needed to prosecute it.

There is at present great lack of uniformity in the organization of the various state militias. Some, like New York's, have company standards of strength much greater than the requirements of the Dick bill, while in most of the states the company requirements are lower. The same thing is true of the regimental standards.

THE THAW CASE.

The second trial of Harry K. Thaw, charged with the murder of Stanford White, was begun in New York today. Time has paled its interest for the public, and the sordid and grewsome details which formed such a scathing commentary on the kind of life that is often chosen by the purposeless sons of the rich will not be followed with such eager public interest as they were upon the first trial.

The most interesting and encouraging fact in connection with the second trial is that Justice Victor J. Dowling of the supreme court, before whom the case will be heard, has issued an order that will find universal approval among all lovers of decency and morality. He has ruled that no woman other than members of the immediate family of the defendant shall be permitted to attend the hearing. At the first trial the courtroom became a show place, and hundreds of sensation-seeking females crowded their way in to listen greedily to the unspeakable details. Of course no true woman needs an order of the court to prevent her from so demeaning herself, but in the interests of public decency it was entirely proper that the judge should see to it that those who are not worthy the name of woman should be barred from the courtroom.

Winter surely must have been unavoidably detained somewhere this year.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

They have a Happy club down in Chicago, says Alvin Woodward, at the McKay. This club is organized for the purpose of curing those infirmities that men are heir to. The simple medium of prayer is what the members of the club trusts in, to cure their many and varied infirmities.

The only cure registered thus far is that of an inebriate. His status, when Mr. Woodward last had the news of the club, was that in two days he had only taken two drinks, which was considered quite a victory for the club.

The opening of the club brought a procession of the maimed and crippled flocking to its doors. It was only anticipated that possibly seven or eight would attend the first expounding of the club's theories, but the faith of human kind evidently is strong in Chicago, for Mr. Woodward, who lives near the club on Adams stret, says the S. R. O. sign was hung out early in the afternoon.

It seems that it is not imperative to attend the lecture room of the Happy club to become a beneficiary of its bountiful blessings. You can take the absent treatment. You can call up the club on the telephone and order a special brand of faith cure, that you think will fit your case.

Then, if you live so far away that you would have to use the long distance to get the Happy club, and thereby spend some money that you might not possibly get back, you can mail in the symptoms of your case, also prescribing the cure you would like to have effected by the efficacy of prayer.

It seems that the policy of the club is long on faith. If you believe you are not going to get cold or pneumonia, and make up your mind to the same, you can open the window and face the wintry blasts from Lake Michigan with perfect assurance that la grippe or pneumonia or kindred cold weather ills will not find a home in your anatomy.

They have only persons affected with ills at the present time. But Mr. Woodward suggests what a big field that is open to the club. Retired ring champions, for prize fighters are always susceptible to faith, may attend the meetings of the club with the hope of being rejuvenated; bookmakers (not publishers), may attend the meetings of the Happy club with the fervant hope of getting a good hunch for the winter book on the first stake race next spring; politicians might hope to get an inside curtain peep at the hand writing on the wall; tragedians might come with the hope of being tipped on to a present day manager who would produce Macbeth, and federal officials might hope to find a railroad that has not been guilty of rebating.

The Happy club surely has a great future before it. If it can keep up the faith end of it, says Mr. Woodward.

A Warning.

Chicago Evening Post: The commissioner of health, in his current bulletin, bases a warning to the public on figures the import of which no one should disregard.

The fact that deaths from the "grippe" and pneumonia have been on the increase since Christmas justifies the prediction that "pronounced increases in the mortality from pneumonia and influenza may be looked for if the present unfavorable meteorologic conditions continue much longer."

In the view of this danger the commissioner adds in a few succinct phrases this valuable advice:

"It is therefore timely to again warn the public of the danger of neglecting 'colds' and to repeat the advice so frequently given in recent issues of this bulletin—viz., if you would avoid pneumonia, influenza, etc., live in the open air as much as possible, sleep in properly ventilated rooms, do not attend meetings in illy ventilated halls, do not ride in hot, stuffy street or steam cars, keep out of 'drafts,' avoid excesses in eating and drinking."

To which may be added obvious but most important advice against wearing damp clothing or wet shoes.

Literary Coincidences.

London Chronicle: Apropos of literary coincidences, Tennyson writes: "A Chinese soldier some time ago wrote to me saying that in an unknown, untranslated Chinese poem there were two whole lines of mine almost word for word." Or, again, in the case of Byron, who, in his monody on the death of Sheridan, where he says there will never be another Sheridan, the mold being broken up, he employs, word for word, terms in which an ancient Sanskrit document refers to the death of Maru, notwithstanding that Byron could never have seen the document. And, once more, Shakespeare's passage about love and lightning in "Romeo and Juliet," Act II, Scene 2, is almost identical with a quotation from "Malata and Madhava," an Indian poem by Bhavabuti, written nine centuries before and not translated up to Shakespeare's time. So history repeats itself.

THE WEATHER.

Still remarkably fine winter weather. This morning, after a brilliantly beautiful Sunday, it was clear and gorgeous. Later it clouded over, but the weather man says snow is only a possibility, not a probability. It will, however, be colder tomorrow, he says. Last night's lowest temperature was 17 degs. and yesterday's highest was 31 degs.

A year ago today it was cloudy but mild and pleasant.

The sun rose this morning at 7:54 and set tonight at 4.35, making 8 hours and 41 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A barometric depression of considerable intensity has moved its center from Northern Alberta to Manitoba during the past twenty-four hours. The principal result has been a rather decided rise to mild temperature throughout the Northwest during the past twenty-four hours. Some rain or snow fell as a result, but it has thus far occurred over Manitoba and North Pacific districts. Quite copious rains fell during the past twenty-four hours over Texas and the Gulf region, due to a low pressure area in the latter district. The barometer is highest over Nevada and Utah, and temperatures vary from 10 to 20 degs above zero there. Zero temperatures prevail in the Adirondacks, attending a high pressure area moving northward along the Atlantic coast. The Manitoba disturbance will doubtless move past this locality during tonight and Tuesday, still the chances are not particulary favorable for snow as a result, but the temperature will probably turn a little colder during Tuesday, attending a consequent pressure increase."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Jan. 6.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges: Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Lowest temperature tonight about 15 degs. above zero. Colder Tuesday. Brisk southwest to northwest winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Forecasts until 7 p. m., Tuesday: Upper Michigan—Fair tonight and Tuesday, except snow near Lake Superior; colder in northern part.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Tuesday; slightly cooler Tuesday.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; colder in west portion tonight.

North and South Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler tonight.

The Vice Presidential "Bar'l."

Washington Herald: Commenting upon the Washington Herald's suggestion that Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota would be a most excellent choice as Mr. Bryan's running mate on the Democratic ticket, the Louisville Courier-Journal says:

"Come, come! Whoever heard of the nominee for vice president cutting any figure in the compaign, or saving a ticket, not sure of election? And if Johnson should be nominated for vice president, what would become of Chanler of New York and his 'bar'l,' so necessary to eke out the $100,000 already subscribed, and partly paid in, by Denver?"

It was a sensible suggestion, and we hereby renew it. Johnson is the man for second place on the Democratic ticket. The first place is assured. Then Johnson is the man for second. He would serve, as we have said, to keep the Minnesota man in the public eye—a sort of presidential asset in reserve.

The main point we wish to stress in counter comment here, however, is the Courier-Journal's intimation that a candidate with a "bar'l" is an essential element in a presidential ticket. The very fact that Johnson is not a rich man would appeal tremendously. Mr. Chanler may be a most excellent gentleman for all we know, but we should dislike to believe it were so merely because he is abundantly blessed with this world's goods. No man whose only qualification is a "bar'l" should have the nomination for the vice presidency. The vice president should be looked upon as a sort of heir-apparent to the presidency—as, indeed, he is—and he should be a man whom the masses would approve of, entirely, as president.

We believe the Democratic party could do no wiser act than break away from the old idea in connection with the vice president and the "bar'l" and nominate a full-sized statesman for the job. The more we think of the Johnson idea the more we like it. Give him a place on the Democratic ticket next time. Make him Bryan's running mate.

Let the party be done with "the man with the 'bar'l.'" He never carried a campaign to victory. He never will.

Discovering Johnson.

Nashville Banner: A curious controversy has arisen concerning the discovery of John A. Johnson of Minnesota, the one-time mysterious "dark horse" mentioned by Henry Watterson. Col. Hemphill, editor of the Charleston News and Courier, has laid claim to having discovered the Minnesota governor as an available and desirable candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, before Col. Watterson began to grom his "dark horse" with such oracular skill. Nevertheless, this discussion of claims is a waste of words. The truth is, Johnson discovered himself and placed himself in so prominent a position in Minnesota there was no need of a searchlight or a political detective agency to find him. His star was shining in the political firmament in plain view to the natural or common eye, while some of the searchers with party telescopes were discovering lesser lights.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Frank Long, the wholesale cigar dealer, has gone on a month's trip to Philadelphia, New York and other eastern cities.

Thomas Gardner, a blacksmith at the West end, while hauling the carcass of a dead horse out of his stable, was thrown to the ground and his left leg was broken in several places.

Franklin R. Milness of Yhiladelphia is in the city visiting S. H. Rothermel and expects to remain here.

A few days ago, while excavating for a sewer near the Bay View house, a blast was discharged which threw out several pieces of rock resembling first class iron ore, one of which went through the roof of the Bay View. It was taken to the office of A. M. Morrison, and experts state that it as rich in iron as is often found in the mines of the Vermilion range.

A. S. Loomis to Ruel Blackmarr and Michael Kelley, lot 362, block 39, Second division, $8,000.

C. W. Harvey to Charles A. Stewart, lots 22 and 24, block 151, Third division, $1,200.

A. H. Holgate to J. A. Hanks, lot 62, block 57, Third division, $1,025.

F. H. Feetham to Sadie A. Parker, lot 85, block 75, Third division, $1,500.

Will P. Lardner has been made a member of the banking firm of Paine & Lardner.

Capt. John Monaghan has begun work on the annual ice crop. Fully 15,000 tons will be harvested in Duluth this winter.

Felix Trainor of Trainor Bros., Minneapolis, who built the Duluth National bank building, is in the city and may locate here.

The Scandia Building & Loan association has elected Nils Hall, O. Stenson and F. Gabrielson as directors. It is the sixth building and loan association in operation in Duluth.

C. Bruce Nimmo, the West end druggist, will soon occupy enlarged business quarters, rendered necessary by his increasing business.

The partnership existing between Messrs. Smith and Dewey has been dissolved, J. M. Smith retiring. Mr. Dewey will continue the grain commission business.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Wasoca Herald: The Roosevelt administration borrows money at 3 per cent and loans it to favored banks for nothing, that these banks may save the country by loaning the money out at 8 per cent. This may be high finance, but it will strike the average man as rather an expensive way of meeting an emergency. But it is the gold bondocracy plan.

Owatonna People's Press: Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, author of the bankruptcy law, has introduced in the United States senate a bill to provide that debtors who owe less than $500 shall not to be permitted to take advantage of the terms of the act. Why should the small debtor be made an exception as to the Nelson cure? If it is right to protect and allow a big bankrupt to square debts why not allow the small impotunate debtor to do likewise? This is but class legislation and rank injustice.

Ortonville Herald-Star: The papers quite generally contend that the lid is being kept screwed down pretty tight in their own towns, but is being badly tilted over in the next town.

Madison Independent Press: In his tariff talk, the other day Governor Johnson probably sounded what may be set down as the key note of the Democratic national platform of 1908—tariff reform. That was what made Mr. Cleveland president and history, sometimes, repeats itself.

Lake Crystal Union: The dispatches tell us that Taft has "cut loose from Teddy." Just what that means is not quite clear, but if Taft has cut loose from President Rosevelt, he has cut loose from the people of the United States. The people want a man for president who will carry out Roosevelt's policy.

Anoka Union: Old Speaker Cannon is getting to be considered a nuisance, and his blocking of desired legislation is destined to be his undoing, and it should.

New Ulm Review: Speaker Cannon says "the house is the only institution under our Constitution where the will of the people may be expressed with a fair approximating scientific accuracy." J. Adam Bede can no longer be regarded as the congressional humorist.

Albert Lea Standard: Tom Lawson nominates Roosevelt and John A. Johnson for a presidential ticket. Either at the head would command the confidence and enthusiasm of the country, but each is too great a man has a call to public service too important to be shelved in the vice presidential office.

Eveleth News: Tariff reform shall not show its horrid head in the council halls of the nation as it might unsettle business and interfere with the presidential campaign. This determination by the men we send to Washington may cut a bigger figure in the campaign than it would if the issue were accepted.

St. Peter Herald: It is said that the leaders of congress favor a short session, so that they may return to their constituents as speedily as possible. The temper of the country is such that, unless something is accomplished by congress, they need not hasten their return, for they will have a long time to tarry with their constituents.

A Bryan Man's View.

Minneapolis Journal: H. G. Day of the Albert Lea Standard, one of the warmest Bryan men in Minnesota and an incorrigible radical, is all out of patience with Charles d'Autremont for his attack on Governor Johnson as the "Jim Hill candidate" for president. He says:

"Mr. d'Autremont of Duluth seems to be in a state of 'seein' things,' but it is hoped that his condition will not become serious. He says Jim Hill and other plutocrats are backing the presidential candidacy of Governor Johnson. Thus all can plainly see that Mr. d'Autremont is 'off,' and his friends should take care of him. For, in the first place, Governor Johnson is not a candidate for president, and no well-posted and fair-minded man will assert that he is, or discredit his frank and sincere attitude and statements in relation to the matter. And, further, what if Jim Hill and other plutocrats do favor Governor Johnson for president? Does anybody believe that this is through the connivance, consent or desire of Governor Johnson? Yet more—the people well know, and d'Autremont, when normal, knows, that Governor Johnson is a man of conscience, a man of the common people, and that with all his noble manhood he despises plutocracy, and that if, fortunately for Democracy and the republic, he should become president, plutocracy would get such a lemon as was never before handed out to it in all its wilful and wicked history."

The Field for Patriotic Endeavor.

New York World: There is plenty of work for the critic and reformer to do; but there was never less corruption in politics than now, the government is cleaner and better, the republic is more firmly established. The greatest danger that threatens American institutions comes from the people themselves—from their good nature, their indifference, their credulity, their apathy, their readiness to be exploited by men who make politics a trade.

The republic is bound to last as long as the people retain the instinct and capacity for self-government; even the latent desire for self-government. In spite of demagogues, never more eloquent, influential and high-stationed; in spite of corruptionists; in spite of predatory poverty, predatory plutocracy and all the other forces of evil, not only are American institutions safe and the republic secure, but they are safer and securer than at any other period in the history of the United States.

Long live the republic!

Danger.

Ramsey Benson in New York Herald: There is probably such a thing as reducing the cost of living too far. If living were to be brought within the reach of all, or nearly all, it would be robbed of much of the distinction which now serves to render it worth the while of really important people.

LAUGHING GAS.

Baltimore American: "The way that dog tries to get you to answer his appeal for a bone is like the famous orator's."

"How can the dog remind you of an orator?"

"Paws for a reply!"

Philadelphia Press: "Robber!" growled the victim, "you said that house was just a stone's throw from the station."

"Well?" demanded the real estate agent.

"Well, the distance is half a mile at least."

"Is that all? Time and again I've seen a blast from a quarry that would throw stones upward of a mile."

Chicago Record-Herald: "No," she sadly said, "I cannot marry you, Charles. I am sorry, but it is best that we should part."

"You have admitted that you love me," he protested.

"I know, but I am afraid you wouldn't in case of trouble be able to pay me enough alimony to be worth mentioning."

Baltimore American: "That wit has such spirit in his replies."

"How can he have?"

"Why not?"

"Because only yesterday I heard you say he had such dry humor."

Chicago Tribune: "Now," said the lecturer, as he folded up his manuscript after having given the pupils of the night school a discourse on the wonders of chemistry, "I shall be pleased to answer any questions you wish to ask."

"What becomes of all the corks?" asked a shaggy-haired boy in the audience.

Chicago Tribune: "Baldwin, you've been drinking!"

"I don't show it half as much as you do, Rambo."

"That's because you sobered yourself by getting your safe open. It took you half an hour to work the combination. I've been watching you, you glaring old fraud!"

Governor Johnson on the Issue.

Boston Globe: Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota points out in a telegram to the New York World that the great issue of 1908 will be the tariff. The present tariff, he says, is mainly responsible for the existence of the trusts, and reform of the tariff will work the correction of those abuses which have been made possible by special privileges. Governor Johnson believes that the year 1908 will see tariff reform accomplished or well under way, for if the present congress does not at the present session make substantial reductions the people in November will elect those pledged to do so."

There is no likelihood that the present congress will realize the expectations of those who appreciate the need of tariff reform. It is true that appreciation of this need exists here and there among the farther-sighted of Republican leaders, but the fiat of "stand pat" has gone forth and it will be obeyed. Whatever may be said of other great issues which the Democratic party long and earnestly has espoused, tariff reform is one which has not been appropriated by the present Republican administration; and Governor Johnson is right when he indicates this as the field on which the Democratic party can refift its standard with consistent sincerity, courage and hope.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man calls it being reasonable when he wants dinner to be on time though he never is.

A girl is pretty smart to make her father take her side by having her mother take the other.

There's hardly anything so monotonous to a man as staying home with his family except traveling with it.

A useful thing about a girl's going to boarding school is the way she learns there to like the things to eat at home.

79c 81x90-inch SHEETS 55c. Very heavy linen finish sheets, size 81x90 inches, for full size beds — less than the mill price of the cotton, at 55c each. 55c

This White Sale is a Most Helpful Sale!

It surpasses in importance and value giving any ever held before in this store—or in this city! No one realizes better than ourselves how the constantly increasing cost of things makes it a serious problem to keep household and personal expenses down to the proper level! Cotton is high! Flax is high! Spinners' wages have been advanced! Child labor (we are thankful to say) has been greatly restricted! And all these things prevent any possibility of cottons and linens ever again being as cheap as they used to be!

$6 to $27.50 for Pattern Cloths worth $7.00 to $33.00

In plain figures—the prices on these sets would be $7.00 to $33.00 if we had bought in the last six months!

We were fortunate enough to place large orders previous to the 20 to 25 per cent advance of about six months ago. We can make prices almost as low as we did a year ago! That's surely good news, for what other store hereabouts can truthfully claim as much?

And our showing of pattern cloths is larger and finer than ever—cloths for round or square tables—large cloths for banquet tables—we invite you to see damasks such as no other store hereabouts can show you!

Napkins to match the cloths—all prices figured down to rock bottom!

$3.95 FOR $5.00 NAPKINS. We took all the maker had—they are napkins such as most stores would sell at $6. We'd be proud to sell them at $5.00, but we got a bargain because there were no damasks to match. We'll sell you a half dozen for $2.00.

7½c for 10c 17-inch Crash Toweling.

However, because of immense stocks bought last spring, supplemented by advantageous purchases of opportune offerings during the financial flurry of two months ago, when few houses in the land dared buy, we are able to offer you many lines at less than today's mill prices.

10c for 12½c chamois finish Loug Cloth.

Choice 80 Pieces Damask at $1

$1.00 A magnificent lot of beautiful damask of sterling quality—silver bleached German linen—Irish linens in bleached and half bleached, heavy twilled or fine satin damask—these same linens on sale in the largest cities at $1.25 and $1.35 a yard.

Big advance on damasks since we bought makes this sale of great interest to you—here $1 a yard.

Best 25c Towels in the Land

We had almost 200 dozen of them on Dec. 31—they had been bought last spring—you know well they could not be duplicated today at the price we paid then. Plain hemstitched or escalloped, embroidered ends—you can tell they're wonderful values at 25c, so buy here now, while you can get them!

15c 20c TOWELS 15c. Real 20c Turkish Towels, large size hemmed or fringed—bleached or brown—on sale at 15c each.

17c RUSSIAN CRASH 12½c. Extra heavy; will outwear all others; fast border; always 17c; sale price 12½c. 12½c

On the Bargain Square

5c, 7c and 10c Doilies, 2½c

Fringed doilies of pretty figured damask—the 7c and 10c kinds—all go in the White sale at the lowest price ever quoted on doilies—2½c for choice on the Bargain Square..... 2½c 2½c

68c Damask 49c

49c for 64-inch cream damask—the kind that is usually 68c a yard—on sale at 49c the yard.

$1.19 $1.50 Satin Damask for $1.19. The $1.50 qualities of heavy satin damask; snow white or cream; superb designs with napkins to match; we guarantee the wear; you can't match them at $1.19.

$2.60 for $3.50 dozen 22-inch Napkins—Twenty-five dozen only of these famously good 22-inch napkins—regularly selling at $3.50—on sale at $2.60 the dozen.

The Loveliest of Embroideries

GOATS ATE AN ISLAND

Duluth Visitor From Nebraska Has Tall Story to Tell.

Angoras Consumed Pasture Land and Had to Swim Ashore.

J. B. Flotten owns a herd of Angora goats that consumed an island.

You have heard of ostriches masticating ten-penny nails, cans that once contained samples of Heinz's fifty-seven varieties, bolts, father's old shoes and musty cod liver oil, which last two feats is going some; but have you ever heard tell of goats consuming an island?

Mr. Flotten lives up at Kearney, on the Platte river, in Nebraska. He wears a Stetson hat, a No. 10 boot, smokes a big black cigar after breakfast and a briar pipe after that. He is a typical specimen of the men who have ranches on the Western prairies. But just now Mr. Flotten has given up cattle. He has retired from the big game of cattle raising and is contenting himself with running a small ranch and watching the wonders that the zinc lined and reinforced digestive system of these goats can accomplish. Mr. Flotten is at the St. Louis hotel and says "honest" after he finishes telling this story.

He recently purchased a herd of fifty goats and placed them on the uninhabited little island near his ranch, near Kearney. The island was covered with underbrush, and it was for the purpose of clearing the land of this brush that Mr. Flotten placed the goats there.

The island is about twenty miles from the Flotten ranch, so that after the brush assimilators were once safely installed on the island Mr. Flotten did not take the trouble to visit them more than at least once a month.

He visited them at the end of the first month and noticed with pleasure the wonderful progress they were making in the clearing of the thick underbrush. Then he was called to Omaha on business and it was fully six weeks before he saw his Angoras again. He was still greater astonished at the progress they had achieved the next time he saw them.

It seems that the island that was—for the gentle current of the Platte now washes placidly over its surface—was composed of a mossy, glucose kind of subsoil. Into this soft bed of earth penetrated the wiry roots of the bushes and other plants that grew so abundantly on the land. These roots formed a sort of tie that bound, like that eternal tie of affection, etc., that you read about on mottos on the wall.

When the busy angoras began to exhaust the roots, that is get down into the mossy, springy subsoil, the existence of the island began to be threatened. Then the goats began burrowing into the surface of the island, eating greedily of the soft, mossy, succulent, grass-mixed soil. They must have eaten on this stone age diet very nearly all of the six weeks that Mr. Flotten was in Omaha. They just kept on getting nearer to nature and the tide level of the river until one day they had to swim for the shore.

Mr. Flotten returned from Omaha, expecting to see the island cleared of its underbrush and foliage of various kinds, but was mightily taken back at the wonders accomplished by the goats.

He thought he had lost his bearings at first. He got out an old plat of the river and began to look up his bearings. There could be no mistake about it; the goats had clean devoured, assimilated and digested that pile of brush and the island besides. Mr. Flotten was slow in accepting this, for he is a Republican and has taken President Roosevelt's admonition about nature faking sternly to heart. Yet there was the undoubted fact, for the problem could be proven by elimination. So, Mr. Flotten had his flock of island destroyers herded back to the ranch and has turned them loose on the big broad prairie, where their consuming powers can have full sway.

Rare Art Opportunity.

Discriminating art lovers are taking full advantage of the half price sale of high-grade pictures at the Engels Art store. A particularly attractive feature is the table of framed pictures at 50 cents, every one worth many times that amount. Each day this table is replenished with new and attractive subjects. A sale like this comes but once a year—at the Engels Art store.

EMPERORS' LIABILITY LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Washington, Jan. 6.—In an opinion by Justice White, the supreme court of the United States today held to be unconstitutional the congressional enactment of June 11, 1906, known as the "employers' liability law," making railroads and other common carriers responsible to employes in accidents due to the negligence of fellow servants or to ineffective appliances. The decision of the lower courts was affirmed.

Pictures at Cost!

This week, at Decker's art store, 16 Second avenue west, an opportunity to buy strictly high-class pictures at what they cost the dealer. Included are copyrights, English prints and water-colors.

CITY BRIEFS

Eight Indictments.

Eight indictments were returned by the grand jury this afternoon, only one of which was made public, that of James Ross, who was indicted for grand larceny charged with having stolen $70. The other seven men are not in custody.

Demurrer Sustained.

In district court this afternoon the demurrer of the defendant was sustained in the case of Dan Malkovich vs. the Shenango Furnace company. It was a personal injury case.

Stipulate for Dismissal.

A stipulation for the dismissal of the personal injury case of Blas Zakrapek against the Oliver Iron Mining company was filed in the district court this morning. Davis & Hollister represented the plaintiff and Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer represented the defendant company.

Eleven Policemen Sick.

The grip has cut into the police force seriously and Chief Troyer is worried. There are now eleven men from the force down with the ailment and any further inroads would throw the system into no little confusion. Physicians report an unusually large number of cases of the disease all over the city, and many office forces are seriously crippled by it.

New Trolley Wire.

The aerial bridge is now in fine working order. A new trolley wire was placed in position last week to replace that which broke about two months ago. Both trolleys are now intact and there is little danger of a suspension of the bridge on account of a broken wire. The wire netting is also in place over the car and the carpenters, who are reenforcing the roofs of the cabins, will complete their work this week.

Entertain Performers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Welsh and Miss Marjorie Welsh entertained, at dinner, Saturday evening, in honor of their cousins, the four Brown brothers and Doc Kelley, who were the performers at the Bijou last week.

Citizenship Papers Granted.

Thirty applicants were granted citizenship papers at the hearing held in the district court, Saturday afternoon. About five applications were rejected on technical grounds, lack of sufficient knowledge of the applicant's whereabouts for the past five years being responsible for the refusal to grant papers in most of the cases.

Funeral Postponed.

The funeral of Jacob Pelasld, who died last week was postponed from this morning until tomorrow morning. The services will be held at the Ploish Catholic church on Third avenue east, with interment in Calvary cemetery.

Demurrer Overruled.

The defendant's demurrer was overruled in district court this afternoon, in the case of Cosmos D. Hone vs. Alfred Mellen & Co. Twenty days were allowed for the filing of an answer. The case will come up for hearing on the January calendar.

Mrs. Quigley Dies.

Mary Quigley died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. Walsh, 424 East Fourth street, Jan. 5. The deceased leaves a husband, William Quigley, two sons, James and Edward, and one daughter. The funeral will be held from the Cathedral, Wednesday morning. Interment at Calvary cemetery.

The Unity Club.

The Unity club will meet this evening, at 8 o'clock, and will continue the discussion of the subject "Municipal Government by Commission," which was begun at the meeting in December. S. T. Harrison will be the speaker.

Entertain St. Paul Guests.

Mrs. P. L. Whalen of the West end and Mrs. C. E. McNaughton entertained last Friday evening, for Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Madden of St. Paul.

HOMESTAKE MILL THREATENED.

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 6.—Fire in the Homestake stamp mill of the Homestake company, Saturday, threatened the destruction of the mill. The boiler room and change room were ruined and the mill will be out of commission two days. It treats one-fifth of the output of the company, and is the oldest mill here. The fire may have been the result of boys smoking in the change room. The loss is about $5,000.

TESTIMONY IS WEAKENED

Bixby, Under Cross Examination, Nullifies Many Statements.

St. Paul, Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under fire of defendant cross-examination by Attorney John Lind and Judge Luse, for the defense, Earl A. Bixby, who on Saturday gave strong testimony for the prosecution in the case against L. C. Wood, L. A. Wood, F. B. Wood, George W. Wood, Charles C. Kelly and Carl Foss, accused of using the mails to defraud, today weakened and nullified much of his former testimony.

He contradicted himself several times, and at other times said he was not sure in regard to some of his former statements.

MINISTER IS JILTED

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 6.—As Rev. Walter Clapp, formerly rector of St. John's church here, now a missionary in the Philippines, entered St. John's church Saturday morning to be wedded to Miss Alice Thorne, a prominent Toledo society girl, he was handed a note of "I can't marry you today" variety, sent by the bride, declaring the match off.

Miss Thorne gives no public reason for her action, and the affair has caused a stir in local society circles.

Rev. Dr. Clapp came direct from the Philippines to wed Miss Thorne, who is from one of the oldest and most prominent families in this section. A trip to the Mediterranean had been planned to begin this week. Friends were notified by telephone that the wedding would not take place.

The bride is sorrowful at the home of her parents and Dr. Clapp left after he had been jilted, saying he would return to the Philippines to resume his work.

LIFE WRECKED BY CHEESE.

Odor Drives Young Locksmith to Attempt Suicide.

Paris, Jan. 6.—Some queer things have been responsible for suicides and attempts at suicide, but it is doubtful if anybody ever tried to rid himself of life for a stranger reason than that which has just led Pierre Dufresne, a young locksmith in this city, to seek a speedy exit from this world.

Dufresne now lies in a hospital in a critical condition because he preferred death to a life in which its delicate olfactory organs were frequently assailed by the odor of a certain variety of cheese of which his father and mother were inordinately fond.

This cheese is called maroles. The smell of it closely resembles that of Limburger.

DIES FROM IMAGINATION.

Man Worries Himself Into Believing He Has Hydrophobia.

New York, Jan. 6.—Christian Henry is dead at the Kings County hospital of pure imagination, the doctors say.

Henry had been expecting to have hydrophobia for four years, finally worried himself into all the smyptoms and expired just as those do who really have the disease.

The autopsy today showed he did not have rabies at all. The physicians attributed his death to complete nervous collapse and a queer form of brain disease.

GAS COMPANY WORKED

By Minneapolis Man Who Was Caught Redhanded.

Minneapolis, Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Accused of stealing gas from the Minneapolis Gas Light company, in quantities sufficient to heat and light a four-story building, J. H. Hlavacek proprietor of the Grand Central hotel, 108 Second streeet S., was locked up in the Central police station.

One of the gas company's agents gained entrance to Hlavacek's engine room. He says he found a pipe leading directly from the gas main to the boiler where big boilers were making steam and heating water for the comfort of the guests. There was no meter between the main and the burners. Hlavacek was immediately arrested on a warrant.

The final investigation and the arrest followed weeks of figuring by experts, who compared the amount of gas produced at the plant with the amount registered on the meters, and were at a loss to account for the many thousands of feet that were going out without a return in money.

SWITCHMAN KILLED.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Roy Scott, a switchman, aged 30, and unmarried, fell off the tender of the switch engine in the Ann Arbor yards Saturday night and was cut to pieces, the body being horribly mutilated. The remains were taken to Peshtigo for interment.

DR. HALE ON WOMAN'S WORK.

In his Monthly Talk in the Woman's Home Companion, Dr. Edward Everett Hale says:

"Will you please to remember that the bottom rock of American success is the habit or determination that every place, village, town, neighborhood, or whatever you call it, shall have home rule. If I and Mr. Goodchild want to have a road and a bridge which shall go back to the rhododendron swamp, we build the road and we build the bridge with such help as we can get from Mrs. Tucker or from Mr. Champlin, and we do not write to a sub-prefect who writes to a prefect who writes to an assistant commandant who writes to another commandant who writes to an intendent who writes to a secretary of engineers who sends word to us from the seat of government whether we may build the bridge and how we may build it. Lift where you stand expresses the foundation principle, the subsoil, the hard pan, the bed rock of American life.

"Now, a very queer thing has developed in the evolution of this principle. It has proved that where the men of the country have been too busuy, or have thought they were, to attend to their own affairs, the women have been able to attend to them better than the men do.

"Take this business which I have referred to, of a neighborhood library, feeding a region of not more than 4,000 or 5,000 people. The affairs of that library, if they are well conducted, are conducted by the women of the neighborhood. They know what their children want, they know what their husbands need. And it is very fortunate for the neighborhood and the library that they can harness the horses and can drive themselves to the meetings of trustees and select the books and tell Miss Dorcas how many she may buy."

BURGLARS IN OFFICE

Room of Broker and Directory Company Visited at Night.

Desks Broken Open, Papers Scattered, But Nothing is Secured.

When the representatives of the R. L. Polk Directory company and William Kaiser, the broker, arrived at their joint offices, 106 Palladio building, this morning, a scene of desolation was presented to their view. The interior of the office looked as though a miniature cyclone had played hide-and-seek between the desks and in the corners all through the night. Two roll top desks were tipped over and their tops forced open; another was still standing, but the rolling cover had been rudely shattered; the bottom of one of the desks had been kicked in, papers were scattered around in confusion, and no inspection was necessary to determine that burglars had been in the room.

Nothing was missing, as far as can be learned today. In fact, there was little of value for the night prowlers to secure. Mr. Kaiser's desk was overturned and the roll top had been forced, pulling the lock out of its setting. The papers had been tossed about, but there was nothing in the desk of value to the burglars with the exception of a negotiable check for $15 and that was overlooked. The bottom of one of the drawers was kicked in, but there was nothing there for the visitors either.

Both of the other desks had been treated in a similar manner and nothing secured. The vault had not been tampered with, its strong door repelling any advances the burglars might have contemplated.

Entrance to the office was gained by a window opening on the roof of the barber shop. The roof, in turn, was gained by a small window opening from the stairway of the building, between the basement and the first floor. The "job" was evidently pulled off by novices, for to all appearances they didn't know the nature of the office in which they found themselves, pulled things around at random and were scared off by their own noise. Some of the barbers, who happened to be in the shop last night, heard noise overhead about 9 o'clock, but didn't think anything of it at the time.

BROWNSON IS ROASTED

President Calls Rear Admiral's Action Childish and Improper.

Washington, Jan. 6—President Roosevelt's attitude on the question of the command of the hospital ships in the navy, which resulted in the resignation of Rear Admiral Willard H. Brownson, and on the controversies in the navy, was made known yesterday when Secretary Metcalf gave to the press two letters from the president, addressed to him on these subjects. In the first, President Roosevelt, without mincing words, condemns, in unmeasured terms, the act of Admiral Brownson, declaring it unseemly and improper. The question on which Admiral Brownson took issue with the navy department, the president declares, is one as to which there can be entirely legitimate differences of opinion, but, he adds, "There is no room for difference of opinion as to the gross impropriety of the admiral's conduct in resigning sooner than carry out the orders of his superior officers in such a matter. The officers of the navy must remember that it is not merely childish, but in the highest degree reprehensible to permit other personal pique, wounded vanity, or factional feeling on behalf of some particular bureau or organization to render them disloyal to the interests of the navy and, therefore, of the country as a whole."

Regarding the controversies in the navy, the president admits there always are, and always will be, defects to correct in the construction of ships, in the organization of the department and in the actual drill of the fleet. It is well, he says, that these defects be pointed out, but it is also well that they should be pointed out without hysterical exaggeration or malicious untruthfulness. He scathingly rebukes those guilty of exploiting them in grossly exaggerated form, in the fancied interest of an individual, or clique of individuals, or for the sake of supplying sensational material to newspapers. Because of so much misrepresentation and exaggeration, the president has asked Secretary Metcalf for a statement as to the exact facts concerning which there have been disputes, describing the opinion of Admiral Converse, formerly chief of the navigation bureau, who, because of his high professional attainments and standard of conduct and duty, the president considers peculiarly fitted to give judgment.

FIFTH TRIAL OF POWERS

For Complicity in Goebel's Murder Set for July 6.

Georgetown, Ky., Jan. 6.—Caleb Powers will be tried again for complicity in the murder of William Goebel. On July 6, his fifth trial will begin. Judge Morris denied a motion that Powers be admitted to bail.

The ten jurors who stood out for acquittal of Powers have signed a request to the governor to release James Howard from the penitentiary. They stated that after hearing the testimony introduced in the Powers trial they believe that James Howard is entirely innocent.

BIG VERDICT FOR HOLMES

He Recovers $10,750 From Red Cliff Lumber Company.

Jury Gives Him the Full Amount Sued For.

The jury in the case of A. W. Holmes against the Red Cliff Lumber company returned a sealed verdict Saturday night, which was opened this morning. The verdict gave Mr. Holmes $10,750, the full amount sued for.

The action was brought by Mr. Holmes to recover the amount claimed to be due him on a logging contract with the lumber company. During the winter of 1905-06 he logged on the north shore, near Grand Marais. He claims that under his agreement with the lumber company he got out a large quantity of logs, and that there was due him for his work about $14,000, against which was an offset of $4,000 for money borrowed from the company to keep up operations. A mortgage on the logging outfit secured the loan. Mr. Holmes claimed that under the terms of the agreement, the company was to take the $4,000 out of his profits, cancel the mortgage and pay him the balance of about $10,000.

The lumber company contended that it had no such agreement. The company claimed that at the conclusion of the contract, Mr. Holmes had nothing coming, and that it had a right to foreclose the mortgage on his logging outfit.

Mr. Holmes won the replevin action brought against the company to recover his logging outfit. The case was on trial for about two weeks, and the jury remained out over two nights before reaching an agreement.

DEATH CLAIMS DULUTHIAN.

William Melby Dies in Santa Fe, Where He Went for Health.

Word has been received here of the death at Santa Fe, N. M., last week, of William Melby, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Melby of this city, who left Duluth about two months ago for the benefit of his health. Death was caused by a hemorrhage of the lungs.

Mr. Melby was a member of the Fourteenth Minnesota during the Spanish-American war and later served three years in the Philippines as a member of the Third regular infantry. Returning to Duluth, he entered the employ of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road, with which concern he remained until obliged to go South for his health.

Besides his parents, Mr. Melby is survived by two sisters, Miss Josephine Melby of this city, and Mrs. R. F. G. Huntington of Aberdeen, S. D., and a brother, Edwin Melby of this city. The remains will be brought here.

COASTING SLEDS COLLIDE.

New Duluth Boy Knocked Unconscious and Face Cut.

New Duluth, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hans Bernt, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bernt, was quite badly hurt while coasting on the hill Sunday.

The little fellow was going at a good speed, when his sled ran into another one, and the boy was thrown off and knocked unconscious. His head and face were cut and his features were badly swollen. He was taken home on a sled and is slightly better today.

Why Suffer?

If you suffer pain from any cause, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve it—and leave no bad after-effects. That's the important thing. Neither do they create a habit. More often the attacks become less frequent, or disappear altogether. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no other effect except to relieve pain and quiet nervous irritation.

"We are never without Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. My husband and son, aged 15 were always subject to sick headache until we began using these Pills, and they have broken them up entirely. Don't think they have had to use them for six months. I recommend them to every one. A few weeks ago I heard an old lady friend was sick. I went to see her. She was down with LaGrippe, and nearly crazy with awful backache. I gave her one of the Anti-Pain Pills and left another for her to take in a short time. They helped her right away, and she says she will never be without them again. Last winter my husband was taken with pluerisy on both sides, and I know he would have died if it hadn't been for the Pills. In less than half an hour he was sweating, and went to bed and slept."

BOY HAS A CLOSE CALL

Thought It Fun to Shoot at Other Boys' Heads.

Curiosity on the part of a youngster residing on Nineteenth avenue east to note the effect of a shot from an air rifle on the head of a playmate, nearly resulted in the loss of an eye for Gerald West, the young son of C. J. West, who resides on Jefferson street.

The air rifle was a Christmas present, and was of a variety known to the boy tribe as a "500-shooter," because it is claimed to shoot 500 bullets at one loading.

According to the reports, the proud possessor of the new air rifle thought it would be fun to shoot through the hats of the other boys and sting them on the head, the force of the shot not being sufficent to break the skin.

It is claimed that the rifle was pointed at the West boy while he was looking another way, but just as the trigger was pulled he turned and was struck in the eye. A terrible injury resulted, and it was thought for a time that the boy was killed. An operation on the eye was necessary a few days ago, and the doctors believe that they will be able to save it.

The parents in the East end district referred to are up in arms over the matter, and threaten to have the authorities look into the matter if another air rifle is shown in public by a small boy.

Rank Foolishness.

"When attacked by a cough or a cold or when your throat is sore, it is rank foolishness to take any other medicine than Dr. King's New Discovery," says C. O. Eldridge, of Empire, Ga. "I have used New Discovery seven years and I know is is the best remedy on earth for coughs and colds, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. My children are subject to croup, but New Discovery quickly cures every attack." Known the world over as the King of throat and lung remedies. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores 50c and $1. BARTENDER WAS THE BURGLAR

Fred Taylor Breaks Into Saloon and Takes Saturday's Receipts.

Fred Taylor, a bartender at the West End Beer hall, 1920 West Superior street, took advantage of his employer's confidence to make a haul of $78.25 Saturday night. When arraigned in municipal court on a charge of burglary today, he waived examination and was held to the grand jury. In the court room he admitted the crime.

Taylor had been employed at the place only about ten days. He had lived in the West end for several years, was well known to John Hollen, the proprietor of the saloon, and perfect trust was placed in him. He and Hollen had a secret hiding place, in which the one who locked up at midnight placed the receipts, to be reached by the man who opened up in the morning.

Saturday night Taylor laid off at 6 o'clock, and, it is said, proceeded to acquire a comfortable jag. Hollen locked up the place at midnight, putting the day's receipts in the hiding place, as usual. Yesterday morning Taylor called him up to tell him that the money was gone. He went to the saloon and, it is said, found Taylor under the influence of liquor. He suspected the man immediately and took him to the police station, where the police say, Taylor confessed. He revealed his hiding place for the money, and about $32 was recovered.

Taylor explained the burglary by the fact that he was under the influence of liquor. He broke in the door to give color to the theory that the burglary might have been committed by somebody not familiar with the place for hiding the money, but the ruse didn't work.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

LYCEUM—De Wolf Hopper in "Happyland."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"Happyland."

The Lyceum tonight offers as a special attraction De Wolf Hopper, supported by dainty Marguerite Clark, in the most successful musical production, Reginald De Koven's and Frederic Ranken's comic opera, "Happyland." This piece was enthusiastically received by the cricital reviewers of New York as a return to the highest form of real comic opera, a class of entertainment that demands genuine comedy in situations, humor in lines, and grace in lyrics, wedded to music of a far better caliber than the fast disappearing ragtime and the mawkishly sentimental ballad of present popularity. Mr. Ranken's libretto of "Happyland" has been pronounced the best American work of its kind, while Mr. De Koven has supplied this new comic opera with the best music he has written since the ever-popular "Robin Hood."

The Burlesquers.

"Tom, Dick and Harry," a musical farce written by Williams and Hoffman for Bickel, Watson & Wroth, is the attraction at the Metropolitan this week. Hanson, Conroy and Emerson play the title roles, and they are supported by the Campbell-Drew Amusement company's big galaxy of burlesque stars, the Avenue Girls. There will be a bargain matinee tomorrow afternoon.

MOYER IS RELEASED

Following Acquittal of Pettibone for the Steunenberg Murder.

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 6.—The end of the prosecution of the men charged with the murder of Former Governor Frank Steunenberg, with the exception of the cases of Harry Orchard and Jack Simpkins, came Saturday with the acquittal of George A. Pettibone. Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, who was under indictment with Pettibone and Haywood for the murder of Governor Steunenberg, was formally released Saturday afternoon, and in a few days he will return with Pettibone to Denver.

The case of Orchard, the self-confessed assassin of Steunenberg, is in the hands of Prosecuting Attorney Vanduyn of Canyon county. No statement as to the future procedure in the case has been made, but it will be called during the next term of the court at Caldwell, when it will probably be disposed of finally.

Simpkins, a member of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners, who is charged with complicity in the crime, is a fugitive from justice and the charge against him will stand.

EYE, NERVE AND BRAIN SPECIALIST OF MINNEAPOLIS.

Will be at Parlor B, Spalding Hotel, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 10th, 11th and 12th; Superior Hotel, Superior, Wis., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 7th, 8th and 9th.

Unexcelled by Ocular or Medical Science. All cases thoroughly examined under Dr. Bubgee's Skiascopy, revealing the slightest errors of refraction as well as any diseased or abnormal condition of the eyes. (Glasses made that will fit.) New lenses put in old frames if desired. Replaces lenses from prescription or from pieces sent by mail. A complete record kept of every case and a guarantee and prescription number given with every pair of glasses fitted. Artificial Eyes.

Special attention to cure and relief of nervous troubles, such as Deafness, Asthma, Stammering, St. Vitas Dance, Headaches, Stomach, etc. These troubles are largely caused and come from irritation of the vital nerve and brain centers caused from uncorrected eye strain, and the wearing of properly fitted glasses will relieve these conditions.

Two Harbors, Monday, Jan. 13.

IN HONOR OF BOBBY BURNS

Royal Chief Will Attend Clan Stewart's Annual Banquet.

The new cafe of the St. Louis hotel has been selected by Clan Stewart as the place for holding the annual banquet in honor of Bobby Burns, and the date decided upon is the evening of Jan. 27. The anniversary of Burns' birth falls on Jan. 25, but as that is Saturday night it was thought best to postpone the banquet until the following Monday.

The event promises to be a brilliant one. It will be the first function of the kind to be held in the new cafe, and both the hotel management and the committee in charge will do everything possible to make it the most notable success in the history of these affairs. The banquet will begin at 7:30 o'clock, and about 10 o'clock there will be dancing in the old dining room. Rev. Alexander Milne will be the toastmaster, and Rev. Dr. Campbell Coyle will respond to the toast "Robert Burns." The detailed program has not been prepared as yet, but it will be an especially fine one. John Hill of St. Louis, royal chief of the order in the United States, has accepted the invitation extended him to be present at the Duluth banquet. Every year he receives numerous invitations from all parts of the country, but Duluth is this winter given precedence over all other cities.

ANNUAL MEETING OCCURS TUESDAY

County Board Will Hold Most Important Session of Year.

The annual meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held tomorrow. It is likely that the meeting will last two days as there is considerable business to be disposed of by the board.

The board will elect officers, receive annual reports, open bids for an addition to the auditor's room and vault, receive and open bids for the county printing and supplies, make the usual semi-annual appropriations for clerk hire in the auditor's and the treasurer's offices.

The matter of the new courthouse is not likely to come up at the meeting this month. The architects are still working on the plans and specifications and getting estimates on the cost of the proposed new building. The courthouse matter will probably be ready to present to the board in February.

PREACHER IS GLOOMY

Says Church Does Little to Better Social Conditions.

The lack of unity in the modern church has lamentably weakened its powers for good, and its strength as a factor in the redemption of society, according to Rev. J. A. Lumley, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, who delivered an address on "The Philosophy of the Redemption of Society," before the members of the Question club, at the public library, yesterday afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Lumley said he thought that the church was too narrow, too divided, to have a great effect for good in the world. "The modern church," said he, "is shattered into fragments more than ever, and its efforts are disseminated and made futile by the fact that it is divided up into countless denominations and sects.

"The greater part of church orthodoxy is bigoted. Its theology is considerably mixed with mythology—it is too full of the myths of the devil and hell."

The speaker said that the unfavorable attitude of the church toward the theater and other pleasures and innocent pastimes of the world was unjust and disastrous.

Mr. Lumley delivered a bitter tirade, too, against the vulgar rich. "Our vaunted democracy," said he, "is in the grasp of a corrupt aristocracy, and the result is sickening. We see in it the suffering and humility of the laboring class, the hatred of capitalists that this suffering inspires, and the resulting anarchy. The earth has been monopolized by the capitalists, and they would get control of the rest of the cosmic universe, if they could."

Rev. Mr. Lumley suggested brotherly love as a balm to heal the wounds our present social conditions have brought out.

Albert Stoltz Makes Other Charges Against Chief Black.

Albert Stoltz, the tailor, who appeared against Chief John T. Black of the fire department, in a hearing some time ago, at which time the chief was exonerated from numerous charges, has brought other charges in a letter to the board of fire commissioners. He complains that Chief Black is interfering with his business, vents his wrath on men who have their clothes made by Stoltz, and shows a spirit of petty spite which is unbecoming.

Chief Black refuses to take the charges seriously. He calls them the veriest nonsense, and declines to make any statement in reply. The board of fire commissioners has not yet considered the letter, but will do so in about a week, and until that time the members will say nothing.

COULDN'T QUIT DRUG.

Accused Woman at Little Falls Ends Her Life.

Little Falls, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—For seventeen years a victim of morphine habit, Mrs. Anna Rogers, who took a dose of carbolic acid while in the county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury on charge that she passed a forged check on the Buckman hotel, left a letter stating she could not quit the drug. The woman died Sunday, and while the complete contents of the letter have not been made public, it is evident the writer belonged to a family of prominence.

She requested in a note left to the press of the Twin Cities, Duluth, Cincinnati and Richmond the publication of the letter and that a number of prominent people living in the South, to whom she claimed to be connected, be notified.

TOBACCO WAR ACUTE

Growers in Kentucky to Fight Trust to a Finish.

Raids of Night Riders Bring Matters to a Head.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 6.—The raid on Russelville, Ky., early Friday morning by "Night Riders," which resulted in the destruction of nearly $100,000 worth of property and the wounding of three persons and the refusal of the tobacco growers to accept the proposition of the American Tobacco company for the purchase of tobacco, and the announcement of the intention of the growers to proceed against the American Tobacco company in the courts, following Governor Wilson's statement that the lawless element will be severely dealt with, have brought to an acute stage a condition that has existed in Kentucky and Tennessee for two years. Conferences the last two days at Frankfort, between a representative of the American Tobacco company and the tobacco growers, has resulted only in transferring the matter to the heads of the company in New York for consideration.

Fight Against Trust.

The situation is the result of a fight of the growers of tobacco against the American Tobacco company and other purchasers, and the complications are best explained by the following recounted sequence of events;

First—The apparent passing of the leaf tobacco market in Kentucky and Tennessee into the control of the American Tobacco company, with the consequent elimination of nearly all the middlemen or independent tobacco buyers and re-handlers.

Second—The awakening of the farmers to the situation and the formation by them of the American Society of Equity, and Burley Leaf Tobacco association and the Dark Tobacco association for the purpose of producing and holding their crops until they could obtain prices which would be a fair price.

Third—The failure of the attempt by the farmers' societies to win over a sufficient majority of the growers of tobacco to their pooling plan.

Fourth—Ostracism and petty persecution directed against so-called "Independents."

Fifth—Whipping of tobacco buyers and farmers who sold their crops; destruction of beds of young tobacco plants; burning of tobacco barns containing the harvested crops of independents; shooting into homes of innocent persons, among them women; the warning of refractory independents to leave the country.

Sixth—Bold attacks on Princeton, Hopkinsville and Russelville, which resulted in the dynamiting and burning of tobacco warehouses controlled by the American Tobacco company, the killing of several of the raiders, the wounding of a number of citizens and the destruction of property owned by innocent neutrals.

Officers of the American Tobacco company have declared that the company and its allied and subsidiary concerns do not control the tobacco trade of America. It also has denied that it controls the leaf markets of Kentucky and Tennessee. The anti-trust growers vehemently deny this. The "trust" has suffered the loss of a number of warehouses and their contents, the estimates running from $125,000 to $250,000. Fourteen of their warehouses have been closed.

Some Growers Independent.

This loss, however, undoubtedly falls below the aggregate damage sustained by the men who have refused to join the farmers' associations or pool their crops. Some of them were too independent to be coerced, while most are financially unable to hold their crops had they so desired. The societies have made arrangements to advance two-thirds of the values of crops to growers who need the money, but there is doubt as to whether they will be able to finance all the independents. But there is a numerous class of independents who must market their crop immediately after curing. These men must accept a loss on their crop, and in case the trust wins, drop so far behind that in three years they will be ruined, or else they must sell to the "trust" and run a strong risk of having their barns burned or their next year's crop ruined. Of late there has sprung up a "Day Rider" movement, with a plan for "peaceful persuasion" of growers to pool their crops. No threats are used, but nevertheless many of the men visited confess that this policy intimidates them.

The pooling societies now have on hand part of the 1906 crop and all of their 1907 crop. Although they claim to control over 50 per cent of the crop, the tobacco company as yet has apparently not felt any strong pinch. This fact, combined with the consideration that the company has the longest purse, has moved the societies to start a movement, now in full swing, pledging the members not to plant any crop at all during 1908. By this course they hope to force a higher price for the 1907 crop and also to shorten the supply, so that the company must come to terms.

To Consider Depreciations.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 5.—James Holen, a member of the national executive committee of the American Society of Equity, left last night for Indianapolis, where a special meeting of the executive committee will be held to consider the recent depredations in Tennessee and Kentucky by "Night Riders," who are alleged to be members of the society.

Mr. Holen said that if it is shown that the "Night Riders" are members of the society, he will introduce a resolution at the meeting of the executive committee, demanding that they be expelled. His resolution will condemn all unlawful methods used to coerce the purposes of the society.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 5.—Reports have reached here that there will be a great gathering of farmers in this city tomorrow, in the interest of their organizations Thousands of members of several growers' associations are expected. No information is given as to the purpose of the assembly.

RHEUMATISM

BODY RACKED WITH PAIN

No other disease causes such wide-spread suffering as Rheumatism. It is a nerve racking torture, and so thoroughly does it dominate the system, when it becomes entrenched in the blood, that its victims are usually complete slaves to pain. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood brought on by stomach troubles, weak kidneys, indigestion, and a sluggish condition of the system. The natural refuse of the body, instead of passing off through the ordinary channels of waste, is left to sour and ferment in the system because of these irregularities, forming uric acid which is absorbed into the blood, and Rheumatism gets a foothold. As the blood circulates through the body it deposits the acrid, irritating substances with which it is saturated, into the different muscles, nerves, tissues and bones. Sharp, biting pains commence, the flesh becomes feverish, swollen and tender, the muscles and joints throb and jerk, and the body is literally racked with pain. Plasters, blisters, liniments, etc., can never cure the disease; they relieve the pain, perhaps, temporarily, but do not reach the trouble, which is in the blood. S. S. S. is the proper treatment for Rheumatism. It goes down and attacks the disease at its head, and by driving out the poison and acrid fluids which are causing the pain, and strengthening and enriching the blood, cures Rheumatism permanently. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free.

MICHIGAN TO RETURN

Conference Adopts Seven-Game Schedule and Wolverines Satisfied.

Michigan and Chicago Will Probably Play Next Fall.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—The intercollegiate conference of faculty representatives of the "big nine" colleges, in session Saturday at the Auditorium, decided that a schedule of seven games will be played next season. Another big feature of the meeting was the return of Michigan to the fold.

The action of the professors in lengthening the schedule and the decision of the Wolverines was welcome news to the followers of the football, and there now is reason to believe that games will be played between Chicago and Michigan and Chicago and Northwestern next fall.

No games have been scheduled as yet, owing to the fact that the action of the committee has to be ratified by the faculties of the respective colleges, but there is little doubt that the faculties will not abide by the action of the committe.

During the morning session, before the seven-game rule was passed, the question of Michigan's attitude came up, with the result that the Wolverines were given until Feb. 1 to decide whether they were to remain in the conference or continue to play under the old rules. When the question of seven games was settled, Prof. Patterson of Michigan came forward with the assurance that the Wolverines intend to abide by the rules.

Chicago and Wisconsin may clash on the gridiron next season, but Stagg already has return games with Minnesota, Illinois, Purdue and Indiana, and in all probability he will take on Michigan and Northwestern. With these teams on the schedule, there is little chance for another hard game.

The delegates at Saturday's meeting were A. A. Stagg, Chicago, chairman; R. E. Wilson, Northwestern, secretary; G. A. Goodenough, Illinois; E. O. Holland, Indiana; A. G. Smith, Iowa; Prof. Patterson, Michigan; James Paige, Minnesota; T. F. Moran, Purdue; Dr. C. P. Hutchins, Wisconsin.

Coaches Huff of Illinois, Sheldon of Indiana, Spelk of Purdue, Dr. Williams of Minnesota and Athletic Director Nicol of Purdue were also at the meeting, but had no voice in the proceedings.

GOOD CARD FOR RACES ON ICE

Second Race for Henderson Cup Will Bring Out Talent.

The second regular race meet of the winter season on the ice track at the foot of Twentieth avenue west, will be held tomorrow afternoon, and it is expected that the success of the matinee, New Year's afternoon, will be more than repeated.

The feature of the card will bet he free-for-all pace for the Henderson cup, in which the speediest pacers at the Head of the Lakes will be entered. Tomango, C. R. Rust's fleet bay gelding, will again be on the track, and in view of the victory, last Wednesday, will probably be the favorite. However, Bumble Bee, 2:21¼, and Ole Boy, 2:10½, the latter of Superior, will be out tomorrow, and they are counted upon to make Tomango travel to gain any further victories. Kitty D., owned by L. Duplaise, was something of a disappointment last week, but is said to have been out of condition, and is counted upon for a better performance tomorrow.

Black Chief, Luxon, Kitty Birchwood and Mount P. are probabilities as entries for the free-for-all trot, which was also a popular event in the meet last week. Black Chief won the honors by taking two heats, after Luxon had taken the first. Mount P. showed consistent form by taking second place in every heat.

There will also be a cord for green horses tomorrow, and a number of classy entries are expected for that. The promoters of the ice races expect to show much greater dispatch in pulling off the events tomorrow, and the crowd will not be harassed by delays.

It Does the Business.

Mr. E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve: "It does the business; I have used it for piles, and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at all drug stores.

WILL PLAY BASEBALL.

Duluth Knights of Grip Organize to Meet Superior.

The traveling salesmen, who work out of Duluth, have organized an indoor baseball team, and will play the men who make Superior their headquarters, Jan. 25, at the Armory, here. The salesmen have worked at the indoor baseball game before. They know all its angles and possibilities, and a strong line-up has been chosen to contest with the men from across the bay. The game will be followed by a dance.

ICE BOATS WILL RACE

Owners of Unwieldy Craft Striking Up a Speed Rivalry.

Stiff Wind Gave Good Ice Boating on Bay Sunday.

With the wind traveling at a rate of about twenty miles an hour on the bay, the iceboats cut great capers on the smooth surface yesterday. Scooting along before the wind, menacing the skaters, who bravely battled against, or sailed before, the wind, the iceboaters had their best sport of the winter season.

The wind swept the ice clear of what snow there was and for several miles it stretched out, smooth in places, rough in others, but in all navigable to the steel runnered flyers. The wind was chill, but, bundled up in their winter clothing, the winter sailors ignored the cold and paid attention only to the sport. There are few sports more exhilarating than iceboating, and it was at its best on the bay yesterday.

There are possibilities of innumerable speed contests between the unwieldy craft on the bay. Several of the owners have already struck up intense rivalry and in impromptu contests the flame is being fanned furiously. It will break out in the form of a series of races soon, unless all indications go wrong, and if the series is arranged, lovers of the sport will see some good contests.

Edward Ribenack has a boat which can cover the ice in pretty good shape and D. W. Coe will shortly launch an exact duplicate. Both boats will be similarly constructed and rigged and, with no advantage in design, the boats will be in line for a speed contest, which should be a great one.

The bay, the North Shore skating rink at the ball park, and the boulevard ponds were all crowded yesterday with skaters keen for the sport.

MILWAUKEE MAN SWEEPS FIELD

Charles Fisher Easily Wins Three Events in Skating Tournament.

St. Paul, Jan. 6.—The most successful skating race meet seen in this city for a good many years was pulled off yesterday afternoon at the down town rink. Conditions were almost perfect, and a crowd of over 1,000 people turned out to see the sport. All of the five races were spirited and interesting and the two-mile championship was fought out to the very end.

The star of the day was Charles T. Fisher of Milwaukee, who captured first prize in each of the three events he entered. Fisher won the half mile open, the one mile open, and the two miles championship.

The half mile open was a pretty race, Fisher and Tom McKeever fighting it out for first place. The skaters held well together until the last when Fisher gradually pulled away and went over the tape a few feet ahead of McKeever. F. Martinson of Minneapolis was third. The time was 1:25.

The one mile open was fought out between Fisher and John Carlsen of Minneapolis, Fisher staying with the bunch until the last lap and then pulling away and finishing in the lead by twenty-five feet. Time, 2:58.

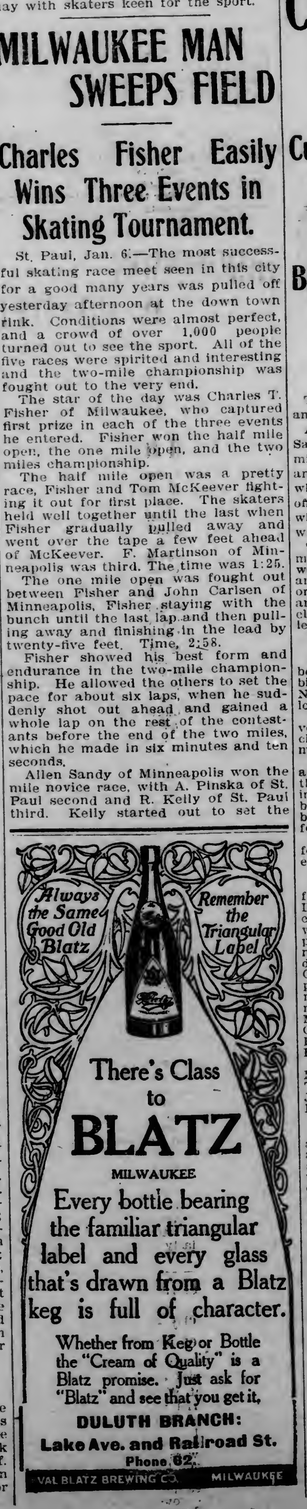
Fisher showed his best form and endurance in the two-mile championship. He allowed the others to set the pace for about six laps, when he suddenly shot out ahead and gained a whole lap on the rest of the contestants before the end of the two miles, which he made in six minutes and ten seconds.

Allen Sandy of Minneapolis won the mile novice race, with A. Pinska of St. Paul second and R. Kelly of St. Paul third. Kelly started out to set the pace, which he held for several laps, but when the final sprint came he collapsed and was carried off the ice. The time was 3:15.

Sandy also won the junior one-mile championship, with S. Artjoe Coe of St. Paul second. The time was 3:23.

There were twenty-eight skaters entered in the contests and two of the events had to be run off in heats. Word was received from Carl Allroth of Duluth, stating that he had injured his leg and would not be able to compete, but may be here for the races this evening. Thorwaldsen of Minneapolis will be in the race this evening, as well as Oscar Olsen of St. Paul.

The events this evening will be the one-mile and the three-mile open races. Most of the skaters will again compete.



CLUB PAYS ITS DEBTS

Curling Club Has Paid Mortgage—Has Big Membership.

But Two Weeks More Before Northwestern Bonspiel.

The Duluth Curling club is "out of debt and has money in the bank."

At the dinner held in the club rooms Saturday evening, reports were submitted by the secretary, A. H. Smith, and by the treasurer, F. W. Hargreaves, which showed that the club has paid off the mortgage on its property, and will probably finish the present season with a small cash surplus.

The condition is most pleasing to the members, as they now begin to see their way clear to acquire land of their own, and either move the present building to it, or sell the building for what it will bring and erect a new permanent home for the club. The present building stands on leased land.

The active membership is 300.

* * *

Two weeks from today the bonspiel will begin, and already the arrangements for biggest bonspiel in the history of the Northwestern Curling association is looked for.

The date was postponed for the convenience of the St. Paul and Minneapolis clubs, and they are expected to send a much larger contingent than last year.

Winnipeg can always be counted on, and some new towns will be represented this year that were not heard of in curling circles before. No estimate can yet be made of the number of rinks that will be present, but it is hoped to break all former records.

The prizes have already been secured for most of the events, and they are on exhibition in a local jewelry store.

* * *

The third and last match of the series for the Manley-McLennan cup, between Duluth and Superior, will be played this evening at the local rink. The first match went to Duluth by a margin of seven points and the second to Superior by a margin of nine. The match tonight will decide which will meet the Western Curling club of West Duluth for the final possession of the cup for the year. The rinks chosen to represent Duluth in tonight's matches are as follows:

M. A. McLennan,	A. W. Frick,
C. T. Fairbairn,	J. T. Pugh,
H. Hurdon,	F. W. Hargreaves,
R. J. McLeod, skip.	C. A. Duncan, skip.
M. W. Alworth,	S. H. Jones,
Thomas Gibson,	F. A. Currier,
Joseph Catlin,	D. W. Stocking,
Ron Smith, skip.	A. H. Smith, skip.

* * *

The match between the old members and the new members Saturday afternoon and evening resulted in a draw, the score at the end of the day's play standing 72 to 72. The young members were nine up on the afternoon's play, but the veterans made a desperate stand in the evening games, and managed to gain back these nine points, leaving the score a tie at the end of the play.

The match is one of the annual events, like the president-vice president match.

TO DECIDE FRIDAY.

State Bowling Tournament to be Held in One of Twin Cities.

St. Paul, Jan. 6.—The place for holding the state bowling tournament will not be decided until next Friday afternoon. The executive committee of the State Bowling association met yesterday and opened their bids for the tournament. The alleys to put in bids were the Conrads and Pfeisters of St. Paul and the Arcades of Minneapolis.

All of the bids were lower than those submitted last year, but they were not specific enough, and so it was decided to have new bids submitted at the meeting next Friday.

President Malone appointed the following committees:

Prize—Henry Martin and D. Brundril of St. Paul and W. A. Ryberg of Minneapolis. Schedule—E. B. Hull of Minneapolis, J. N. Deller and F. J. Doris of St. Paul. Printing—R. F. Malone and T. J. Gronowold of St. Paul. Arrangements—J. N. Nelson and E. B. Dorsey of St. Paul and F. W. Frederickson of Minneapolis.

RENT RIOTS IN NEW YORK CITY

Disorders Between Landlords and Tenants Quelled by Police.

New York, Jan. 6.—Incipient rent riots broke out on the East side yesterday as a result of the tension between the landlords and the striking tenants, and before the disorders were quelled by the police many combatants had been injured and five arrested. The disorders were general throughout the affected district.

The most serious trouble occurred on East Eleventh street, where a landlord, who had been unable to collect rent, ordered his tenants to remove the American and Socialistic flags with which the strikers had decorated the tenement. The landlord was hooted and jeered by the tenants and other strikers, who were holding a mass meeting in the house, and he called the police. The striking tenants resented the appearance of the officers, and in the clash that followed the police used their night sticks vigorously. Five protesting tenants, somewhat battered, were arrested. The offending decorations were removed.

Hardly had order been restored at this point before the police reserves were hurried to East Twelfth street, where striking tenants were making a demonstration against a landlord who had objected to the flying of red flags over his property. The crowd failed to obey the police order to disperse and was set upon with night sticks.

One woman, it is reported, was rendered insensible during the fight, in which wives and daughters, as well as fathers and sons, participated.

There were several other outbreaks which were checked by the police, and all during the day the teeming East siders swarmed into the streets and held impromptu meetings.

Several mass meetings were held last night. It was announced at the headquarters of the strikers that the organization of the tenants in Brooklyn and Jersey City was going on rapidly and that by the first of February over 50,000 tenants in those cities would be ready to enforce their demands for lower rents.

Tenants Organize in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Five hundred residents of Chicago's Ghetto formed last night a Tenants union with the avowed purpose of forcing landlords of the district to reduce rents $2 a month. Leaders of the movement advised the members of the new organization to refuse to pay the present rent rates, which were declared exorbitant, and to force the landlords to take all legal steps and pay all court costs in case the latter refuse to meet the demands for lower rents.

At present, it was declared, four rooms in a Ghetto tenement cost $12 a month, five rooms $18 a month, and six rooms $22. A flat reduction of $2 is sought.

AN ADDRESS TO THE DEMOCRATS

Of Minnesota Urging Bryan's Nomination for Presidency.

An "address to the Democrats of Minnesota," signed by T. T. Hudson of Duluth and others, has been issued, urging the nomination of William J. Bryan for the presidency. The address says:

"The monopolistic press and predatory interests of the United States are making an effort to defeat, in the next Democratic national convention, William J. Bryan, and the principles which he represents. The continuous stream of misrepresentation and the false assumption that the Democrats of the nation have lost faith in the principles and personality of our great leader impel us to a declaration of renewed allegiance to a cause which is best typified by Mr. Bryan.

"Believing that it is essential in the contest of 1908 that the Democracy of the nation shall continue on advanced ground, that there shall be no retreat, that what has been already so dearly won shall not be lost, it is our firm conviction that the best interests of the American people demand the nomination and election of William Jennings Bryan to the presidency, as the chief exponent of the reforms needed in our nation, and to this end we ask the co-operation of the Democrats of Minnesota.

"The conflict is between reaction and progress. The influences with selfish interests behind them, which have always been inimical to pure Democracy, are still at work. Let no true Democrat be deceived. In the present situation no man can be seriously considered in place of Mr. Bryan, if these influences are behind him. We know what Mr. Bryan stands for. He is no experiment. If we win with him it will be a victory worth the winning—a triumph of the principles we hold dear. Others may be true; we know him to be true.

"Assuming no prerogatives of leadership, actuated by a desire to see the Democratic party one of progress and not of negation; believing in positive principles, not vague generalities, and fully convinced that the welfare of the party and the nation will be best served by the nomination and election of the unsullied leader in two great campaigns, we ask the Democrats of Minnesota again to rally around the standard of William Jennings Bryan."

TWO ARE KILLED IN A COLLISION AT DUBUQUE.

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 6.—Two persons were killed, and one perhaps fatally injured, yesterday, in a collision between a passenger train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and a freight train on the Chicago, Great-Western railway, in East Dubuque.

The dead:

J. W. BLANCHARD, La Crosse, engineer of the passenger train.

WINFIELD McGANGHEY, East Dubuque.

The injured: W. H. Smith, freight brakeman, legs badly crushed; will probably die.

Burglary, Theft and Larceny Insurance

One business man of this city who carries burglary insurance, says that the man who invented it comes second only to the "man who invented sleep." He is no longer constrained to get up and creep hesitatingly down stairs to put to rout some gang of desperate marauders who exist only in the imagination of his wife. He says that his personal courage has increased tenfold, and that if a real burglar should come, he thinks he would be tempted to go down and interview him, of course first giving him a hearty invitation to help himself literally to anything portable in the house.

Why I Lost My Job.

Reasons Why Thousands Like Me Cannot Satisfy Their Employers.

"I believe my fate is not unlike that of thousands of other workers who daily lose their places for reasons they do not know, and probably would not believe. When their last pay envelope comes along, it is usually "Your services no longer required." If the truth were known, the reason for their unceremonious removal would probably be that their usefulness was destroyed because of some mental worry, bodily ailment or general indigestion. These things, as we all know, are the most fruitful causes of failure in all walks of life. The battle of Waterloo was lost because of a headache. In this quick age our minds must be clear, rapid, active, and free from outside influence or worry, or else we go down to failure with the throng of "floaters" who go from one place of employment to another, giving no satisfaction to others or to themselves, constantly growing older and less useful, with no ambition, no will power, and no hope.

Every man requires from every other man the best that is in him. But no man can use or get the best that is in himself until he is first free from all fretful indispositions and worries.

That was my trouble. I was full of troubles. That's why I lost my job. My stomach in the first place was always out of order, and I was worrying about it and my mind grew cloudy, and slow. I made mistakes, and grew grouchy. That was the end.

There are thousands like me, going about with "quick lunch" faces, dyspeptic manners, and repulsive atmospheres. No employer wants such men's services.

Take my advice. A healthy stomach is half the battle, for it keeps your mind clear, and your face rosy. I have a healthy stomach now and hold a good position, and my employer is satisfied, and so am I.

I started in to take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which I was told were good for the worst cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. The first two tablets made a wonderful difference in my condition.

One ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digests 3,000 grains of food. The stomach doesn't have to work at all. The Tablets do all the work, no matter how heavy your meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure brash, eructations, burning sensations, bloat, irritations, loss of appetite, nausea, heartburn, lack of energy, loss of memory, and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry them around with you wherever you go and take them regularly after meals. Then you will realize what it is to be freed from stomach torment, and have a clear mind, a quick memory, a happy disposition, comfort and rest. Get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store for 50 cents a package.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

PREACHING AT EIGHTY

Veteran Methodist Minister of Fosston Still in Harness.

Noah Lathrop for Fifty-Two Years Resident of Minnesota.

Fosston, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.—Rev. Noah Lathrop, the new pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church here, a veteran in years, and in the service of the church in this state, is a splendid example of the well-preserved man of affairs of 80 years.

Although Mr. Lathrop has been located here only a short time, he has made a most favorable impression and has attracted favorable comment both by his forcible preaching and his pleasing personality.

Rev. Mr. Lathrop was born in Spencer, Ind., 80 years ago, spent his boyhood days on a farm, and in 1854 graduated from the Indiana Asbury university, now the De Pauw university. The year he graduated he was received on trial in the Northwest Indiana conference and appointed to Romney and a year later to the Kingsbury circuit.

About June 1856 he gave up the work and emigrated to Minnesota, then a territory. In August of that year he attended the organization of the Minnesota conference at Red Wing, Bishop Simpson presiding, and was sent to Cannon Falls. The next year he was sent by Bishop Ames to Monticello and there experienced with his people the sufferings of "grasshopper days." His charges included Romney and Kingsbury, Ind.; Osceola, Mills, Wis.; Leonard, N. D., and the following places in Minnesota: Cannon Falls, Monticello, Chatfield, Stockton, Greenwood, Prairie, Anoka, St. Cloud, Paynesville, Northfield, Clearwater, Lake City, Zumbrota, Pine Island, High Forest, Dundas, Castle Rock, Clear Lake, Annandale, Glenville, Wyoming, Princeton circuit. He served one term as presiding elder of the St. Cloud district, and was conference secretary and satistical secretary of the Minnesota conference.

He was born of well-to-do parents, he celved an excellent education, and in his early manhood held several fine positions. It is said that his fondness for strong drink drove him to accept the life of a lumberjak, and it was while en route to the woods that he met his death.

He is quite well known in Minneapolis and St. Paul, but has worked in Northern Minnesota for the last five years.

MAYOR'S VETO UPHELD BY COURT

Right to Veto Resolutions as Well as Ordinances.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Templeton has decided in favor of Mayor George E. Duis in the mandamus action brought by the Kettle River Quarries company of Minneapolis, to compel the mayor to sign paving resolutions passed by the council, awarding to the company a contract, amounting to nearly $200,000. The court holds that the mayor had a legal right to veto the resolutions. It was contended by the company that the mayor had a right to veto ordinances, but no right to veto resolutions. It is understood that the company will appeal to the supreme court.

In his decision, Judge Templeton took up the resolution by which the council designated creosote blocks as the kind of paving to be used in the streets. The court holds, after a thorough examination of the city charter, that the mayor's veto rights are not confined to city ordinances. The decision covers all resolutions that may be passed by the city council.

JOHN COCHRANE KILLED.

Run Over by Train and Dies in Blackduck Hospital.

Blackduck, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Cochrane, known as "Blackjack," aged about 40, and said to be a brother-in-law of W. M. Savage of Minneapolis, president of the International Stock Food company, who has been working as a lumberjack in this section, died in a local hospital from injuries sustained at Funkley, when he was run over by a train and lost both legs.

Cochrane had been drinking, and attempted to step to the platform of the caboose of the Funkley train just as it started. He was caught under the wheels, and both legs mangled. A special train was procured, and the injured man hastened here, seven miles distant, but he died soon after reaching the hospital.

John Cochrane has had a varied ca-

FIGHTING MEN ARE EXPECTED

Head Officers of Michigan National Guard in Copper Country.

Hancock, Mich., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hancock division of the naval reserve was formally inspected Saturday evening at the armory by Inspector General A. Wagner, Brigadier General W. T. McGuerin and Capt. Fred D. Standish. Following the inspection the distinguished visitors were the guests of the Hancock Naval Reserve association at the Scott house where an elaborate banquet was served, during which several toasts appropriate to the occasion were responded to.

Unfortunately, Governor Fred Warner was unable to accompany the military men to the Copper country, being called back to Detroit by pressing public business. There was general regret over the inability of the governor to attend.

The inspection of the Hancock division is said to have resulted most favorably. The party also looked over the Yantic and the armory. During Saturday afternoon the paraphernalia of Company A, Engineers of Calumet, was also inspected.

WILL OPEN CAMPAIGN

For Temperance in Calumet Sunday, Jan. 26.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Citizens' Temperance league will open its campaign in this district on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 26, at 4 o'clock.

Judge Albert T. Streeter, circuit court judge for Houghton county, has promised to be present, and will be the principal speaker of the afternoon. Other addresses will be given, probably by several of the pastors of the local churches and prominent temperance workers of the county.

Arrangements are being made for a continuation of such meetings on various dates and places in the township, and the plans of the Citizens' Temperance league will be on such a scale that they will play an important part in village, township and county politics this year.

The league has a very strong membership, having affiliated with it some of Calumet's most prominent citizens, and it is going to enter into the political game presumably for the better enforcement of the liquor and other laws in Houghton county.

COUPLE SADLY MISTAKEN

As to Their Rights to Marry in North Dakota.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A mistaken idea that an agreement of separation secured in Canada would be recognized as a divorce in the United States brought Angus Bell and Mrs. Lidster to Grand Forks from Medford, with a view of having the wedding ceremony performed at once. Judge L. K. Hassell was obliged to decline to recognize the separation as a divorce and the couple left the courthouse, sadly disappointed. Mrs. Lidster has been housekeeper for Bell for the past two months. On the trip to the courthouse they were accompanied by Mrs. Lidster's daughter, aged about 14 years, who wheeled a baby carriage containing Mrs. Lidster's little boy, aged about 2 years.

Mr. Bell and Mrs. Lidster were greatly disappointed that they could not secure a license. Mrs. Lidster will have to secure a divorce on this side of the line, and she said she feared that it would be rather expensive.

FALLS FROM BRIDGE.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Zengel, son of ex-Alderman Zengel, who is employed by the Great Northern in the freight depot, on the West side, is lying at his home in a serious condition as a result of a 30-foot drop from the west end of the bridge. He was picked up unconscious, and found to be badly injured, and may die.

KILLS ORIGINAL PETITION

Does Ruling of Court in County Seat Fight.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge William Watts has handed down a decision in the so-called county seat case of M. V. Evenson against John B. O'Brien, as county auditor, to restrain the auditor from taking action on the "old" or original petition stolen from the office of Mr. O'Brien last spring. The order is in favor of Thief River Falls and effectively kills the original petition so far as the district court is concerned. Red Lake Falls will probably appeal from Judge Watts' decision to the state supreme court. A. A. Miller and E. M. Stanton appeared for Evenson.

Grippe!

There is said to be 50,000 cases in New York.

TOUGH YOUNGSTER THIS.

Several Operations and Diseases Have Not Killed Him.

Stoughton, Wis., Jan. 6.—Orlando Olson, the 7-year-old son of Severt Olson, who was operated on for appendicitis at the Stoughton hospital ten days ago, while suffering also with lung fever, has returned to his home, apparently fully recovered. The boy has a medical and surgical record that is mose remarkable. The doctors report that since his birth he has had three severe attacks of cramps, also an attack of measles, scarlet fever, pneumonia, whooping cough, diphtheria and typhoid fever, also three operations, namely, tracheotomy, adenotomy and appendictomy, and that he is in first-class physical condition.

FARMERS GOING AFTER

Reckless Users of Firearms in Their Vicinity.

Pine City, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Certain of the farmers in Royalton and Pine towns are up in arms against persons who, apparently, use little if any discretion in the handling of firearms. They deem that these careless hunters have no business upon their lands and concede such hunters' actions to be a menace to their peace of mind and a danger which cannot be held lightly.

Hereafter trespassers will find a very cold reception awaiting them at the Thiry, Resch and Maves places in Royalton, and at the Wells farm in Pine town. Such persons caught will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Several cases of wild shooting have been noted in this connection, and the farmers have deemed it high time to take a stand in the matter.

MONEY IN GUERNSEYS.

Farmers Around Hinckley See Benefits of Improving Breeds.

Hinckley, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many of the farmers around Hinckley propose to improve their herds of cattle and most of these farmers are intending to raise Guernseys. They think, rightly, that by adopting one breed and all raising cattle of this breed they can establish a better market for what they have to sell. That it pays to raise better stock is shown by two recent transactions.

On Dec. 18, at the Tyllia sale, John Patrick bought five cows for $87.50. Three of these were fresh and others will be soon. These five cows averaged Mr. Tyllia $17.50 each.

On Dec. 23 Burt Richardson sold a registered Guernsey six months old for $50 and since that time he has sold seven head, two of which are under a year old, for $875—an average of $125 each.

GAME WARDENS' MEETING

To be Held at State Capital Soon for General Discussion.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is very probable that a convention of the various game wardens of Minnesota will be held at the state capital within the next two months for the purpose of formulating plans and receiving suggestions as to the possible betterment of the service.

The warden at Crookston and the Bemidji warden have suggested to Carlos Avery, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, that a meeting of all the wardens would prove beneficial in many ways.

At present the men who are employed by the commission are not acquainted with each other to any extent, and it is believed that a meeting where all could get together and offer suggestions and give impressions as to the work of the wardens would be of mutual benefit.

SHOT THROUGH HEART.

Moorhead Young Man Met Tragic End in North Dakota.

Moorhead, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Ingvald Tomren, the young man who was murdered in Richardton, N. D., last Monday, was held here Friday from the home of his uncle, Louis Langseth.

No further particulars of the tragedy have as yet been learned, except that Tomren was shot through the heart, only one bullet piercing his body.

It has also been learned that the shooting occurred at 11 a. m. Monday, at the home of a farmer named Stark, about three miles from Tomren's claim.

His uncles, Ole and Louis Langseth, have left for Richardton to investigate the cause of the crime, and to settle the affairs of the young man. Tomren had a claim near Richardton, which is said to be a valuable one, and in addition had considerble other property.

WERE HANDED A LEMON.

Michigan Men Said to Have Been Deceived as to Mine.

Cuba City, Wis., Jan. 6.—Members of the pool composed largely of Marquette, Mich., men, which a few months ago secured control of the Baxter lead and zinc property here, have brought suit in the United States court against the owners of the property, claiming that the value of the property is much less than was represented to them. They declare that the superintendent of the mine stated that there were ore deposits in places where none existed, and that he exaggerated the value of those which did exist. The terms of the contract were that the pool was to pay $100,000 in cash, give the stockholders of the original company a three-tenths interest in the new company, and spend at least $10,000 in improving and developing the Carr property, which lies next to the Baxter. The plaintiffs ask that the money paid be returned, as well as that already expended for improvements, and that a lien on the property be granted until the alleged damage is made good.

NEW BEMIDJI ELKS.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last meeting of the Bemidji lodge No. 1,052, B. P. O. E., was one of the most enjoyable ever held since the lodge was organized. In addition to the regular business of the lodge, two new candidates were initiated. The two who were put through were Dr. Blakeslee of this city and F. B. Winslow of Deer river.

QUARREL'S FATAL ENDING.

Antigo, Wis., Jn. 6.—In a quarrel over half a gallon of whisky following a New Year's debauch, Henry Revell, a woodsman of the town of Daly, killed David Jackson, another woodsman of the same town, in the latter's cabin, by hitting him with a scoop shovel. Revell gave himself up to the police, claiming the deed was done in self-defense. He is confined in the county jail here.

BISBEE, N. D., FIRE.

Bisbee, N. D., Jan. 6.—A disastrous fire occurred here destroying three of the principal business houses in the heart of the city. The houses are: The Ulm Drug company, McKay block, building and contents of store, loss between $3,000 and $4,000, partly covered by insurance; Harry Abercrombie's meat market, building total loss; Forbes & Honyford's harness shop, building total loss, most of stock was saved.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Luverne — Eighty-nine marriage licenses were issued in Rock county during the year just closed, according to the record in the office of Clerk of Court Ferguson. This is a somewhat better record than last year when but seventy-four licenses were issued.

St. Paul—Charles Donnelly of Helena, Mont., has been appointed assistant general counsel of the Northern Pacific and assumed his duties Jan. 1. He succeeds J. B. Kerr, who recently went to Portland, Or., to go into general practice, besides acting as legal representative for the railroad company.

Moorhead—Fifteen men at the Northern Pacific shops and roundhouse at Dilworth have been laid off in continuance of the policy of cutting expenses as much as possible during the dull period. Ten of the men discharged are Greeks.

Brainerd—Mr. Wood has purchased the interests of A. D. Polk in the firm of Wood & Polk. Mr. Wood assumes all debts of the firm and will collect all amounts due them. The lath mill will resume operations as soon as it thaws out next spring and Mr. Wood expects to buy ath bolts enough this winter to keep it busy ill summer.

Bemidji—Judge Spooner has filed an order denying the motion for a new trial in the case of the state vs. Paul Fournier, who is now serving a term of life imprisonment in the state penitentiary, having been convicted of the murder of N. O. Dahl.

Fertile—Ingebert Mollerud of Fertile, who was robbed of $65 and a bank draft for $85, has returned home from Grand Forks a sadder and wiser man. He was decoyed from the Great Northern depot by two strangers who offered to buy a drink. A little later he rushed into an East Grand Forks Minnesota Point saloon and reported that he had been robbed.

Crookston—Following the usual custom at this time of the year, the stores of Crookston will now close at 6:30 p. m. from this time forward until April 15.

Warren—John Kane was found wandering in the swamps of Eastern Marshall county with a gash in his neck. He appeared to be perfectly rational, but said that he goes insane at times and desired to be committed to a hospital. He was taken to Fergus Falls.

Minneapolis—James J. Hill will dine with the Engineers' club of Minneapolis at Donaldson's tea rooms next Friday evening and will tell the engineers of pioneer railroading in Minnesota and the Northwest, with particular reference to engineering problems.

Fertile—The funeral services over the remains of David Vannet late Northern Pacific roadmaster were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the attendance was the largest ever seen at this place. The floral tributes included a magnificent piece contributed by the Northern Pacific employes on the Red River Valley branch in addition to a wealth of private contributions.

Akeley—County Attorney Dampier has filed his first annual report with Attorney General Young. The total number of criminal cases handled were 64, the total costs incurred in all cases amounted to $117.35 and the total fines assessed amounted to $742. The total amount collected was $1,060.31 leaving a balance or surplus over the costs of $582.96.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Kaukauna—The Rev. Julius Rohde, aged 58 years, is dead. He came to Kaukauna nearly thirty years ago and has since been in charge of the Holy Cross parish in Green Bay. The funeral will be Tuesday at Holy Cross church under charge of Father Selbach of Oconto.

Chilton—George Rogers and Peter Busch, two of the four burglars who were imprisoned in the Calumet county jail awaiting trial for the burglary committed at Hilbert last fall, escaped from the jail by sawing the bars of a window. The two other prisoners did not leave, claiming that they were well satisfied to stay in jail.

Hurley—Sheriff McGeehan has been arrested on a charge of allowing a prisoner to escape from the county jail. He refused to plead when first arraigned, but will be tried soon in municipal court. The warrant charges that the sheriff allowed John McCarthy, who was serving a six months' sentence for assault and battery, to get away.

Ripon—S. D. Mitchell, a noted collector of antiques and a member of the Wisconsin Archaeological society, has recently come into possession of a rare find of prehistoric weapons. The article, which was found in the bottom of a small lake northwest of Ripon, is a copper lance of javelin head, measuring ten inches in length, and exceeds in size by three inches the largest specimen in the collection of the Wisconsin society.

Monroe—Lieut. Commander N. C. Twining, Jr., executive officer of the Kearsarge, one of the vessels of Vice Admiral Robley D. Evans' fleet, as a former Monroe boy, a son of Prof. N. C. Twining of Mendota college, Mendota, Ill. He is the second representative of Green county with the fleet.

Ashland—Mrs. Mary Banks has been bound over to the circuit court by Judge McCloud on the charge of running a disorderly house. Her bonds were fixed at $500. Mrs. Banks has been living on St. Clair street for the past year. Her house has been the resort of men and women, who have considerably annoyed the neighbors.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—The charred remains of the Italian hall started to blaze again late Thursday, and the Red Jacket department found it necessary to throw water on the ruins. Men watched the fire all night, in order to guard against any further outbreaks.

Houghton—The drug store proprietors of Houghton and Hancock have decided to follow the action of the other merchants and close early during the winter months. The druggists will close their places at 9 o'clock at night hereafter, except Saturday night and the Monday night after pay day.

Calumet—A consignment of new books has been received at the Calumet & Hecla public library. They cover a wide range of subjects and include many of the most recent publications.

Marquette—Following the decision of the Upper Peninsula Brewers' association to work in the interest of a better observation of the liquor laws, organizations have been perfected by the saloon keepers of both Norway and Marquette.

Newberry—There is some apprehension that Levi Rivers, Michigan's oldest citizen, may not live to see another winter. Now nearing the age of 104, he is at present feeling the weight of his years more than at any time in the past, and he is becoming so enfeebled that it is not always possible to take his customary morning walk. He has always used tobacco, and he is a moderate user of intoxicants.

Calumet—So many burglaries have been perpetrated in Calumet during the past two or three months that proprietors of some of the larger stores have made arrangements whereby one of their clerks will sleep in the store at night, taking turns on weekly shifts.

Ontonagon—After suffering with a tubercular affliction for more than five years and the greater portion of the time being confined to the bed, John Petermann, a contractor, aged 49 years, died at the home of his parents on the Rockland road Wednesday.

Calumet—William Johnson of Kearsarge pleaded guilty in Justice Jackola's court to carrying concealed weapons and was fined $15 and costs. Johnson's weapons were a pair of metal knuckles, and he is alleged to have placed them on his hands in a local saloon, and scared everyone present.

Hancock—The Copper Country Methodist Episcopal Ministerial association will hold their January session in conjunction with the dedication exercises to be held when the cornerstone of the new M. E. church at Painesdale is laid on the 20th of the month.

Houghton—Charles Mills, a West side meat dealer, was arrested by Deputy State Game Warden Gipp, charged with having in his possession undersized and underweight fish. Mr. Mills pleaded guilty in Justice Brand's court and paid a fine and costs.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Dickinson, N. D. — Shortly before 11 o'clock Friday night it was discovered that two prisoners had escaped from the county jail. Search was begun immediately and the two men, Frank Homer and James Howard, were caught as they entered the depot ticket office.

Bismarck — The North Dakota Dairymen's association will hold its annual convention in Bismarck on Jan. 21, 22 and 23. The first day has been agreed upon as buttermakers' day and the 22nd and 23rd will be dairymen's day.

Fargo, N. D.—The New York Life Insurance company office in this city has been discontinued and R. M. Hamilton, the local representative, will be sent elsewhere to represent the company. Mr. Hamilton is now out of the city, but his family will remain here for some time.

Minot, N. D.—The remains of W. R. Montgomery, the Tioga business man who committed suicide here were shipped to Fulton, Ill.

Baroman, N. D.—A charter has been granted by the comptroller of the currency for the First National bank of Bowman and the bank is now open for business in the new First National bank building.

Dickinson, N. D.—With the Dickinson military band playing in the park and several hundred people, as comfortable as they would be on a mild April day, as spectators, two local baseball teams played an interesting game of ball on New Year's day.

Minot, N. D.—Grand Recorder Frank J. Thompson of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, N. D., has sent out notices to the Knights Templar over the state, directing attention to the next annual conclave of the commandery to be held at Minot, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 21 and 22.

The week of money-saving bargains has opened to our entire satisfaction, and we would do ourselves as well as our customers an injustice to cut a sale of this kind short as long as the liberal patronage holds out so satisfactorily. There must be reasons for it! If you're the kind of woman we think you are, no inducement of price will make up for a lack of quality in clothes. You can't turn a page or a corner without coming face to face with low prices. The question is: What kind of clothes? ALBENBERG'S

DULUTH. "GET THE HABIT." SUPERIOR.

A cheerful disposition for ten cents per week. Sweet breath, no headache, no dullness, no blues. All that—and more—in a box of Cascarets.

Cascarets supply a natural need.

They simply do what some foods will do; what fruits will do, if used in abundance; what exercise does.

They cause the bowel muscles to act. Their effect is as natural and gentle as the same effect from food.

If we lived out-doors, and ate whole wheat, green vegetables and fruits, we would never need Cascarets.

But we don't exercise enough. We eat fine flour, much starch, and too little of fruit and green things.

We live artificially, so we need an artificial laxative.

Cascarets give us, in concentrated form, one vital effect that we lack in rich food.

Some people need them more frequently than others. It depends on your food, your drink and your exercise.

But we all need them sometimes.

The right way to take them is one Cascaret at a time. Take it just as soon as you need it. You can tell.

Don't wait till night.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and

ON THE IRON RANGES

SUIT CAUSED BY SERMON

Two Harbors Sunday Baseball War is Transferred to Duluth.

Suit Filed Against Minister by A. J. McGee, Alleging Libel.

"The twelve jurors in the baseball case raised their right hands before God and perjured themselves."

Basing his case on the above statement, alleged to have been made by Rev. J. A. McGaughey in a sermon in the Presbyterian church at Two Harbors, July 28, 1907, M. H. McMahon, attorney for A. J. McGee, this morning, filed suit in municipal court to recover $500 in damages from Rev. McGaughey. Mr. McGee was a member of the jury, which acquitted a number of men charged with playing baseball on Sunday, the case being tried before Justice Andrews of Two Harbors, July 24, of the past year. The suit filed this morning is evidently a test to secure a ruling as to whether Mr. McGaughey made the statement attributed to him and if it was libelous. The suit of Mr. McGee will probably govern the action of the other eleven jurors.

The suit grows out of the agitation, which prevailed at Two Harbors last summer against Sunday baseball, and it is said, Rev. McGaughey led the element of opposition to the sport on Sunday. Sunday, July 21, a Two Harbors team and a Duluth team started a game at Two Harbors and some of the members of the teams were arrested. They pleaded not guilty to the charge placed against them, were given a trial before Justice Andrews, July 24, and were acquitted by the jury.

In his complaint, Mr. McGee says he was drawn to serve as a juror in the case and that a verdict of acquittal was returned. He claims that the defendant, Rev. McGaughey, was then the pastor of the Presbyterian church at Two Harbors, and the following Sunday, in a sermon referred to the plaintiff and other jurors in the case, "and for the purpose of and intent to injure plaintiff and to cause it to be believed he had been guilty of perjury in his actions, said defendant did maliciously and falsely speak of and concerning this plaintiff the following false and malicious words: 'The twelve jurors in the baseball case raised their right hands before God and perjured themselves.'"

McGee first started suit in the district court of Lake county, but withdrew the action there and renewed it in the municipal court here, by the papers filed this morning. He asks judgment against the plaintiff in the sum of $500 for the injuries done him by the statement, on which the suit is based. It is said that the case was transferred to Duluth on account of the partisanship at Two Harbors and the fear of prejudice.

OFFICIAL PLUMS ARE DISCUSSED

By Eveleth's New Council at Star Chamber Session.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The incoming city council held a secret session behind closed doors in the council rooms from 2 until 6 p. m., Sunday. The result of the meeting has not been allowed to leak out, but those on the inside who are acquainted with the situation are of the opinion that the following will be the list for the coming two years: City attorney, T. P. Ferry; city water works superintendent, C. E. Vandell; city clerk, Edward Skeel; chief of police, Chief Kent; fire chief, doubtful, although it seems to be the opinion that Harry Silver will be retained; president of the council, Tim Shea or Matt Doyle; health officer, doubtful. The remaining minor places will be filled by the faithful who helped to change the regime. The police department will remain as it is.

MONITOR LODGE INSTALLS.

Will Give Masquerade Ball Saturday, Jan. 18.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following officers have installed by Monitor lodge: President Fred Larson; vice president, Frank Carlson; treasurer, Charles Wahlman; financial secretary, Edward Strand; recording secretary, Andrew Strand; chaplain, John Hedlund; assistant chaplain, Ivan Nordstrom; marshall, Gunder Olson; assistant marshal, Andrew Lobseth; trustees, S. M. Anderson and E. Johnson. The lodge will give a masquerade ball in its hall, Saturday, Jan. 18.

A large house warming party was given by Mr. and Mrs. F. Rabinovitz, Saturday evening to open their new home. Guests were present from all the range towns. After the supper whist was played.

Tonight the new officers of the Business Men's association will be chosen. Many important matters are to be brought before the meeting.

The condition of Mayor Jesmore, who has been sick, is reported as improving.

The Eveleth Art club met at the home of Mrs. W. J. Smith, Saturday afternoon.

Fifty-seven new members were added to the rolls of the Lutheran church here, Sunday night as a result of the good work of the pastor, Rev. M. Martinson, during the past few weeks. Rev. Martinson took up his work in the Lutheran church last fall when the membership was at an exceedingly low ebb. His efforts were responsible for the addition of fifty members to the church during the fall, and the entire membership now numbers over 100.

KILLS COW MOOSE

On New Year's Day and Finds Himself in Jail.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Sawyer celebrated New Year's by killing a cow moose in violation of the game laws of the state, and was arrested on a warrant issued by Judge Huson, and served by Deputy Sehriff Harr, who landed him in jail.

Mrs. A. St. James of Duluth is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cloutier and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Patelle.

Mike Olson was brought before Judge Huson charged with being insane and on examination was so adjudged and taken to Fergus Falls by Deputy Sheriff McEwen.

COUNTY BOARD OF ITASCA TO MEET

Tuesday in Annual Session With Much Business to Transact.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tuesday the county board of Itasca county will meet in annual session. The business to be transacted will be the election of a chairman and vice chairman, appointment of county physician of the board of health, overseer of poor, overseer of roads and assessor for the unorganized portion of the county, and janitor; fixing salaries of appointive officers, county superintendent of schools and county attorney; computing county treasurer's salary and fixing amount of clerk hire for county treasurer; selection of grand and petit jurors; financial statement of receipts and disbursements for year 1907 as prepared by county auditor, presented for approval; ordering publication of financial statement; designation of official newspaper and newspaper in which delinquent tax list shall be published, auditing claims, etc.

CHARCOAL GAS ROUTE ADOPTED

To Shuffle Off by Despondent Smallpox Victim.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Angelini Cedini, an Italian, aged 30, who was in the quarantine hospital afflicted with smallpox, committed suicide yesterday morning, adopting an unusual method to accomplish his purpose.

He placed two tubs full of charcoal in his room and applied fire, so that within a short time the room was filled with the charcoal gas. This gradually asphyxiated him. The dead body was discovered by the attendants.

Before starting the gas, he wrote out the names of his friends whom he desired to receive the money that he had left. The amount that he left in the room on a table was $120. He has no relatives in Eveleth, so far as Coroner Gleason knows.

The act was doubtless caused by the dead man becoming despondent, although the doctors had told him that he was on the road to recovery. Coroner Gleason started in search of the dead man's relatives this morning. Cedini was employed at the Fayal mine as a miner before becoming afflicted with the disease.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Planned at Two Harbors---Other Brief Events.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A movement is on foot to organize a Commercial club here, to replace the old organization which suspended some four years ago, and to unite for the welfare of the city. The idea is commendable and should meet with general support.

The local Y. M. C. A. has arranged for a series of evangelistic meetings to be held at the building, for three weeks, commencing the 12th inst. Rev. J. O. Buswell of Minneapolis, and Mr. W. W. Weaver of Mellea, Wis., will have charge of the services.

More cases of scarlet fever have developed here. There now being a family on Eighth avenue and a family on Eleventh avenue under quarantine.

With the opening of the city schools today, for the winter term, the new North side school building is opened and the Fourth avenue building abandoned, to be used only for emergency purposes.

Bishop J. D. Morrison of Duluth spoke at the Y. M. C. A. gospel meeting yesterday afternoon.

Commencing last evening the week of prayer observed throughout the world by Evangelical denominations will be observed by services at the First M. E. church each evening from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m.

The total tax levy for Lake county is as follows: Town of Crystal Bay, 24.80 mills; town of Beaver Bay, 25.20 mills; town of Silver Creek, 41.10 mills; town of Two Harbors, School District No. 2, 41.20 mills; town of Two Harbors, School District No. 4, 32 mills; town of Fall Lake, 18.40 mills; city of Two Harbors, 45.30 mills.

Conductor and Mrs. C. A. Hoaglund have returned from Rochester, Minn., where Mrs. Hoaglund recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hickox leave this week for a three weeks' visit with relatives at Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

The Lake county board of commissioners has appointed Dr. Will Goldsworthy, assistant chief surgeon at the Budd hospital, coroner to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. John Pearson. Dr. Goldsworthy was coroner of Lake county three years ago.

NEW MINISTER HAS BEEN ASSIGNED TO GRAND RAPIDS.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan .6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. L. W. Gullstrom, a Scandinavian Lutheran minister, late of Wilton, N. D., has been assigned to missionary duty in the territory comprising this city and vicinity, and is expected early this week to take up his new duties. He will make his home here, and is searching for a suitable residence.

TO REOPEN THEATER.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—George A. Markham will reopen the People's theater this afternoon, and will start in with four moving picture shows every day. Mr. Markham expects to add to the performances as time grows. Only the very best of moving pictures will be shown.

COMING COLERAINE BALL.

Coleraine, Minn., Jan. 6. — What will doubtless be one of the most enjoyable events of the new year in social circles will be the ball to be given at the high school auditorium in this city on Friday evening, Jan. 24, under the auspices of the Coleraine fire department, and the proceeds will go into the building fund. The Coleraine Symphony orchestra will furnish music for the occasion, and that all who attend this dance will have a good time is a foregone conclusion.

DRUNKEN MAN FREEZES

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Elbert Anderson, aged 28, died, in a local hospital, two nights ago, from the effects of freezing. He was brought to the hospital from Jessie Junction, on the Minneapolis & Rainy River railroad, where he was found with his limbs badly frozen, but was in such condition when received that nothing could be done for him. If he had lived both his hands and feet would have to have been amputated. Anderson had been working in one of the Itasca Lumber company's camps and had quit. He went to Marcell and began drinking. He was intoxicated when he left town and when his body was found near the track, at Jessie Junction, a partly filled bottle of whisky in his pocket told the story of his becoming stupified by liquor lying down by the track and freezing.

CHICAGOAN BUYS ISLAND.

Soap Man Proposes to Build Summer House in Itasca.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dave C. Cochran of Wabana lake has transferred all his interest in the beautiful Ogema island in Wabana lake to Milton W. Kirk of Chicago, a relative of James S. Kirk of soap fame, and president of the Kirk Soap company. Mr. Kirk at the same time asked for information relative to contractors, stating that it was the object of himself and companion, a wealthy Chicago merchant, to build a couple of cottages on the island. The island in question contains something over twenty-one acres.

SUPT. BRYAN WORSE.

Alarming Reports on Condition of Iron Range Official.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received here that the condition of Superintendent of Motive Power H. S. Bryan of the Iron Range, who was last week operated upon at the Mayo hospital, Rochester, Minn., for cancer of the large intestines, is very serious. His numerous friends hoped for an early recovery.

Beautiful Form and Face.

There is a simple home mixture, the ingredients of which may be obtained at any drug store for a small sum, which will not only reduce fat rapidly and harmlessly without causing wrinkles, but also purify the blood and remove complexion ills. Get ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz. Syrup Simplex, mix them together at home and take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

SOUDAN HOME BURNS.

Other Buildings Catch on Fire, But Firemen Save Them.

Tower, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire at Soudan destroyed the home of Jacob Johnson, on Church street, at 10 a. m. yesterday. The furniture was nearly all saved. During the fire quite a high wind was blowing, and this conveyed the fire to other buildings, which also caught, but through the timely arrival of the Soudan chemical fire engine, were saved without loss. The origin of the fire is not known as the family were out at the time, but is supposed to have caught from a defective stovepipe. There was no insurance.

END PROCTOR VISIT.

Proctor, Minn., Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Sheriffs have returned to their home in Milwaukee after spending the holidays with Mrs. sheriff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Schreiber.

authorized to fix the rules of the pay, within defined limits, as a means of obtaining a better discipline and a higher efficiency. He also recommends the creation of a general service corps to relieve the soldiers of the vast amount of unmilitary service, should be so attractive and desirable that it will not be difficult to get hold of the class of men needed for the enlisted personnel, and to make army service a life work by offering rewards for proficiency and greater increase of pay for length of service.

The regular army last year lost 139 officers and 26,310 enlisted men, and, although it was a year of peace, fourteen of the officers and 358 of the men were killed in action or died of wounds and disease.

The secretary has decided to create one of the new regimental posts at Bagnice, in the Philippines, and asks for an appropriation for the purpose. He also urges an enlargement of Fort McKinley reservation, near Manila, by 6,000 acres, at a cost of $185,000, and the construction of an electric railroad from Camp Overton to Camp Keithley, on Lake Lanao, in the center of the Moro country. He compares Baguice to the Adirondacks in atmosphere and climate, and says that nothing could be of greater aid to the army than a post at that point, where every regiment in the island might be sent at some time during its stay in the islands.

Failure to Care for Health.

The secretary says: "The failure to make proper and adequate provision for caring for the health and comfort of the volunteer forces in time of war (and this can only be done by constructing a sufficiently large body of competent surgeons with military knowledge and training) not only prolongs the struggle and involves the country in expenditures of money far in excess of the actual cost of making proper provision in advance, but most deplorable of all, brings anxiety and sorrow to households all over the land and condemns many promising youths to unnecessary sufferings and possibly to a premature grave."

Among the estimates submitted is an item of $6,488,000 for the construction of batteries at Manila and Subig Bay. This estimate appears in connection with others for the insular possession and the only comment made upon it in the report is this:

"The places recommended for fortification have all been visted by one or more members of the national coast defense board, and the suitability for fortification sites have been carefully studied by the board and the expenditures are being made accordingly."

Accompanying the report are the estimates for the support of the military establishment during the next fiscal year, the same being $11,582,931 greater than last year's appropriations. By far the greater part of the increase (more than 90 per cent) is for coast defense works, of which about $21,200,000 is required for the United States and $14,890,000 for the insular properties. The secretary concludes his report with a recommendation that congress make adequate provision for the erection of a statue to Secretary of War Edward M. Stanton in the city of Washington, "where his great work was done and where his remains are buried."

REPORT OF THE COMMERCE COMMISSIONERS

in 105 contested cases under the act. In forty-five of these cases orders were made against the defendant carriers; in forty-five the complaints were dismissed, and in the remaining fifteen no orders were made. In every instance except one the orders of the commission were complied with promptly. In the exceptional case, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad carried the orders into the United States courts, but, pending a decision by the courts, is complying with the order of the commission."

Two important subjects are discussed at length in the report, the one being the matter of advances in rates, "which the commission is wholly without power to prevent;" and the other, the dreadful destruction of life in railway accidents, "which are not now the subject of official investigation under federal authority."

Advance in Rates.

Concerning the advance in rates, which "rests entirely with the railway" under the law, the commission suggests that when such advance occurs legal notice shall be given and the matter shall be heard and determined finally. Respecting the important subjects of congested traffic and car shortage, the commission says the whole problem, "may be said to be due to the fact that the facilities of the carriers have not kept pace with the commercial growth of the country. One eminent railroad president has estimated that the traffic offered in the United States increased 119 per cent in 1906 over that of 1895 while facilities for handling during the same period increased 20 per cent.

"It may be conservatively stated that the inadequacy of transportation facilities is little less than alarming; that its continuation may place an arbitrary limit upon the future productivity of the land and that the solution of the different financial and physical problems involved is worthy the most earnest thought and effort of all who believe in the full development of our country and the large opportunity for its welfare.

Many Hearings Held.

During the year 276 hearings were heard in various parts of the country against 76 in 1905 and 88 folios of testimony was taken. This indicates an increase of 263 per cent. The hearings consumed the time of the commission of special examiners from two hours to eighteen days, and several of the hearings consumed little short of a week each. In the course of the year the commission received 4,432 informal complaints, an increase of over 400 per cent over the previous year. Reparation was awarded informally to shippers in 651 cases, the aggregate amount of the claims being $104,700. The increase in the correspondence of the commission was 250 per cent.

CONTINUE CIVIL SUIT

true because T. F. Druce was, in fact, the fifth duke of Portland, who lived until 1879. Upon this ground George Hollombay Druce claimed that he himself was the rightful heir of the Portland dukedom and estates, the income from which is placed at $1,500,000 a year.

Body Well Preserved.

The courtroom was crowded today when the hearing in the case was resumed. Witnesses of the opening of the vault and coffin testified that there was no indication that the latter had been tampered with, and that there was no lead either in the coffin or the vault. Prof. Pepper testified that when the coffin was opened there was disclosed the body of a man between 65 and 75 years old, fairly well preserved, the skin being broken in only one place. The features would be quite easily recognizable by anyone who had known the man in life. He had a reddish brown moustache and a beard of reddish brown and white.

M. W. Thackery, who was closely connected with T. C. Druce, testified that the body was unquestionably that of his former friend.

On this evidence, Mr. Atherley-Jones, counsel for George Hollambay Druce, announced the withdrawal of the perjury charge.

Magistrate Plowden, in discharging Herbert Druce, thanked him for having consented to the opening of the grave in the interests of justice.

ONE JUROR SECURED

with Mr. Littleton, A. Russell Peabody and Daniel O'Reilly. District Attorney Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Garvan represented the people.

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, attired in the blue school girl dress which became familiar during the first trial, was in the courtroom when the proceedings began. She was accompanied by Mrs. Carnegie and Josiah Thaw.

Three Sessions Daily.

Justice Dowling announced that until further notice there would be three court sessions each day, as follows: From 10:15 a. m. to 1 p. m.; from 2 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. He also announced that the jury will be locked up throughout the trial.

Mr. Jerome undertook the examination of the first talesman called to the witness chair. He was William F. Miller, a decorator. Miller said he had known Stanford White casually, and had formed an opinion upon what he had read of the case. He felt he could render a fair and impartial verdict, and upon this statement, Mr. Jerome announced that he passed the juror for cause.

Mr. Littleton, for the defense, brought out the fact that Miller had had some business relations with the architectural firm of which Stanford White was a member, and that he had been called, but not accepted as a juror at the last trial. Mr. Littleton challenged, on the ground of actual bias, and was sustained by Justice Dowling.

The three talesmen who followed Miller were excluded by the unqualified opinions they declared they held. Justice Dowling himself took a hand in examining some of the proposed jurors, and was inclined to cut the questioning short. Thomas H. Farmer, foreman of the second "Nan Patterson jury," and voted for acquittal, was excluded because of illness.

Charles E. Grommells, a shipbroker, was selected as juror No. 1 in the Thaw case, just before the luncheon recess was ordered.

New York, Jan. 6.—Harry K. Thaw today for the second time faced a trial on a charge of willful murder. After months of waiting in the Tombs the strenuous work of getting a jury to try the young Pittsburger for the killing of Stanford White was begun in the supreme court, the room in which Thaw sat daily for nearly three months during the previous trial. Compared with the former trial, interest in New York is at a low ebb. The rearrangement of the courtroom has materially lessened the number of seats for representatives of the press, but the demand for room for reporters has been considerably less than at the former trial and there will be no trouble in accommodating all thse who are entitled to press seats, in spite of the reduced accommodations.

During the previous trial thousands of columns of evidence were printed in practically every paper in New York and it is not likely that any case ever tried in New York attracted the amount of attention or caused widespread argument that accompanied the first trial of Thaw.

Will Be Difficult to Get Jury.

It has already been decided that jurymen will be placed under lock and key from the moment they are chosen until they finally finish with the case, and this will add to the difficulty in finding qualified jurymen who will be willing to serve in the case and who will not in some way be able to squirm out of that duty. It will not be a surprise to the attorneys in the case if a month or more is consumed in securing the jury.

District Attorney Jerome and Assistant Attorney Garven will again represent the people in the case, while Martin W. Littleton, a well known Brooklyn attorney, will be Thaw's chief counsel, in place of Mr. Delmas, the California lawyer who headed the defense's corps of the lawyers at the former trial.

Will Prove Killing Briefly.

The prosecution's direct case will be brief. The actual killing will be proved and then the defense will have an opportunity to prove, if it can, that Thaw was not mentally responsible when he fired the shot which ended the life of Stanford White. It is said that the defense has subpoenaed a large number of additional witnesses for this trial, but it is believed that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will be the principal witness for the defense. That she will tell the same story as she told on the last trial is probable, but it is rumored that the prosecution will cross-examine her even more severely than was done at the other trial. Assistant District Attorney Garven is said to have spent a greater portion of his vacation in Europe last summer in going over the route of the trip through Europe made by Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit before they were married, and it is not impossible that he secured information there that may come out in the cross-examination.

A special venire of 300 jurymen has been summoned, 100 of whom reported today. A second 100 will report tomorrow and the remainder on Wednesday.

TESSMAN AND HAVEN PLATFORMS IDENTICAL

Republican Nominee Chooses Policies Already Advocated by Tessman.

Platforms of the Two Candidates Differ Only in the Wording.

Roland D. Haven, Republican nominee for mayor of Duluth, yesterday made public the platform upon which he stands for election to the high office of mayor of Duluth. There is a remarkable similarity between this document and the platform of Emil A. Tessman, Democratic nominee for the same position, which was published in The Herald on Nov. 26 last. Of course, Mr. Haven uses somewhat different language, but in effect he claims to stand for the same things that Mr. Tessman announced, five weeks ago, that he would fight for, if elected.

Briefly, the man who hopes to lead the Republicans on to victory favors the strict enforcement of the law, including a strong lid, well spiked down; the retention of Chief of Police Troyer; no persecution, but a strict compliance with the law; the appointment of office holders on merit alone, and not because of any political work they have done; and also the retention of appointees in office on condition that he earns his salary; the upbuilding of a greater Duluth, and a square deal for all classes of citizens and all lines of business; care in the assessment of both real and personal property, to the end that all classes of persons and property may pay their just and fair proportion of the taxes; the lowest possible tax rate, and the extension of street car service and fire protection.

Mr. Haven says no favors, prefernces or persecutions will be tolerated in the enforcement of the laws of the state and the ordinances of the city; that no one business shall dictate the policy of the administration, and no special favors will be granted to any class; that, while the liquor business and those engaged in it, shall not dictate the policy of his administration, they will be treated justly and fairly, the same as any other line of business, when it is conducted in an orderly and law-abiding manner.

Following is a comparison of the more important sections of the platforms of the two nominees, showing how closely Mr. Haven, in preparing his document, has followed out the policies outlined in Mr. Tessman's platform:

TESSMAN.

"I believe that the operation of a city is a business matter, and I shall, if elected, use every effort to see that the city's business is conducted upon a basis of sound economy, so that the taxpayers shall not be called upon to pay unfairly high taxes, and so that they will get back value received for every dollar they pay toward the expenses of city government. I believe that all property and all classes of property should be taxed equally, and that each individual should contribute to the support of public government in proportion to his means."

• • •

"I shall enforce the laws of state and city, so far as it lies within my power, without fear or favor. I believe that laws are made to enforce; that neglect of small laws leads to neglect of large ones; that small lawlessness breeds large lawlessness; that contempt for one law leads to contempt for all laws, and therefore to disorder, bad government and oppression of the people. Without bitterness, therefore, without malice, but without compromise and without favoritism, I shall stand for the strict enforcement of law."

• • •

"As municipal government is a business matter, I shall expect of all city employes the same single-minded attention to duty that I should expect of them if they were my personal employes in private business, and I shall expect politics to influence for action of city employes as little as I should if they were in private employ, instead of public."

• • •

"I shall work for the betterment of roads and bridges in order to permit the extension of the street railway system from West Duluth to New Duluth and the new steel plant."

• • •

"I believe in and shall work for a Greater Duluth; a Duluth not only greater in size, in population, in industry and in wealth, but a Duluth that is as clean and sightly and pleasant to live in as the energy and activity of a city administration co-operating with an alert and enlightened and public-spirited people can make it."

HAVEN.

"Assessments of both real and personal property must be made with the utmost care and equality, to the end that all classes of persons and property may pay their just and fair proportion of taxes. The tax rate must be kept as low as it can be, and yet provide sufficient funds with which to keep up our current replacements and repairs, and also make such necessary additional improvements as our rapid growth demands."

• • •

"The laws of the state and ordinances of the city shall be strictly enforced. No exceptions will be made, and no favors, preferences or persecutions tolerated. No one business shall dictate the policy of the administration, and no special favors will be granted to any class. Neither the liquor business nor those engaged in it shall dictate the policy of my administration, but they will be treated justly and fairly, the same as any other line of business, when it is conducted in an orderly and law-abiding manner."

• • •

"If elected I propose to devote all my time to the office, and to give the city a thorough-going business administration. Every appointee shall be selected because of his integrity and fitness for the position which he is chosen to fill. I will promise no appointment previous to election because I desire to go into office entirely free to select the very best men. No office holder or appointee of mine shall be permitted to remain in office and draw the city's money from the treasury unless he has earned it. The city's affairs shall not be conducted upon a spectacular or political plan, but upon the same conservative basis followed by a well regulated private business."

• • •

"I shall at all times use my influence to secure extensions of street car service, fire protection and other conveniences to communities not now so favored."

• • •

"The upbuilding of a greater Duluth is next in importance to a "square deal" for all classes of citizens and all lines of business, and those who contemplate availing themselves of our natural and commercial advantages must be assured that ours is an honestly and conservatively governed city."

MARKET HAS WEAK TONE

Wheat Off, on Good Selling and Bearish News.

Flax is Easier During the Session in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 6. — The wheat market was bearish from the outset today and the closing prices showed a loss of more than a point from Saturday in most of the American markets.

World's shipments of wheat were liberal, the cables were lower and the Northwestern situation was easier. Selling was free at all times during the session.

Liverpool closed ½d to ¾d lower, Berlin ¼c lower. It was a holiday in Budapest.

The May option closed 1⅜c lower in Duluth, 1¼c lower in Chicago, 1½-1¼c lower in Minneapolis, ¾c off in New York and ¼c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1⅝c lower in Duluth, 1c lower in Chicago and Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in New York and ¼c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed a shade higher in Chicago and ¾d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ¼-⅜c lower in Chicago.

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week a year ago are shown as follows:

	Last Week.	Previous Week.	Last Year.
America	6,176,000	6,488,000	3,568,000

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "There was a steady undertone to the wheat market at the immediate start and values were unchanged to ⅛d higher. Offerings were light prompted by the firmness of American cables on Saturday, but the market lacked support. Following the opening there was a rather sharp decline, prices losing ⅜d to ¾d. Pressure resulted from the continued liberal shipments to the continent and United Kingdom, mild weather in Europe and freer offerings of La Plata wheat. Prices at mid-day were ⅝c lower than Saturday. "Corn was steady at start and unchanged. During morning values lost ⅜d to ½d on the milder weather reported in Europe and the smaller demand for spot."

Car receipts at Duluth were 101 against 61 last year, and at Minneapolis 328 against 517 last year, making a total for the Northwest 429 against 598 last year. Chicago received 25 against 82 last year. Winnipeg received 190 against 56 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 734,000 bus., last year 1,022,000 bus. Shipments 195,000 bus., last year 243,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 726,000 bus.

The visible supply of wheat increased 1,820,000 bus., and is now 48,481,000 bus., against 45,768,000 bus., last year.

Primary receipts of corn were 670,000 bus., last year 1,135,000 bus. Shipments 395,000 bus., last year 368,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 368,000 bus.

The visible supply of corn increased 994,000 bus., and is now 4,479,000 bus., against 5,823,000 bus., last year.

May wheat opened ⅞c off at $1.14⅜, sold up to $1.14⅝, fell back to $1.14, rallied to $1.14¾, fell back to $1.13⅞ and closed there, a loss of 1⅜ from Saturday. July wheat was inactive, closing at $1.14⅜.

Durum wheat was 2c off from Saturday, oats unchanged and rye 72-76c in place of 71-75c. Cash wheat sold on a basis of 3c under May for No. 1 northern.

May flax opened ¼c off at $1.22¾, sold off to $1.21¾, rallied to $1.22¾ and closed at $1.22, a loss of 1c from Saturday. July closed at $1.23½.

Rye closed 1c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Weak With Commission Houses and Pit Traders Buyers.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—The wheat market opened weak today. Commission houses and pit traders were the principal buyers. Cables were off about ¼c, notwithstanding the advance here Saturday. May wheat opeled ½@⅝c to ¾@⅞c lower at $1.07½@¾ and sold at $1.07⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 454 cars against 643 cars last week and 669 cars one year ago.

Covering by shorts brought about a moderate rally later, May advancing to $1.08, but the bearish sentiment again prevailed and the close was weak. May was $1.07@1.08.

The corn market was fairly active early and weak on lower cables and favorable weather for the movement of grain in the corn belt. May corn opened ⅛@⅜c lower at 60⅞c to 60⅞c, sold off to 60⅝@¾c and then advanced to 61c. Local receipts were 166 cars, with one of contract grade.

Corn rallied during the latter half of the session on buying brought out by small primary receipts. May sold up to 61⅝c and closed firm at a shade advance at 61⅜@61½c.

Oats were very dull. The market was weak along with other grains. May oats opened ¼c lower at 54⅜c and sold at 54⅝c. Local receipts were 193 cars. There was a good demand for provisions.

May pork was 2½c higher at $13.40 and sold up to $13.50. Lard was a shade lower to a shade higher at $6.08½ to $6.10.

Ribs were a shade lower to 2½@5c higher at $7.25@$.30.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Good Advances Were Recorded in the Active List.

Close Showed Reactions From the Top, Due to Realizing.

New York, Jan. 6.—Opening dealings in stocks were very scanty and price changes wese restricted to small fractions in the active list. Gains and losses were mingled. Continued demand for Reading and Northern Pacific was a sustaining influence, the former rising ¾ and the latter a point. National Biscuit and Consolidated Gas gained a point. Federal Sugar preferred declined 1¾ and then rallied 5.

The trend of prices turned upward after the opening selling orders had been executed, but after the list had risen sharply there was another lecline which wiped out about all of the advances. Subsequently the advance was resumed with more vigor. Delaware and Hudson jumped 4½; Northwestern, 1⅜; Anaconda, 1¼, and New York Centrol, Union Pacific and Federal Mining preferred, 1. United States Express sold 10 points higher on one transaction.

Priced wavered in the upward course, but showed resiliency and rose strongly towards noon. Lackawanna advanced 16½; Soo Line, 2½; Northern Pacific, 2¼; Reading, 1¾; Anaconda, St. Paul preferred, 1½ to 1⅝; Union Pacific, 1¼, and Great Northern preferred, Great Northern Ore, Amalgamated Copper and others, 1.

The buying orders continued; St. Paul and the Hill stock showed the most conspicious strength. North American jumped 5½. Northern Pacific 3¼, St. Paul 2½, and Great Northern preferred 2, Western Union 1¾ and Southern Pacific, Amalgamated Copper 2½. The market closed easy and active. There was general profit taking in the final hour causing a reaction which reached a point or more for a few of the leaders.

MEETING IS TO BE A BUSY ONE

Several matters of more than ordinary importance are scheduled to come up before a meeting of the public affairs committee, which has been called for Jan. 14 at the Commercial club.

The municipal committee will report on the feasibility of the plan of W. E. McEwen and Health Commissioner Murray to create a health commission and a new system of collecting and disposing of garbage. The matter came up at a previous meeting, and the committee was instructed to make an investigation of the project. Mr. McEwen figures on utilizing heat coming from burning garbage for creating power.

The special committee appointed to look into the matter of a parcels post and decide whether or not, in their estimation, it would be practical, will make a report of their findings. O. H. Simonds and Capt. Alexander McDougall, delegates from Duluth to the national rivers and harbors congress at Washington, D. C., will make a report of what was accomplished at the recent meeting.

The transportation committee will make a report relative to freight charges on lumber from the Pacific coast to Duluth. Probably the hearing before the interstate commerce commission on the free storage facility matter will come in for some discussion. Secretary H. V. Eva of the Commercial club has been officially notified that the hearing will be held in the local federal building the afternoon of Jan. 13, at 1:30 o'clock. It will be in the federal court rooms.

COPPER STOCKS IN GOOD DEMAND

Market Has a Good Tone Throughout Session.

This proved to be the best day for copper stocks the local market has seen for some time. The better curb shares were in good demand and the Boston list was very strong.

The close was off somewhat from the high level of the day, but was nevertheless stronger than Saturday. The local curb shares were up at the end of the session.

North Butte opened at $45.62½, advanced to $46.50 and closed at $45.25 bid and $45.62½ asked. Amalgamated opened at $48.87½, went off to $48.75, rallied to $50.50 and closed at $49 bid.

Grenne-Cananea opened at $7.25, went off to $7.12½, rallied to $7.50 and closed at $7.25 bid and $7.37½ asked. Butte Coalition opened at $16.37½, went off to $16.12½, rallied to $16.62½ and closed at $16 bid and $16.12½ asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $106, advanced to $107 and closed at $106 bid and $107 asked. Anaconda opened at $29.87½, went to $31.62½ and closed at $30.50 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg had a good advance from $12.25 to $13.62½, closing at $13 bid and $13.25 asked. Butte & Superior sold at $1.50 and $1.75 and closed at $1.50 bid and $1.62½ asked, and Butte-Ballaklava closed at $7.50 bid after selling at $7.25 and $7.50.

Denn-Arizona sold at $4.62½ and closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked; Globe sold at $7.25 and closed at $7.25 bid and $7.37½ asked and Calumet & Sonora at $8.75 and closed at $8.50 bid and $8.75 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.75 and closed at $4.62½ bid and $4.75 asked.

Walker's Copper Letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is decidedly stronger. Lake is 13¾ to 14 cents, and electroylitic 13¾ to 13⅞ cents per pound. Domestic consumers are buying a little more freely than heretofore, but in small lots only. The bulk of the current demand comes from abroad. Apparently foreign manufacturers are looking forward to a fair volume of business during 1908, and are buying copper as rapidly as they can conveniently, believing that current prices will be the lowest of the year. Domestic consumers, as a rule, continue in a discouraged frame of mind. The few who are hopeful find it so difficult to obtain credit that they are harboring their resources in every direction.

"The curtailment of copper production which began in September and October is now beginning to be felt and appreciated. Until a few weeks ago the monthly output of the refineries was up to the high mark of the year, as copper which came from the mines in October was still in process. The December output of electrolytic copper, however, must have shown a shrinkage of 40 per cent to 50 per cent, as compared with November's total. This curtailment, so far as the refineries are concerned, will continue in force for at least three months, even though the big smelting plants of the country undertake to resume operations to their full capacity immediately, as at least that length of time would be required to get back to a normal producing basis, ship the copper East, treat it and get it in shapes ready for market.

"All testimony to the contrary notwithstanding, the world's copper surplus is considerably smaller now than it was three months ago. This is true of the refined copper ready for consumption; and the amount of copper in process, between the mines and market, has decreased at least 35 per cent.

"More copper is being purchased and consumed at present than is coming from the world's mines. It is expected that there will be a considerable increase in consumption after the 15th of this month, if the money market is easier, and it is very generally believed it will. If confidence returns sufficiently to warrant a resumption of railroad, railway, telephone ,electric light and power construction, all of the producing mines will be operating in full three to six months hence, and selling their entire output at approximatey 15 cetns per pound.

"It must not be supposed that the current depression in copper is peculiar to that trade alone, or that it reflects a coming change in the copper business. There is relatively as great or greater curtailment in the iron and steel trade; and lead, zinc and silver are in exceedingly poor demand, though much lower in price than a few months ago. Substantially all lines of industry are suffering proportionately. With the coming revival in general trade, there will be a resumption of the demand for the cheap and convenient power which is furnished by electricity; and the work of equippin water powers and concentrated steam power plants will go on again as formerly. The copper trade should be the first to reflect the business revival."

THREW AWAY HIS CHANCE

Leigh Hume, a young man whose home was formerly at Lake Nebagamon, Wis., was given a sixty-day jail term in the district court this morning, on his plea of guilty of grand larceny in the second degree.

Hume could not stand prosperity. He was arrested some time ago on the charge of stealing a coat from the office of Joseph Reynolds, a local attorney, while the latter was absent for a few minutes. He entered a plea of guilty, but, on the plea of his aged father and friends, the court decided to give the young man a chance, so he was paroled. Hume secured a position here in the city, but in less than three weeks after his release he was arrested on the charge of stealing $15 from his employer. He was held on the petty larceny charge until this term of court and was sentenced for the more serious charge.

OPERA HEELS WILL NOT WORK

Because he lacked two inches of the required height of the United States army height standard, John Suzobski, a light haired Polish youth, was prevented from taking the examination at the local recruiting office, last Saturday. Undaunted, he returned today.

Suzobski possessed a face that is not marked by features of striking contour, and he trusted to this fact and to his height-adding device to pull him through.

He filled his heavy german socks full of sand, had high opera heels added to his boots, placed a pair of wool sole bottoms in his boots, and again applied at the office. He might have made his bluff good, too, had not he run into the man who took him to the office last Saturday.

When Suzobski was measured last Saturday and found wanting in height, but little attention was paid to him. There was several other candidates in the room at the time, and he escaped critical scrutiny. He must have guessed this, for he put on a bold front today.

He just scaled the required height, and was lined up along the back wall to take the eye examination, when in walked the scout who had brought Zuzobski in Saturday. He spoke right out in meeting, and asked the flaxen-haired youth his secret of added height.

Questions were asked then, of course, and the height of the added inches came out. Zuzobski was told he would be a great help to Uncle Sam when he acquired a man's height, but pending that acquirement, was advised to forego his desire to join the army.

The recruiting officials admitted that the youth had the determination to make a good soldier. He also showed resource and good headwork. He is built along the lines of the first Napoleon, but may never have his opportunity for achieving military greatness.

MAY DISMISS FORGERY CASE

The case against Mrs. Laura McArthur, charged with forgery, will probably be dismissed.

It was due to come up this afternoon in the municipal court; but up to 3 o'clock it had not been called. The check in question has been made good, and the man whose name was signed is said to be unwilling to prosecute. Under these circumstances the case will probably be dropped.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 6.—George L. Henrion, former manager of the Michigan department of the American Car & Foundry company, died today.

San Francisco, Jan. 6.—Former Supervisor Thomas F. Lonergan dropped dead at his home here today. He was one of the members of the board of supervisors who were accused of having received bribes from the United Railways company and other companies.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 6.—Charles M. Macdonald, who for many years was one of the most prominent figures in the lumber world at the time of the development of the industry in the Northwest, died at his home here today, aged 65.

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—Rev. James M. Crowell, for nearly sixty years prominent in the Presbyterian church, is dead at his home here, aged 81.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 6.—Rev. P. B. Morrison, a pioneer Episcopal clergyman of Wisconsin, died at noon yesterday. He was 78 years old.

Not as Bad as Reported.

Capt. J. J. Hibbard declares that The Herald was misinformed about the epidemic of diphtheria reported to be raging in the apartment house at Second avenue east and Fifth street, owned by him. It was reported that every apartment bore a diphtheria sign, whereas the captain is authority for the statement that there is but one there now. He says there have been three cases of diphtheria in the building, but not all at the same time.

Again they are trying to break the price of Butte-Ballaklava stock, but certain men in Duluth will find it the toughest proposition that they ever tackled, for Butte-Ballaklava is too big a proposition for them to handle and they will find that selling a stock like this one short is a dangerous thing to do. To drive this stock down is not easy, for the rich ores of the Edith May, Old Joe and Hell Speculator veins will back them off the board and leave nothing but their hides, for their money will surely be gone. There has been a certain set of men in Duluth who could scare people holding good stocks into selling them for a song just because these certain men were making a bear raid on the stocks they held and wanted them cheap to cover their short sales, but that is history now and those fellows can not regulate things so easily any more. Those days have gone by and we want the stock certificates. They have caused many a broker to take big losses, but a broker who knows his business makes them deliver the goods. Bring your Ballaklava stock to me and you will get more for it than any other brokerage house in the city can pay. I want the certificates. I know how big the Ballaklava mine will be. I also know the great future that is ahead of Butte & Superior and the men who came back from Butte some months ago and scattered false reports about this great mine did a great injustice to the small holders of stock. They made some people believe that on account of the machinery not being in place that it was no mine. The machinery amounts to nothing if the ore is not there, but Butte & Superior is a great property and to people who sold their stock cheap, I want to say, buy it back and you will get every dollar you invested in the first place. Butte & Superior is a great property and will be one of the biggest mines in Butte. If you call at my office I will show you the blueprints and also pictures of surface improvements of this company. You can not find any two better propositions than Butte & Superior and Butte-Ballaklava. They will make Duluth a rich town.

Mr. R. B. Dear, president of the Butte-Ballaklava, received a message last night from the mine, that another lead of ore had just been cut on the Edith May vein, 8 feet wide, averaging 15½ per cent copper, 17½ ounces of silver, and 1.80 gold.

The management is certainly showing up a bonanza mine in record time. Butte & Superior is hard to get at bid prices, and I consider it very cheap at present prices.

The whole copper list is doing better, and good copper stocks bought now will show good profits in the next thirty or sixty days.

Official of Omaha Said to Have Option on Road.

James F. Walsh, secretary of the Minnesota Land & Construction company, which is virtually the same as the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Railroad company, being backed by the same people, says there is absolutely no truth to the report, emanating from Chicago, to the effect that an official of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road has secured an option for the purchase of the Rainy Lake line, and also for one-half of all the timber owned by the Cook & O'Brien interests.

Reports are continually going the rounds relative to a prospective change in ownership of the Rainy Lake road, and each one is in turn denied by W. H. Cook and other officials of the road. They maintain that the road will continue in operation as an independent line, and that it will remain under the present ownership indefinitely, according to the latest report, which comes in the form of a dispatch from Chicago, the Cook-O'Brien interests will retain one-half of the timber, and in the event of the road passing out of their hands, will be given a fair rate for the hauling of their logs to the two mills at Virginia. The option, it is said, is good until March 1.

A recent rumor that the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road was about to purchase the Rainy Lake road was emphatically denied, and in a manner that left no ground for doubt.

Mr. Cook is out of the city at present, on a tour of inspection over the road, accompanied by his private secretary. He has on former occasions refused to discuss the stories of the purchase of the road.

Mr. Walsh said this morning that neither the Weyerhaeuser interests, officials of the Omaha road, or any one else were negotiating for the purchase of the Rainy Lake line, and further, that they never had carried on such negotiations, or thought of it, so far as he knew. He stated, furthermore, that the Weyerhaeusers were not in the market for any timber just now, and that they were not buying a stick at present.

Better Mail Service.

A change has been made in the through mail service at Chicago, whereby the Twin Cities and Duluth will be given greatly improved service in the delivery of mail from New York, New England and other Eastern points. All the mail sacks gathered east of Chicago and consigned to Western points will be placed in storage cars, while the fast mail trains are in transit, and these cars will be transferred immediately upon arriving at the tracks of other roads. Better service in the registration of mail for the West also has been provided at Chicago.

TWELFTH NIGHT.

Under Old Customs, Christmas Was Followed by Long Feast.

Although most people have forgotten the ancient custom entirely, tonight marks the close of the twelve nights of feasting that are supposed to follow up on the celebration of Christmas. In the ancient days they used to hit up the bowl long after Christmas, with its joys and pains and aches, had passed into history.

The twelfth night was marked with appropriate celebration. They choose a king and queen by means of a bean and pea imbedded in a huge cake. The person who drew the bean was the king, his queen being the lady who drew the piece containing the pea.

They had courtiers, lackeys and court jesters. They had copious drinks and plentious viands. Indeed, the last night of the long spell of feasting and drinking went out in a blaze of glory and strained digestions. The twelfth night has its religious significance in the fact that the wise men from the east are supposed to have reached the cradle of Jesus on this date. Some few people celebrate the anniversary of the event today by using spices and plums in the cakes, but very little attention is paid to its religious significance or any attempt made to emulate the feasting and reveling of the past in these modern days.

BAD FIRE AT HURON.

Huron, S. D.—Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire Saturday night destroyed a two-story brick business building here, one half of which was occupied by the Lees Mercantile company. The total loss was $80,000, one-half of which was covered by insurance.

FRED OBER MADE AGENT

Succeeds W. S. Chadwick at the Local Union Depot.

J. T. McKenney Made City Agent for Northern Pacific.

Fred J. Ober, city passenger and ticket agent of the Northern Pacific, has been appointed ticket agent at the Duluth union depot, succeeding William S. Chadwick, resigned. The change becomes effective tomorrow. Thomas E. Blanche, general agent of the Northern Pacific in Duluth, announces the appointment of J. T. McKenney, district passenger agent, with former headquarters at St. Paul, to succeed Mr. Ober as city passenger and ticket agent.

Mr. Chadwick, it is understood, will go into business for himself. Intimate friends were given to understand some time ago that he intended to take this action, but his resignation at this time comes as something of a surprise to most people. He has been in the railroad business since youth, and probably is as well known among the railroad fraternity of the Northwest as any other man in the business. Before going into the local union depot, about eight or nine years ago, he was city passenger and ticket agent for the Northern Pacific in Superior, and while acting in these different capacities, he came in personal contact with all the passenger representatives of the many different railroad lines which have men in this territory, and his popularity among these outside railroad men, as well as with all the railroad boys at the Head of the Lakes, often has been remarked upon. It would be hard to find anyone in the business who is more generally popular.

Mr. Chadwick is perhaps more generally known to the public through the fact that his name often has been published in connection with the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. club, an organization of which he is the father, formed for the purpose of promoting sociability and good-fellowship among the representatives of the freight and passenger departments of railroads and steamship lines represented in this territory. This club has a membership drawn from all over the country, and in its ranks are to be found representatives of practically every railroad in the country. Headquarters are in Duluth, and annual meetings are held here. Mr. Chadwick has been a prime mover in all affairs of the club, and if he should leave the city, his absence would be keenly felt by members of the organization.

Railroad men along the street are free in their congratulations over Mr. Ober's promotion. The choice is universally popular, and all the "boys" are sincerely glad to see him get the place. Mr. Ober has been in Duluth only about two years, coming here from Fargo, where he was district passenger agent of the Northern Pacific.

Mr. McKenney has made a good record in the service of the railroad, and he will be given a hearty welcome into the ranks of local railroad men. He is already in the city.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Buys More Property.

Nelson Thomasson, a Chicago men who has had real estate investments in Superior for many years, has added to his holdings by the purchase of some acreage in 47-18, 43-18, lots on West Fifth, West Seventh, West Eighth and West Nineteenth streets, Ely's addition, and lots in Morrison's division. The consideration was $12,500.

Will Visit Rome.

Bishop Schinner, Father Weber of Superior, and Father Barney of Hudson, Wis., left today for a six months' tour of the old country. They will sail from New York Jan. 11 and will make their first stop at Gibraltar. The primary object of their trip is to meet Pope Pius X. The party will also make a trip through the Holy Land.

Will Enforce New Law.

District Attorney Foley of Douglas county has reported to Attorney General Gilbert of Wisconsin that the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads are not complying with the law for an eight-hour work day, but are still working their telegraph operators the regular number of hours. It is likely that a test case on the constitutionality of the law will be started in Douglas county. The South Shore and the Omaha companies are said to have increased their forces Jan. 1 so as to divide the work into eight-hour watches. Under the new law the penalty for violation is from $1,000 to $5,000 for each offense, the fine to be turned over to the county where the offense is committed.

Political Pot May Boil Soon.

With three months until the primary election for municipal officers, politics are not yet very stirring in Superior. Next spring the people will elect a mayor, treasurer, comptroller, one alderman from each ward and a supervisor from each ward. It seems to be the general impression that Mayor Victor Linley will be a candidate for renomination and re-election. Among the issues are likely to be the enforcement of the law relative to saloons, gambling houses and the social evils. There was some talk that Alderman Hislop would oppose Mayor Linley, but Mr. Hislop claims that he is out of politics. Former Mayor O'Hare is also quoted as saying that he will not seek the chair next spring. It is claimed that were he to run he would be likely to get the support of those opposed to Mayor Linley. Other names mentioned are Alderman McGinnis, Democrat, and Alderman Crumpton, Republican.

Council Will Have Busy Session.

The council is likely to have a busy session tomorrow evening. Among the matters to come up are two veto messages from Mayor Linley, the proposed weights and measures ordinances and the report of a committee on the advisability of purchasing the city hall. One veto relates to the transfer of a liquor license and the other relates to the proposal to sell eighty-eight acres of the Stinson lands to the Catholic diocese of Superior. Mayor Linley has advised the purchase of the city hall, there being about $15,000 outstanding on the original purchase price.

STUDIES ARE RESUMED

Public Schools Are Reopened After Christmas Vacation.

Normal School Will Resume Work on Tuesday Morning.

Both school children and teachers were back on the job again today.

The public schools of the city reopened this morning after the Christmas vacation, and the second term of the school years is now under way.

The reopening of school saw some changes, notably the opening of the new Madison school, on Garfield avenue, and the opening of the rebuilt Franklin school, on the hillside, at Fifth avenue east. The Madison school stands on the site of the frame structure destroyed by fire last spring, while the Franklin is the old building restored, and with some improvements.

The pupils of the Madison district have been attending the Adams school at Superior street and Seventeenth avenue west, and the return of those youngsters to their own educational home relieves the crowded condition at the Adams.

Many pupils of the Franklin school have been reciting at the new Nettleton building, and this has made the Washington school very crowded because of the extra number of pupils attending there. Now many of the Washington pupils will be assigned to the Nettleton and the Franklin pupils can go to their own school once more.

The end of the holidays sees a few new teachers in the corps, but most of the pupils greeted the same instructors when they filed in this morning. The children have had a glorious vacation—the weather here has been so pleasant, but it is hard study for theirs now.

When the sessions began this morning, the teachers began at once the courses of studies which were being carried on when the vacation interrupted, and by 10 o'clock this morning, except in the Madison, Franklin, Nettleton and some other buildings, where important changes have been made, the schools had settled down to their work.

The promotion of classes does not come for about three weeks, when the second semster begins.

Tomorrow the young women and the few young men who are learning to be school teachers at the state Normal school, will resume their studies, as that is the time set for the reopening of the institution. The model department will also open then.

Kodol is the best remedy known today for dyspepsia, indigestion and all troubles arising from a disordered stomach. It is pleasant, prompt and thorough. Sold by all druggists.

ACTIVE WEEK IN THE LOCKOUT

Open Shop Campaign Will be Vigorously Renewed.

It is rather expected that this will be an active week in the non-union shop movement. Outside labor leaders will be arriving from the Twin Cities and the East, and will immediately be ready to enter into the campaign on the side of organized labor. Probably meetings will be arranged, at which the people will be addressed on the subject of unionism, and meetings also will be held in Superior.

W. E. McEwen, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, who is regarded as captain of the labor forces, is sending out letters to the opposition to the effect that in declaring for the open shop and taking the steps they did in suppressing the Building Trades alliance, the contractors really were breaking contracts with the union men who were in their employ at the time. Although the contracts referred to may not be legally termed such, so far as declaring for the open shop is concerned, it is maintained that they are morally binding.

The postponed mass meeting in the Grand Opera house at Superior will be held next Thursday night, W. E. McEwen will be the principal speaker. Others will also speak. George B. Howley, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, spoke yesterday afternoon before a meeting of the Superior Bartenders' union. The regular meeting of the Structural Building Trades alliance will be held tonight in Kalamozoo hall.

It is absolutely necessary to health that we give relief to the stomach promptly at first signs of trouble. Take something like KODOL For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Sold by all druggists.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Two large buildings constructed by the William J. Lemp Brewing company, as ice houses, but utilized as warehouses, burned, early Sunday, at St. Louis, entailing a loss estimated at $100,000. Both buildings were filled with new bottles and packing materials.

According to announcement made Sunday, an aggregate of 5,000 men will be re-employed Jan. 15, by many large industrial plants in East St. Louis, Ill., and vicinity.

In an interview at Kansas City, Sunday night, William J. Bryan said that the trusts, the tariff and railroad regulation would be the paramount issues in the campaign of 1908. He said it was impossible to determine at this time what the one paramount issue would be.

The washing ashore of a large amount of wreckage, including four hatches, a wheel house, and part of a name board, which bore the letters "Sim," on Block Island, Sunday, led the life saving crew at Sandy Point to the belief that a schooner went ashore somewhere between Long Island and Block Island Saturday night.

Three years ago the anti-saloon league began its active campaign in Cleveland for local option. Today one-fourth of the city's area is "dry."

WILL CONTEST WILL.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6.—According to a statement made here last night, the will of William Rhinelander, who died last week in New York city, leaving an estate said to be valued at $50,000,000, is to be contested by William C. Rhinelander, a son, who lives in Albany, and who, it is said, was disinherited by his father. This statement was made last night by Juliette Catherine Maier, who says she was married to Rhinelander in New York in 1897.

CRIMINAL CASES SHY

No Grand Jury at January Term of Federal Court.

The Calendar Will be an Unusually Light One.

For the first time in fifteen years, and for the second time in history, there will be no grand jury this month in connection with the January term of federal court, which will open on Jan. 14. There are no criminal cases, and everybody has been so good in this jurisdiction that there would be no work for the grand jury if one were gotten together.

The coming term will be a light one, from present indications. The Cedar Island Lake land cases, involving properties valuable for iron ore deposits said to exist there, probably will be the most important to come up. The first is set for hearing on Jan. 20. These cases which, though coming under different titles, really are one and the same, have been in the courts for fourteen years past. It is expected they will finally be disposed of at the coming session.

Judge Page Morris, who will preside at the January term, is now conducting court in St. Paul. The calendar for the Duluth term has not been issued yet, but it will be ready in a day or two.

DY-WYK CLUB HOLDS ELECTION

First Annual Meeting of Organization of Young Men.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Dy-Wyk club, an organization of thirty young men who maintain club rooms in the Winthrop building, and who manage to have a pretty good time the year around, was held Saturday evening.

George C. Cowing, who has been secretary of the club since its organization, was elected president. He succeeds E. A. McConville, who has been presiding officer ever since President Fogarty left the city.

Percy Sullivan was elected first vice president, Roy C. McGonagle was made secretary and Fred Hall re-elected to the office of treasurer.

The election of all the officers was made unanimous.

The Dy-Wyk club was organized about a year ago, and originally comprised about fifteen young men. The members were hosts at some very enjoyable dancing parties at the Spalding hotel and Sedgway hall last season and at a number of outings during the summer.

This fall rooms were secured and fitted up in the Winthrop building. The Flemish oak effect was striven for in the furnishing of the club rooms, and although they have only been occupied a few months, they have already been the scene of a number of pleasant social functions, "stags" and "ladies' nights."

The government of the club rooms is in the hands of a house committee, which is composed of George D. McCarthy, chairman, Val. H. Hawkins and R. C. McGonagle.

The Dy-Wykers are planning a number of good times for this winter, including some "stag frolics" in the club rooms.

The annual club dinner will come the last of this week, and E. A. McConville, the retiring president, will preside as toastmaster.

FORECAST OF THE COUNCIL

Piedmont Avenue Car Line Extension to be Considered.

Dr. Bracken's defense of the state board of health's ruling on smallpox quarantine is expected to be the feature of the council meeting tonight. Dr. Bracken comes to Duluth at the request of Health Commissioner Murray and he will be given a hearing before action is taken on the resolution, introduced by Alderman Foubister last week, calling upon Dr. Murray to enforce the smallpox quarantine regulations of the charter, regardless of any modifications, which may be made by the state board of health.

The extension of the street car line on Piedmont avenue from Nineteenth avenue west and Third street to Twenty-fourth avenue west and Tenth street, will also come up for consideration. At a recent meeting of the council, property-holders and residents of the district to be benefitted by the extension presented a plat of the district, showing that 425 families live in the district above Fourth street and directly tributary to the proposed new line.

There is some question of the grade on which the line can be constructed. The residents claim that the company can construct the line on an 8 per cent grade, while the company demands 7 per cent. The matter has been under consideration for some months and the council may take definite action tonight.

FOUND IN CONVENT.

Girl Kidnaped Several Years Ago, Located in Dubuque.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—The Chicago police received word from Dubuque, Iowa, last night, that Ella Kates, 17 years old, who was kidnapped from her home in Kansas City, Kan., several years ago, has been found in a convent there. The discovery followed statements made by William Birmingham and his wife, who is awaiting trial here on the charge of stealing Lillian Wolff, 8 years old, from her home a few weeks since.

According to the local police, Ella Kates is the daughter of Richard Kates, a former merchant of Kansas City. She was taken to the convent of the Good Shepherd, several years ago, after she had been found in the streets of Dubuque, where she had been abandoned by the Birminghams. At that time she gave the name of Pattorson, but has recently admitted her identity to Sister M. De Lourdes, mother superior of the convent. The Chicago authorities will now endeavor to communicate with the girl's father, who is thought to be still a resident of Kansas City, Kan.

KILLS WIFE AND HOST.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Man Then Tries to Kill Himself.

Ludington, Mich., Jan. 6.—Crazed by jealousy, Leonard Brown of Grand Rapids, came here from his home yesterday, drove six miles into the country to the farm of Robert Johnson, where his wife was staying, and shot the woman, wounding her so that she died in a few hours.

Brown then fired two bullets into Johnson's body, and tried to commit suicide, firing three shots into his own head. None of them will prove fatal, however, and Johnson will also recover from his wounds.

Brown, who has not lived with his wife for two years, accused Johnson of breaking up his home.

"LITTLE EGYPT" IS DEAD.

New York, Jan. 6.—Catherine Devine, known on the burlesque stage as "Little Egypt," and who, according to her friends, was one of the dancers at the Seeley dinner at Sherry's, which was raided by the police, some years ago, was found dead in her apartment under somewhat mysterious circumstances, yesterday. The body lay in bed and bore several bruises. It is thought possible, however, that death was due to natural causes. The police are investigating.

FOUR MEN ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP PASSENGERS ON TRAIN AT KANSAS CITY

Draw Revolvers and Demand Money of Men in Car.

Driven Off After Securing Two Valises of Immigrants.

Robbery Occurs While Train Stands in Union Station.

Kansas City, Jan. 7.—Four men attempted to rob the passengers on a Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train standing in the union station here early today. They were frightened off without securing any money or valuables. The men escaped, leaving no clue.

The train is what is known as the flyer, due to depart at 2:20 for the Southwest. Shortly before starting time, the would-be robbers, four white men, entered one of the forward day coaches and walked up and down the aisle, awaiting a favorable opportunity to commence their work. The station, aside from this one train, was practically deserted, and this fact is believed to have prompted the men to make so bold an attempt.

After Immigrants.

Dr. M. H. Kennedy of Kansas City, a passenger in the coach, said: "The four men walked through the coach several times. It was crowded. Several German immigrants were in the rear of the coach and they seemed to be the object of the attack. Before any of us realized what they were up to, two of the robbers showed revolvers and pointing them at the foreigners commanded them to give up their valuables. Just then H. W. Drew, the conductor, and David White, the negro porter, came into the car. Drew hit one of the robbers on the head with his lantern and smashed it into pieces. They then ran.

Were Not Masked.

"None of them wore a mask. Two started toward the rear of the car and the other two toward the front door. The rear door was locked and they made the porter unlock it. They opened the vestibule and fled. The others were in just as big a hurry to get out the front door.

"By that time the police were there, and the officers chased the would-be robbers. Two of them ran north and two south through the yards.

The only thing they got were two valises from the German immigrants. Three of the robbers were short and one was tall. The tall one, who was the leader, was about 60 years old. All wore good clothes."

The quartet dodged through long lines of freight cars standing on the sidetracks and were soon lost to sight. This morning the police force put a force of men to work on the case. They have good descriptions of the men, who are believed to be local crooks.

AMNESTY FOR DESERTERS

Who Have Failed to Observe Military Call in Austria-Hungary.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The Austria-Hungarian embassy in Washington, has received an official communication with regard to the amnesty decreed by Frances Joseph I, emperor of Austria, and king of Hungary, in commemoration of the beginning of the sixtieth year of his reign.

This amnesty is extended to all citizens of Austria-Hungary, and Bosnia-Hercegovina, who, being under military obligations, have been declared deserters on account of non-observance of enrollment call. It has no effect, however, on those who have practically deserted the army or navy while performing active military duty. For the latter special appeals for clemency can be recommended.

Those wishing to be included in the amnesty are required to present themselves to the local military or civilian authorities in Austria, Hungary and Bosnia-Hercegovina, respectively, between Dec. 2, 1907-1909.

In order to give better protection in case of arrest and as a means of identification, the Austria-Hungarian consular officers in the United States will issue documents of identification to those who wish to profit by this amnesty. Upon application the Austria-Hungarian officers will provide such persons with detailed information on the subject.

PUTER IS PARDONED.

Portland, Or., Jan. 7.—A pardon, issued by President Roosevelt at the instance of Francis J. Heney, was received in this city yesterday for S. A. D. Puter, who was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government of its public domain, and was sentenced to two years in prison and a fine of $7,500. The executive pardon relieves him of paying the fine. He was released.

WOMAN MURDERED.

Canton, Ohio, Jan. 7.—Elizabeth Brown, aged 35 years, who frequented wine rooms, was found dead in an alley this morning. Five wounds on the head, made by a stiletto or a pick ax, showed she had been murdered. Thus far there is no clue as to the identity of the murderer.

JAP COUNT KEPT BUSY

Denying That He Said Things About Great Britain.

Mistranslation of Cablegram Cause of All the Excitement.

Tokio, Japan, Jan. 7.—A remarkable situation has arisen as a result of the publication in London of a mistranslation of the speech delivered by Count Okuma at Kobe. Little attention was paid to this address at the time of its delivery, because Count Okuma in previous speeches on this same subject, had made his views well known. The London publication put the count in the position of urging India to rise against Great Britain.

Count Okuma and the Japanese foreign office have been bombarded with cablegrams of inquiry from Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg and London, and requests that the count publicly repudiate or confirm his remarks. In reply, Count Okuma said today:

"In my Kobe speech I did not use the words that were put into my mouth. It is apparent that a mistranslation of these remarks has just reached England. My views on the subject of trade with India, as well as my friendliness to Great Britain, ought to be too well known to make it necessary for me publicly to repudiate the absurd construction which has been placed upon the remarks I made at Kobe. I have never entertained a thought which could be stretched into such a meaning. India offers us a fine field for trade, and I urged my people to openly and consistently enter that field in fair competition with friendly Great Britain. That is all."

OIL COMPANY HAS MILLIONS

Government Asks Increase of Bond of Standard Octopus.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—District Attorney Edward Sims today filed a petition in the circuit court of appeals, declaring that the Stndard Oil Company of Indiana has assets amounting to more than $27,000,000, and asking for an increase in the supersedeas bond of that corporation, which has appealed from the $29,240,000 fine imposed by District Judge Landis.

The government renewed its original plea that the bond of the oil company, pending disposal of the court, should be the same as the fine. It was fixed at a total of $6,000,000 on statements of the attorneys for the defense, that the property of the company was worth no more than that amount. It was asserted at the time the bond was fixed that the property of the company at Whiting, Ind., would be worth but $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 if sold at execution sale. The other holdings of the company were alleged to be worth on the same basis little more than $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. The government now charges in its application for increased bond that the value of the company's property, subject to execution, is largely in excess of $20,000,000, and that the profits of the company for the three years embraced by the indictment against the company were $23,067,166, and the profits for 1906 alone—the year in which the indictment was returned—were $10,516,082.

SELECTION OF THAW JURY IS PROCEEDING WITH CARE

All Talesmen Are Closely Scrutinized by Both Sides.

Counsel Have History of Every Man Before Them.

Judge Dowling Frequently Takes Hand in Questioning.

New York, Jan. 7.—Two of the jurors provisionally accepted yesterday at the trial of Harry K. Thaw were excused, with the approval of the prosecution and defense, just before the close of the morning session today. They were James F. Conway, a hotelkeeper, and William E. Brower, a decorator. This action caused no surprise, for it is generally felt that few of the jurors so far selected will be included in the trial panel after the thirty peremptory challenges on either side have been exhausted.

Two new provisional jurors were secured at the morning session, leaving, at the time of the 1 o'clock recess, nine men in the box.

The work of jury selection progressed slowly. The first panel of 100 talesmen was exhausted today, and the new panel of 100 more reported this morning was heavily drawn upon.

Admittance to the trial was again

THE REASONS OF REAR ADMIRAL BROWNSON FOR HIS RESIGNATION

Washington, Jan. 7.—The president yesterday made public the following letter of Admiral Brownson, who resigned as chief of the navigation bureau of the navy department, with the explanation that it was "inadvertently omitted" from the correspondence made public yesterday morning. The letter follows:

"Department of the navy, bureau of navigation, Washington, Dec. 24, 1907.—Sir: In April last I was detached by your order from the command of the United States Asiatic fleet and ordered to Washington, and appointed chief of the most important bureau in the navy department, the bureau which, under the secretary, is charged with matters relating to the personnel, the discipline and efficiency of the fleet.

"This transfer from a command which ranks second to none in importance afloat, to one which is second to none on shore, coming on the eve of my retirement from active service, while not to my personal liking, was deeply gratifying to me as it appeared to be an evidence of your confidence in my professional ability. In order, however, that any efforts of mine to maintain a high standard of efficiency and discipline in the service be attended with success, it is necessary that I should have the confidence of the service at large, as well as that of higher authority. The efficiency of the fleet can only be maintained when the officers and men feel that the center of the bureau of navigation has the confidence of the commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and when a strong military spirit exists in the service. Anything that shows a lack of confidence or that tends to break down this military spirit, which has been the safeguard and principal asset of the navy since its beginning, can but impair such efficiency.

"The recent order placing a medical officer in command of a hospital ship is, in my opinion, and as I have endeavored on several occasions to point out to you, clearly opposed to the intent of the law; is a departure from established naval usages, and is fraught with danger to the efficiency of the fleet, will tend, I believe, to break down the military spirit of the service, and shows a want of your confidence in my advice regarded as vital to the best interests of the service. I am left, therefore, with no alternative, but to tender my resignation as chief of the bureau of navigation, much as I regret to sever my active connection with the service to which I have been devoted, and to which I have given my best efforts for over forty-six years.

"Very respectfully,

"WILLARD H. BROWNSON, Chief of Bureau."

Whose Reasons for Resigning Are Given in His Letter, Made Public by the President.

KENTUCKY NIGHT RIDERS CONSIGN TWO MORE BIG WAREHOUSES TO FLAMES

Masked Men Descend on Towns of Bethel and Sherbourne.

Fire Spreads at Bethel, Destroying a Large General Store.

Marauders Heavily Armed But No Shooting Was Done.

Paris, Ky., Jan. 7.—Night riders made their appearance in force in the Burley district late last night, visiting two towns, one in Fleming and the other in Bath county, and destroying two warehouses and a big general store. The raiders did not fire any shots in either place, and left as soon as the work had been accomplished. The men were all masked and heavily armed, and caused a reign of terror among the citizens of the villages.

The first visit was made to the town of Bethel, in Bath county. This is a little village of about 500 inhabitants, and the people were wholly unprepared for a raid. The night riders marched into the town shortly before midnight, and those who were aroused were told to go back into their houses. The mob proceeded directly up the main street of the village, and, saturating with oil the big warehouse of A. A. Roubinson, soon had it a mass of flames. As soon as the riders had left the village, the citizens rushed to the scene of the flames and attempted to put out the fire. Before they succeeded in this, however, the general store of Peters Brothers, adjoining the warehouse, was burning, and all efforts to save it were futile.

From Bethel, the raiders visited the little town of Sherbourne, in Fleming county, where they destroyed the independent warehouse of Daugherty Brothers. No shots were fired, but the raiders, in order to prevent any aid from being summoned, cut all telephone and telegraph wires leading into both places. The loss caused by the raid is not known, as the exact amount of the tobacco in the warehouses could not be ascertained.

STEAMER IS SAFE

The Long Overdue Mount Royal Limps Into Queenstown.

Trouble With Her Boilers Caused the Long Delay.

Queenstown, Jan. 7.—The long overdue steamer Mount Royal steamed slowly into Queenstown today, and the news of her safety was received with gladness in shipping circles. She had not been heard from in many days, having last reported off the Lizard, Dec. 10, and watch was being kept for her on both sides of the Atlantic and as far south as Bermuda.

The Mount Royal belongs to the Canadian Pacific railway Atlantic service. She left Antwerp, Dec. 7, for St. John, N. B. She had on board 300 Hungarian emigrants and a crew of about 100 men. She was first definitely sighted off Old Head of Kinsal, sixteen miles west of this port, early today. She then was proceeding slowly under her own steam and signalled that she was coming in here. She declined the help of a tug that was sent out to assist her and came in alone.

Trouble With Boilers.

Trouble with her boilers was the reason the Mount Royal had to put back. She is at best a slow boat, and shortly after leaving the British coast she encountered a series of violent gales. She battled with the heavy weather for a fortnight, until Christmas eve, when serious trouble with her boilers developed. She was then in longitude 24.50 west, latitude 43, north.

The engine room staff ultimately succeeded in obtaining a supply of steam, but the weather was such that the captain reluctantly decided it was best to make for the Irish coast. Consequently the steamer was headed about and steamed slowly into port. Passengers and crew are all well.

EX-GOVERNORS ARE CANDIDATES

For United States Senator Before Legislature of Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 7.—The political game in Kentucky, proverbially tumultuous and uncertain, promises to furnish a spectacular senatorial contest. The opening of the legislative sessions today finds the Democrats severely shaken by the last election, and with numerous rumors of dissaffection in the camp. Nevertheless, they have a majority of eight on joint ballot, and the managers of Former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, who was nominated at a primary eighteen months ago, claim that he will be elected.

Pitted against Beckham is William Bradley, the only Republican governor except W. S. Taylor, who held office between 1865 and 1907. The Republican leaders say that the revolt of the Democrats against the Beckham leadership will enable them to elect Bradley. Politicians regard it as extremely likely that at least two Democrats will vote with the Republicans against Beckham, thus reducing his probable majority to four.

SAVED WOMAN; REMOVED PIN

Chauffeur Does a Double Turn, But Smashes His Auto.

Minneapolis, Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ray Gillette, 715 Fifth avenue south, "killed two birds with one stone" late yesterday afternoon when he ran his automobile into the curb at Hennepin avenue and Eighth street. But the auto was wrecked as a consequence.

Mr. Gillette had a friend, L. Primeau, with him, whom Mr. Gillette was hurrying to a doctor's office. Mr. Primeau's need for a doctor was occasioned by the fact that the gold scarf pin which he wore had in some manner been driven into his throat, where it stuck, buried in the flesh for a considerable part of its length. It was rather uncomfortable and Mr. Gillette was doing his best toward getting his friend to a doctor's office.

The Woman Appears.

As the speeding automobile neared the corner of Hennepin and Eighth, Mr. Gillette saw a woman start to run in front of the car. The woman changed her mind when out of the dangerous zone and started back. It was impossible to avoid running her down without turning into the curb, and this Mr. Gillette did. He put the brake on to minimize the impact and then steered his fast moving car squarely into the curbstone. The occupants of the car were given a vigorous jolt, but the woman was saved from injury and when account had been taken of bruises, it was found that the pin in Mr. Primeau's throat had been dislodged.

Then the two gentlemen realized that the car was in greater need of repairs than Mr. Primeau. The doctor said the injury to his throat was trifling.

EMERGENCY RATION

Of the Army May be Reduced Somewhat in Weight.

Washington, Jan. 7.—There is talk in army circles of further reduction in the emergency ration, already heretofore reduced from 16 to 12 ounces. Next to a maintenance of its quality of sustenance, the desire is to minimize the weight of the ration, to the end there may be a reduction to the last degree of the burden on the soldier in the field emergency call. Some of the European nations have emergency rations lower than ours, and the opinion is that this may be safely reduced in weight, while at the same time retaining its effect as a diet.

The war department has approved suggestions of the commissary general for an extension of the system of instruction of baking and cooking, so as to include as many as possible of the militia camps to be held during the coming summer.

BUFFALOES DOING WELL

That Were Taken From New York Zoo to Oklahoma.

Maj. Burke Talks of Joys of Living in Washington.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Uncle Sam's herd of fifteen buffaloes, which were taken from the New York zoological gardens to the Wichita national forest, Oklahoma, in the early fall, are doing well in their new home, according to advices which have been received by authorities of the forestry bureau here. Since leaving New York the herd has celebrated the bitrh of two fine buffalo calves, one of which has been named Hornaday, after the name of the director of the New York Zoological gardens, which gave them to the government, and the other Oklahoma, after the new state, which was also just born after the herd's arrival.

Keeper Frank Rush, an old Western cow-puncher and experienced buffalo man, who has handled the herd since it was taken from New York, says that alfalfa hay has put his charges in fine shape, and that the big prairie beasts are again thriving in their native land. The buffaloes have an 8,000-acre fenced park in the Wichita forest, in which they can charge and snort. During the winter the animals will be fed alfalfa hay, and protected from the weather and disease, in a number of large shelter sheds, which have been built in the enoosure. In the spring they will be let out to roam over the Wichita range, and gradually they will bs encouraged to rustlo for themselves, an instinct they have partially lost through years of domestication in city parks. Government experts figure in time they will regain the prowess of their forefathers, who were king of the plains before civilization made its march westward.

Maj. John H. Burke, probably the best known advance agent in this or any other country, and who for years has looked after the interests of Col. W. F. Cody and his "Wild West" show, has been the guest of Capt. Allison Nailor, Jr., secretary general of the Scottish Rite for the Southern jurisdiction, during the holiday season just ended.

Maj. Burke looks upon Washington as the ideal place in which to spend Christmas. In speaking of the joys of living in the national capital, the major, who is exceptionally well qualified to give an opinion, said:

"You ask me what was the most enjoyable, interesting holiday occasion occurring in my varied experience in many different localities? The season has found me in several cities of Europe, and many places in this country, from San Francisco to New Orleans, New York, and my facorite stamping ground on the festive season is Washington, D. C.

"It is here that the bill of fare, in my humble judgment, is most replete with delicacies and substantials, from a market that for diversified supplies from land and sea—proximity to the older farm methods of the housewife, furnishes many products more tasty than possible by the wholesale manufacturers—such side dishes as full corn hominy, "samp," scrappy, cake sausage, pickalilly, pumpkin pie, "scheemerkase," home made pickles, pickled oysters, steamed oysters (a rarity elsewhere); in fact, the Baltimore and Washington sections excel in handling the bivalve, whose worth is often ruined by inexpert handling. Then, the corn bread, flannel cakes, buckwheat, cornmeal and wheat, almost driven from the American table by the ignorance of treatment, suggesting antipathy, and with a malicious handling by our now predominating chefs de cisine, as if desiring to eliminate them from our national menu.

The older inhabtiants of Washington and their "Old Mammy" kitchen help, still retaining the legendary method of treating these; the real sweet sugar tasting yam, the po' man's pone, the 'possum, the endless number of fishes and the delicious terrapin. Well, the list could be gone over until memory acts on the taste glands of the writer and "make the mouth water," on account of the very cosmopolitan character of the inhabitants of the national capital, the market includes in addition, everything palatable form evehy known clime.

"In fact, from my experience, I should say that a line drawn from Boston around New York via Harrisburg, Carlisle, Richmond to Norfolk takes in the most varied and best known grazing ground in all the world.

"The vegetable products of the field, the barnyard and hennery, the viands from the herds, old ocean's cornucopia of the finny tribes, from perch to cod and from blue fish to shad, the winged frequenters of the coast marshes, from the rice bird to teal and canvas-back, where can you beat it for facilities of procuring them in their fresh and succulent condition?

Combine these with the ripened experience of such gastronomic hosts were John Chamberlain and Harvey, and the old-time families such as I have had the fortune to be "at home" with, in a truly representative American mansion, the amiable wife being versed in every mystery of the art cuisine, and memory brings to me many real "feasts fit for the Gods."

"Mind you, I wish not to detract from the feats in other lands where I found plenty to extol, to enjoy and praise, but only to bring to the mind of many, less experienced, that without hasty conclusions, drawn from exceptionally arranged and particular menus, that when it comes to the general average and away from the special palatial hostelries of other lands, ours possesses oportunities that 'leetle bit the best," as regards prolific supply and variety, and combined with what is the best thing brought to the table, though not on the carte du jour, a good appetite—why Luculius never outlived us.

"And heaven be praised my nonmillionaire, plebian pocket has always been associated with a princely patricoan appetite.

"After an experience under the mistletoe on several occasions in merry Old England, with its roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, mutton chops, the sole—that unequaled product of the sea—Burton ale, the Cheshire cheese; France with its exquisite many sided mysteries, its grand mastership in cooking, inventiveness in menus, slightly handicapped by suspicions on account of indifference to one's repugnance to horse flesh; Italy with, I think, just claims for eminence for a very wholesome use of cereals, fruits and Mediterranean shell fish and native wines; Spain with its chli-pepper preference as an adjunct, its olives and oranges; Germany with excellent kitchen methods (considering limited supplies) tastily arranged by the addition of sauces, assisted by 'delicatessens,' cheese and beer—each and all so appetizing and aceptable, and to all of which I have done and now do justice, my verdict must stand as pronounced above—for the birth of the land of the tomato, claim, cranberry and potato—Columbia."

JUST TALK.

Chicago News: The man with the hoe was about to exchange that implement for a shovel, when the man with the hod checked him.

"There ain't no rush about it," he said. "I've got enough up there now to keep them goin' half an hour unless the boss comes around an' they take a notion to work. Take it easy. Don't get into a sweat."

"I can't help it," said the man with the hoe. "It's the way I am. Workin's my pleasure an' delight. I'd sooner work than drink a can of beer, an' sloshin' mortar around in a box is my choice o' work. I wouldn't have your job, not even if they paid me wages for it like they do you. How do you con them, Sam?"

"Whatjer mean?" asked the man with the hod. "Do you mean con them into payin' me wages? They do that on account o' my shape. They're stuck on it. That's what Monyhan told me when he hired me. 'You don't have to do notin',' he says. 'All I ast of you is to carry the material up to them fellies that's a-layin' the bricks. They'll do the work,' he says. 'You won't have to lay your hand to it.' He's a great boy, is Monyhan. He talks too much with his mouth, though."

"He ain't like you, is he?" said the man with the hoe.

"I let my wife do my talkin' for me," said the man with the hod. "She's good for my share and her own, too. That's the way all of the women is. Don't it beat the Dutch the way they talk? What's the reason for it, do you know? You never see two of 'em get together but their tongues start a-clackin'. One woman'll be in the back yard hangin' up the wash an' tendin' strictly to business, but let the woman next door come out an' she spits out the clothes pins an' there's a talkfest on right away. It beats me."

"It beats me, too," said the man with the hoe. "Jever listen to a dozen of 'em together?"

"One's as many as I can listen to," said the man with the hod, "an' that's one too many most of the time. The woman, she's always a-sayin' to me, 'Now, Samuel, you ain't a-list'nin' to what I'm sayin'. Well, you can't tell her what she's a-sayin' ain't worth list'nin' to, because if you did she'd talk more.

"I'd just as soon hear what she has to say if she'd talk sense, but there ain't no woman who talks sense. They just talk to be talkin' an' that's all there is to it. It don't amount to a row o' pins. It's mostly about the neighbors—what they've been a-doin',' an' about the neighbors' kids an' the way they're a-bein' raised an' how much bluin' to put in the wash water an' the price o' groc'ries. All such things as that.. Or else they're a-givin' the men fits behind their backs. It don't much matter what it's about, though. They'll talk anyway."

"No matter what they've got to do," said the man with the hoe.

"No matter what they've got to do," agreed the man with the hod. "Visitin', they call it. They've had such a great visit." That means they've been both a-talkin' together all afternoon an' when they've got through they don't either of 'em know what the other's been talkin' about. Ain't that so? When they get to talkin' they forget about everything. You take it in the gro'cery store. Two of 'em 'll get eogether an' they'll just stand an' talk and' talk, an' they may not either one of them have their dishes washed."

"The way it is with my wife——" began the man with the hod.

"Hush a minute," interrupted the man with the hoe. "Somebody's hollerin'."

"It's them masons," said the man with the hod, starting up. "Take the shovel an' load me up. Them mugs don't want a feller to take time to dror a long breath."

STRANGE WORKINGS OF FATE.

New York Press: An incident, which may interest the telepathist or the student of psychology, occurred a few days ago. A young man came to New York from a far Western town knowing no one in the city except a young woman, a native of the same place, who had come to New York some time previously to make her home with relatives. She had sent him her address, but when he called at the house he found, to his dismay, that the family had moved. No one could tell him the new place of residence.

The young man was heartbroken. He had been happy in the anticipation of meeting his old-time friend, but now there was little prospect of his ever being able to find her in the great metropolis. Utterly alone in a strange city a feeling of profound depression came over him.

After a few moments of deliberation he boarded a car to return to his hotel and had gone but a short distance when a young woman entered the car and took a seat by his side. Absorbed in his own gloomy reflections he was scarcely conscious of her presence until she opened a letter and began to read, holding the paper almost directly in his line of vision. There was nothing in that circumstance to attract special attention, however, and in all probability the act would have made no impression on his mind had it not been for a slight commotion on the street which caused him to look up just at that moment. As he did so his eye caught the signature on the letter. It was the name and address of the very person he had traveled so many miles to meet. Making a memorandum of the address he hurried from the car and was soon at the new home of the one he had almost given up as lost to him forever.

ARTIST PINCHED.

Drawings of Joe La Pointe Not Appreciated in West Duluth.

Art, at least of the kind exhibited to the public along Fifty-sixth avenue west yesterday morning by the aged Frenchman, Joe La Pointe, does not seem to be approved of in West Duluth, judging from the $10 fine imposed upon the artist last night when arraigned before Judge Flack.

It seems that La Pointe, of fifty-three winters, had made some freehand drawings and also taken several early morning eye-openers. He wished the ladies upon Fifty-sixth avenue west to view his handiwork with the pencil. His pictures were rather "risque," and his persistance in forcing them upon the shocked neighborhood was so disagreeable that one of the women telephoned the police and Officer Johnson took the Frenchman of unappreciated talents to the lockup. His sketches, combined with overindulgence in drink, cost La Pointe just $14.50, a $10 fine and $4.50 costs.

ROBERT BROTHERTON DIES.

Well-Known Resident of West Duluth Succumbs to Pneumonia.

West Duluth has lost one of its oldest residents in Robert W. Brotherton, who died of pneumonia yesterday noon at St. Mary's hospital after an illness of only two days.

Mr. Brotherton, a man of 45 years, left the lumber camp, of which he was foreman, in the north woods, Friday, a well man apparently. On the journey to his home, 213 South Fifty-ninth avenue west, he was taken seriously ill and no sooner arrived home than was moved to the hospital. He leaves a wife and four children, besides four brothers, J. A., Alexander, Malcolm and Adam Brotherton, and four sisters, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Carry, Mrs. Buyold and Mrs. Joseph Baker. All of the family were at his deathbed.

Mr. Brotherton was a member of the West end lodge No. 80, A. O. U. W., and a well known and respected resident.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the St. James Catholic church, West Duluth. Interment will take place at the Calvary cemetery.

DEANERY MEETING.

Episcopal Rectors of District Gather at Holy Apostles Church.

A large congregation, at the meeting of the Duluth Episcopal deanery, held last night at the Holy Apostles' Episcopal church of West Duluth, listened attentively to the very interesting addresses of Bishop Marrison and Rev. R. S. Reed of St. Paul's Episcopal church, on the "Missions."

Gounod's "Hear Me, O My Savior," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Horace Davis, and there was other special music by the choir. The deanery was well represented last night by the following members:

Bishop J. D. Morrison, Rev. Dr. A. W. Ryan, Rev. A. R. Parker, Rev. A. Carswell of Virginia, Rev. Frank Coolbaugh of Cloquet, Rev. Frank Durant of Hibbing, Rev. R. S. Reed and Rev. R. J. Mooney, pastor of Holy Apostles' church.

At a service at 9:30 this morning, Bishop Morrison administered holy communion.

The Ladies guild served lunch at 12:30 o'clock at the rectory, and this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, there was a meeting, at which papers were read by. Rev. Frank Durant of Hibbign, Rev. Albert Carswell of Virginia and Rev. Frank Coolbaugh of Cloquet, who spoke on the "Suffragan Bishops." The public was invited to all the meetings, and quite a number of people took advantage of the invitation.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 7.—Samuel Fessenden, a prominent politician, died today. He was once secretary of the national Republican committee and took an active part in the Blaine campaign.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 7.—George L. Chase, president of the Hartford Insurance company, died here today.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Commander Hale Briggs, United States navy, retired, died here yesterday, aged 59 years. He was appointed a midshipman in the navy from Michigan and served in the Spanish-American war on the St. Paul. Both before and after the war he was on duty in the office of the navy department. Commander Briggs was an inventor of breach gun mechanism in use in the navy. He will be buried at Arlington.

St. Louis, Jan. 7.—After an illness of three weeks Capt. George Kyler Cram, 73 years old, died at his home here today. He bore the distinction of having served longer as president of an insurance company than any other man in the country, with one exception, that of George Chase of Hartford, Conn.

Cincinnati, Jan. 7.—Judge A. S. Berry, a well known Kentucky Democratic statesman and former member of congress, died at his home at Newport, Ky., late last night of pneumonia. The deceased was 73 years old.

INCREASE IN CIRCULATION

Of National Banks Provided in Senate Financial Bill.

To be Secured on State, Municipal and Other Bonds.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The financial bill, which has for some time been in preparation by leading Republican members of the senate committee on finance, was today printed and given to the public.

The bill provides for an additional issue of bank circulation which shall at no time exceed $250,000 upon bonds other than those issued, including state and municipal bonds in approved cases. The comptroller of the currency is given discretion in the issuance of the proposed currency and is authorized to decide as to the time and the amount to be awarded to any banking institution. It is provided that the increased circulation shall in no case exceed 75 per cent of the value of the bonds deposited.

Senator Aldrich introduced the bill in the senate soon after that body convened today.

THE JAPANESE ARE LEAVING

A. P. Fleming Says Army Reserves Are Being Called Home.

A. P. Fleming, from Vancouver, who is at the Lenox, says there is a rumor current on the Pacific coast to the effect that the reserves of the Japanese army have been ordered home. He says further, that for the past two weeks there has been a steady stream of the Japanese from the logging camps of British Columbia, Washington and Oregon to the coast ports, to take the passage homeward.

Mr. Fleming says that officials of the Asiatic Exclusion league claim that definite information is at hand, pointing to the recall of many of the army reserves.

Japanese, says Mr. Fleming, are coming from the south side of the international boundary line, prepared to embark for Japan. The Japanese officials refuse to discuss the question. Mr. Fleming says that all the preparations are clothed in mystery. Steamers, laden with Japanese, slip in and out of the port at Vancouver in increased numbers.

Mr. Fleming says the people on the coast begin to see some cause for alarm in the steady embarkation of Japanese. They construe the meaning as pointing to trouble between Japan and the United States.

TRAIN SCHOOL BOYS TO SHOOT.

The United States traditionally devoted to a policy of peace, and arming itself only for defense, is teaching its children to fight. So writes Charles H. Sidman in the Technical World Magazine.

The work thus far done in maintaining a regular standing army and a national guard is held to be inadequate, in the light of political conditions growing out of the Spanish war. For many years attempts have been made to supplement our imperfect military system by instruction in the public schools, but these as a rule have proved unsuccessful. New York City is an exception. Today that city has 7,000 of its children under arms.

An art acquired in childhood becomes second nature. The ancient Spartans recognized this fact and from the tenderage of five or six Spartan boys began that hardy military training which made them the first soldiers in the world. When the call comes again for men, the United States should have ready to respond to that call a multitude of young men trained from childhood in the use of fire arms, instead of the raw recruit that is the horror of the indefatigable drill sergeant.

Few appreciate the magnitude of the New York public school system. There are over 515 schools, with more than 14,500 teachers, and about 600,000 pupils, which number is more than the entire population of the city of St. Louis, the fourth city in the Union. Half of these pupils are boys.

Funeral Friday.
Harold Hanson died, yesterday, at the home of his father, Ivan Hanson, 917 Twenty-second avenue west, of tubercu losis. He was 24 years old and had been bookkeeper at R. R. Forward & Co.'s West end store. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon, with services at the Reformed Lutheran church, Twentieth avenue west, at 1:30, and interment in Park Hill cemetery.

Royal League Will Entertain.
Zenith council, No. 161, Royal League, will entertain at a dinner, this evening, to about twenty visiting delegates from Northern Minnesota lodges, who will be passing through the city for Minneapolis to attend the annual meeting of the advisory council of the order tomorrow. The visitors, accompanied by the representation to the advisory council, from Zenith council, will leave on the late evening train. The local delegates are H. W. Stone, J. C. McDougall and James A. Wharton.

Will Elect, Install and Initiate.
North Star lodge, No. 35, Knights of Pythias, will hold a special election in castle hall, this evening, to fill several vacancies in the list of officers. The election will be followed by installation ceremonies, after which the rank of page will be conferred on a class of candidates. There will be a large number of visiting members from the range present at the meeting tonight to witness the work. Next Tuesday evening the rank of esquire will be conferred and two weeks from this evening the rank of knight.

Dancing Party.
The members of Company C will entertain at a dancing party Wednesday evening of next week, the affair to be given at the Armory. The committee in charge of the affair will consist of Sergt. G. H. Swan, Corporal F. T. Sherwin, Private J. W. Carpenter and Private E. C. Junker.

Funeral Wednesday.
The funeral of Aelius Schunstrom, who died Sunday morning at his home, 912 Garfield avenue, will be held tomorrow afternoon, with services at the Swedish Mission church at 2 p. m. and interment in the Scandinavian Union cemetery. Mr. Schunstrom was telephone trouble man for the Zenith company in the business district, and was held in high esteem by the company, his fellow-employes and the patrons whom he served. He was a member of the Electrical Workers' union and of the Modern Woodmen.

Mayor's Condition Same.
Mayor Ay. B. Cullen is still confined to his home by a severe attack of the grip, which came upon him last week. At his office in the city hall it is reported that his condition is not serious, but the illness prevents him from attending to his duties.

Wants Damages for Injury.
The trial of the personal injury case of Charles Bolda against the Minnesota Land & Construction company was started this morning, in Judge Dibell's room. The plaintiff demands damages for injuries received while in the company's employ. Davis & Hollister represent Bolda and E. C. Kennedy represents the company.

SOME FAMOUS FAKES.

Once upon a time there was absolute peace in the newspaper world of America. That was when there was only one paper in Boston and not another on the continent. When the second journal was started in Boston an editorial war was immediately precipitated. As long as personal journalism prevailed the rivalry among newspapers took the form of editorial abuse of the enemy, but when the modern newspaper came into being the battle ground was removed from the editorial page to the news columns and the circulation statement, say the New Orleans Picayune. The deliberate newspaper hoax was born of the bitter fight between newspaper of one class and another in the old days. The intentional "fake," as a wholly untrue or grossly exaggerated news item is called in newspaper slang, was born of the desire of the reporters to keep up with the demand for news, and at the same time escape the tiresome "legwork" necessary to find it.

Richard A. Locke wrote the first great newspaper hoax for the New York Sun. It appeared on Jan. 10, 1835. The article purported to be taken from the supplement of the Edinburgh Philosophical Journal. It described a wonderful telescope which had been invented by the eminent astronomer, Sir John Herschel, and sent forth that Sir John had taken his telescope to the Cape of Good Hope and there leveled it on the moon. The inhabitants of the moon were plainly to be seen, being halfway between a man and an ourang outang, and having wings like a bat. The article was replete with technical phrases and had the stamp of scientific style.

Next day the staid Sixpenny Press swallowed the bait, hook and all. One editor declared that he also had received dispatches telling of Sir John's great discoveries in the moon, which would be given to the public as soon as possible. The editor of the Albany Advertiser declared he read "with unspeakable emotions of pleasure and astonishment" of the Herschel discoveries in an Edinburgh scientific journal. The hoax deceived many men of science and was quite generally accepted by the multitude, until it was exposed by the poet-prosaic James Gordon Bennett of the Herald.

Nine years later Edgar Allan Poe was employed on the staff of the New York Sun, and he was responsible for the second great hoax in that paper. It appeared "Astounding News By Express via Norfolk! The Atlantic Crossed in Three Days! Signal Triumph of Mr. Monck Mason's Flying Machine!" The article told of the adventure of Mr. Mason and seven others who set out from England in the steering balloon "Victoria," and safely passed over to Virginia in seventy-five hours. This story was also generally believed by the public, but the other newspapers had begun to fear the inventive genius of the Sun staff and they did not bite.

The deliberate setting of a trap to catch another paper stealing news is a legacy from the Sedate Sixpenny Press, and was used before Mr. Bennett "corrupted and reformed" the journalism of the States. The ship Ajax was due from Europe. The Courier printed a postscript announcing the arrival of the ship and giving a summary of the news of Europe which she had brought over. A few copies of this paper were left on doorsteps in the neighborhood of the rival Journal office. Then the regular edition of the Courier was printed without the Ajax news. The Journal found the papers, suspected nothing and printed in large display the supposed trans-Atlantic news received by the Ajax. Of course, the Ajax had not come in and the news was faked. Many similar incidents are told of tricks worked by newspapers of today to trap a pirate sheet.

When Horace Greeley's New York Tribune was young and good "copy" was hard to get its distinguished editor sought to cater to the literary taste of his readers by publishing serially Mr. Dicken's novel, "Barnaby Rudge." This was all well enough, except that Robert Bonnar had been put to great expense to get "Barnaby Rudge" for the New York Ledger, then the leading weekly story paper of the country. The Ledger, like all weekly magazines, was dated three or four days ahead, a copy dated Saturday being on sale the preceding Wednesday. Mr. Greeley's paper published the weekly instalments of the novel on Thursdays. Mr. Bonner loudly objected. Mr. Greeley's paper calmly replied that Mr. Bonner's charges were absurd, for was not the story published in the Tribune of date two days earlier than that of the Ledger? Instead of the Tribune being guilty of theft, the Ledger was plainly the offender. Whereupon Mr. Bonner wrote a "fake" chapter of "Barnaby Rudge," in which he turned characters upside down and knocked the plot galley west. The Tribune faithfully reprinted it. Then the Ledger exposed the steal and the Tribune was "caught with the goods."

Hoaxes of latter-day journalism, as distinguished from the ordinary news fake or commerce, have been got up merely for fun. The most prolific source of "whoppers" for twenty years was Joe Mulhatton, a commercial traveler in the Middle West until a few years ago. Mulhatton gloried in the reputation of being the biggest liar in the world, and he would go to any extent to save that reputation. One of his best known hoaxes was the working monkey story.

He declared that James Guthrie, a prominent farmer of Shelbyville, Ky., had solved the labor problem by putting monkeys to work breaking hemp. Mr. Guthrie had been in Africa, where he found a family of monkeys in which the imitative faculty was highly developed. They were strong and healthy, and Mr. Guthrie brought several of them back to Kentucky. It was necessary only to show the monkey how to break hemp, and he would immediately imitate the process and keep up the work until forced to stop. There was no loafing on the job, no talking or smoking—the monkeys were much superior to men. The country credited the story, and Mr. Guthrie received many letters from people who wanted information about how to get some of the novel workers.

Fakes are not all fabrications by fly city reporters. The greatest faker of them all, when he is a fakir, is the country correspondent. The city reporter must exercise some care. His tales may be investigated by his own city editor, and then they are certain to be looked into by other city editors. He must lay grounds for his fake, or he will be caught. But the man in the small village who corresponds may lie to his heart's content. So fanciful were the creations of one Minnesota country correspondent that he was induced to go to the city and change his style. He has been writing very successful stories "From the Tall Timber" signed "The Le Sueur Liar." The Parkersburg Liar, in West Virginia, and the Milan Liar, in Tennessee, a few years ago created great consternation among the people of their own home towns. Every paper in the country had a story of a murder or suicide or some other tragedy each day which had happened in Parkersburg or Milan. The Parkersburg man was induced to quit by public sentiment, while the angry citizens of Milan forced their liar to leave town.

A young man of a prominent family in a city on the Ohio left school and went into the newspaper business. His name was Jake. There was a hardened gang of fakers doing police news at that time, and they had a large organization of reporters and physicians who would "stand for" the fakes. They recognized in Jacobs a promising youth with a lively imagination, and after teaching him the rudiments of the ethics of the game, as they played it, they set him to inventing stories while they amused themselves.

Jake did nobly for a week or two. Then his young imagination began to give down under the strain. He had recourse to some facts. His father had been a Confederate soldier, a Texas Ranger. He had heard the war stories over and over again. So he wrote the story of a man who fell in a faint on the street and was taken to a doctor's office. The doctor found that there was a foreign substance pressing on the man's heart. He cut in, found that it was a bullet, took it out and the man revived. The story then told how the bullet which was the cause of the trouble had been shot into his side by a Federal gun in some Civil war battle, when the old man was serving with the Texas Rangers. Jake wrote it for his paper, and the other morning papers used it too, according to agreement. When the afternoon reporters went around the next morning, the doctor, a wise one, gave them additional details.

Jake went home, and next day his father, a retired lawyer of great age, was much excited. "Jacob," he said, "did you see the article in the papers about the old Ranger?" Jacob confessed that he had glanced at it. "Jacob," continued the old gentleman, "Jacob, I knew him well. I was standing by his side when he was shot. I am going down to the doctor's house to see him." The son persuaded the father not to go, but it was Jake's last fake.

Sometimes a news faker wastes the material for a Poe or a Verne story in a short paragraph. For instance, the Texas balloon tale. A little girl at a Galveston celebration caught hold of the strings to a large bundle of toy balloons. The peddler let go, the crowd went up in the air, carrying the child. The crowd shouted to her to hold on. A strong wind blew the balloons out to sea. The life-savers manned their boat, rowed out under the balloons, keeping up with the wind. Then came Dead Shot Pete. He unlimbered his Winchester and punctured one balloon at a time, letting the girl gradually and gently down into the waiting boat.

Capt. Honeybrain is the name of a mythical scientist in Virginia, the accounts of whose inventions have more than once caused the mail of the Richmond Times-Dispatch to overflow. They are written by a country gentleman, who does not give his name. A specimen is the solemn announcement of Capt. Honeybrain's beefsteak plant. The great scientist found that tomatoes growing in certain soil had a very meaty taste. He resolved to investigate it. Taking the tomato and the eggplant as the basis for his experiment, he worked through a term of years, hybridizing, fertilizing, filling, until at last the beefsteak plant had been created. Not only did the fruit have the exact taste of beef, but it resembled it in texture, and was chemically the exact counterpart of the flesh of cattle. By varying slightly the methods of culture, he could produce porterhouse, sirloin, round or any sort of steak that Armours' or Swift's plants could turn out. Hundreds of people wrote to inquire about this wonderful vegetable.

BOOKPLATE RUSKIN HAD MADE.

Birmingham Post: The death of Mr. Ruskin's publisher reminds me that among the many Ruskin engravings, drawings and other relics which Mr. Allen possessed was a proof of a bookplate engraved at Mr. Ruskin's express desire.

The fact that the distinguished author and art critic owend a bookplate is, I believe, unknown to collectors of ex-libris, and only extremely few persons are aware of it, because Mr. Ruskin, after having the plate engraved and a few proof impressions taken, altered his mind and never used it. There is no copy of the plate in the national collection in the print room of the British museum. The engraving was done by W. Roffe, an old engraver in stipple, employed by Mr. Ruskin to engrave Ida in the "Story of Ida," and other small plates from drawings by Miss Kate Greenaway.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Nature warns you when the track of health is not clear. Kidney and bladder trouble compel you to pass water often through the day and get up many times during the night.

Unhealthy kidneys cause lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, as time passes you may have a sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition but no strength, get weak and waste away.

If such conditions are permitted to continue, serious results are sure to follow; Bright's disease, the very worst form of kidney trouble, may steal upon you.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

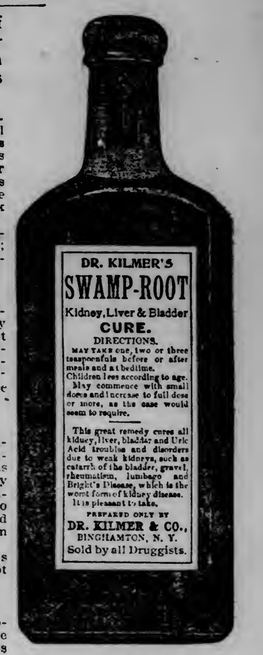
A Trial Will Convince Anyone.

If you are sick or feeling badly, begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better, they will help the other organs to health. In taking Swamp-Root, you afford natural help to Nature for it is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that has ever been discovered.

You cannot get rid of your aches and pains if your kidneys are out of order. You cannot feel right when your kidneys are wrong.

Swamp-Root Is Pleasant to Take.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which you will find on every bottle.



Swamp-Root is always kept up to its high standard of purity and excellence. A sworn certificate of purity with every bottle.

SAMPLE BOTTLE FREE—To prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. This book contains many of the thousands of letters received from men and women who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy they needed. The value of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the Duluth Evening Herald.

WHERE MEN GET CURED

Without Knife, Pain or the Shedding of Blood.

We want to let every man know that he can get a cure in Duluth. No matter how long he may have had it, the Progressive Doctors are the most skilled you can find in this country. They got their experience through years of study in the best universities in the United States and Europe; and have studied for many years the ailments of men just to get proficient in healing man's chronic diseases. They will not accept your case if it is one of typhoid, pneumonia or other contagious disease, as there are many other able physicians to cure them.

Do you get out of breath in climbing the stairs or walking up hills? Does your heart beat rapid at times, and lose a beat, and you then get nervous? This is one reason why you ought to consult the Specialists, for you have heart disease. When you awake in the morning and find your lower eyelids puffed, the ankles of the feet swollen, the tongue coated and your breath foul; when you are getting weak and have pains in the back, albumen and sediment in the urine after standing 24 hours, you have kidney trouble.

Don't go to Hot Springs, Minneapolis or elsewhere to get a cure for Syphillis, Stricture, Prostatic, Bladder Disease, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Self-abuse, Small Organs, Nervo, Sexual Debility, for you can save your expenses, tend to your business and get the services right here of the most learned specialists, and if your case is curable they will give you a written guarantee of a cure.

Young man, these doctors can cure you.

Are you suffering from piles, fistula, stomach troubles, eczema, skin diseases, impure blood, ulcers? You are invited to consult, free of charge, the Specialists of the Progressive Medical Association, corner Lake avenue and Superior street, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.; Sundays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m.

THREE-HOUR DEBATE ON SMALLPOX QUARANTINE

Aldermen Have Lengthy Session With Secretary of State Board.

The New Regulations Are Discussed From All Sides.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

For over three hours, heard arguments for and against the continuance of the rigid quarantine for smallpox, Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary, defending the position of the state board of health.

John Carlson cited to appear before the council next Monday night to show cause why his license should not be revoked for violation of the laws.

Suggestion made to board of park commissioners that they construct and maintain a free public skating rink at Lincoln park during the winter months.

Board of fire commissioners authorized to have plans made for the construction of a horse hospital and advertise for bids after the March settlement, the contract to be awarded at the approval of the council.

The committee reported against the reduction of the bond of P. McDonnell on paving contracts and his petition referred to the city engineer and city attorney to decide the minimum bond, which may be given on all paving contracts in the future.

With a bewildering array of charts, figures, reports, statistics and expert testimony before them, the city council, last night, considered the smallpox quarantine question for over three hours and finally laid it on the table for action next week. In the meantime, the old quarantine system will be continued by Dr. Murray. The council, as a result of last night's session, has two resolutions before it. One is an ordinance providing that, at the instance of the council, the health commissioner shall maintain a rigid quarantine over contagious diseases. The other endorses the state board of health's modifications of the smallpox quarantine and calls upon the health commissioner to adopt them. The first is fathered by Alderman Wilson, the second by Alderman Filiatrault.

Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health was the central figure at the meeting, and Alderman Wilson, defending his ordinance, shared the calcium light. Dr. Bracken explained the new regulations, gave a history of the smallpox spread in the state and was aided by charts and figures. Mr. Wilson put Dr. Braken through a rigid cross-examination, with the aid of reports, law books and medical journals. His desk was piled with statistics and he conducted the examination like a lawyer before a supreme court.

Gathered around Dr. Bracken in defending the modified rules were Dr. C. A. Stewart, Dr. W. H. Magie, Dr. A. J. Braden of Duluth and Dr. Rood of Hibbing. Dr. Riesland, a chiropracter, poured out a vitriolic tirade on vaccination and its evils.

Big Crowd Present.

The council chamber was well crowded during the long, heated session. There were numerous physicians, who took a keen interest in the proceedings. Among them were Drs. Walker, Twohy, Abbott, Haney, Chapman and Norton. Numerous laymen, interested in the question, were also present and followed the arguments closely.

Alderman Filiatrault introduced the quarantine matter by announcing that Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, was in the room, and suggesting that Dr. Bracken be heard before any action be taken on Alderman Foubister's motion, left over from last week. Alderman Wilson said that before hearing Dr. Bracken, he would like to introduce an amendment as a substitute for Alderman Foubister's resolution, and acting as an amendment to the ordinance relative to quarantine. He said an examination disclosed the fact that the ordinance on quarantine left everything to the discretion of the health officer. He "may" do this or that "in his judgment." Alderman Wilson offered the following ordinance, Alderman Foubister withdrawing his amendment of the previous meeting:

"The common council of the city of Duluth ordains as follows:

"Section 1—That section 50 of an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to establish and regulate a board of health for the city of Duluth,' passed and approved Feb. 28, 1895, as amended, hereby is amended by adding thereto and at the end thereof the following: 'In case of failure from any reason of the department of health to make such rules and regulations, said rules and regulations shall be made by the health commissioner of the city of Duluth, and a copy of the same shall be filed in the office of the city clerk. Said rules and regulations shall provide for a strict quarantine of all persons suffering from smallpox, and of all buildings in which such patients may be located, and of all persons or attendants resident in the house where the patient is kept, if in an ordinary dwelling house, or of the part of the house in which such patient and attendant is located, if in an apartment house or in any other building where said patient and attendants can be properly isolated.

"Sec. 2—This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication."

Dr. Bracken Speaks.

Dr. Murray introduceed Dr. Bracken to the council, and the state official lost no time in launching into his subject. He said:

"I want to explain the reasons for passing the new regulations of the state board of health before going into them. The question of controlling smallpox by vaccination is not an especially new one. The board has been slow to urge it on the people because of the great dread of smallpox. The question of changing the regulations was first brought up at the spring meeting in 1905. The subject called for careful consideration. The state board is composed of nine representative medical men of the state, and they considered it at three meetings. They took action at the October meeting in 1906, and when action was taken, the date for taking effect was set at Jan. 1, 1908, or fifteen months from the date of the meeting. This was done to give people a good chance to think over it and talk over it. The regulations were not made public until the middle of September of last year, the delay being made because if they were announced too early, people would think they were already in force, and the board did not want them to go into effect until the first of the present year.

"The board gave careful consideration to this subject. It was no snap judgment, or as a measure of retaliation, as some are pleased to intimate. The board took action as it thought wisest. In 1905, I read a paper at Washington, D. C., before a body of representative medical men of the different states, and advocated this modifying of the quarantine on small-pox. The majority of those present were in favor of it, and that was before the question was brought before our own board.

"I have with me tonight a chart showing the range and fluctuations of smallpox in the state for the past nine years, from March, 1899, to the present. It shows that the disease was widespread in January, 1902, when there were over 1,500 cases reported in the one month. The past year, it has been going up steadily. People will say it was because of the new regulations. It was not, as the new regulations were not in force. It was despite the old regulations. The old rules were in effect then. Following are the cases by years for the past nine years: 1899, 257; 1900, 1,371; 1901, 3,485; 1902, 8,996; 1903, 4,502; 1904, 2,000; 1905, just over 2,000; 1906, just under 2,000; 1907, thus far about 3,000 and all reports are not in. In September of 1907, there were 27 cases, in December, 629. By weeks, in December, the cases were: Week ending Dec. 9, 81; ending Dec. 16, 152; ending Dec. 23, 170; ending Dec. 30, 256.

Old Regulations Failed.

"And that in spite of the old regulations. That is because the old regulations did not give what the people expected them to give. The people were misled. Because it believes that in vaccination is a positive protection, the state board of health took action. It is not a party to the belief that vaccination is not necessary and quarantine not enough."

Dr. Bracken cited an experience of the city of Cleveland in attempting to check smallpox by quarantine without vaccination, stating that it came to grief. He proceeded:

"The old quarantine regulations called for a placard on the house, excluding everybody except the doctor, nurse, and in case of death, a licensed embalmer, if the regulations were carried out, which they were not in a great majority of cases. The old rules locked up the well with the sick, causing a demoralization of the family. They shut off the earning of wages, the going to market and brought a demoralizing of the household and a demoralization of the county and village, which were put to unnecessary expense and caused trouble in various ways. They brought financial loss to the people of the municipality, township, village or city. They necessitated the employment of a go-between, to see what the family needed, to go to market, and to furnish them with supplies. In certain cases, guards were employed to stand over the people night and day and maintain a shot-gun quarantine. In some cases, the quarantine lasted as long as three months. The minimum was four weeks.

"There have been 33,000 cases reported in nine years, so the regulations did not stop smallpox. As a matter of fact, there were probably over 50,000 cases in the state during that time and the remainder were not reported. Many smallpox epidemics are not reported until too late to check them.; People go to school or to church and in a little while the whole community is down with the disease.

"The new rules provide: First, isolation of the patient. The placard is put on in the regular way and the patient is to be isolated. But the patient is the only one to be kept in. The well people are allowed to go out about their business, do their own chores and act as their own go-betweens. The rules take away the loss of wages, the expense on the community, the necessity of guards.

Mild Type Prevalent.

"I say, why not let them go out? They will not carry smallpox. The general impression is that they do. The patient only carries smallpox and it takes close contact with him to catch it. If a man, broken out with smallpox should ride a mile in a street car with sixty people in it, probably no more than the two sitting nearest him would become afflicted with the disease. The only danger is the carrying of smallpox in the patient's clothing. The danger of a second person carrying it to a third is very remote. Why should we continue to mislead people and carry on old ideas put into the heads of our ancestors when smallpox was a scourage on the face of the earth. It is not such now. There is almost no danger from it. It has not grown more severe. That which is now prevalent is of a mild type and it is a good time to educate the people up to the fact that it is useless to try to stop smallpox with quarantine when vaccination is a protection, which is nearly absolute. We should give them that which helps them whether they want it or not.

"The proper place for the care of smallpox is in a detention hospital. You have that here and should isolate the patients there when possible. If it is necessary, the patient may be isolated at home. The proper control of smallpox is by vaccination and isolation. You hear a great deal about vaccination, its evils, etc. Those who believe in vaccination will go away from here tonight believing in it; those who do not believe in it will go away with their beliefs unshaken, regardless of what I or any other physician might say. Anybody, who has ever had an experience with smallpox knows that vaccination is an absolute preventative as well as they know anything at all.

"As far as the new regulations are concerned, I do not know that they will make a very great difference in the manner of handling cases in Duluth. The old system was to put a card on the house, take out the patient if possible and vaccinate every one in the house. Under the new rules, the same course will be followed, but the people will not be kept locked in. The law in regard to vaccination is not changed. There is no law and therefore it could not be changed. The warning card will be placed on the house and probably the people will stay at home. I hope not. I hope they will go about their business. A good many people thought that under the new rules, the home would not be quarantined at all. It will be, but will not be under a strict quarantine.

"I read a paper before the medical society here in Duluth last summer and I will quote briefly from it: 'The ideal method of treating smallpox patients is by removal to the detention hospital (I have no use for a pesthouse). It is the general custom in the large cities. The people there would not tolerate treatment in the homes. There is no rigid quarantine in St. Paul and Minneapolis and hasn' tbeen for years. What is good for the larger cities is good for the small.'

"I have just this to say in conclusion. If you want the old regulations and vote that the health officer has got to maintain them, we will help him. If you insist on the old quarantine, you will live up to it. We will have no monkey-work. The old regulations will be enforced to the letter. A man will stand over every house. There will be no breaking of quarantine. You will get all the quarantine you want."

Before the cross-examination of Dr. Bracken began, Alderman Filiatrault made a few remarks in which he expressed confidence in the state board of health and urged the aldermen to thoroughly understand the question before attempting to vote on it. He said there were several local authorities in the chambers and asked that Dr. Magie, Dr. Stewart and Dr. Rood of Hibbing be called upon. He urged that the question was a serious one and deserved serious consideration.

Alderman Staples broached the case of a child dying in Chicago of vaccination, as reported in the newspapers. Dr. Bracken explained the case by saying that affidavits were in the hands of the Chicago board of health from the physician and the child's father, showing that it had been vaccinated six or seven months before death and death was directly due to typhold fever.

Is Cross-Examined.

Alderman Wilson then took up the cudgel and put Dr. Bracken under a rapid fire of questions, proceeding as follows:

Wilson—"As I understand it, the state board of health does not claim that its order applies to Duluth."

Bracken—"It applies to the entire state."

Wilson—"The state board would make no objection and take no offense if the council should add further regulations?"

Bracken—"There would be no objection. Only the state board would think that it was a criticism and it would show that the council believed it knew more about the question than the state board."

Wilson—"It Duluth excepted from the general order?"

Bracken—"No."

Mr. Wilson read from the statute a section to show that regulations of the state board of health do not take precedence over the city charter of a city of the first class and Dr. Bracken agreed that such was the case, except that if the health officer of a city did not live up to the regulations of the charter, the state board would have the authority to step in and compel him to do so.

Wilson—"You warned us that if we passed this ordinance, we would get all the quarantine we want. Do you mean to say the state board of health has the authority to give us all we want?"

Bracken—"Yes and No. If you made regulations and Dr. Murray did not carry them out, we would get after you good and stiff."

Wilson—"Yet you have no authority to go beyond your own regulations?"

Bracken—"We can make the health officer of Duluth enforce any regulation you may make and we certainly shall do so."

Wilson—"Don't you believe in the quarantine?"

Bracken—"I certainly do not."

Wilson—"It is positively bad, unnecessary, inefficient, and deceptive, is it?"

Bracken—"Yes."

Wilson—"Have you always believed so?"

Bracken—"For a good many years."

Wilson—"How long?"

Dr. Bracken said that several years ago, he thought of the uselessness of the quarantine and has grown strong in that belief since. Mr. Wilson said he didn't doubt the doctor's sincerity or honesty, but he wanted to know if the doctor thought the quarantine utterly useless. Dr. Bracken said he did. He said smallpox is not as contagious and communicable as most people choose to believe. He and Mr. Wilson went into the question of smallpox being an air-borne disease. Dr. Bracken contended that there was little danger of the disease being air-borne.

Mr. Wilson asked if the new regulations were enforced throughout the state wouldn't the inevitable result be an increase in smallpox. Dr. Bracken said he didn't expect to see any. He said the state board of health wasn't ready several years ago to go against the people in the lifting of the absolute quarantine. "Now we have gone up against it and we are being damned to the devil," he concluded.

Not Intended as Club.

Mr. Wilson wanted to know if the real reason for the new regulations wasn't to scare the people into vaccination. Dr. Bracken said the intention wasn't to use it as a club. They naturally expect more vaccination, but there is no vindictiveness in the order. He says physicians will advice vaccination, whether they get 50 cents for it or not.

Mr. Wilson went into the question of people with blood diseases and consumption, who would incur danger from vaccination, people on whom the virus wouldn't take, ignorant and stubborn people, who wouldn't get vaccinated. Dr. Bracken said in all three classes, there was danger of infection, but added that in the case of ignorant and stubborn, they didn't care.

Dr. Bracken broke into Mr. Wilson's questioning to say that an absolute quarantine is a protection, but that absolute quarantine cannot be maintained unless a guard is put over every window and every door, night and day—guards who are incorruptible and non-sleeping. He ventured the opinion that half of the people of the state were vaccinated, but wouldn't agree with Mr. Wilson that vaccination was a protection for only five to seven years. He said he had known cases in which it was a protection for forty years. He said people might be vaccinated from time to time, and if it took, they needed it. If not, there was no harm done.

Mr. Wilson wanted to know if it wasn't a fact that sometimes people who were vaccinated took smallpox. Dr. Bracken said it was very unlikely. He said the maximum of people who had been vaccinated and subsequently had smallpox was 5 per cent.

Dr. Magie was called upon, and he told of smallpox epidemics in Montreal which had been checked by vaccination and not by quarantine. He said people are sick four or five days sometimes before they break out and the cases are reported to the physicians. He said vaccination would protect other people from the infection which those persons would spread. He said it is a fact that the form of smallpox has been growing milder. He expressed the opinion that the race is gradually becoming immune, and, with continued vaccination, the immunity will become hereditary.

Dr. Rood of Hibbing was called, and he told of an epidemic there this fall. He said that early in December the disease was spreading, and the regulations of the state board of health were adopted. He said that instead of, as naturally, the number of cases increasing in winter, they decreased, until now the disease is practically stamped out. He said in all his experience he has yet to have a case of smallpox where there had been vaccination.

Dr. Stewart told of some of his experiences with vaccination, and heartily endorsed the state board of health in its stand. In answer to a question by Mr. Wilson, he caused a ripple of laughter in the room by saying that the fact that a person has smallpox is a reflection on his own intelligence. He said when a person violates quarantine and spreads smallpox, he violates the law, and that when a person neglects to be vaccinated, he may catch the disease, spread it, and thus violate the law.

Dr. Riesland's brief talk was a severe arraignment of vaccination. He said he had never been vaccinated and had never had smallpox because "his system had not been polluted by half decayed poison from a calf subjected to cruel and inhuman treatment." He quoted authorities to show that vaccination was causing numerous other diseases and spreading them.

Alderman Filiatrault offered a resolution as follows:

"Resolved, That this council is in sympathy with the new rules of the state board of health regarding the care of smallpox and we advise their adoption by the health commissioner of the city of Duluth."

Alderman Foubister asked another week's respite before a vote should be taken.

Alderman Wilson said he was glad Alderman Filiatrault had introduced the resolution, as the vote would give the committee on ordinances a lead on which they could base their action on his ordinance.

"We are not against vaccination," he said. "I don't see how any man on this council would have the temerity to get up and oppose vaccination in the face of all we have heard upon it tonight. We have two ways of fighting smallpox. Neither is entirely effective. Physicians may say vaccination is entirely effective, but the facts do not bear them out. Is it not possible that some good may be done by a rigid quarantine on those cases, where it is rigid. Some when they are put under quarantine will keep it honestly. It is a slander on any community to say that all, who are put under quarantine, will break it. It is just as reasonable to say that because there is a law against stealing, none will obey it and it should be stricken from the statute books.

"They say they will give us all the quarantine we want, of the shotgun variety, if we dare. That is not the spirit in which we approached it. I believe in vaccination. I bow to it. But, if I were fighting my most deadly enemy, I would not tie one hand behind my back, although I had absolute confidence in the other hand. When chased into a corner, the doctors admit that quarantine does a little good. Why not have both, then?

"In this state and in tals very county, people have been shot for violating quarantine. Now they say, the quarantine should be practically done away with. Those things do not jibe very well. If only one case in a hundred is caught by quarantine, that would help. People with some forms of tuberculosis and blood diseases cannot be vaccinated. They should be given proper protection. They are entitled to it. There is nothing against the use of anti-toxin for diphtheria, but they use a pretty rigid quarantine also. I argue we should use both methods."

Mr. Wilson quoted Dr. Bracken's report for 1900 to show that a rigid quarantine was advised for Albert Lea during the epidemic there in the preceding year. "Quarantine is absolutely necessary for the benefit of the public," quoted Mr. Wilson. Alderman Filiatrault suggested that the matter be laid over for a week and President Tessman ordered it so.

How Is Your Blood?

If you lack strength, are nervous, have no appetite, don't sleep well, get tired easily, your blood is in bad condition. You cannot be strong without pure, rich blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes good, rich blood and keeps it good.

Dyspepsia—"For six months my system was out of order with dyspepsia and impure blood. Spent lots of money in vain, but Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me." Jos. S. ZAUBA, Genoa, Neb.

Had No Appetite—"I was troubled with dyspepsia and had no appetite. I had a faint feeling after eating. My constitution was all run down, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has fully relieved me." FLORENCE STOWE, Sniderville, Wisconsin.

Weakness—"I bless the day I heard of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it cured me of extreme weakness after grip, built my husband up after pneumonia, and cured eczema and blood-poisoning in our children." MRS. M. A. DELWORTH, Box 4, Embreeville, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold everywhere. In the usual liquid, or in tablet form called Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar. Prepared only by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

Our Annual January White Sale

Starts tomorrow morning in our Second Floor Drapery Department.

You'll find here the greatest bargains in white goods.

There's no "beating about the bush" sale here. Its not a 10 per cent off this, a 15 per cent off that, but we take a quarter slice right off the regular price of every bed spread—the $1.00 one as well as the finest at $35.00—¼ off the Muslin Bedroom Curtains and the Imported Ruffled Nets—they all go in the sale at ¼ off the original retail prices. This is your one grand annual opportunity of securing these needed things at sweeping reductions and handsome savings. It will pay you to anticipate your needs for some time to come.

White Bed-Room Curtains

Ruffled Swisses, ruffled nets, imported Tambour Curtains—a varied new clean line. Choice of Curtains regularly selling from 60c to $5 per pair at exactly one-fourth less than originally marked.

Muslin, Lace Bed Sets

Muslin, Net, Lace and Swiss Spreads, the latest style of bed treatment, fine creations of French makers; some of them with beautiful lace panels in Marie Antoinette style. They range in price from $3 to $35; all reduced for this clearance ONE-QUARTER. Better be here early and share the offerings.

White Bed Spreads

Plain or Fringed Spreads, including the beautiful Marseilles Spreads with damask weave and with cut corners, all at one-fourth off the regular retail prices. They are ordinarily selling from $1 to $6.

WEDS ENGLISH BARMAID.

Bride of American Banker's Son is Well-Read Woman.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—According to a dispatch received here from London, Paul Patten, son of C. H. Patten, a banker at Palaitne, Ill., was married to Dolly Powell, a London barmaid. Mrs. Patten is a remarkabe woman, having been known for her extensive knowledge of Shakespeare, Herbert Spencer and other authors. She is several years older than Patten.

DOCTOR'S ORDER WAS: 'CUTICURA'

For a Bad Case of Eczema on Child —Suffered for Three Months— Disease Reached a Fearful State —Pain and Itching were Terrible.

CURED AFTER OTHER PRESCRIPTIONS FAILED

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20, 1907."

ITCHING CURED

With Cuticura Remedies in Three Days After Six Months of Suffering.

"I suffered fully six months. The trouble began on my arms in little red pimples and it was not long before it was all over my body, limbs, face, and hands. It was so bad that I could not rest night or day and during the six months, I did not get a good night's sleep. I doctored for three or four months and spent at least twenty dollars trying to find a cure but none could be found. Then I saw the Cuticura Remedies advertised, and the next day I purchased some for seventy-five cents at the druggist's. I used them and I was relieved of the itching in three days, and I have never had a sign of any skin disease since. The Cuticura Remedies are the only remedies to use for skin diseases, they have cured me and they will cure others in the same way. J. W. Bloom, R. R. Telegrapher, Holloway, Mich., Nov. 20 and Dec. 29, 1906."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

SUBJECT OF BRYAN

At Banquet is "Moral Element in Pending" Issues."

Time is Ripe for Another Appeal to People's Conscience.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 7.—Four hundred guests were present at the annual gathering of the Jacksonian club of Nebraska at its celebration last night of the occasion when "Old Hickory" and his host, secreted behind a bulwark of cotton bales, routed the British at New Orleans.

William J. Bryan was the guest of honor and other Democratic leaders had places at the speaker's table. These included Former Governor C. S. Thomas of Colorado, Congressman Hitchcock of Omaha and S. J. Dunn of Omaha.

C. J. Smythe, former attorney general, was toastmaster. He congratulated the Democrats of the country on their opportunities and predicted the election of Mr. Bryan to the highest office in the gift of the people.

"The Moral Element in Pending Issues" was the subject of Mr. Bryan's address, which in part was as follows:

"No question is ever settled until the moral element in the question is discussed and decided nothing but a moral issue—that is, an issue involving justice—stirs the heart. Andrew Jackson addressed himself to the moral nature and aroused a moral enthusiasm that outlived his period. The time is ripe for another appeal to conscience and indications point to a greater study of public questions from an ethical standpoint. The corrupting influences that flowed from mercenary politics have at last excited attention and there is a searching of men and of measures such as had never been known in recent times.

President Has Made Mistakes.

"The president's popularity is largely, if not entirely, due to the belief among the masses that he wants to do what is right and he is trying to secure justice to those who have been unjustly dealt with. He has made many mistakes and great ones, but these mistakes have to a large extent been overlooked by those who believe that his heart is right and that he means well. This is only an indication of public attitude. Another is to be found in the voters.

"Not since the war have party lines hung so closely and this is the natural result where the voters become earnest in their desire that wrong shall be overthrown and right vindicated.

"People differ as to the relative importance of the different issues, some placing trusts first, some regarding the tariff question as paramount, and others believing the railroad question most important. But the fact is, they all point to the same issue, and that those who take the people's side on one of these questions is likely to take the people's side on either of the other two. The issue presented in each and all of these questions is whether the government shall be administered by interests of a few favorites or by the interests of the whole people, and whether the people shall be taxed that a few escape. The trusts tax the entire people for the benefit of a comparatively small number of stockholders; the protected manufacturers tax the entire public through import duties and the railroads levy tribute upon the whole country through extortionate rates. We have had selfishness enthroned in law or selfishness denying the law until the average man has become the victim of injustice practiced on every hand.

Republicans Deceive Voters.

"For years the Republican leaders supported their policies by adroit appeals to the interests of the different classes and with a press subservient to predatory wealth, they have deceived and deluded many voters. They are not prepared to defend their position on any public question before the bar of public conscience. Some of the more independent Republicans realize this, and are uttering words of warning, but the Republican leaders are as blind as the Pharaohs.

"In a multitude of ways the moral sentiment is manifesting itself, and unless the signs of the times are mistaken, there is going to be a return to the Jeffersonian and Jacksonian doctrine, 'equal rights to all and special privileges to none.'"

A feature of almost every speech of the evening was praise of President Roosevelt, who, it was said, has been carrying out many of the principles of the Democratic platform of 1896, in spite of the opposition of his own party.

SALTED BY NATURE.

Prospectors Find "Rich Strike" That is Only Skin Deep.

Mount Vernon, Wash., Jan. 7.—"Old Nature salted that prospect."

This is the concise opinion of two miners who have just returned from a prospecting trip in the Cascades along the headwaters of the Skagit river. One day they discovered a big rock about fifteen feet high that looked like an outcropping from a big ledge.

The rock was different from the usual formation and ran over $40 in value in lead and silver, and the two men were wild with joy. They believed they had discovered another Bunker Hill-Sullivan mine.

They staked the country for miles and then started work on the "ledge."

To their amazement the rock was simply lying on top of the ground with soil for fifty feet beneath. Further search failed to disclose another rock of the same kind for many miles in any direction. The rock had evidently been carried in the glacial days and might have come for thousands of miles. As the two men spent over a month working their "find," their feelings can be imagined.

SUES DEAD WOMAN'S LOVER.

Physician Wants $250,000 for Alienation of Wife's Affections.

New York, Jan. 7.—Jacob Field, a successful leader of a clique of Wall street speculators, is defendant in a damage suit for $250,000 that is without a parallel in the supreme court of New York.

Dr. Oliver Walcott Hall, reputed to be a man of wealth, alleges that the broker alienated the affections of his wife, who is now dead.

Mrs. Hall, who, before her marriage, was the beautiful Madeline Gladys Tojetti, daughter of the famous portrait artist, died last February. Field was an intimate friend of both Mrs. Hall and her husband for years.

ALLEGED GRAFTERS ARRESTED IN BOSTON.

Boston, Jan. 7.—After two weeks spent in investigating purchases by the city last year of a lot of land on Codman street, prizes for athletic events and payments for flagstone, the grand jury reported indictments yesterday against two members of last year's city government, the superintendent of streets and several business men. The indicted parties follow:

Alderman William Berwin, Alderman George H. Battis, superintendent of streets; James H. Doyle, Mark Berwin, O. Edward Kain, Michael Mitchell, Thomas F. Mayer, Harry C. French and Oliver Gregg.

Later in the day all but Marks Berwin appeared at police headquarters and gave bonds for their appearance in the superior court on Saturday.

DISCUSSION INTERESTING

S. T. Harrison Addresses Unity Club on Government by Commission.

"New Municipal Government By Commission," was the subject discusseed by Attorney S. T. Harrison, at the meeting of the Unity club last evening. The talk was a very interesting one, and told of the successful methods of city government that have been adopted by Des Moines, Iowa, Galveston, Texas, and other towns in the United States.

Mr. Harrison maintained that government by commission has many advantages over the system at present in vogue in Duluth. If the new plan were adopted here, there would be probably five commissioners, one of them to act as mayor. The salary of the latter would be $3,500, and the others would be paid at the rate of $3,000 each.

Under this form of government, politics would be entirely abolished. It would be considered criminal to ask the support of any poltical party. This kind of government is divided into five deprtments, the mayor being at the head of public affairs and each of the other commissioners supervising finance, public accounts,. police and streets, parks and public ways. No law or ordinance can become active until the people have given a favorable expression of their will through the ballot. No franchises can be granted to any person, corporation or company, except by a vote of the people.

In order to become a candidate for office at the primaries, one must obtain a certificate of fitness signed by twenty-five property holders. After election if the man is found to be incompetent or corrupt, he must run again against another candidate that will be selected by the people.

TO MAKE PAPER OF MILL WASTE

Lumber Refuse May be Means of Cutting Down Cost.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Scientists here are deeply interested in what is believed to be a means of manufacturing paper from ground wood, in which the waste of mills can be used. If successful, the plan will eliminate the cost of wood specially cut for the manufacture of paper pulp.

The pitch which, heretofore, interfered with the use of wood of this character is overcome in the new process by so treating the pulp that it passes off in vapor, and the fiber is recovered by subjecting the mass to a system of pressing.

The very much increased cost of paper, which has led many newspapers to increase their price or resort to the alternative of decreasing their size, has aroused experts to a study of means to reduce the cost of paper foundations.

Experiments now in progress indicate that the system of using mill waste can be made a success. Such a plant is now in operation in Vancouver, which has proven a success. The project is backed by a company with $1,000,000 of capital, and the plant, when in complete running order, will have an output of 360 tons of finished paper a week.

GOVERNOR IN A ROMANCE.

Hoggatt of Alaska Will Wed New York Girl.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 7.—Chalk up another victory for the little archer, who has won in the lists this time against odds that were reckoned well nigh invincible by accomplishing the engagement of Governor Wilfred B. Hoggatt of Alaska and Miss Clarissa Eames Millard of Utica, N. Y. They met in the north several years ago and ever since the hitherto devotee of single-blessedness has been the first in the fair Utican's train of admirers.

Notwithstanding many attempts have been made by designing friends to marry him off, the governor always sidestepped until Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eames Millard and their pretty daughter made a tour of Alaska. They were entertained at the executive mansion in Juneau. Since that time Governor Hoggatt has made several trips to the empire state.

Miss Millard says the wedding will take place some time in the spring, whenever the governor can arrange his executive duties to get away for a short time. As usual, Hoggatt refuses to be interviewed on the subject, but he wears a more serene smile than ever before.

Postum is made of the purest cereals with absolutely no medication whatever and when boiled according to directions it is heavy with food value and a great nourisher and rebuilder, as well as a delicious drink. It is also a specific for all of the dozens of different diseases caused by coffee. Trial proves this, and "There's a Reason."

"THE" White Sale

FACTS of Importance to You CONCERNING

"The" White Sale

WE'VE ALWAYS HAD BIG CROWDS at our annual White Sales—but the attendance at this white sale has fairly appalled us. At 10:15 o'clock yesterday morning there were over 900 customers at all the departments where "the" White Sale is in progress. This thoroughly demonstrates to us—and it ought, also, to you—that there's but one White Sale of any consequence going on in Duluth. WE KNOW THIS IS SO—for we do not fail to find out what others are doing. Its a "different" sale, also from the little sales elsewhere—for HERE goods are sold for what they ARE—(not for what they ought to be) and you know before you buy just what you're getting. No "buncom" methods, or any semblance of such, are resorted to—nor allowed. We must apologize for our inability to adequately cope with the demand for prompt service during the early hours. We quickly discovered that the regular sales force would be unable to properly care for the rush and immediately took steps to remedy the condition. During the balance of the week we can assure you prompt and efficient service by reason of having added dozens of extra salespeople in the departments where white goods are bringing the great crowds. Come—you'll be properly waited on—and you'll save more money here than you can anywhere else.

The White Sale of French Underwear

The sale of French and convent made lingerie and underwear was very liberally patronized the first day (as it most truly deserves) and many were the expressions of delight and admiration voiced by Duluth's most critical women. These lovely garments are displayed in the magnificent white French room (2nd floor) brilliantly illuminated with a flood of electric light. Don't miss this sale—it is a notable event. There's no need of going to Chicago or New York for this class of goods—you can buy it here in Duluth for less money!

The Sale of Slippers

As stated to you in a previous advertisement we are at this time inaugurating our first annual slipper sale in conjunction with the great white sale. We are free to admit that this sale did not start out so tremendously "brisk" as we expected in the light of the wonderful values we offered. This being a new feature with the white sale, you probably have failed to realize what we were therein doing for you. We want, now if you please, to impress upon you that this is the greatest opportunity ever presented to you to buy absolutely the finest, most comely and beautiful, and best fitting slippers for all uses and occasions that are being shown anywhere in the country! Don't wait till the sale is half over—be here tomorrow morning. We will fit you with slippers as you never have been before—at less money than you dreamed possible!

The Embroidery Counter

Was the scene of the first crowd—particularly, the point where the short lengths were displayed. But there wasn't a minute yesterday (nor this morning, up till the time this is being written) when the embroidery counter wasn't lined solid with women after the embroideries. 1908's styles are particularly beautiful, and women who bought yesterday and today are unanimous in their declaration that our prices are a revelation of littleness. Mind you, the sale opened with 30,000 yards of these lovely creations—enough to last even such crowds as Monday's for 10 days. Come and get your share tomorrow.

Dainty Undermuslins

And "different" as well—for these are not the "skimpy," ill-fitting and carelessly made kinds. We spent by far the most of our care and energy in finding manufacturers who were sure to produce full generous garments, scientifically cut and shaped and perfectly seamed and stitched in every line; then we made sure that every precaution in favor of most perfectly sanitary conditions, was rigidly enforced; that done, we had little trouble in making prices favorable to you—and, that's one of the wonders of this sale—the little prices on muslin underwear of such evident excellence.

Lace Curtains at Half

'Twould be of little moment if only the cheaper curtains were included in this sale. But, on the contrary, many people are marveling that all our very finest Brussels, Cluny and Irish Point lace curtains, as well as the muslins, Nottinghams, etc., in odd pairs and two-pair lots are offered at only HALF PRICE.

A Lace Sensation

That's what it proved when we announced among a dozen of remarkable offers in laces, that we were about to sell 12-yard pieces of laces worth up to 7½c a yard (90c worth) for 36c the piece. But that's only one of the attractions in the lace department. Come and find out what the others mean to you.

The Sale of Linens!

Needs little commendation. It's the same old story of every linen sale held here for years past. We firmly believe we sell as much or more linens as any other three stores combined—in special sales and "out" of them. But little wonder!—we carry the BEST (indisputably best) and always beat competition in the little prices. Go with the linen crowd—and you'll buy here!

The Sale for Men!

Our first advance sale of shirts, as a part of the white sale, served to bring a monster Monday business to this department—and it's keeping right up today. Men are telling us they are certainly THE swell shirts in the city and wonderfully cheap. If you want 1908's best styles first—visit this sale of men's shirts.

Boys' Shirts and Blouses

This sale is a boon to mothers, who want the best and most satisfactory shirts for boys; it's giving them "Mother's Friend" shirts and blouses in the new 1908 styles at special low prices.

White Sale of White China

More white china in this store—and in this sale—than any other store in Duluth can show. And better still—the very best makes—some that other stores try to represent themselves as having, but which are found here only Special white sale prices on white china for decorating, white "Syracuse" dinner sets and white and gold dinner sets. Come and learn how and where to buy white china.

Sheetings and Domestics

Here is the most glowing evidence of the superiority of white sale values and white sale methods, as they are found HERE. Where other stores made meaningless claims to sell sheetings lower than "all others" (backed up by not a single advertised brand and price) WE named the brands you've tested by years of experience—the brands you want—and quoted prices which no other store can begin to equal. Moreover, we can sell you the brands you ask for—(the manufacturers' labels are there for you to see—on every piece) and resort to no such deceitful methods as removing trademarks and printed names from inferior goods in order to pretend to sell you what you ask for—nor, do we "foist" upon you any unknown and questionable goods, (probably bought cheap) stamped as if made expressly for us. Come here for the reliable goods at less prices than others ask for the other kinds.

SEYN WILL HELP RUSSIAN POLICE

Finland is Scene of Terrorist Plots Against State Officials.

Helsingfors, Jan. 7.—Immediately upon the appointment of Gen. Seyn as chief of the staff to the governor of Finland comes evidence of renewed intensity in the death struggle between the Russian revolutionary terrorists and the political police.

Hitherto Finlan authorities have sought to resist wholesale arrests in the grand duchy upon search warrants and Governor General Gerhard has defended their claim that warrants should charge actual crimes and that persons arrested should bo handed over to common law authorities, and not to standing courts-martial. It is clear that Gen. Seyn, who was chief of the staff of the assassinated Gen. Bobrikoff, means to enforce the claim of the St. Petersburg political police and defy the Finnish constitution.

In the last series of important assassinations in St. Petersburg, it is known that the plots and explosives were prepared in Finland, and the selected agent arrived in the capital only the night before or on the morning of his crime, thus avoiding the suspicion that might follow his attempt to register his passport.

Information in the hands of the St. Petersburg police has convinced them that the terrorists are planning a great coup, but its objects and details apparently remain hidden. In their nervous anxiety to unravel the mystery, the police make daily searchings in St. Petersburg and neighboring towns, even on this side of the Finnish frontier. Large numbers have been arrested in all the districts visited.

A search was attempted at 3 a. m. in a house in the working class district. But the men wanted turned a regular fusilade on the police from the darkness. Col. Koltchak, commanding the district police, and a woman were killed, and an officer and several policemen wounded.

COMMISSIONERS ENJOINED.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 7.—Judge Baxter has granted an injunction in a case brought by the Northern Pacific railway company against the county commissioners of Becker county to prevent the construction of a ditch under its tracks. The court found that the ditch as planned, would make the roadbed unsafe, and endanger the safety of passengers, and has ordered work stopped.

"SOCIETY IS A SHAM," DECLARES ZUEBLIN.

Boston, Jan. 7.—Prof. Charles Zueblin of the Chicago university bitterly attacked modern society and modern philanthropy in a lecture on the "Twentieth Century City" yesterday.

"Modern society is nothing but hypocrisy and a sham," was the sensation that the Chicago disciple or settlement work flung at the eager women listeners, and he followed that up quickly by an assault on so-called charities.

"These modern philanthropies," as he put it, "are most dishonest idiocy. If they are not, they show pathetic ignorance on the part of well-meaning people who leave endowments to widows and cats in what they imagine is a great effort to benefit humanity."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Matters took an unexpected turn at Muncie, Ind., Monday afternoon, when the authorities now in control of affairs here gave notice to A. L. Behner of the Amalgamated Street Car Railway Employes, the organization on strike here, that his departure from Muncie would be expected.

An ordinance forbidding women to smoke in the cafes, restaurants and other places of public entertainment was introduced at the first meeting of the new board of New York aldermen Monday.

As the result of the overturning of a skiff containing nine men near Kickapoo, Kan., seven men were drowned.

The annual report of State Salt Inspector Emory shows that for the year ended Nov. 30, 1907, the production of salt in Michigan amounted to 6,363,120 barrels. This is the largest quantity ever manufactured in one year in that state.

The Democratic state central committee at Guthrie, Okla., Monday, unanimously endorsed W. J. Bryan's candidacy for the presidency, and decided to hold the state convention to select fourteen delegates to the national convention on Feb. 12, at Muskogee.

John McPherson of Knox county, Tenn., under sentence of death for the murder of two men, was Monday granted a reprieve of twenty days. The petition asking for a respite was signed by a number of ministers, who hope to induce the double murderer to repent of his crimes.

Dennis Driscoll, a one-legged pencil peddler, was burned to death in the Salvation Army lodging house, 19 Washington square, Worcester, Mass., Tuesday morning at 2:15 o'clock. One hundred and nine other lodgers had narrow escapes. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

SENSATION IN IOWA

Caused by Accusations of Man and Daughter Against Pastor.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Jan. 7. — Cedar county is stirred by a sensation suit, wherein Rev. C. Schulmeistrat, pastor of the German Evangelical church at Clarence, asks damages against Miss Emma Harmel and her father, asserting that they have slandered him.

The pastor's petition states that Miss Harmel was formerly in his employ as a domestic. That afterwards she circulated a slanderous story to the effect that he went to her room one night, and that on another occasion she woke up and found him sitting on the edge of her bed.

The charge against the father is that he wrote a letter to the pastor, asking him to call and pay $500. It is said that this letter will be produced in court.

A SCHEME THAT FAILED, AND A BETTER ONE.

The street railways of Pittsburg tried a new scheme the other day, designed to prevent "knocking down" fares by the conductors, but abandoned it after a very short trial.

The plan was to require each passenger to pay his fare before he entered the car. Obviously, this would help keep the conductors honest, because it makes the collection of the fares a very public and noticeable act, and if the conductors did fail to ring up the fares he collected, the omission could hardly fail to be noticed by the passengers.

But the trouble with the scheme was that it was entirely too noticeable. At practically every corner in the busy parts of the city, during the rush hours, there was a small riot several times a day. Cars were held up while the conductors made change, for of course not all the passengers had their nickels ready. If several people in a string happened to require change, the crowd behind them accumulated and grew impatient. In short, the schedule was thrown out of gear by repeated blockades, nobody got home on time, and everybody became angry and disgusted and ready to heap abuse upon the management of the lines—a thing that the public is prone to do anyway, on general principles if for no better reason.

But the climax was effectually capped when a woman with an armful of bundles and her nickel in her mouth got excited as she was boarding a car. When she absentmindedly opened her mouth to tell the conductor where her fare was she swallowed the coin.

So the company abandoned in haste this ill-advised method of getting its share of the receipts.

The problem of compelling conductors to be honest if they don't want to be is always a hard one, and though ingenious schemes to effect it have been devised, schemes just a little more ingenious have been concocted to enable the needy conductors to beat them. It is doubtful if it will ever be possible to make it absolutely certain that the companies get every nickel taken in. No doubt the great majority of the conductors are honest, but there are always some who will let some of the nickels stick in their pockets if they can arrange it.

A far better way than the Pittsburg plan occurs to The Herald. Why not have the passengers use tickets instead of nickels? There would not be much use in a conductor "knocking down" tickets, because he can ride free anyway, and an attempt to sell purloined tickets would be dangerous and difficult.

In order to induce the people to use tickets, it would of course be necessary to make it an object to them. That could be done by selling six or seven tickets for a quarter or say twenty-five for a dollar. This plan, well-advertised, would induce most street car patrons to buy tickets, and the conductors would not have to handle so much money.

This plan could be tried to the mutual advantage of the street railway interests and their patrons.

ANOTHER FIVE-TO-FOUR DECISION.

In one of those dreadfully unsatisfying five-to-four decisions, the supreme court of the United States has ruled that the federal employers' liability law is unconstitutional. This law, which was passed in 1906 to apply to railroads, eliminated the doctrine which releases employers from liability for accidents caused by the negligence of the fellow servants of the injured employe, and sought to throw the burden of the risks of employment upon those who are able to stand it.

The supreme court holds that while the statute embraces subjects within the authority of congress to regulate commerce, it also includes subjects not within its constitutional power; and that the two are so blended that they are "inseparable of purpose." The court believes that the law is unenforceable as to intrastate traffic, and that therefore it ought not to be held applicable to interstate traffic, though several of the justices thought otherwise.

It is these decisions that cause an aspiring people to look askance at both Constitution and court, and wonder which is responsible for the fact that nearly always when, in response to a public demand, legislation to effect justice between rich and poor is enacted, the way is blocked by the dread and potent word "unconstitutional."

However, the decision will be most reassuring to those who are jealous of state rights, and who deem it more important that the rights of the state shall not be infringed upon by federal regulation than that justice shall be done alike to the powerful and the dependent.

DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS.

Some of the country newspapers seem to be inclined to think their Uncle Samuel is over-officious in his new rulings about delinquent subscribers, but his stand on the matter is easily accounted for, and it is not only good public policy, but it ought to help the newspapers in their delicate dealing with those who are "backward about coming forward" with their dues.

The object of the postoffice department is to limit the matter mailed under the second-class privilege to bona fide, legitimate circulation, and it includes in that only subscribers who think enough of the publications they receive to pay for them. Hence the new rule that dailies may not be mailed to subscribers that are over three months delinquent, that weeklies may not be mailed to those who are over a year in arrears, etc.

The delinquent subscribers are not a very great problem with the dailies, but it is different with the country weeklies, as a glance over the files of almost any of them will prove. It is easier to say what ought to be done with them than to do it. Most country newspapers start out to require their subscribers to adhere strictly to the "pay in advance" rule, but it is practically impossible to continue the policy. Some of those who fail to remit when the time comes are very good people indeed; people who are perfectly responsible, and who are certain to pay—sometime.

But they do not think about the trouble they are causing the country editor. His type, ink, paper, labor and rent must be paid for promptly. If his subscriptions come in that way, he could manage it easily. But when a tenth or a third of his subscribers keep him waiting for his money, it makes him scramble to meet his own bills, not to mention laying aside an honest dollar or two against the rainy season.

If he stops every paper whose recipient fails to pay promptly, he makes enemies and loses subscribers. If he lets the accounts run he finds that the forgetfulness of his delinquent subscribers is often of a very tenacious and longwinded sort, and that adds to his financial burdens. Between these two alternatives, both disagreeable, the country editor had been hovering in much perturbation of mind for years, until along came the postoffice department and put him out of his misery with this new rule.

Now, if he cuts off a delinquent, it is not his fault, but that of the postoffice. If he tells his delinquent subscribers that they must pay or be cut off, he can say that the postoffice requires him to do this, and that if he had his way he would let the account run on indefinitely, because he is in business mainly for the purpose of making his subscribers happy and contented, and profit is only an immaterial side issue.

But if he does not drop those who are in arrears more than a year, he gets into trouble with the postoffice department or has to put 1-cent stamps on the papers, thus turning a small possible profit into a positive loss.

The new rule will put the circulation of newspapers upon a sound basis, and will head off the fake publications that are abusing the second class privilege while it enables the country editor to jar his laggard subscribers into prompt payment.

PETTIFOGGING.

When the Minneapolis Journal hypocritically pretended to be unable to understand Governor Johnson's comparison of the farming out of taxes in France with the power which the "protective tariff" gives to the trusts to tax the American people for the benefit of a few, The Herald endeavored to enlighten that newspaper.

The Journal replies, with its customarily transparent deceit and slipperiness, by pretending that The Herald said that a "prohibitive tariff" not only builds up a treasury surplus but enables the trusts to tax the people.

Of course The Herald said nothing of the kind. A prohibitive tariff contributes absolutely nothing to the revenues of the government. It contributes much, however, to the revenues of the trusts, and every dollar that it enables them to charge above a fair price is an unholy tax levied by them under the protection of the tariff law. Where tariff schedules are not "prohibitive," but only "protective," they yield revenues to the government, and who those revenues build up an enormous surplus in the treasury, drawing out of circulation millions of dollars that ought to be in circulation for the uses of business, injury is worked to the people.

But it is hardly worth while continuing an argument on this point with the Minneapolis Journal. No intelligent citizen of Minnesota needs to be convinced that a tariff which enables trusts to rob the people and which takes away from the people many millions more than the government needs is wrong, and that while in its iniquity it is comparable with royal farming out of taxes, the comparison is to the advantage of the royal method of oppression.

UNCLE SAM FINDS THEM.

Georgia, in experimenting with the new and popular doctrine of prohibition, is beset at the very outset with a painful doubt.

It is the same doubt that has beset every other state that had adopted prohibition: Will prohibition prohibit?

It probably will not, absolutely. It never has brought about the absolute suspension of the sale and use of liquor in any state.

But that is no very valid argument against prohibition. The law against theft is a prohibitory law, too, and it does not always prohibit. It prohibits everybody from taking property that does not belong to them, and every state has it; yet the courts in all states are kept busy trying thieves. So the law against theft does not eliminate dishonesty, nor does the law against murder invariably prevent homicide. But that is no argument against criminal law, and nobody is thinking of abolishing the criminal code.

But what is bothering Georgia just now is the discovery that under the state license law, by which every saloon was required to pay a tax of $300 to the state, more than half the saloons in the state escaped taxation last year. The Georgians are wondering whether, if the state authorities couldn't enforce the tax law better than that, they will be able to do any better with the prohibitory law.

Last year, through this tax, Georgia collected about $242,000, which at the rate of $300 each would indicate the existence in that state of 850 drinking places.

Yet in the same year the internal revenue department of the government issued 1,820 special tax stamps to persons authorized by the government to sell intoxicants in Georgia. Thus the federal taxes were paid by twice as many dispensers of liquor as paid the state tax.

This same condition exists in many other states besides Georgia. If figures were available, no doubt they would show that it exists in Minnesota as well. They are not available here because part of the licenses are issued by the cities, part by the villages, and part by the counties, and there is no state tax.

But it is a well-recognized fact that "blind pigs" or "blind tigers" pretty generally pay the $25 that entitles them to a government license, even though they evade payment of the state license fee. However, it should be said in passing that the government stamp is not a license, but merely the evidence that an internal revenue tax has been paid. This should be stated as an answer to those who accuse the federal government of licensing drinking places in violation of state laws. The government is nearly always able to find the drinking places and tax them, and the state authorities, apparently, have but indifferent success in the same effort.

North Dakota found a happy way of disposing of this difficulty. It provided that the names of all who pay the government tax shall be published, and the supreme court upheld the law. That ought to help the local authorities to do their duty. Minnesota should have such a law.

Those who are trying to stir up dissension in Democratic ranks in Minnesota where there is no occasion for dissension have found a worthy champion in the Duluth News Tribune.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

J. N. Doolittle, at the Lenox, has come from the Goldfield mining district, where they are having the trouble with the miners. He says that while the miners were apparently treated well by the mine owners, prior to the outbreak of hostilities, there has been an undertone of ill-feeling that was apparent to the careful observer. For one thing, the miners objected to changing their clothing after leaving the mine, claiming that this was undignified and indicated that they were dishonest and could not be trusted. Mr. Doolittle says that as a matter of fact much gold was carried out of the miners before the rule requiring the change of clothing went into effect. Of course, many of the men were entirely innocent of wrong doing, in this particular offense. Some of them objected against the enforcement of the rule, requiring the changing of clothing, but Mr. Doolittle is inclined to the belief that the most strenuous objections came from the miners who were guilty of carrying the gold ore from the mines.

Hours and certain rules and regulations also entered into the complaint that preceded the strike. Mr. Doolittle says that the war between unionism and the Mine Owners' association is so intense and bitter in the West, that some day the question must be settled by outside influence or there will be a labor fued that will rival the sanguinary events in the Idaho and Colorado mining districts.

He believes the state or government officials should endeavor to bring about a settlement between the mine owners and the miners. It was bitter war in the Idaho districts, with murder and bumb throwing, forming part of the bloody events that characterized the clash between labor and capital. Mr. Doolittle is inclined to believe that a similar program is likely to be enacted in the camps of the new mining district. The calling of the federal troops prevented bloodshed and the destruction of property. The strength of the Western Federation is well known to men who are conversant with mining operations in the West. It is jealous of this supremacy; it will take desperate means to sustain the prestige of iron rule, says Mr. Doolittle, and as the mine owners are equally tenacious of what they believe their rights, the struggle, unless forestalled by an outside influence, promises to repeat Western mining history in the Nevada district.

Things have quieted down for the present, according to Mr. Doolittle. The presence of the soldiers had a most pacifying influence on the miners. When they saw the government meant business they dropped the attitude of destructiveness and stopped threatening the lives of women. What looked like serious trouble, before the arrival of the soldiers from the government barracks at San Francisc, has quieted into a passive resistance to the conditions imposed by the mine owners. But Mr. Doolittle does not think that these conditions will be lasting—that is the present quietness; rather, he believes, it is the lull before the storm and thinks that unless some agreement is entered into between the warring parties there will ensue an outbreak of guerilla warfare that will rival the conditions in the camps of Idaho and Colorado.

* * *

There is a young Eastern college man who has been spending his vacation at the St. Louis hotel. Duluth is not his home, but he has some very good friends up at the Oliver Mining company's Coleraine property, and so came to Duluth to visit them. He secured an introduction to a young lady who lives out at Lakeside, and that charming residence district was the scene of his hair-raising exploit.

He had heard the reputation Duluth has for bears. He had the usual lurking fear of that animal that walks like man, and he didn't escape the warning to be careful when he stirred out of the city limits. He was told that in their more bold and reckless moods the bears ventured into the city proper.

He arranged to stage a sleigh ride on the evening before he left for college. He asked for the best horse they had in the livery. He is probably glad he got it, too, in view of what happened.

He took the young lady for a ride, had an awfully nice time, and began to think that Duluth was an awfully nice place, and that the young ladies, or at least one young lady, was particularly charming. Time passed quickly. It must have been nearly 12 o'clock when he helped the young lady out of the sleigh at her front door. Now for the home trip.

He was slowly jolting the road along the street car tracks, when suddenly something jumped out of the bushes and leaped clear over the sidewalk. It never hesitated, like Lot's wife, nor did it look back, but made straight for the sleigh.

The young man's hair defied the conventional clasp of his derby, and rose straight on end. He cut the nag a welt across the withers, and the prowling unknown and the sleigh and occupant were off at an even start.

They left the post together, with the horse and driver playing the inside of the track and the unknown entry skimming along toward the inside of the rail and laying back for the sprint for home. That livery nag could pick up its feet some, but pound the road as it would, the object in the rear kept right at the tail of the sleigh.

When the paved street was reached the pursuing creature slowed down and dropped out of the running, but the young man kept right on, and went by the police station at a rate of speed that made the speed ordinance look as helpless and foolish as a page out of Mary McLanes' autobiography.

He finally stopped when he reached the center of the city and took the foaming nag to the stable. Then he hit for the hotel, dodging every shadow on the street. The clerk said he looked pale and agitated when he asked for his key.

There is a certain young man in the East end who wears a black fur overcoat, and who is not backward in expressing his opinion of a man who will refuse to give a belated fellow-being a "lift" on a cold night when the cars are not running as frequently as they might.

THE WEATHER.

And still no winter in sight. Last night's lowest temperature was 15 degs., this morning it was clear, fine and beautiful, and the weather man expects the temperature to remain about the same tonight and tomorrow. He also predicts a continuance of the fair weather.

A year ago today it was mild and agreeable.

The sun rose this morning at 7:53, a minute earlier than the latest of the season. From now on the day will lengthen at both ends. The sun set tonight at 4:36, making 8 hours and 43 minutes of sunlight. Today is thirteen minutes longer than the shortest day.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A hurricane is central off the Carolina coast. During the past twenty-four hours it caused light to heavy rains in Gulf and Atlantic states and rather strong winds off the South Atlantic coast. Another storm is central over Lake Superior. It is attended by quite low pressure and mild temperature for the season, but has not thus far caused any precipitation of importance. The barometer is high throughout the far West and Southwest, but the barometer is again falling over these districts. A rise in barometric pressure over Manitoba has caused colder weather in the Red River valley. Indications favor continued fair weather in this locality tonigat and Wednesday, but no marked temperature change is anticipated in the meantime."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

The well known lumber firm of Duncan, Gamble & Co., which has long been one of the leading firms in the Duluth district, has dissolved partnership, James Gamble of St. Paul retiring. The business will be carried on under the firm name of Duncan, Brewer & Co., its members being D. A. Duncan, Charles A. Duncan and Frank A. Brewer.

M. H. Alworth to Svend Oleson and Hans Johnson, lots 7 and 9, Lake avenue, Lower Duluth, $600.

M. B. Harrison to B. D. Gibson, lot 4, block 55; lot 2, block 32, and lot 15, block 28, all in Endion division, $5,000.

The Duluth Cemetery association was formed last night at a meeting attended by nineteen citizens. Directors were elected as follows: For one year, Messrs. Swanstrom, Duncan and Longstreet; two years, Hunter, Upham and Miles; three years, Ray, Kendall and Markell.

Allereb J. Scott, brother of D. A. Scott, chef of the Merchants' hotel, was killed last night in a wreck on the Mackinaw branch of the Michigan Central railroad. He was an engineer.

Several members of the Gospel army have arrived in the city and leased the Parlor rink for their services. Those who arrived were Maj. Fishblatt, Capt. Blazier, Capt. Jennie Wall, Capt. Clark, Capt. Annie Kessler and Midget Johnson. The army is similar in methods and purposes to the Salvation Army.

Dr. Huff left yesterday for Chicago, where he will locate in the practice of his profession.

T. W. Brown of Grand Forks, well known in Duluth, and Miss Shapleigh of Crookston, sister of Mrs. Judd G. Stearns of this city, were married last Wednesday at Crookston.

Mrs. Julian Howard of Neenah, Wis., is visiting with Mrs. T. F. Sullivan. Mr. Howard was at one time a resident of Duluth, but removed to Neenah. He is now putting in a sawmill at Tower.

The Duluth Musical club presented "Pinafore" at the Grand last evening. Miss Belle Hendricks took the role of Josephine, Mrs. Nimmo was the Hebe and Miss Lucie Cullyford had the part of Buttercup. Other parts were taken as follows: Duncan McLeod, Capt. Corcoran; E. L. Cormany, Sir Joseph Porter; E. L. Eva, Ralph Rockstraw; George Johnson, Deadeye; E. W. Barker, Bill Bobstay; C. H. Eldridge, the Marine; Maurice Bywater, Tom Tucker.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Royalton Banner: As the time for election comes nearer there are some who wish that they had done as their conscience bid them.

Big Falls Compass: With the return of the New Year comes the petty routine of everyday life, with its constant duties and irritating concerns. Athwart its winding, pathless journey may we all play well the part assigned; performing tasks with pleasure akin to the cheerfulness of friendly faces. Let us go blithely about our work—and when the gifted dawn of another year shall have greeted us again, whether here or otherwhere, grant that it shall find us nearer the ideal of our better selves.

Anoka Free Press: "What is whisky?" asks an exchange. Well, years ago it used to be something which robbed people of their senses and their money, and of their families and their homes. It used to make paupers, beggars and tramps, and sometimes even liars, thieves and murderers. We hope it is different now, but haven't heard.

Anoka Free Press: While the presidential question may as yet be very much "up in the air," one thing connected therewith is already very certain, namely, that Governor Johnson of Minnesota will never play second fiddle to either Bryan or Roosevelt. The large contingency of American citizens throughout the United States who hold Johnson in higher esteem than they do either Bryan or Roosevelt, or both together, will attend to that part of the business.

Albert Lea Standard: Everywhere you go, in the big cities, in villages, in the country—on the cars, you find men, seemingly most of the intelligent classes, speak slightingly of political parties, and instead openly and in emphatic words for Right Men.

Anoka Union: It is beginning to look as though Governor Johnson might with impunity announce himself as a candidate for the presidency on the Democratic ticket.

Ortonville Herald-Star: Some of the proposed remedies for currency stringencies seem fully as promising and efficacious as some of the remedies proposed for a cold by your aged aunt.

Ada Herald: We would like to suggest to the Republicans and Democrats of Minnesota that they hold their state conventions at the same time and place, and the same delegates be empowered to participate in both conventions. This would save considerable expense and serve to strengthen the bond of harmony that exists between the two parties.

Crookston Times: Cannon is fast becoming the best hated man in national government life at the present time, and deservedly so. If any district in Minnesota sends a Cannon man to the convention, the whole constituency of that delegate should be tarred and feathered.

Austin Transcript: Milton D. Purdy, assistant to the United States attorney general, says that railroad rebating has been practically broken up by the government. We hope so, and that the companies will for all the future respect the law as well as the rights of the general public in refusing to play favorites in rates. Treat all alike is what a square deal calls for.

A FRIEND OF THE IRON RANGES.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Herald would respectfully request the Mesaba Ore to furnish a bill of particulars, stating when and how The Herald has ever erred in failing to accord strict justice to the range towns, or in refusing to deal with them courteously. Such a bill of particulars must in all fairness be supplied, or the charge against The Herald should be withdrawn.—Duluth Evening Herald.

Before now The Herald has called this newspaper on this identical proposition, and this newspaper cheerfully and honestly stated that the ranges have never had cause to complain of the treatment of The Herald, and it repeats the statement now with the same degree of honesty and cheerfulness.

The Ore cannot say the same for some of the other publications of Duluth, and it also repeats the statement honestly and cheerfully.

It was less than a month ago that Duluth's leading morning daily, under a big scare head, uttered the base and intentional libel that the seven murders that were committed in the county during the past year were directly traceable to the liquors sold at the blind pigs that exist on the iron ranges.

That is but a sample of the vicious knocks that are handed the iron range towns from Duluth, and the range editor that does not resent such treatment is not doing the right thing by the town that supports him.

There is much difference between knocking and defending. If in its defense of Hibbing and the Mesaba range it becomes necessary to knock, the Ore will knock, but it hopes it will not be necessary.

It is to the credit of The Duluth Evening Herald that it branded the murder story as a lie.

The Recalcitrant Furnace.

When father rises with the dawn,
Then there are lively goings on,
Awakens all his kin and kith
The while he toils and wrestles with
The furnace fire.

Dad gives each knob a lusty shake,
Declaring he will later take
Proceedings dire.
Of course he gets his nerves awry;
It's tough to be defeated by
The furnace fire.

The furnace is a sturdy foe,
It worries poor old father so
That in his ire
Some day he'll likely take a stand,
Go out and buy gas heaters and
The furnace fire.

Horrible Thought.

Baker City, Or., Herald: Some of the Republicans who seek to attend the national convention as delegates will probably change their minds when the thought presents itself that there will be no passes this year.

MERRY JINGLES.

Chicago Tribune: "Senator," said the correspondent, "you are quoted as advocating the abolition of capital punishment. How about that?"

"Well," asked Senator Lutsmunn, with a grin, "don't you think capital has been punished about enough?"

Baltimore American: Captain Medico—What was that maneuver just now, Master Navigator?

Navigator—Please, sir, they broke out her spinnaker.

Captain Medico—How careless of them! Let the spinnaker be put in splints immediately.

St. Louis Times: Jaggles—He's very proud of that youngster of his.

Waggles—Yes. He thinks he's a mechanical genius because the other day the boy took his watch to pieces.

Philadelphia Press: "Say, Burroughs," said Markley, "how about that $10 you've owed me since last year?"

"Of course, old man," said Burroughs, "why can't you let bygones be bygones?"

Washington Star: "Politics is getting to be wonderfully interesting," said the observer.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "it is mighty interesting. But between you and me, it isn't near as much of an investment as it used to be."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Did you get any useful presents?"

"Oh, my, yes."

"What were they?"

"Oh, a lot of books and things I can give away next Christmas."

Philadelphia Press: "That speech," said the vociferous statesman, "came from the bottom of my heart."

"Indeed!" rejoined the critical friend. "It sounded to me as if it came entirely from the top of the larynx."

Browning's Magazine: "I thought you named your play 'A Summer Rose.'"

"I did."

"But now you call it 'An Autumn Leaf.'"

"Yes. It was killed by a frost."

Chicago Tribune: Philadelphian (to visitor)—Colonel, we have seen most of the objects of interest in the city, I believe—all but one. We will go now and visit the mint.

Col. Bluegrass—That reminds me, judge; let's step across the way and have something befo' we go.

Philadelphia Ledger: Suddenly the lone woman awoke and, pressing a button, flooded the apartment with light. In the full glare stood a burglar.

"I don't wish to alarm you," she said to him, "but in just a minute the hour of midnight will strike."

He did not seem impressed.

"Are you aware," she continued, "that the coming of the hour will usher in the new year?"

Still he stood mute.

"And that it will be leap year at that?" she added.

Then it was that he fled into the darkness.

Bill.

When he gits his Sunday shave,
Hair all slicked an' parted down
On his forrid in a wave,
Bill's the sweetest thing in town,
Take him with the weekday crop,
Face all grimy, hair a mop,
He looks mighty tough, and still
It's Bill.

See him in his Sunday rags,
Cuffs an' collar shiny white,
I'm not makin' any brags;
He's a darlin' though, all right.
Take him in his weekday duds,
Overalls that need the suds,
Flannel shirt; he's fierce—but still
It's Bill.

Sundays Bill looks mighty fine,
Weekdays, though, he's not so gay,
That's all right, too. Him for mine,
He's my feller every day.
Git below the dirt an' grime,
May not look so sweet, but still
It's Bill.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "John, do you love me?"

"Yes."

"Do you adore me?"

"I s'pose."

"Will you always love me?"

"Ye—look here, woman, what have you been and gone and ordered sent home now?"

AMUSEMENTS.

Pneumonia Is Frequent And Fatal Disease.

According to mortality statistics, pneumonia is one of the most frequent and fatal diseases in the range of medicine. Dr. James Alexander Lindsay, an authority on diseases of the lungs, says that, while pneumonia may be a primary condition, it may also be secondary to other conditions, such as bronchitis, influenza, some specific fever, etc.

A common cold is most liable to develop pneumonia, if neglected. The attendant cough irritates the air passages and forms an inflammatory exudate which interferes with the free entrance of air.

To break up a cold quickly and cure any cough that is curable, there is nothing so effective as a mixture of two ounces of glycerine, half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine and eight ounces of good whisky. Mix thoroughly and take a teaspoonful every four hours. Five ounces of tincture of Cinchona compound can be used in place of the whisky with the same effect.

The ingredients cost little and can be obtained without trouble at any good drug store. To avoid the substitution of some inferior pine product for Virgin Oil of Pine, it is better to purchase each separately and mix them at home. The genuine Virgin Oil of Pine is put up only in half-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case with an engraved wrapper showing plainly the name, Virgin Oil of Pine, compound pure, guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, Serial No. 451, prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

The oils sold in bulk and cheap imitations put out to resemble Virgin Oil of Pine in name and style of package are ineffective for the reason that they are largely composed of a distillation from pine needles, or leaves, instead of from the pine tree proper. Pine needle oil is not intended for internal use, and when taken internally causes nausea. Its use is mainly confined to the manufacture of soap, and similar purposes.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CHIEF WAS NOT SLAIN

Bear Island Chippewa Died From Attack of Consumption.

Enemies of His Alleged Murderer Started False Reports.

Walker, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The son of the noted Chief Bug-a-ne-ge-shig, head of the Bear Island Chippewas, was not murdered by Maysh-quan-e-quabe on New Year's as was widely reported and generally acknowledged from evidence submitted at that time. Indian Agent Frater was made aware that a murder was committed at Sugar Point by news from Indians, who substantiated their story by producing four witnesses to the murder, and, consequently, lost no time in asking the county coroner and sheriff to go to Sugar Point.

Upon arriving at Sugar Point, the coroner ordered the body of the Indian exhumed, the same having been buried immediately after the death. The body, upon being examined, showed no marks of violence, but on the other hand had all the appearance of a tubercular victim, and an examination of the lungs convinced the coroner that the man had died from natural causes.

The body was brought to Walker Saturday and an inquest held, the facts being brought out that the man had died a victim of consumption and that enemies of Maysh-quan-e-quabe had endeavored to fasten the responsibility of his death upon him.

EACH ACCUSING OTHER OF CRIME

Father and Son Charged With Killing Wife and Mother.

Miller, S. D., Jan. 7.—Son arrayed against father—an ugly charge of murder, of which the wife and mother was the victim, furnish the motivation in the drama of real life which has opened here in the preliminary examination of Gustave Kammel, charged with poisoning his wife, by placing arsenic in her oatmeal.

The little room, dingy and not over well lighted, furnished the stage upon which the drama is being enacted, and son and gray haired father, with lawyers and the court, furnish the dramatic personae.

The gray haired old man sits sullen and silent at the hearing, showing no apparent uneasiness nor shock at the heinousness of the crime of which he is charged.

The unnatural relation existing between child and parent is shown in the attitude of the two in the court, boy and man glaring at each other vindictively and meeting and passing without word of greeting.

The son accuses the old man of having poisoned his mother, and of having nearly poisoned him, the boy, also. With equal vindictiveness the father charges that Mrs. Kammel was poisoned by her son, Fred, who, he says, used the colored wall paper, saturated in arsenic, to accomplish the deed.

REFUSED WORK; KILLS CAPTAIN

Cruel Manner Selected by Discharged Italain for Revenge.

Ironwood, Mich., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. William Thomas, superintendent of the Aurora mine of the United States Steel corporation here, was shot and killed by John Bendith, an Italian miner. One hundred and fifty men were laid off at the mine last week, Bendith being one of the number.

As Thomas was leaving his office Bendith asked him for re-employment and, being refused, fired three shots at the superintendent from a revolver, two of the bullets striking him in the breast.

The man had a .44 Colts revolver, causing the captain to fall at the first shot. He then fired two more shots into the prostrate body of the injured man.

A number of employes, upon hearing the shooting, ran to investigate, and were in time to witness the shooting, running up the road toward the old East Morrie mill. A posse of men pursued him, the fugitive turned around several times firing at random into their midst, but did no harm. He was cornered at the old mill, and, having run out of ammunition, was easily taken into custody and lodged in jail. The man came from Iron Mountain five years ago, at which place it is said he had been under the employment of Capt. Thomas.

ACCUSE THEM OF "SALTING" MINE

Well-Known Janesville Men Alleged to Have Fooled Buyers.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 7.—The defendants in the suit brought by Joseph M. Winter of Negaunee, Mich., and Randall P. Bronson of Ishpeming, Mich., against the owners of the Baxter mine at Cuba City, Wis., are all well-known business men of Janesville. They are Joseph M. Bostwick, Joseph L. Bostwick, Robert M. Bostwick, Jr., Stephen B. Lewis, George S. Parker and William F. Palmer. They are accused of "salting" the mine, and the plaintiffs ask that the sum of $10,000, alleged to have been paid by them as part of the purchase price be returned, and that the contract be annulled.

The plaintiffs allege that they casually met one F. J. Tucker, agent of the defendants, in Chicago, last June, and that he told them that the Baxter mine was a valuable property, and he could secure it for them at a reasonable price. Upon Tucker's representations, it is alleged, the plaintiffs opened negotiations with the defendants for the purchase of the mine. At the suggestion of the defendants, the plaintiffs visited the mine and inspected it, being shown through by Supt. James Burt, who would stop every few feet and pick loose big pieces of valuable ore, which he said were simply an indication of the large deposits in the mine, it is claimed.

CLAYTON IS SEARCHING FOR WIFE'S POCKETBOOK.

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 7.—That Frederick Clayton believes his wife was murdered is evidenced by the fact that scarcely had the jury returned their verdict before he begun planning to hire a boat and begin a systematic search along the river for her missing pocketbook and hat. "When we find that pocketbook," he said, "we will have learned who caused her death. It was heavy and would have sunk. When I find it I expect ti discover the note which she received before her death." The police are not as confident as Clayton, but assisted him in his search, starting near the Court street bridge, and working down to the sand bar, where the body was found.

HOUGHTON MAN DISAPPEARS.

F. L. Kinnee Drops Out of Sight and His Friends Are Worried.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Friends of F. L. Kinnee are greatly worried over his mysterious disappearance. Kinnee was formerly employed by the Hancock Gas company as stoker. After leaving the gas firm, he entered the employ of the International Correspondence school, where he was employed as a sort of solicitor and advertiser.

Kinnee was of average height, weighing about 160 pounds, and when last seen wore a light mustache. He was past 30 years of age. He left a large collection of valuable reading matter in his room, such as Ridpath's complete History of the World, Mumson's History of Rome and an encyclopedia set. These books are well bound and are worth considerable money.

It is said that papers have been found showing that the man had left his trunk at once place for board money, and it is believed that this, with other troubles, prompted him to leave.

NERVY MINNEAPOLIS GIRL

Puts Two Burglars to Flight and Saves Money.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unarmed and alone, Miss Johanna Strate Sunday night attacked and routed two armed robbers, whom she surprised while they were going through the flat of L. K. Naas in a duplex house at 1719 Eveleth avenue south.

Though one of the men placed a revolver at the young woman's head while the other stood guard at the front door to prevent her mother and two little sisters from entering the house, Miss Strate stood her ground and the burglars fled.

HIS CHANGE OF PLEA

Saved Accused Mail Carrier From Term in Penitentiary.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Armstrong, a Mail Carrier, accused of embezzling a money order, is thanking his lucky stars he changed his plea from guilty to not guilty, as at the conclusion of his trial Judge Amidon directed a verdict of acquittal.

Armstrong when first arrested, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to sixteen months in prison. He asked for permission to change his plea. This was granted. His trial started and only two witnesses for the government, Miss Newman and L. P. Neil, were examined, when Judge Amidon directed a verdict.

CAME RECENTLY FROM DULUTH, BOY IS DEAD.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—John L. Kilkelly, aged 15, died Sunday at the city hospital. He had been in Duluth and came home three weeks ago suffering with a dropsical affliction. The body was taken to the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kilkelly of the St. Croix house, South Stillwater. The funeral was held this morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Michael's church.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Aitkin—Fifty-eight marriage licenses were issued by Clerk of the Court Seavey during the year just closed, and it is gratifying to note that that number exceeds the record for 1906 by just four.

Roseau—The local flour mill commenced grinding again Monday. The mill has been turning out a first-class quality of flour lately, which has been greatly in demand. The prospects are good for a long run this time.

St. Cloud—John Kellerhaus, charged with wife-beating, was arraigned before Justice Weiser of Melrose. He pleaded not guilty to the charge and stated that he would fight the case. Owing to the illness of his wife the case has been set for next Friday.

Walker—Ernest Fleming of Bena is cutting 4,000,000 feet of timber which is located near Blackduck, operating three camps to do the work. The timber will be banked in Becker and Otter lakes and driven down Third river to Lake Winnebigoshish in the spring.

Moorhead—The annual meeting of the Clay-Becker Medical society will be held here Monday, Jan. 27. A number of papers will be read by physicians of the two counties, and the officers for 1908 will be elected. The meeting will be held at the residence of Dr. D. C. Darrow, president of the society.

Barneville—Great Northern officials, while here, laid off twenty-five men. The winter has been so mild that one train crew can do the work of three in ordinary winters.

Rushmore—More land has changed hands in the vicinity of Rushmare the past months than in any other period in five years. Well improved farms are selling at from $50 to $65 an acre.

Crookston—A thrilling phenomenon in the form of a falling star or meteor startled citizens here Sunday evening. A streak of light appeared in the western heavens and gradually increased in breadth. Finally, when apparently close to the earth, it burst like a Roman candle.

Stillwater—Harry Robert, son of Mrs. Margaret Beyl, died Sunday, aged 2 years. He was a son of August Beyl, who was drowned by falling off the steamer Bun Hersey in St. Paul.

Crookston—A. P. Utter of Duluth is spending the day in the city on business. Miss Edna Reid of Duluth was in the city Sunday.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—A deer was run down on the Copper Range railroad between Winona and Seager by the passenger train which leaves Houghton at 6 o'clock for Ontonagon. The deer was seen on the track, and although the whistle was blown to frighten the animal, it refused to move. The animal was attracted by the headlight.

Menominee—In police circles the past year has been unusually quiet, comparatively few arrests having been made. No serious crimes have been committed or attempted, the only two burglaries being that of the Grand Department store and Lundgren's drug store.

Calumet—The twenty-five new dwellings erected the past summer and fall by Contractor Johnson for the Allouez Mining company are completed and the employes of the company are moving into their new homes. The group of buildings is located near the No. 2 shaft, and is known to the residents of the old town as New Allouez.

Dollar Bay—Eugene Barcett is removing to Baraga, where he has purchased a tract of land from which he will cut out timber and commence cultivating in the spring.

Negaunee—All the electric wiring done in Negaunee will hereafter be inspected by Harry Trembath, manager of the Upper Peninsula Inspection bureau, who was appointed inspector by the council.

Houghton—The annual meeting of the Houghton County Agricultural association will be held next Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 8, at 2 o'clock.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Fargo, N. D.—The death of Miss Ella Berg, the 15-year-old daughter of Officer Ole A. Berg, of the Fargo police force, occurred at the home of her parents, Friday night, of pneumonia.

Jamestown, N. D.—The secretary of the interior and the attorney general have decided to send Ormsby McHarg of this city, as a special assisting attorney general to Oklahoma, and Texas to prosecute the cases growing out of the Kickapoo land frauds.

Fargo, N. D.—M. A. Dow, husband of Ruth Sullivan, was arraigned before Judge Ryan charged with being an inmate of a place of ill fame. He pleaded not guilty. He waived a jury trial. Judge Ryan found him guilty and fined him $100 and costs, the whole amounting to about $125.

Grand Forks, N. D.—It took a jury in Judge Templeton's court just fifteen minutes to decide that Anton Nelson of Northwood, was guilty of selling beer, although a jury at the June term and another at the November term failed to agree. Nelson was sentenced to serve ninety days in jail and pay a fine of $200 and costs of $100 and in default of payment to stand committed for sixty additional days.

Sheldon, N. D.—Dr. G. P. Aylen of this place has been appointed chief surgeon of the Northern Pacific railway's hospital at Billings, Mont. Dr. Aylen is one of the best known medical men of the state. He has a repetition as a skilled surgeon and his appointment is considered to be an execellent one.

Devils Lake, N. D.—Sheriff Balford has received a telegram from the war department requesting him to transport to Seattle John Moran, who recently gave himself up to the sheriff, saying he was a deserter from a battleship.

Kenmare, N. D.—W. H. Young's elevator, at Kenaston, on the Great Northern, seven miles west, burned Sunday evening. It contained 5,000 bushels of grain. The insurance was small.

Forman, N. D.—The Catholic priest at Geneseo, seventeen miles east of Forman, was charged with having violated the smallpox quarantine at that point by holding services in his church. He was fined by a justice.

Fargo, N. D.—Sixteen hours in a well, swinging a few inches above water and with one hand so badly injured that he could scarcely grasp the rope, was the experience of W. J. Ray, a bachelor homesteader of McKenzie county.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Oshkosh—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davies recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Their eight children and their families, thirty-one persons altogether, took part in the festivities. Mr. Davies is 76 years of age, and his wife is 74.

Marshfield — George Spang, who was sentenced in 1904 to five years in state prison on a charge of attempting to kill his wife, has been pardoned by Gov. Davidson.

Eau Claire—The home of the Gotzian shoe factory of this city has just been completed. In order to help a home industry many citizens subscribed for blocks of stock. The cost of the building was $20,000. The machinery is now being installed.

Appleton—The George Walter Brewing company and the Appleton Malting & Brewing company have agreed not to furnish any more buildings or fixtures for saloons, or to pay any saloon licenses. This is a long step toward wiping out dives, it is believed, as it is saloons that are owned by the breweries that have given most trouble.

Eau Claire—Charles Nolle, an Omaha road fireman, has gone insane from the effects of a blow on the head received while skating, and has been committed to an insane asylum.

Ashland — The Chequamegon ice company has staked out its ice fields, but as there is only about five inches of ice work has been deferred. Fifteen inches of ice is reported from interior lakes, and on Lake Lavina the ice has already been plowed and the snow scraped off, and there will be no delay in getting to work.

Chippewa Falls—The $50,000 high school building, given by A. B. McDonnell of this city to Notre Dame parish was Sunday, dedicated in the presence of a large number of citizens and clergymen. Appropriate exercises were held in the afternoon at which Bishop Schwebach of La Crosse, officiated.

Marquette—The Chicago & Northwestern Railway company has withdrawn all of its timbered lands in Wisconsin and Northern Michigan from the market, and will use them for the growth of tie and bridge timber for its 7,500 miles of track.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

TAINTED BREATH.

Everyone should take care to keep the breath sweet. It is a personal matter that should have constant attention. Nothing is more disagreeable to others than a person with tainted breath. It is usually caused by simple neglect of nature laws, and it without excuse. Keep the stomach sweet and the bowels open with Beecham's Pills, and the breath is as pure as an infant's. Bad taste in the mouth and coated tongue disappear after Beecham's Pills have been used. Take them occasionally as a sure preventive against tainted breath.

Cause of Excess Fat

The doctors claim the liver is at fault when one's fat becomes excessive. Exercising and starvation are usually prescribed, but both are dangerous. This simple home recipe, ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz. Syrup Simplex, taken one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, is far more satisfactory and safer. It takes off the fat very quickly without ill effects and costs but a small sum at any drug store.

OFFICERS SELECTED

The Structural Building Trades Alliance Holds Annual Election.

McEwen Addresses Carpenters—Woodbridge Makes Corrections.

W. E. McEwen delivered a lengthy address before the meeting of the Carpenters' union yesterday afternoon. The present labor trouble was reviewed in all its lights, and the speaker held out encouragement for the unions in their campaign against the non-union shop.

The Structural Building Trades' alliance held a meeting last night, and was addressed by W. T. Bainbridge, first vice president of the International Building Trades' alliance, and George W. Howley, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor. There was also an annual election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Edward Lowe; vice president, J. H. Powers; financial secretary, George F. Walters; corresponding secretary, William Harbour. Following the meeting there was a smoker, during which the situation was discussed in an informal way.

Dwight E. Woodbridge, secretary of the civic committee in the open-shop movement, in correcting a report published last evening, said today:

"In stating last night that I had said to the Ministerial association, in the course of an informal talk, that I 'doubted if plumbers were entitled to $5 per day when other skilled workers receive very much less,' you unintentionally misquoted me. The only reference I made to wages in my talk to the association, at its request and as its guest, was about as follows:

"'The open shop does not mean any fight against wages; wages as high as conditions will warrant are a blessing; it means no reduction from the union scale of pay. This is a constructive, not a destructive, campaign.'

"Later, in answer to a question, I said, as nearly as I can recall:

"'It is to a certain degree unfortunate that this movement occurs during a period of industrial depression. For any decline in wages that may possibly come hereafter, as the result of more men than work, will be laid to the open shop. Wages are based on the law of supply and demand, and this is far beyond any permanent regulation by either unions or other organizations. If the union scales in the Northwest are reduced—or raised—I have no doubt in my own mind that a corresponding and proportionate decrease, or advance will take place here. Wages here are higher than at most points in the Northwest, and they will doubtless continue so, for it costs more to live in Duluth.'"

In explanation of the correction, it may be said that reporters were barred from the meeting referred to, and therefore all information concerning it was received second-hand, from one who was present, making an error easily possible.

SIX CHARITY SISTERS

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 7.—What is deemed one of the most remarkable recoveries in the history of local medical science is that of Sister Mary Carmelita of the Charity order, who for the last eighteen weeks has hovered between life and death from burns sustained early in September by an explosion of turpentine and wax mixture.

In the last week a second skin grafting operation was performed on Sister Mary Carmelita, when three sisters of the order gave their skin to save her life. A short time ago Sister Carmelita submitted to the same operation, and three other sisters sacrificed their skin to aid in her recovery.

"DOCTOR DUFF" DEAD.

Intelligent Michigan Dog Finally Succumbs to Heart Disease.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—Duff, the most intelligent dog in the state, is dead at Wayne. It was a common sight to see the big, shaggy English setter accompanying his master, a physician, on his professional calls, carrying his medicine case in his mouth and walking proudly at his side. For this he was nicknamed "Doctor Duff."

Several times Duff has been poisoned, but his master always saved his life, until one day he became sick, and the doctor discovered he had heart trouble. All that medical skill could do was done for him, but within a few hours he died.

USES PHONOGRAPH TO CHASE OFF BURGLARS.

Mansfield, Iowa, Jan. 7.—Once more the phonograph has been called upon for greater service in a household, and this time it takes the place of a night policeman.

Richard Reilly, who lives near here, has all doors and windows of his house especially wired and connected with the talking machine. When the family retires at night he throws the switch, and from that hour the opening of any window or door will start the following from the phonograph in a gruff voice: "Get out of here, or I'll fill you full of lead."

MRS. GLYN'S HUSBAND

Keenly Feels the Notoriety That Her Book Has Caused.

London, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Elinor Glyn's husband curtly refused to talk about the trouble in New York and Boston over his wife's book when a newspaper correspondent called at his residence. Sheering hall, near Harlow, in Essex. He sent the words: "I never see interviewers or make statements for newspapers."

Clayton Glyn is a retiring man who feels keenly the notoriety his wife's advanced style of fiction brings upon her. So far from being associated with her in her ideas as to the mission of fiction, he is said to have prevented her publishing "Three Weeks" for several months.

Mrs. Glyn's book was strongly objected to here, and the correspondence originated in the Times protesting against it and other sex problem stories was issued about the same time, but to avoid giving them advertisement their titles were never mentioned.

The New York outcry has given a fresh start to the sale of "Three Weeks" over here, where it had begun to flag. London newspapers publish dispatches about Mrs. Glyn's trouble, but refrain from comment.

MANY BOATS BEING BUILT

Ship Yards Busy Turning Out New Lake Carriers.

Forty-Two Vessels Will be Added to Fleet.

The current issue of the Marine Review contains the information that forty-two vessels for the 1908 season are under course of construction. The vessels are being built in the various shipyards of the Great Lakes and will furnish a large addition to the present fleet of lake carriers.

The list includes twenty-six bulk freighters, two passenger boats, two package freighters, two fireboats, two dredges, one car ferry, one fuel lighter, one lightship, one tug, one sandsucker and three hopper barges. Of this program the American Shipbuilding company is building twenty, the Great Lakes Engineering works nine, the Toledo Shipbuilding company two, the Manitowoc Dry Dock company three, the Racine Boat Manaufacturing company two, the Polson Iron works three and the Collingwood Shipbuilding company three. Of the twenty-six bulk freighters the American Shipbuilding company is building seventeen, the Great Lakes Engineering works seven and the Toledo Shipbuilding company two. This list includes the Caldera, which was launched on Saturday last at the Bay City yard of the American Shipbuilding company, and the Koop, which was launched a couple of weeks ago at the Ecorse yard of the Great Lakes Engineering works. The American Shipbuilding company is rebuilding the City of Cleveland, which would have been delivered in June, 1907, had it not been for the fire. The program of the Great Lakes Engineering works includes the two package freighters building for the Rutland Transit company, which figures in last years' program. Omitting the Caldera and the Kopp, whose carrying capacity is figured in the lake launchings of 1907, the remaining twenty-four bulk freighters for 1908 delivery have a carrying capacity of 204,700 tons on a single trip, or 4,094,000 tons in an average season of twenty trips.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c

HIS HOUSE STOLEN.

Hon. G.E. Perley Offers $25 Reward for Arrest of Nervy Thief.

Moorhead, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are all kinds of thieves and robbers, but the latest to turn up is the fellow who stole bodily the house on the Hans Jacobson farm, on the west half of the northwest quarter of section 6, in the town of Atlanta, Becker county, east of Ulen. The farm is the property of Hon. George E. Perley of this city, and he naturally feels incensed that anyone should take such liberties with his property, and offers a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the miscreant.

LETTER TO COMMITTEE

W. E. McEwen Addresses an Open Letter to Its Members.

Claims Employers Are Not Living Up to Agreement.

W. E. McEwen, taking up the cause of the union men of the city, has addressed a letter to the members of the civic committee of the open shop, which sets forth several salient points in the present trouble.

His letter, addressed to the 100 prominent citizens who comprise this committee, is as follows:

Gentlemen: This letter is addressed to you because of our knowledge of your splendid standing in this community, and your record as gentlemen who enjoy the reputation of standing by any agreement you might make.

Because of your high ideas of honor, we believe that you would as readily condemn the repudiation of an agreement, as you would support those who stick by their contracts.

The question of the union or non-union shop can not be made an issue in the lock-out in the building industry without first disposing of the contracts made and entered into between the employers of labor and the unions involved. These contracts do not expire until May 1, 1908.

Under the terms of the existing contracts, the employers agreed to employ none but members in good standing in the several unions, the members of which were engaged in the construction of buildings in this city.

The controversy on the Sellwood building arose from the insistence by the Structural Building Trades' alliance to the adherence of the letter and spirit of the existing trade agreement.

The trade contracts between the employers and the unions are simply gentlemen's agreements, and a faithful adherence to their terms depends entirely upon the honor of the parties.

Neither can sue nor be sued for their violation, because they are made between unincorporated organizations.

In spite of these contracts, Duluth is now in the midst of an industrial conflict. Labor did not violate its agreement. The members of the Builders' exchange did. Should the tables be turned we would be deservedly rebuked for repudiating our contract.

In the strike of the ore dock workers, last summer, the Steel corporation laid particular stress upon the fact that the strikers had violated their oral agreement. The newspapers made much of the existence of the contract, and because of its alleged violation, public sympathy was against the strikers. So soon as we were able to exercise control over the men, we insisted upon them accepting the old scale of wages, and return to work, for no other reason than that they had violated their alleged oral agreement.

Union labor in Duluth has a reputation for carrying out its contract in every instance, and we have a right to expect the support of all fair-minded people in demanding that our employers abide by their agreement also.

With men who love honor, their prejudices or opinions relative to the "open" or "closed" shop would have no place in this contest until they were satisfied that in forcing the issue there was no violation of contract.

The employers might have made a mistake when they made a union shop agreement with labor, but nevertheless they made such a one, and they are no more justified in repudiating it than we would be if we had made a bad contract with our employers. There are often many objectional provisions in our agreements which we are obligtd to tolerate in silence until their expiration.

The paramount issue in this struggle is not the "open shop," as the employers and their allies would like to have us believe. The all-important question is the inviolability of contract. With so clear an understanding of the situation, will you persist in continuing as the allys of men who repudiate their most sacred of agreements?

Employers of labor have a perfect right to contest the question from the standpoint of their interests; the unions have a similar right, but none have the moral right to wage a strike, or force a lock-out, for the alteration of the existing contracts until their expiration. It would seem needless to argue such a point with gentlemen of honor.

Inasmuch as we believe that you misapprehend the situation, we now respectfully request that you use your good offices to prevail upon the employers to live up to all their solemn agreements.

Yours very truly,
W. E. McEWEN.

IS OPEN TO INVASION

W. J. Johnstone Says Coast People Take Present Condition Seriously.

People on the Pacific really see an alarming side to the slight diffrences of opinion between the United States and Japan over the treatment of the subjects of the Mikado, and the contemplated exclusion act, according to W. J. Johnstone, a former resident of Duluth, who has been living in Seattle for the past five years.

Mr. Johnstone has been visiting William J. Suffel at his home at 1531 East Superior street, and when seen by a Herald representative seemed to share the opinion that there is really cause for alarm in the present status of diplomatic differences with Nippon.

The people along the Pacific slope really believe that their cities would be destroyed by Japanese guns should a war between this country and Japan become a stern reality. From the northern coast point of Seattle to the southern extremity of San Diego, Cal., the people on the coast fear the invasion of the Japs.

They believe that their cities will be shelled and set on fire by the guns of the invading fleet. They say the Japs know the Pacific better than any other nation, and after they had wrought tremendous havoc on the coast cities, the American ships could do little but get together and prepare to avenge the siege on the coast towns, says Mr. Johnstone.

Many Americans believe that the Japs would lay siege to the Philippines. That would be the first natural point of attack. But, according to Mr. Johnstone, the coast dwellers believe that the fleet of the Mikado would continue on its path of invasion and bring the battle right to the coast.

Mr. Johnstone points out the lack of coaling stations in the Pacific, the unfamiliarity of American naval officers with its geographical conditions, the difficulty to be encountered in mobilizing a fleet to meet the Japanese attack, and the absolute unprepared condition of the general naval defense on the coast.

This is the sentiment upon the subject of war that is held by the people of the the coast. They see a menace in the war cloud that is not observed by the people further from the scene of the projected point of attack. They know more about the little brown man than do the Easterners. They are suspicious of his motives and they look with apprehension upon any clash with the yellow power.

Seattle is the coming city of the Pacific coast, believes Mr. Johnstone. Its growth during the last five years has been little short of phenomenal. The Alaska trade has stimulated the growth of Seattle, and its business and prosperity have increased apace with its increase in size. It has shown a steady increase in bank clearings, and business growth in general until the past three months, when the business depression has placed a temporary check on commerce.

They have felt the financial stringency in a more acute stage on the coast than in Duluth, says Mr. Johnstone. Men have been let out in Seattle and business in general has suffered from lack of capital and confidence of investors. Mr. Johnstone says that the railroads and lumbering interests are curtailing their business and that the whole commercial fabric of the coast seems to be suffering from the apparent lack of investing capital. He does not believe that the setback is more than temporary.

Mr. Johnstone regards Duluth, like all other former residents, as the next best place to the city where he is now living. He expressed surprise and pleasure at the growth of the city during his absence, and gave the opinion that Duluth would enter upon a rapid growth within a short period. Mr. Johnstone left for New York last night.

PET WOLF LIKES BLOOD.

Marshfield, Wis., Jan. 7.—(Special)—The call of the wild proved too much for a tame wolf which for the last two years has been a pet of the family of Boniface Enders, a farmer, and with all its savage instincts renewed by the taste of blood, it attacked and severely wounded Miss Mary Enders, the farmer's daughter. The animal was killed.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before the baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is women's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

DULUTH WINS CLOSE MATCH

Superior Curlers Defeated by One Up for Manley-McLennan Cup.

Probably the most exciting match ever played for the Manley-McLennan trophy was that at the Curling rink last night, when the Duluth curlers won from their Superior rivals by a score of 1 up. Every game of the four was close and evenly contested. H. H. Grace's victory over C. A. Duncan in the third game broke down the Duluth players' margins and the last game decided the match, with nothing to spare for Duluth.

GEORGE DIXON DIES.

Little Colored Featherweight Loses Long Fight With Drink.

New York, Jan. 7.—The greatest fighter of his time, and the winner of several hundred fistic encounters, George Dixon, the negro pugilist, familiarly called "Little Chocolate," died yesterday in the alcoholic ward of the Bellevue hospital, the victim of a long fight with drink.

He was practically penniless. He was 37 years old, and for many years held the title of featherweight champion.

George Dixon fought several hundred ring battles. His first was in 1886, when he whipped a boy named John Johnson, in Halifax, N. S. From that time until Terry McGovern knocked him out in 1900, and broke his heart, no man of his weight ever whipped him. He won the featherweight title in 1891 by whipping the champion Californian, McCarthy. Dixon won thousands of dollars in the prize ring, which he spent with convivial companions.

HERRMANN RE-ELECTED.

Cincinnati Man Will Again Head National Baseball Commission.

Cincinnati, Jan. 7.—Most of the opening session of the national baseball commission was taken up with the reading of reports of Chairman Herrmann and Secretary Bruce.

Chairman Herrmann's report showed that the commission has decided ninety cases during the last year, and that 3,057 letters and telegrams figured in these decisions. During the year the commission expended $106,348.05, of which $47,456 was paid in the championship series. Secretary Bruce's report showed that during the year the major leagues had paid $131,475 for players' transfers, and $82,026 for players purchased outright.

August Herrmann was then re-elected chairman, and John E. Bruce secretary of the commission.

A number of minor cases were decided. The Toledo American Association club was given sole title to Player J. J. Quinn, who, under the name of Jack Pickus had been signed by the Philadelphia National league club, the commission holding that he had not lived up to his obligations to the clubs to which he was assigned, and that his claim of bad treatment by Toledo was unfounded.

The committee from the National Association of Minor leagues, at the afternoon session, which was open to the public, presented a series of requests for changes in the national agreements.

Wins Mile Handicap.

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—Arthur Cole of St. Paul won the one-mile handicap in the Northwestern skating tournament here last night, defeating Charles Fisher of Milwaukee and John Carlson of Minneapolis. Time, 2:55.

Fisher won the three-mile open race in 9:17. Cole was second.

Hoppe Defeated.

Philadelphia, Jan. 7.—Albert Cutler of Boston defeated Willie Hoppe of Chicago here, last night, in the first game of the 2,000-point 18:1 billiard match by a score of 400 to 240. The match will continue today and Wednesday.

"JOHNNY AINT NO VIOLET"

Mother Reproves Teacher for Exceeding Her Jurisdiction.

Teachers in the public schools are sometimes called on to use a great deal of diplomacy in dealing with parents of children whose personal appearance or habits need correction, and it is necessary that the matter be brought to the attention of the parents. Occasionally the teachers find parents whom they are unable to reach with requests couched in diplomatic terms and they are compelled to write notes that go straight to the point, even at the risk of causing indignation.

A teacher in one of the West end public schools recently had such an experience and she is wondering what method she will attempt next to bring about the required results.

As the facts go, a family moved to the West end this year from a locality in one of the Southern states where cleanliness of person seems not to have been one of the cardinal virtues. A small boy belonging to the family, John by name, attended the West end school in question, but he was so dirty and ill-smelling in person that the teacher could no longer stand it, and she sought by all the persuasive means in her power to induce the boy to improve his habits and interview soap and water with more frequency. Failing to arouse his interest in this direction, the teacher, in desperation, wrote the mother a note, as follows:

"Please give John a bath. He is so dirty and smells so badly that I really cannot stand it any longer."

The next day John reported at school as dirty as ever, with the following note addressed to his teacher, from his mother: "johny haint no violet. don't smell him. lern him."

GRAFT ALLEGED.

Former Government Chemist and Ink Manufacturer Are Indicted.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Allegation of graft in supplying the bureau of engraving and printing with bulk dry color used in the manufacture of ink, resulted yesterday in the indictment by the federal grand jury here of Edwin M. Vandyck, formerly a chemist, and inkmaker employed in the bureau, and of Victor Bloede, president of the Victor Bloede company, manufacturers of fine inks and colors.

Vandyck and Bloede are charged in the indictments with conspiracy to defraud the government, the allegation being that they entered into an agreement by which Bloede was to pay Vandyck a portion of the money his company received from the government for the bulk dry color furnished to the bureau of engraving and printing.

Vandyck, it is alleged, in his position as chemist and inkmaker of the bureau, had to pass upon the samples of the color submitted by various manufacturers. It is charged that he fraudulently favored the Bloede company and that as a result of the conspiracy he was paid by Bloede, in the course of several years, between $70,000 and $75,000.

MAIL CARRIERS MUST NOT HANDLE BOOZE.

Washington, Jan. 7—Postmaster General Meyer has issued an order which has a direct bearing upon the prohibition movement. The order is as follows:

"It is hereby ordered that it shall be a condition of any contract hereafter entered into for carrying the mails upon star, screen wagon, messenger or special service route, that the contractor carrier shall not transport intoxicating liquor from one point to another upon such route while in the performance of mail service."

SHOWS BIG EARNINGS

Register of Deeds Palmer Files His Annual Report.

Office Had Net Earnings in 1907 Amounting to $6,946.15.

With earnings amounting to $17,081.94 in 1907, the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis county has broken all previous records since the county was organized.

The annual report of the register of deeds, M. C. Palmer, which was filed with the county board today, shows that the total earnings of the offices of the register of deeds and register of titles, both of which offices are under his management, were $17,081.94. The total expenses of the office, including clerk hire, amounted to $10,735.79, leaving a net cash profit to the county from the offices of $6,946.15.

This showing of business is largely in excess of the business transacted in the same offices for any previous year in the history of the county.

The monthly reports of the offices, on file with the county auditor, show that during the past five years of Mr. Palmer's administration the offices have netted the county a cash profit of $26,042.80.

Concerning the business of his office Mr. Palmer states as follows in his annual report:

"We have so systematized and arranged the working departments of the office that all instruments are returned to the senders with the proper certificates of record thereon, the day following their receipt. I believe that this is the only register's office in the state where this method has been adopted.

"There was a substantial increase in the business of these offices during the past year. The instruments received for record show a wonderful activity in the buying of homes and of business property in Duluth and on the Iron ranges.

"The applications for registered title under the 'registration act,' are numerous, consequently the Torrens business in this county is increasing rapidly. The cash profits of the registrar of titles office alone during the past year amounted to $1,500.

Beginning with the new year we have been receiving registration work amounting to over $3,000, and judging from the constant increase of business during the past year, it is presumed that the receipts of the registrar for 1908 will approximate $6,000. This will insure a net cash profit to the county of about $4,500.

"I believe that the time is not far distant when the amount of work to be done in the registrar's office will equal that of the office of the register of deeds and the fees will be fully as large as in the latter case. I am, therefore, of the opinion that the registrar's office should be under a separate management, but, of course, that is a matter for the legislature to determine.

"The number of clerks employed in these offices, and their compensation, is by law, fixed and determined by the board of county commissioners.

"In closing this report I wish to thank your honorable body for the very kind and generous treatment we have received at your hands in providing our offices with sufficient help, and for otherwise assisting us in performing our duties in a successful and satisfactory manner."

The following statement, taken from the balance sheet on file with the county auditor shows the net profit of the two offices by months during 1907:

January	$647.58
February	328.73
March	456.58
April	866.63
May	584.95
June	653.89
July	696.08
August	791.67
September	500.62

TRANSIT MAIL SUFFERS LOSS

Fifteen Packages Stolen Christmas Eve at Union Depot.

Thieves gained access to the transit mail sacks at the union depot Christmas eve, and stole fourteen or fifteen packages from the sacks. No clues as to who the men were, has been found as yet.

The transit mail is that which is transferred at Duluth, without being taken to the postoffice at all. The sacks are left in charge of the baggage transfer at the union depot. It is not certain just how much mail was stolen, but this probably will be brought out by claims which will be instituted later.

The fault lies with the transfer men, and not with local postoffice employes, it is claimed. This is the first robbery of the kind that has occurred in Duluth.

BEGGARS MAY BE GRAFTERS.

So Rockefeller, Jr., Wouldn't Give Without Investigating, He Says.

New York, Jan. 7.—Speaking on "What are the dangers of helping the poor, those who are absolutely dependent upon the community?" John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in his Bible class Sunday, said:

"What is needed is more wise and intelligent help for the poor, rather than the sentimental and unwise help—the help which leads to permanent betterment," he said. "The more practical way to deal with cases in the street is to provide one's self with meal tickets.

"There is probably no one among these beggars who deserves, or who wants the help which he asks.

"It is better to decline to give to a beggar in th street if you cannot investigate than to give without a knowledge whether you do good or harm."

WINNIPEG MAY BUY CITY'S TROLLEY SYSTEM.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 7.—There is a well authenticated rumor in civic and government circles that the city will buy the electric street car and electric lighting and power systems. These are all under the MacKenzie and Mann jurisdiction.

The recent purchase by the government of the Bell telephone system in Manitoba has given a great incentive to public ownership in this province. The facts of the case are almost parallel. The Bell telephone sold out, it is said, because it was apprehensive of the threat of government of competition. The MacKenzie and Mann interests, which control the electric railway system in this city, are equally apprehensive of the proposed civic power system at Pointe du Bois, on which the city has expended already a quarter of a million of dollars, and which can supply power at $20 a unit, as against $45 by the MacKenzie and Mann system.

Negotiations have been under consideration for some time for the transfer of the whole system, lock, stock and barrel.

THE BOARD OF TRADE

Of Chicago Instigated Suit Against Woods, Says Lind.

Government Makes Protest and Judge Smooths Things Over.

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Woods case before Judge Morris of the United States district court, was enlivened today by the flat-footed statement on the part of Governor Lind that the prosecution of the four Woods and the other two defendants was brought about by the machinations of the Chicago board of trade.

The statement of the attorney for the defendants was excepted to by District Attorney Houpt, who addressed the court on a question of privilege, and after Governor Lind had apologized for any imputation which his language might have cast on the district attorney, the court added a few soothing words and the proceedings went on.

M. J. Johnston, assistant cashier of the Forest City (Iowa) National bank, was on the witness stand, and it was at the conclusion of his re-direct examination that Governor Lind said he wished to ask the witness a few questions.

"Have you ever met Mr. King of the Chicago board of trade?" Mr. Johnson was asked.

Mr. Ewart interposed an objection, whereupon Governor Lind arose and vehemently declared that he purposed to show that the prosecution of these defendants has been brought about through the machinations of the Chicago board of trade. The objection was sustained by the court and then Mr. Houpt arose to a question of privilege.

Houpt Takes Exceptions.

"While I am sure the attorney for the defendants did not mean just what he said, I wish to take exception to the language used in court. This prosecution was instituted in accordance with our oath of office and not otherwise."

The court attempted to smooth things out by saying it must be assumed the district attorney's office may get its testimony from any available source, concerning which no criticism can prevail in court, and that the government's attorneys are progressing in accordance with their duty as they see it. But Mr. Houpt was not ready to be choked off, and he continued:

"It has been charged heretofore in the trial of this case that the testimony of a witness had been manufactured, and now it is charged that the prosecuton was instigated by the Chicago board of trade. These things have been lugged in here for a purpose. It is time for us to speak, and we do speak. It was not the Chicago board of trade, nor any other influence which instigated us except our oath of office."

Lind Apologizes.

Governor Lind replied: "If I, on the spur of the moment, said one word derogatory to the professional conduct of the district attorney or as to his motives, I wish to apologize to the court. I referred only to events in connection with the case which transpired before the prosecution was undertaken by the district attorney."

This explanation was accepted in good part by Mr. Houpt, and after a few conciliatory remarks by the court, the incident passed.

Today's proceedings were otherwise featured by the introduction of testimony bearing on the receipt of money from its customers by the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company and the company's method of doing business with its customers. Mr. Johnson was on the stand during the entire forenoon session, and the government secured the admission of his testimony only over the objections of the defendants' attorneys.

Mr. Johnson identified a draft for $200 which he sent to the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company in September, 1906. The letter accompanying the draft was not in the hands of the government and when Mr. Ewart asked the witness for a statement as to the contents of the letter, Judge Luse for the defense interposed an objection on the ground that the letter itself would be the best evidence.

Defendants Have Letter.

"The letter, your honor, has been traced into the hands of the defendants, and for that reason the government is unable to produce it," said Mr. Ewart.

"Well, it may have been traced into the hands of the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company," replied Judge Luse, "but not into the hands of the defendants."

The attorney for the defendants then went through his papers and brought forth the letter, voluntarily tendering it. He said the letter had come into his possession in other litigation in which the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company was interested.

The witness identified the letter, saying he had received a letter from the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company acknowledging the receipt of draft and letter. Both draft and letter were then offered in evidence.

Objection was made by Judge Luse to the letter because of variances with the letter set forth in the indictment, the variance being not merely a matter of language, but of substance and by Governor Lind because the receipts of the letter was not overt act which under the conspiracy statute could be construed as something calculated to effectuate the alleged conspiracy scheme.

More than half an hour was taken up in the discussion of whether or not the letter should be admitted as evidence, the greater part of which time was used in hunting for books.

The Court Rules.

The court finally ruled that under the indictment the government must be required to show that a conspiracy was entered into, and the offense the defendants conspired to commit.

Judge Morris held that the taking out of the letter from the United States mail could properly be shown as an overt act under the conspiracy section, and he also held that the question as to variance with the indictments was not fatal, for the indictment did not pretend to set forth the exact language of the letter.

This was the first attempt by the government to offer in evidence testimony as to money actually received by the defendants in their alleged bucket shop deals.

The letter instructed the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company to purchase for the witness forty shares of American Car & Foundry stock, and the $200 draft was to cover the margin.

The witness identified statements of his account with the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company, received by him through the mail, and it appeared from these statements that the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company had him charged with forty shares of American Car & Foundry stock at 49¾ shortly after the receipts of his letter in September, 1906. The stock was carried until June, 1907, when it was closed out for the customer at the purchase price, 49¾. Meanwhile, according to the statements, he had purchased two separate blocks of twenty shares each, one in January and the other in March, 1907. There was an interest charge of $27.07 on the statements, and an entry showing a net loss of $122.70.

The witness said he had received regularly the daily and weekly market letters of the company.

The cross-examination was conducted by Judge Luse and he secured from the witness acknowledgment that he had been doing business with the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company pretty much all the time subsequent to the time the company succeeded the Edwards-Wood company.

Mr. Johnson said the statements in evidence did not cover his full account with the company; that he had received other statements, and that he bought and sold stocks on margins.

He identified a number of telegrams which he had sent to the company directing the purchase or sale of stocks, and said that his dealings involved quite a number of other stocks.

"Did you deal in St. Paul and Reading stocks also?" Judge Luse asked.

"Yes, I believe so."

"Did the American Car & Foundry stock carry any dividend?"

"I think so."

Got a Dividend.

"Did you receive a 2 per cent dividend on this stock shortly before you closed your account with the company in June, 1907?"

This question was objected to by Mr. Ewart, but the court allowed it to stand, and the witness said he did receive such a dividend.

"Have you dealt with other brokers in stocks?"

"I have."

"Are you aware that other brokers charge interest on long stocks and pay dividends on dividend paying stocks?"

Mr. Houpt here took a hand in objection to the defendant's line of inquiry, saying that the government's contention is that the stocks were not bought in the market by the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company; that the defendants simply accepted the order from the witness and then assumed to charge him interest, when in fact the order was not executed. Mr. Houpt contended that nothing could be gained by extending the inquiry into the methods of brokers who actually execute orders given them by their customers.

"We have heard a good deal about the government's contention that orders were not placed, and we think we have a right to our own contention that the orders were placed," replied Judge Luse.

But the court ordered the cross-examination be confined to the particular transactions in evidence.

Never Called for Delivery of Stocks.

The witness said he had never called for the delivery of stock which he ordered purchased for his account, and he knew that if he did call for the delivery of the stock he would have to pay the full purchase price.

On re-direct examination Mr. Johnson said he allowed the interest charged with full belief that the stocks had been actually purchased for his account, and the interest charge was based upon the difference between the purchase price and the margin which he put up with the company.

The evident purpose of the cross-examination was to show that the business of the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company was conducted just as the business of accredited commission houses is conducted.

THIRTEEN TRUE BILLS FOUND

Thirteen indictments were returned by the grand jury this afternoon, but only four of them were made public, the other nine persons wanted, not being in custody.

An indictment was returned against Harry Reau and John Latour, charging them with robbing Fred Wilkins of $45 on Jan. 1 in Duluth. Robbery in the second degree is charged.

Frank Donnovich is charged with assault in the second degree. He is claimed to have shot Peter Manich, in the town of Stuntz on Dec. 15, 197.

Grand larceny in the second degree is the charge against William Gokey, who is claimed to have stolen $27 from Jacob Nastrun on Dec. 12.

OLD BUILDING GOING.

New York, Jan. 7.—The old assay office, said to be Wall street's oldest building, is about to be torn down. Some time ago work was begun on the rear portion of the building, and within a short time the facade, which has been a landmark to all who have known the street since 1823, will disappear. A modern 12-story building will occupy the site of the old building, and will be used for the assay office.

Columbia January Suit Prices

Even during a cheap sale we continue to remind you that Quality must be the first requisite. There are a good many cheap suits in the market, and it is said that some of them have found their way into certain stores along Superior street. Now, don't think you are saving money by buying a cheap suit. It's poor economy to buy them at any price.

Here Are Good Suits Cheap, But No Cheap Suits.

Columbia suits come mainly from the famous "Stein-Bloch" and "Sincerity" Wholesale Tailor Shops, and our general policy to stand back of every article we sell and "to make good" is not abrogated during a special sale.

ACTOR IN BATHROBE

Startled Noon Hour Crowd in Lobby of Hotel.

Red Sox and Underwear Drove Women to Shelter.

Guests at the Lenox hotel were startled at noon today by the appearance of a tall man walking around the lobby in a flaming bathrobe. It was just at the time that the lobby was crowded with men and women, and the appearance of the vision in negligee attire and cross-bar stripes made a distinct impression.

The two girls on guard at the dining room turned away in embarassment, while the girl at the cigar counter immediately got busy arranging the boxes of Perfectos in the case behind the counter. Several women passing to and from the dining room pretended not to see the stalking figure.

He was pretty hard to ignore at that, for the wall paper effect of the dressing gown, coupled with the cardinal sox and—well, lavender underclothing that was just visible above the sox, just above where the dressing gown ceased to exist, presented a color scheme that drew the eye.

He was an actor from one of the local theaters and came down from above to answer a long distance call. After he answered the call, he answered another one, from one of the hotel proprietors.

All agreed that the occurrence was novel and original, but that if it occurred every day it would prove just a trifle wearing upon the nerves, not to speak of the eyes.

CIVIC CLUB WILL MEET.

Park Pointers Will Keep Up Fight for Fire Protection.

The Park Point Civic club will meet Thursday evening an dtake up the question of gaining better fire protection for property owners on the Point. Pressure will be brought to bear on the fire board to comply with the request of the property holders, and the report of the delegates who were appointed to present the views of the property owners before the board, will be heard.

The question of a 5-cent fare and a free transfer, on the Park Point line, will also be taken up at the meeting.

Alderman Burgess states that a great effort will be made to secure from the fire board some promise of better fire protection on the Point. So far the fight of the citizens has met with no success, but, according to Alderman Burgess, they are determined to continue the fight until some assurance is given of a more adequate fire fighting system.

IMPORTANT CASE

Concerning the Selling of Liquor on the Indian Reservations.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 7.—Upon an agreed statement of facts, the case of E. P. Wilkinson, charged with introducing liquor on the Black Foot Indian reservation, was submitted to Federal Judge Hunt yesterday.

It is said this is the most important case to the Indian department that has come up in years, for if the government loses it, it will mean that saloons may be established on every reservation traversed by a railroad.

MISS FLORENCE GILL

Has severed her connection with the Flaaten Conservatory of Duluth and has opened a studio in Superior, Watkins block, rooms 23, 24, 25. YOUNG WOMAN WILLS BRAIN TO SCIENCE.

New York, Jan. 7.—Miss Louise Randolph, a young woman who is credited with possessing an unusual memory, has decided to will her brain to the Anthrometic society, that it may be studied by scientists, when under the operation of the immutable law she will have no further use for it. It is said that Miss Randolph is the first woman to make this disposal of her brain.

HOW TO DRINK WATER.

English Physician Tells How to Prevent Dyspepsia by Its Use.

The importance of the art of drinking becomes apparent when we are reminded that more than two-thirds of the weight of the human frame is made up of water, and that life is dependent upon those vital changes which are constantly succeeding each other in the various fluids of the body, says the London Mail.

When is the time to drink? I say any time except during meals.

The food should never be washed down by any other fluid than the saliva. Were this rule more strictly observed we would hear much less of dyspepsia and fewer people would be overburdened with an undue deposit of fat. When the meal is finished, the food having been thoroughly incorporated with the salivary and gastric secretions, you may take what fluid you feel inclined for, and there is no limit as to quantity. My conviction is that we do not drink half enough between meals. If we keep the skin and other organs actively employed by imbibing freely of non-alcoholic beverages—and it is impossible to overtax them if we confine our drink to what nature has provided for us in the way of fluids—we will be rewarded by enjoying all the comforts of a pure and, therefore, healthy blood stream, for the simple reason that every organ of the body will benefit thereby. The art of drinking may be cultivated with great advantage for two most important purposes at least—the first, to promote health; and the second, to assist in the restoration of health.

We should never overlook the fact that there is constantly being accumulated in the blood not only waste matter, resulting from chemical changes taking place in the upkeep of vital energy, but also toxins absorbed from the intestine. Now the blood can oly be freed from this noxious material by means of the lungs, skin, etc., so it is not difficult to see that the more actively employed these important organs are kept the healthier the individual as a whole will be maintained. When, therefore, active exercise is withheld, as in sedentary occupations, it is not difficult to conceive there will be a tendency toward an accumulation of effete matter within the vital fluid, and it will be accentuated if the atmosphere of the apartment which the person occupies becomes vitiated in consequence of deficit ventilation; lethargy, loss of appetite and dyspepsia will as a rule supervene; the health as a whole will sooner or later suffer, and if this unhygenic mode of life is persisted in changes in the blood will be certain to follow, which in all probability will culminate in gout, or possibly Now such a catastrophe would be much less likely to ensue were the simple precaution of drinking from half a pint to one pint of water during the forenoon and also during the afternoon resorted to.

It will also prove a wise proceeding if men of sedentary habits, especially would during the process of dressing slowly sip at least a pint of hot water. This would stimulate the circulation in the lungs, skin, etc., and prove of immense service in promoting the secreting power of those important organs, and at the same time prepare the stomach for the reception of food. While this advice is specially directed to those who are deprived of necessary exercise, it will also prove of service to those who are fortunately situated. These organs, let me add, can never be overworked if they are supplied freely with the fluid which nature provided so liberally for our use.

On the other hand, when an abundance of exercise enters into the daily life, whereby the circulation in the skin and mucous membrane of the lungs is augmented—it may be to the full expansion of the network of blood vessels which ramify in every direction over the surfaces—the loss of fluid from the blood will create a demand for liquids which it will be impossible to resist. Then, by flushing the blood by means of repeated supplies of water in one form or another, while the secreting surfaces are in active operation, the vital energy of every organ of the body is benefited, as the more freely these secreting membranes act the greater amount of waste material will be aliminated from the vital fluid.

Of course, it is not obligatory to confine our beverage to water as it is provided by nature. It is essential, however, that whatever be the source of supply, this must be uncontaminated. I need hardly state that there is even now, though to nothing like the extent that formerly was the case, an enoromus amount of disease contracted from drinking impure water. The disappearance of cholera and the diminution of typhoid fever and diphtheria are entirely due to an improved water supply.

1. Two tumblerfuls of hot water before breakfast.
2. At breakfast a large cupful or two, if desired, of tea, which has not been infused for more than three minutes. This will prove quite sufficient to abstract all the aromatic constituents of the leaves, which are comparatively innocuous, while the undesirable tannin and gummy extracts will be left behind, and it is to the latter the injurious effects of tea drinking are chiefly due. I would repeat, however, that this portion of the meal should be left until all the solid portion has been disposed of.
3. During the forenoon and afternoon either plain or aerated water may be the beverage, and to the amount previously indicated.
4. After luncheon either a tumblerful of water, a bottle of ginger beer, ginger ale, or lemonade, soda or milk, or half a pint of cider.
5. The same after dinner; and
6. Before retiring a tumblerful of cold or aerated water or milk and soda. Of course there will be other fluids partaken of during the course of the day. These will consist of the watery constituents of the food, of which more particularly mention may be made of milk, fruit and vegetables, all of which should enter to a large extent into the dietary.

The skin must be kept thoroughly cleansed by a bath every day, followed by a smart rub down with a rough towel. Great advantage will also be reaped by a visit to a Turkish bath two or three times a week, or, what is not a bad substitute, a cabinet bath may be used in one's bedroom three or four times a week. This should be followed by a tepid bath or a sponge down tepid water, after which great comfort will be experienced, to be succeeded by refreshing sleep. If there be a tendency to gout or rheumatism, these hot-air baths will be of immense service.

So much, then, for the art of drinking as a preservative of health. Let us now consider for a little how these may be taken advantage of as a restorative to health. As a rule we will find that a great proportion of ill-health has its origin in some disorder of the digestive organs, and ample experience has taught me that dyspepsia is not only one of the commonest complaints that come under the notice of the physician, but also is the origin of a host of secondary maladies, a great number of these being due to the presence of uric acid in the blood. Error in diet and overindulgence in stimulants have much to answer for in these circumstances. It is not, however, my intention to deal with dietetics at present, but as uric acid poisoning is invariably due to the ignoring of nature's demands in this respect, and as gout and rheumatism are the direct results, it would be hardly fair if I did not call attention to the fact.

Let me, then, point out in what manner the art of drinking may prove of service in certain disturbances of the stomach, especially that condition which is designated catarrh. When this is present we know the mucous membrane is in a state of sub-acute congestion. The invariable result of this is a deficient secretion of gastric juice and an excessive secretion of mucus. The consequence is that when food enters the stomach it does not digest as rapidly as it should do. Now, when this is the case, fermentation is certain to follow. The distress produced by fermentation extends to the heart and lungs, whose movements are frequently considerably impeded, giving rise to palpitation and breathlessness. It is then imperative that the diet be modified, and relief will be afforded by sipping a tumblerful of hot—very hot—water about half an hour before each meal.

THE INTELLIGENT GAMECOCK.

New York Sun: A natural inclination for all kinds of sport led me at one time to atted a cocking main. A white cock, announced by the referee as a "spangle, weighing six pounds and eight ounces," was opposed by a magnificent looking "black-red game-cock of six pounds and ten ounces."

Without the preliminary ground pecking and wheeling common in barnyard disputes, these deadly armed little gladiators flew immediately at each other, striking viciously with their heels, sharpened wing tips and powerful beaks. It is doubtful if either bird was aware of any injury so fiercely did they continue to battle. In the third fly the white cock became "feather blinked," which is to say that a small feather was stuck upon the surface of the eyeball, making it impossible for the bird to see out of that eye.

As it happened, the write cock's adversary was hard pressed for wind and squatted at this moment to regain his breath, and it was then that the white cock deliberately raised his left claw, and after two or three ineffectual dabs at the blinked eye, on the next attempt cleared the offending feather from his eye and immediately dashed again at his recovering foe. Subsequently in the same fight the white cock's beak became clogged with feathers and they were removed in the same manner.

The cocks were about evenly matched in strength and endurance, but the red cock could not maintain the fight against such an intelligent adversary, and so it was not long before he assumed that position so often seen in old English sporting prints, viz., dead in the pit, with the victor crowing over the body.

There will be many to discredit this story, but the incident happened.

Pittsburg Gazette: The impression that William H. Taft, secretary of war, is a Catholic is erroneous. He is not and never has been a member of that church. Mr. Taft is a Unitarian and, with his son, attends All Souls' church here in Washington.

But the Taft family is not unanimous upon the subject of religion, as Mrs. Taft and her daughter are Episcopalians and are attendants of St. John's church. A year or two ago Helen Taft was confirmed at St. John's by Bishop Satterlee. This summer while the secretary of war was enjoying his vacation at Murray Bay, Canada, he attended services regularly each week, but as there was no Unitarian church in the village he went to a church of another denomination.

It is presumed that the rather general impression that Taft is a Catholic gained currency by his liberal treatment of the Catholic church authorities in the matter of the friar lands and in other matters while he was governor of the Philippines and since he became secretary of war. The price awarded to the vatican for the lands in the Philippines owned by the friars and taken by this government when it assumed sovereignty over the Islands was considered by many to be in excess of the real value of the property. But Secretary Taft was not disposed to haggle over the price. He preferred to pay a liberal amount and have the friendship of the Catholic church, which, he realized, could exert a strong influence toward the pacification of the islands. This policy was approved by President Roosevelt and congress, but it doubtless is what gave the impression that Mr. Taft himself was a member of the Catholic church.

STOCK CASE IS ON TRIAL

F. B. Clark Sues A. E. McManus for Return of $2,000.

Defendant Claims Clark Got Exactly What He Bargained for.

The trial of the civil action brought by Fred B. Clark against A. E. McManus to recover $2,000 on an alleged stock deal was begun in Judge Cant's room this morning.

Mr. Clark claims that Mr. McManus induced him to take some stock of the Apache Development company, for which he paid $2,000.

He claims that Mr. McManus sold him the stock on the representation that it was some that he, McManus had procured from John Pemberthy, one of the men interested in the development enterprise, but that he afterwards discovered that Mr. McManus unloaded some of his own stock.

Mr. McManus admits that the Apache Development company was formed to develop some lands in New Mexico, under which it was supposed there was copper ore. He says the company had an option on the property, but permitted it to expire when the exploration work developed nothing of value, the men interested in the enterprise charging themselves up with experience.

Mr. McManus alleges that Mr. Clark importuned him for some of the stock on several occasions and became so persistent that he, McManus, finally induced John Pemberthy to assign some of his stock to the plaintiff for $2,000. It is claimed by McManus that Mr. Clark got exactly what he bargained for, that he expressed himself as fully satisfied and that it was after the mining proposition turned out worthless that Mr. Clark "squealed" and wanted his money back.

Victor Stearns represents Mr. Clark and H. B. Fryberger is trying the case for Mr. McManus.

SERVICES OF PRAYER

In West End Churches Nearly Every Evening of Week.

Several West end churches are observing a week of prayer, and meetings are scheduled for every evening of the week, except Saturday.

At Grace M. E. church the meetings begin at 7:30, and last an hour. The pastor, Rev. J. R. Davies, spoke last night. No meeting will be held Saturday evening.

Rev. H. K. Madsen, the pastor, spoke at the prayer meeting at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church last evening. After the meeting, the annual election of officers of the Sunday school took place. J. J. Moe was re-elected president and superintendent of the school, and the other officers named were: Vice president, P. L. Morterud; secretary, Chris Christianson; assistant secretary, Carl Thiseth; treasurer, Miss Kate Aronson; librarian, Hjalmar Peterson; assistant librarian, Joe Hanson. All of the twenty-seven teachers were re-elected.

Meetings will be held every night, except Saturday at the First Norwegian-Danish church. The pastor will be assisted by Andrew Lund, Richard Jenson and Andrew Peterson.

Rev. A. Edstam, the pastor, conducted the services at the First Swedish Baptist church last evening. Carl Person, president of the Young People's society, will speak this evening, and tomorrow evening, A. Thoren, superintendent of the Sunday school, will speak. The Thursday evening meeting will be conducted by Mr. Edstam. John Hurtig will speak Friday evening, and George Carlson, Saturday evening.

JUDGES CALL IT DRAW.

Cannot Decide Whether Boys or Girls Are More Expensive.

In an impromptu debate at their regular meeting last evening, the members of the Bema club of the West end tried to decide whether it was more expensive to bring up boys or girls, but at the conclusion of the arguments, the judges declared that the honors were about even, and were unable to give the decision to either side.

Matrons of experience might have been able to decide which sex was the most expensive to rear, had they been present, but the meetings of the Bema club are stag affairs and the judges who heard last night's talks, pro and con, could not determine to which side should go the medals.

The subject of the debate was not selected until all the Bemaites had gathered, but that did not make the discussions less interesting. Without any preparation whatsoever, the club members threw themselves into the debate and some good arguments were brought out in the course of the evening.

The club did not set a date, last evening, for the annual banquet of the organization, which was to have been held last night, but which was postponed on account of the absence from the city of several of the members.

Charming Wedding.

A charming week-end wedding was that of Miss Emma Anderson and Peter C. Nelson, which took place Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Anderson, at 1912½ West Second street.

A large company of guests was present and the rooms were tastily decorated for the occasion. The knot was tied by Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Myrtle Bardsley has returned to Minneapolis to resume her studies at the state university, after spending the holidays with her parents in the West end.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Mrs. O. G. Hagberg, 1825 West First street.

It's worth while to see our hats; none better; bring your old hat—we'll make it new. Pearson's, 1814 Piedmont avenue west.

The Epworth league of the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church will hold a business meeting and literary session at the church this evening. This will be the first gathering the society has had this year.

Waldimir Moe has returned to his farm at Fort Totten, North Dakota, after spending several weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Moe, in the West end.

1907 imported cod liver oil. A. E. Swedberg, 3 E. Sup. St. and 2015 W. Sup. St.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Connell of the Osborne flats have returned from St. Paul.

For weak lungs, use the Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, sold at the Lion Drug Store.

Miss Lela McIntyre of Piedmont avenue left yesterday for Detroit, Mich., where she will be the guest of her sister.

The alumni association of the Adams school will meet there this evening at 8 o'clock. Some important business is to come up.

George Childs was called to Bayfield, Wis., yesterday by the serious illness of his mother, whose home is in that place.

Take no chances, have your prescriptions filled at the Lion Drug Store.

All of the furniture for the new Madison school, which was opened yesterday, has not yet arrived and it became necessary during the school sessions to employ camp stools in some of the rooms. The casting for the seats are expected to arrive any day, although until they do, the pupils will suffer some slight inconveniences. The pupils of the Madison district, which comprises practically all of Rice's Point, are now attending classes at the new building, which replaces the one destroyed by fire last spring.

HEARTS OF OFFICERS' WIVES ARE HARDENED.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—The wives of the officers of Fort Wayne are all in a flutter. They feel they have been cruelly deceived, but they are not saying a word about it.

Nevertheless, if a woman ever comes to Fort Wayne again and says she is about to become a mother of the dearest baby in the world and enlists the sympathy of the officers' wives to have freed the deserter husband of the visitor and the "dearest baby" materializes as a pillow, there will be trouble.

A month ago Mrs. Albert Bentley went to the fort. She told the women her husband was in Leavenworth prison. She wanted him freed before the baby came. The women were touched. They helped Mrs. Bentley. One of them wrote to Mrs. Roosevelt about the case.

A letter from the surgeon general's office to the post surgeon directed that Mrs. Bentley be given all medical attention needed. The surgeon's report on the case was that Mrs. Bentley needed an upholsterer more than she did a physician.

NEW MEXICO MAKES BID FOR STATEHOOD.

Washington, Jan. 7.—A petition for support of the bill for the admission of New Mexico to separate statehood was received today in the form of a letter from Chairman Hopewell of New Mexico Statehood league to Representative Fuller of Illinois, and referred to the committee on the territories. The petition recites that when Governor Curry visited Washington recently, President Roosevelt assured him that he would lend his aid to the passage of this bill and is satisfied that New Mexico has sufficient population and wealth to entitle it to be admitted as a separate state."

The letter gives the present population of New Mexico as above 400,000 and states that a delegation representing every county in that territory will visit Washington this month to urge the passage of the bill.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Men are not vain.

Anybody who insists that they are is simply a person who holds prejudiced opinions that will not be displaced by the words of any single man, or married one either. The ponderous dignity which a man assumes if one mentions vanity in his presence is delightful, and to woman's sense of tender forbearance is due the fact that the matter is seldom discussed. She allows that he is not vain and then listens sympathetically half the evening and many years of her life, while he tells of the truly alarming condition of his hair health.

"My hair is coming out," he announces with a worried look in his eye and a total lack of self consciousness that in itself is admirable.

"Oh," says his sympathetic audience.

"If it keeps on," he says with no glint of amusement nor lessening of the strain in his eye, "the top of my head will be pushed right up through my hair."

"I'm sorry," says his audience.

"I used to think that bald headed men were funny," he remarks with sadness in his mien. "But I don't think so any more."

"No, indeed," yawns his auditor.

"I'm having electric massage for it now," he announces, "I should think that ought to be good."

"Why, yes; I should think so," says his confidante.

Three days later he inquires, "Say, did you ever hear of coal oil for a hair tonic?"

"Why, yes; I think I have heard of it some place," says the questioned one.

"Somebody told me to use it, and I don't know whether to or not. You know I'm afraid of my brains."

"Oh, I wouldn't be," counsels the comforting one.

"Yes, I know. But, hanged if I like to put a lot of kerosene on my head. You can't tell. The stuff might ooze through."

"Yes, of course it might. But you've got to try it you are to find out."

Yes, I know; but then ——"

"I'm using vaseline now," he announces two days later. "I gave that kerosene a good trial, and I don't think much of it. But vaseline, now, I should think that would be good." He pauses for a reply.

"Why, yes; I should think so," says his auditor.

"Anyway, I'm going to give it a trial."

"I'm using egg shampoos now," he makes the important topic of conversation, a week later.

"Eggs are so expensive," protests the thrifty soul he confides in.

"Yes, I know it, but a fellow can't be bald headed without lifting his hand to avoid it."

"No, that's so," says the other.

And so on, until a pink polished poll rears its shining roundness to the cold blasts of January and the hot suns of July.

But man is not vain. It is only woman who massages cold cream into the crevices of her neck and puts lemon juice on her complexion to remove freckles and puts powder on her nose, and artificial curls on her coiffure. And anybody who bothers to dispute these always accepted facts has more time than sense.

EASTERN CRITIC

Writes Words of Praise for David Ericson.

The New York Times of recent date reviews at length the exhibits of the National Academy of Design now shown in New York city. The criticism is a severe one. For that reason the commendation which is given the work of David Ericson is of greater value and will be of much interest in Duluth. The Times says, in part:

"While there are some interesting and even distinguished portraits and figure pieces in the present exhibition, it is to the landscape painters that one must look for work reflecting the best spirit of American art. In this particular field we are fast producing a group of men who can measure up to the best that has been and is being done in landscape painting anywhere. These are by no means all represented here, of course, many potent names are absent, but the work of such men as Redfield, Bricher, Ochtman, Schofield and Paul Dougherty give one a fair notion of what is being accomplished by our landscape painters.

"The 'Coucher Du Soleil,' by Alexander Harrison, showing his customary wide expanse of iridescent, jewel-like water, is a remarkable feat of observation, an example of intellectual virtuosity which lacks the temperment which would evoke the poesy of such a scene. The significance of this power of evocation is realized fully in the presence of 'A Nocturne' by David Ericson, which shows two old boats moored to a wharf from which the tide has receded, leaving little star-reflecting pools of mysterious depth and quality of color. This is the most quiet, unobtrusive canvas in the whole show, yet in its way the most compelling. It is as though one looked with the eyes of a poet through the golden casement of the frame at this commonplace scene."

January Social.

The members of Trinity Social club will entertain tomorrow evening at a dime social, the second in a series to be given during the winter season, the affair to be given at the Guild hall in Trinity pro-cathedral. An informal program of musical numbers and readings will be given. A reading will be given by Mrs. W. A. Kaake, a piano solo by Mrs. Harry C. Sstrong, a vocal number by Miss Cora Hilliard, a violin selection by Miss Arline Peachey, accompanied by Miss May Butchart. An informal hour of games will follow, and a Twelfth night cake will be a feature of the entertainment.

Talk on London.

An interested group of club women heard Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge in an informal and most entertaining talk yesterday afternoon, at the club room of the library, with "London" as her subject. Facts concerning the great city were delightfully interspersed with personal impressions from a recent visit, and the afternoon was much enjoyed by the club members present. The talk was given under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club.

Church Societies.

The divisions of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Baptist church will meet in joint annual session, tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Z. D. Scott of 2125 East First street. The annual and quarterly reports of the chairmen will be heard, and the annual reports of the officers on the year's work will be given. The election of officers will take place, and the outline of the plan of work for the ensuing year will be considered. A large attendance is desired.

• • •

The Women's alliance of the Unitarian church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Malcolm Thomson of Munger terrace.

• • •

The Ladies' Aid society of St. John's English Lutheran church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock with Mrs. John Allen of 1409 East Superior street. The plans for the ensuing year's work will be discussed and a large attendance of the members is desired. The meeting will begin promptly at the hour set.

• • •

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Swedish Lutheran church will hold its annual meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Gust Bjorklund, 1802 Jefferson street. Reports will be read covering the work of the society during the past year, officers elected and the work planned for this year. A full attendance is desired.

Theater Party.

THE EVENING STORY

Blessed Blindness

By Judith Spencer.

"The condition of our streets is positively disgraceful," thought Miss Agnew, as she gathered up her gown and proceeded to pick her way over unstable boards and loose paving stones, where the crossing once had been. It was then that she saw him first.

He was a tall and well-made man, walking somewhat slowly ahead of her. Suddenly he stumbled and almost fell. In recovering himself he turned and paused irresolute, as if uncertain which way to go. He was now facing her, and she saw his expression of hopeless bewilderment, and saw, too, that he was blind.

With a sudden pity for his misfortune and predicament, she advanced toward him. "Our streets are in such a chaotic condition," she said, "Will you allow me to pilot you to the opposite side?"

"I should be most grateful to you," he replied, lifting his hat. "I have not been in New York for some time, and confess that I find myself decidedly at sea."

It seemed the strangest thing in the world to Mary Agnew to be walking thus familiarly by the side of an unknown man. And she felt that luck had favored her when she had run the gauntlet of that half mile without meeting any of her friends. But the man was a gentleman, and something in his helplessness had appealed most strangely to her.

This unconventional episode haunted Mary Agnew all that day. She caught herself wondering again and again who her stranger was and why he had ventured out alone. Sometimes it seemed as if she had done something inexcusably bold and womanly; yet at the same time she felt that she would never have forgiven herself had she acted otherwise. His tall, straight figure and fine face were still present with her when, late that evening, she entered a crowded ballroom on her father's arm.

Half an hour perhaps had passed when she saw her old friend, Jack Beverton, approaching with—could it be possible?—her stranger of the morning!

"Miss Agnew, allow me to introduce my cousin, Anthony Gordon, once of New York, lately of the Far West, and now of New York again." Jack's words seemed buzzing in her ears.

"I am glad to meet Mr. Gordon," she said quietly, though her heart was fluttering strangely, as it had not done since she was a young, young girl.

She saw him start and turn eagerly toward her. Jack had passed on, and among the crowd these two seemed quite alone.

"It is you! I was hoping I might meet you again," Gordon said gladly. "The world is a small place, after all!"

"Yes," she assented; "yet I confess this is a great surprise—"

"You probably think that a blind man is even more out of place in a ballroom than in the city's crowded streets, and I agree with you; but Jack over-persuaded me, and now I am glad I came! He promised to keep me in tow and to introduce me to a few of his friends with whom I could sit out an occasional dance."

She regarded him curiously. It was a novelty to meet a man who was apparently no more sensitive about such a terrible affliction than if it had been but a broken bone and he was about with his arm in a sling.

"I hope you did not think me—forward this morning," she said impulsively.

"I thought you did a most gracious and beautiful action, and I blessed you for it!"

"You have not been—in this condition—long?" she asked.

"Eight months—an age! And I am a 'remarkable case,' for I have baffled every specialist in the West and now have come to New York to baffle these fellows here. I intend going to each one of them separately, at first. Then I shall have them meet and hold a consultation; then I suppose they'll want to examine me again; and after that—the verdict."

She saw Gordon again just as she was leaving. "I hope you will come to—call on me," she said. She had been going to say "to see me," but quickly changed the word, adding: "I shall be interested to hear what all the occultists say."

"I wanted to ask you if I might," he said eagerly. "If I had not seen you again tonight" (and she noticed that the old habit of speech clung to him), "I should have sent Jack to you to ask if I might come."

Within a few days Anthony Gordon called, and his calls were repeated with increasing frequency. The first time he came with Jack, but afterwards with his man Brown, who waited for him below.

He was a fine fellow, Miss Agnew thought. But she had known many a fine fellow during the past ten years, and not one of them had ever had the power to make her heart beat faster or the quick flush to rise to her face as this man had done from the very first. She wondered if it were not his blindness alone that appealed to her and if she would not have been quite indifferent to him if he had had hih sight like the other men.

But his conversation was always full of interest. His ten years' experiences in the West; his struggles, his successes, his defeats—he told her all—with an eager and almost boyish confidence. He made no secret of his admiration for her, and the deference and reverence he showed her seemed something strangely beautiful.

Her father liked him, too. "Gordon's a fine fellow," he said. "And so hopeful. It will be a hard blow to him if he shouldn't recover his sight."

Finally there came a pause. Ten days, two weeks passed by, during which time Gordon had not been to see her and had made no sign.

She could not bring herself to write to him, and even a letter of mere friendly inquiry read aloud to him by that man Brown. She was too proud to write for news of him to Jack. And it so chanced that during all that time she saw no one of whom she could inquire.

At last one night, when she was sitting alone, he came. She looked up, flushing at his approach, and his changed face startled her.

"You have been ill?" she cried.

"Not ill in body," he answered gloomily, "but ill in mind. They've rendered their verdict—perpetual darkness—and I'm off again to the West. I tried to go without seeing you—but I am a coward! I have come now to say goodby."

There was a conflict of wild emotions in Mary Agnew's breast. For a moment she could not speak. He had come to say goodby!

"I said I couldn't go without seeing you," he repeated, "and I've come to ask a blind man's last favor—before I go, may I pass my hand over your face?"

"What if I say no?" There was something strained and unnatural in her tone.

"Don't refuse me! You don't know what that would mean!" he cried. "Can you realize that all this time you have been but a beautiful unseen spirit to me—a heavenly voice? I thought I should see you some day with my eyes and I forced myself to wait—but that is not to be—and you won't refuse to let me carry away your true image into the night of my exile?"

"I am not beautiful," she said. "I have told you that before. And if in spite of that you have deceived yourself—why need you undeceive yourself now? And why need you go into 'exile?' You led us to believe that you would stay among us—why are you going back to the West?"

"Because—I am a coward," he repeated miserably.

"I don't understand," she said. "However, since you seem to wish to dispel your illusion about me—perhaps it is better so."

She took his hand and placed it upon her face, but at its touch the self-control for which she had been struggling gave way; hot tears welled up against her will and fell in burning drops upon his hand.

"Mary—Miss Agnew! Tears—they are not for—me?"

"No," she cried passionately, "they are for myself, for I thought you prized this—friendship—just a little; and it was a—a shock to find that you could say good-by so lightly when—after such a verdict—even so slight a thing as a woman's friendship might have been something to you."

"Oh, you do not understand," he said quickly. "It is harder than death to part from you like this! Since the first night I met you my only thought and hope have been to recover my sight, that I might see you and win your love and ask you to be my wife. That was my vision of heaven, and you—its angel; and I never doubted, I thought that light would surely come. And when they said 'Darkness forever,' I was stunned. I tried to go away without this last interview, but I could not. I had to come once more. I never meant to tell you this, but when you think I do not prize your friendship I cannot bear it! It is more to me than all the world; it was my hope that one day I might be able to win your love."

"But if—it is already—won?" she murmured tremulously.

He started. "I—I do not understand—"

"Nor I," said she. "But I have loved you—from that first day, I think! Now, Anthony Gordon, have you the courage—will you dare go away?"

He caught her hands. "My God, what shall I do!" he said, helplessly.

"Let me try to make the awful darkness less dark," she said quickly.

"But I cannot let you sacrifice yourself so. Oh, my love, I never dreamed of this!"

"But if the 'sacrifice' makes me the happiest of women? Oh, Anthony, don't you see that your blindness gives you to me as nothing else could do? If you had been like other men I should not have cared for you. I will tell you the horrible fear that has been in my heart all this while. I saw that you cared for me, but I feared that when your sight came back you might care less; and when you came tonight and told me that the awful darkness was to last forever, my heart cried out: 'Now, he is mine forever—and nothing can ever come between us!' and for a moment I was glad; Anthony, it was horrible; don't you hate me for it? I hate myself! And then—you said you had come to say good-by, and I could not let you go! Despise me, if you must, but—do not go away!"

He caught her in his arms, and while her head rested on his breast he passed his hand tenderly across her upturned face and bent to kiss away her tears.

"My angel—you are more beautiful than I had ever dwreamed!" he said, "And now I bless the darkness, which has crowned me with such love!"

Lamb stew!

The phrase suggests a spring time of happiness and a season of relaxed joy and blithesomeness. In one's mind's eye one can see the sporty young animals, who in its later state make the piece de resistance of the stew, gambling on the hill side verdure, with the only longing of its nature a kind of subdued hope that some Mary girl would come along and adopt it. The soft, warm sunshine, the bright green grass, the luscious lassitude of spring, which permeated its system gave no premonition of the tragedy that was to come, and no second sense gave this lamb, who is the hero of this tale, an inkling of the fact that one day a part of him would boil and bubble in a pot to give the taste to a stew. The frolicsomeness of its nature found full vent in walking, pigeon-toed, down the hill that was with verdure clad, and even the person who is most fond of lamb—stewed—will be glad to have the curtain drawn just at the entrance upon this scene of pastoral beauty, of the white garbed man, with a long, gleaming instrument of death in his hand.

Carrots to put in the stew cost 10 cents a bunch.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"Happyland."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"HAPPYLAND."

De Wolf Hopper and Splendid Company in Tuneful Opera.

The Lyceum was packed from pit to gallery last evening with an audience that came prepared to be amused by De Wolf Hopper's clownish mannerisms, and it was not disapointed.

"Happyland" came up to expectations and a little bit more.

De Wolf Hopper is the same big, clown-like comedian, who has kept American audiences laughing for a decade or more. His ponderous movements, and his elephantine good humor kept the audience in a pleasnt state of amused contentment all the time that he was on the stage. "Casey at the Bat" was demanded after the first act, and was given with all the old time gusto.

An enthusiastic press agent describes Miss Marguerite Clark, the diminutive running mate, as being "as dainty as any rosebud that ever came out of the land of the angels and with a voice the liquid notes of which, are as charming to the ear as the tinkling effort of candid violets dropping on a golden harp." It's not quite that bad, but Miss Clark is a dainty wisp of a girl, with a clear cameo face, and a sweet soprano voice.

The striking features of the production are the remarkably fine voices to be found in the company. Miss Nella Shayne as the Lady Patricia, hasn't much to do but sing, but she attends strictly to business along that line. She has a splendid, full soprano voice, of great range, and makes an ideal leader for the chorus. Miss Alice Hills with a rich contralto voice makes an able assistant.

The men of the company are equally gifted in this line. Detmar Poppen, a young man of huge frame and an imposing manner, has a splendid basso profundo, which is heard to good advantage in several solo numbers, and Joseph Phillips as Fortunatus makes a no less favorable impression.

William Wolf is a genuine comedian, and as Altinus, king of Altruria, he makes a splendid foil for Mr. Hopper. Julian Reed does rather good work as Sphinxus, and the minor roles are in good hands.

The production shows a most lavish expenditure for customes. The uniforms of the soldiers and the gowns of the chorus are artistic and look fresh and new. The men of the chorus are also far above the ordinary in singing ability, and the double quartette number is one of the distinct hits of the performance. "Happyland" will be repeated tonight.

A FINE SHOW.

Bijou Has Very Strong List of Attractions This Week.

The Bijou, this week, has an especially fine list of attractions. At both matinee and evening performances yesterday, the theater was crowded, and in the evening standing room only could be had. The audiences were enthusiastic in their expressions of approval, and free in their applause.

The show opens with a singing, dancing and acrobatic stunt, lasting 15 minutes, by the Maning twin sisters. They are exceedingly good at their singing and dancing, and the whole act is an original and clever one.

"The Girl from Maryland," is a highly entertaining sketch put on by Sheffer and Trimmer. It is very funny. "Meet Me in Syracuse" is another playlet that is a big hit. Irene Hobson and Harry M. Sheldon are the principals. They put up a good appearance, and are accomplished in the arts of the stage. Johnnie Le Feure and Franklin St. John do some singing and dancing that greatly pleases the audience. "Won't You Be My Honey" is the title of John McDowell's illustrated song this week. He sings it in his usual good voice.

One of the best animal acts that ever struck Duluth is found in Ad Carlisle's dog and pony show. The intelligence shown by the animals is something to marvel at, and they have been taught a bewildering array of tricks.

J. R. McClellan has a good list of moving pictures this week. "A Fisherman's Luck" and "The Indian Idyll" are the titles of them.

The Burlesquers.

A burlesque show that is away above the average and an added attraction which the local management claims is costing $400 per week, is what the Metropolitan is offering this week.

Both the regular performance and the added attraction are worth while. The added feature is Mlle. Lorraine, Paree's favorite daughter, whose stunts in the posing line are just a little different from the others that are seen.

Before she goes on with her act, Mlle. Lorraine allows two maids to smear her with gold leaf and when she appears on the stage as "the statue of gold," she is the biggest kind of a hit.

"Tom, Dick and Harry," the offering of the Avenue Girls, is quite a show. It was written by Harry Williams and Aaron Hoffman for Bickel, Watson & Wrothe and was used with success by those comedians for two seasons. This year, the Campbell-Drew company secured the piece instilled three live, comedians, Hanson, Conroy and Emerson, into the name parts, backed them up with some good principals and a fine-looking chorus and are geting the laughs and the money all along the circuit.

The trio of comedians and their assistants are really funny and Libby Blondell, Carrie Thomas, Jeanette Sherwood and the rest of the faminine contingent have some pleasing songs.

Libby and four English Johnnies do a good specialty and there are some moving pictures which hold the attention of the audience for several minutes.

IOWA SOLON WON A WOMAN'S LOVE

By His Eloquent Plea for Two-Cent Fare Law.

Le Mars, Iowa, Jan. 7.—A legislative romance, in which an Iowa lawmaker won the love of a married woman through his eloquence in speaking for the passage of the 2-cent railroad fare law in Des Moines, last session, is brought to light in the sensational suit filed here by Mrs. Amelia Cottrell, a divorce from her husband, John C. Cottrell, representative in the legislature and mayor of Kingsley.

Mrs. A. W. Hough, a prominent fraternal club woman of Des Moines, who is named as co-respondent, is frank in her declaration of her fondness for the Kingsley solon. She is a handsome brunette, 36 years of age. She lives next door to Mrs. Nutting, mother of Representative Cottrell.

Mrs. Cottrell demands $2,000 temporary allmony and $20,000 permanent allmony, stating that her husband is worth about $50,000.

A. W. Hough, husband of the woman named by the wife of Representative Cottrell of Plymouth as her husband's affinity, in the divorce petition, has had a petition for divorce drawn, and has gone West to avoid being present when the petition becomes public.

Hough is broken-hearted over his wife's confession to him that she loves Representative Cottrell, and has loved him since she heard him make a burning speech on the 2-cent fare law at the last session of the legislature. The suits have caused a tremendous sensation in political circes, since Hough is accounted the wealthiest member of the Iowa legislature, and is a very prominent Democratic politician.

PARENTS WILL RESIST

Compulsory Vaccination of Children, in the Courts.

Cass Lake, Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board of this place has passed a resolution whereby all the pupils and teachers in the schools will be forced to be vaccinated. The result of this action is due to a communication from the health officer, who explained that in as much as the quarantine of small pox had been raised and there are a few cases in the village, it would be dangerous to the public were the children not vaccinated. The school board immediately passed a resolution to the foregoing effect. There are several parents in the village who object to having their children vaccinated and claim they cannot compel them to unless an epidemic should occur. Some of them are determined to fight the matter.

A GREAT ENTERTAINER

Father Knickerbocker Daily Feeds and Lodges 200,000 Visitors.

WHERE HE DOES IT BEST.

Father Knickerbocker has more "company" than anybody else in America, if not in the world. Every day in the year he is called upon to entertain from 100,000 to 200,000 visitors, who come from every state and territory, from every land and clime, to see the sights or to transact business. Every day there arrives a new transient population equal to one Minneapolis or three or four Duluths. Little wonder that New York's cars are overcrowded, its fifty or more theaters packed nightly, or that every one of its 500 hotels is liberally patronized.

Among New York's many high-class houses for public entertainment, none has won a more enviable reputation than Hotel St. Regis. This hotel, the first of its type to be constructed in New York, and still unsurpassed in all that constitutes a perfect hotel, is charmingly located at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, amid the most quiet and refined surroundings. The management of the St. Regis, well qualified for the task imposed, has from the outset endeavored to please people of fastidious tastes, and hundreds of satisfied patrons can testify to the success of the endeavor.

The St. Regis has become synonymous with hotel supremacy. It has entertained many famous men and women, and is the abiding place of a large number of wealthy New Yorkers, yet no hotel in New York is farther removed from ultra exclusiveness. It was planned and is managed for the enjoyment of the comfort-loving and refined, without regard to wealth or title, and an important fact is that its charges are the same as those of all other first-class hoteis.

The report of the municipal judge showed a falling off of about $200 in the receipts from slot machine fines for December. This was not because of the fact that the machines had been dispensed with, but because, for some unexplained reason, several of the saloonkeepers failed to pay their fines in December. A strong effort has been made during the past week to have Mayor Hawkinson alter his determination to oust the machines, but he remained firm in his announced purpose.

As soon as the official reports had been read and accepted the council adjourned without any verbal pyrotechnics, and without even the customary votes of thanks.

The incoming council will hold its first meeting this evening.

At a meeting held Sunday afternoon the slate of appointive officers was practically decided upon. Owing to the fact that the council is equally divided as between Republicans and Independents, it was necessary to "give and take" in order to promote harmony, and it is expected that the new council will carry on its work without any friction.

It has been practically decided that the city printing and publishing will be equally divided between the two local newspaper offices, one full legal rate being paid.

WILL CURTAIL BEER RECEIPTS

To Hit Blind Pigs is Effort of Commercial Club.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At last night's meeting of the Business Men's association, a lively and earnest amount of work was transacted, with President Hoarding in the chair. The present list of officers was retained for the next year with the exception of the substitution of Alex McDonald for C. E. Bailey, as vice president.

The beer traffic consumed the majority of the meeting's attention. As a result of a discussion in which Judge Prince, Dr. Barrett, J. J. Thibaut, J. W. Falk and Dr. Medler voiced their opinions. A motion was passed empowering a committee to arrange with the brewing companies doing business in this vicinity for a regulation of the traffic. The committee consists of Sol Sax, B. O. Greening and Neil McInnis. The committee is to arrange with the companies so that the excessive use of beer that has been customary among the blindpigs shall be curtailed without infringing on the right of the parties interested. Considerable sentiment favored the passage of measures calling for the prosecution of offenders, but the cooler heads pointed out that such action would not be striking at the source of the trouble. The brewing companies were generally considered the real offenders, and the general feeling unanimously supported the motion calling for a regulation of the traffic from their side. To support the need for such action statistics were introduced that showed that during the month of June, twenty-two carloads of beer was disposed of at the locations and three small local saloons by one brewing company. An expert said that the three saloons together could not consume over one carload a month leaving twenty-one carloads to be used upon the location from one company.

The treasurer's report showed there is in the treasury $147.26. An auditing committee of Messrs. Arnold, Lester and Johnson was appointed. A committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet that shall be held during the latter part of this month or early in February. The chairman of the committee is Dr. Medler, the remaining members are Leo Shapiro and M. J. Doyle.

A communication was read from Senator Nelson in which he stated that he was heartily in favor of the postal savings idea. Another was read from Senator Clapp stating his position in less positive terms.

One of the most important committees appointed was in relation to the insurance rates in Eveleth. Secretary Sax brought the matter before the meeting and expressed himself forcibly regarding the unfair treatment that the companies are showing Eveleth in not considering its efficient fire service and firebreaks. As a result of his efforts a committee consisting of J. C. Poole, Mayor Maxwell and Attorney Ferry was appointed to communicate with Mr. McLaren regarding lower rates in Eveleth.

DEGREE OF HONOR

Of Eveleth Has Installation, Followed by Social Session.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. M. A. Payne installed the newly-elected officers of Eveleth lodge No. 131, Degree of Honor, auxiliary to the A. O. U. W. The officers are past chief of honor, Margaret Corbett; chief of honor, Martha Emery; lady of honor, Anna Campbell; chief of ceremonies, Augusta Klan; recorder, Selma Bostrom; financier, Bessie Culbert; usher, Sarah Morrison; inside watch, Mary Wohlman; outside watch, Anna Everson. A pleasant social time was enjoyed after the installation.

HAVE SWOLLEN HEADS.

Rabbits Afflicted With Disease, Making Them Unfit to Eat.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to Bill Smith, a cruiser, employed by Martin Bros. of Duluth, the rabbits this year are afflicted with a disease that resembles lumpy jaw among cattle, rendering the animals unfit for food. The symptoms are usually swollen heads, congested eyeballs, with the coat of the animal "taring."

Previous to this year, the cruisers have depended on bunny for their soups while searching for timber. This year conditions are altered. The spell has affected the wolves, as many are dying of poisoning, caused by eating poisoned bark.

These plagues among the wild animals are of regular occurrence. Experienced hunters assert that about every fifteen years such a season comes, when food is scarce. With this scarcity comes the dying off of the races of animals.

EVELETH MINISTER WEDS.

Rev. John Wargelin Takes a Bride in Miss Maria Hoikka.

Crystal Falls, Mich., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. John A. Wargelin of Eveleth, Minn., and Miss Maria Hoikka of this place, were married here yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Wargelin is a graduate of the Finnish college at Hancock, and following his admission to the ministry he did some missionary work and then was given a permanent charge at Eveleth. He is a young man who has made the most of his college opportunity and is a zealous worker in the cause to which he has consecrated his life. His bride is a daughter of Rev. Hoikka, a well known Finnish clergyman on the Menominee range.

L. F. KNOX BURIED.

Lumberman, Banker and Mining Man of Grand Rapids, Laid to Rest.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the auspices of the Masons and the Odd Fellows, the funeral of L. F. Knox, a well-known resident of this section, was held Monday. There was a large attendance. Mr. Knox was the senior member of the lumber firm of L. F. Knox & Co., a director of the First National bank, was also interested in several promising iron mining properties in this section and a man of affairs in Itasca county. He is survived by his wife and a son and a daughter, both of age. Representative Knox of Aitkin is a brother of the deceased.

ORDERED FROM STATE.

Rosen Woman Must Go or Serve Five Years in Penitentiary.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Given the choice of five years in the state penitentiary at Stillwater, or to leave the state never to return, Mary A. Witt, alias Rosen, chose the latter, and assured the court she would be careful not to return.

The Rosen woman figured in the sensational charges preferred against Former Judge Cochran of Wright county, who, she alleged, was implicated in a murder, but afterwards confessed to the county attorney she had committed perjury. Judge Cochrane was indicted on the woman's testimony, but was promptly exonerated, while proceedings weer begun against her for perjury, she being indicted, and subsequently pleading guilty.

CASE IS DISMISSED

Against President Riley of Nashwauk Village Council.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Upon motion of County Attorney Thwing, the case against Thomas P. Riley, president of the village council of Nashwauk, who was alleged to have been lax in the enforcement of the liquor laws, has been dismissed in the district court. The state preferred that the case go over until the next term of court, but the defense, demanding immediate trial, the county attorney asked for a dismissal. It is planned the state desired more evidence before proceeding.

CHISHOLM BALL SUCCESS.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The dance given by the fire department New Year's eve, in the new village hall, was a financial as well as a social success. The music was furnished by Flaaten's Third Regiment band, which in itself was a guarantee of a good time. Notwithstanding the fact that there were several social functions in the vicinity on that day, the dance was a success.

COURT HAS ADJOURNED.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury that has been in attendance on the district court has been dismissed and court adjourned until March 3. One of the reasons leading to the adjournment was the illness of Attorney George H. Spear, who was counsel in the five remaining civil cases but whose voice deserted him during the trial of one of them.

MRS. SHAVER'S FUNERAL AT CARLTON WEDNESDAY.

Carlton, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Mabel Shaver, who died yesterday, leaving a husband, Charles Shaver, a 2-year-old son and a mother and sister, will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, from the home. Interment will be made at Lake City, Minn.

MICHIGAN CAPITAL TO DEVELOP FINNISH MINE.

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Opened in 1757 and operated continuously for 118 years, the Orijarl mine, in Finland, is being reopened by Lake Superior capital. Idle since 1875, the property has been taken over by the Finnish-American Mining company, a Minnesota corporation of which John Daniell, a leading mining man of the Michigan copper country, is president, and it is expected that with the modern methods adopted and the modern machinery installed, a success will be made of this venture in foreign fields. Oscar J. Larson of Duluth is the secretary of the company.

The Pure Food Law.

Secretary Wilson says: "One of the objects of the law is to inform the consumer of the presence of certain harmful drugs in medicines." The law requires that the amount of chloroform, opium, morphine, and other habit forming drugs be stated on the label of each bottle. The manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have always claimed that their remedy did not contain any of these drugs, and the truth of this claim is now fully proven, as no mention of them is on the label. This remedy is not only one of the safest, but one of the best in use for coughs and colds. Its value has been proven beyond question during the many years it has been in general use. For sale by all druggists.

SELECTION OF THAW JURY IS PROCEEDING WITH CARE

restricted, and there were many vacant seats.

Trial Is Resumed.

New York, Jan. 7.—With nine jurors in the box, all being subject to peremptory challenge, and with a new panel of 100 talesmen to draw from, the Thaw trial was resumed at 10:22 a. m. today.

Thaw was not called to the bar until the roll of the new panel was called, and the absentees noted and fined $250. This required nearly twenty minutes. Eighty members of the new panel were present. Mrs. Evelyn Thaw was not in the court room when the proceedings began, Josiah Thaw being the only relative in the line of chairs reserved for the defendant's family.

As soon as Thaw had taken his place, the work of filling the jury box was taken up, with District Attorney Jerome again conducting the examinations for the people.

Mrs. Thaw Looks Well.

Young Mrs. Thaw came in while the first talesman was being examined. She was ruddy of cheek and appears in the best of health—a sharp contrast to her husband, who is thinner and more pallid than last year. His hair, wiry and badly cut, gives him something of an unkempt appearance.

The first six men called for service were all disqualified, the first one after a 15-minute examination, and the others in rapid order.

As on yesterday, Justice Dowling frequently took a hand in the questioning of talesmen, his interrogations usually bringing the examinations to an abrupt conclusion. Judge Dowling is not partial to long arguments among counsel. His interruptions and suggestions carry an impression of firmness, but always are in the best of humor.

Mr. Littleton is thorough in his examinations, probing into the innermost thoughts and beliefs of the talesmen. One question asked most of the talesmen was what newspaper "purported" accounts of the previous trial they had read. He spent nearly half an hour on William H. Roberts, secretary to a railway signal concern and a native of England, who finally was accepted as juror No. 10. Roberts declared he had an impression as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, but it was not a very decided one, and he was sure he could lay it aside.

Sixteen Examined.

During the first two hours of the morning session, sixteen talesmen had been examined and only one conditionally accepted.

It required thirty minutes for Mr. Littleton finally to disqualify Dexter Tiffany, a stock broker, who said he had a fixed opinion, but insisted he could render a fair verdict. It took thirty seconds for Mr. Jerome to dispose of Charles McCullough, a public accountant, who declared that evidence might remove, but could not change his opinion. McCullough's was the last name in the first panel. The second panel, which reported today, then was drawn upon. Two of the provisional jurors selected yesterday were excused by consent. They were William E. Brower, decorator, and James Conway, hotelkeeper.

During the examination of Charles C. Goss, an auditor and accountant, District Attorney Jerome asked for the first time during this trial: "Have you any ideas of your own as to higher law or irresistible impulse, or anything of that sort?"

Goss replied in the negative, and was accepted as a provisional juror as the luncheon recess was ordered.

Many Challenges Expected.

New York, Jan. 7.—With nine jurymen provisionally selected, 100 new veniremen reported to Justice Dowling in the criminal branch of the supreme court this morning for duty in the case of the people against Harry Kendall Thaw, who is charged with the wilful murder of Stanford White. While there were nine jurymen in the box this morning, that is no sign that there will be even that many when court adjourns tonight. The nine men have been passed for cause, by both sides, and accepted by the court, but the prosecution and the defense in the case each have thirty peremptory challenges, all of which may be exercised. Time after time, while the jury was being selected for Thaw's first trial, the jury box was filled when one side or the other exercised a peremptory challenge, thereby vacating a seat. Of so much importance is the case that it is hardly likely that either side will be satisfied with a jury until all of its peremptory challenges have been exhausted.

All Closely Scrutinized.

Of the 300 veniremen summoned, 100 of whom reported yesterday, 100 today, the other 100 are to report tomorrow, not one has escaped close scrutiny from the counsel of the case. The district attorney has been over the list carefully, and his detectives have looked up the records of all of the men summoned. The detectives in the employ of the defense have gone over the lists just as carefully, and whenever a man is called in the case, he may be sure that both the attorneys who question him know about all there is to know about him. It is, of course, impossible to tell how long it will take to secure a jury, but the fact that there are now nine men in the box cannot be taken as a sign that the work will soon be done.

The Nine in Box.

1—Charles E. Gremmells, ship broker.
2—John R. Hatchett, cigar dealer.
3—George B. Moorewood, importer.
4—Floyd S. Sanford, bank manager.
5—James E. Conway, hotelkeeper.
6—William E. Brower, decorator.
7—Arthur B. Naething, baker.
8—Maurice Bouvier, exporter.
9—George W. Cary, dry goods dealer.

Of the above men it is generally predicted that Mr. Gremmells will be challenged by the district attorney, as he declared he had scruples against capital punishment, but could lay them aside if sworn as juror. Moorewood entertains certain opinions with regard to expert medical testimony and probably will go out on challenge from the defense.

Sanford may also be excused, for he confessed to an opinion regarding the truth of certain important testimony at the first trial. Conway, who said he read the evidence presented a year ago, without forming any particular opinion, may be made the subject of a challenge from Mr. Jerome. Hatchett and Naething appear like fixtures. Bouvier, who has slight prejudice against defenses of insanity, probably will not be retained.

KICKED OUT THE WINDOW

Sash Hurled From Fourth Story of Hotel, Hits Hackman.

D. A. Petre Thought He Was Being Pursued by Enemies.

D. A. Petre, whose marital troubles have been recently aired in the divorce courts, ran amuck at the Spalding hotel last night. He imagined he was chased by two stalwarts, who were trying "to get him," and in his fear and agitation kicked a window and sash from the supporting casement.

Petre registered at the hotel late last night and was assigned to a room on the fourth floor. He had not been in his room for a great length of time before a great commotion was heard. Some one was sent to the room, to ascertain the cause of the disturbance.

The employe who went to the room was informed by Petre that two men were loitering around in the vicinity of the hall with the express intention of injuring him.

After the fears of the excited man were calmed, it was believed that no more trouble would occur. He was left and told to go to bed and forget about the fictitious persons, whom he imagined were laying in wait outside his door.

It was shortly after Petre promised to hit the fleece and forget his troubles that the real noise began. Suddenly a great commotion was heard, yells, shouts for help and the crashing of a glass, then a long drawn out yell of pain from outside the hotel.

Employes rushed to the fourth floor and into the room of Mr. Petre. They found him standing in front of his window, which had been kicked into the street below. He was fighting the imaginary foes and joining his yells with those of William Cole, a hackman, who had been struck by the falling window sash, as it was hurled clear of the casement.

Down in the lobby they were having trouble in explaining to Cole who "heaved the brick," for at first Cole was positive he had been struck by a missile in the hands of some deliberate marksman.

He was not informed as to the identity of the man who had kicked the window into the street, but was told that one of the windows accidentally fell from the building.

It required all of the available force of night employes to calm the excited Petre. He insisted upon the reality of the dark browed citizens outside, and it was only after a search of the hall was made to reassure Mr. Petre that his fears were groundless, that he consented to return to bed. Nothing further was heard during the night. Neither could any trace be found of the two "dark brows," who were the cause of the window smashing episode.

This morning Mr. Petre paid his bill at the desk, including the price of a new window, and the incident was closed.

HOTELS ARE CROWDED

People Were Turned Away Before 11 o'Clock at Night.

Scarcely a room could be secured at any of the Duluth hotels after 10:30 last night. People were turned away during the course of the evening from the Lenox, McKay, St. Louis, Spalding and Christopher hotels, as all of them were full before 11 o'clock.

This is the first rush succeeding the Christmas holidays and the hotel men believe that conditions, if reflected in the good business, are beginning to pick up again.

Old customers had to be denied a room at some of the hotels, for the simple reason that rooms were not available. Lots of travelers doubled up, but even then the S. R. O. sign was posted at the desks. There are a great many out of town visitors, as well as a number of range people in town. A number of traveling men are being started out on the road, after their trip in for the new year stock taking, and some houses have replaced men who were laid off when the money stringency was being felt so acutely.

Every boniface in the city wore a broad smile this morning.

MARKET HAS A DECLINE

Wheat Sags During Session of the American Markets.

Flax is a Little Firmer at the Close Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 7.—Wheat was weak at the close today. The opening prices were about unchanged, but a slack demand and bearish news, inducing selling, caused the market to sag during the latter part of the session.

Receipts in the Northwest were larger and there was a big increase in the world's visible supply of wheat. These were the principal influences for lower prices. The tone was quiet.

Closing cables were weak. Liverpool closed ½d lower, Berlin ⅛c lower and Budapest 2c lower.

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅜c off in Chicago and New York, ⅛-⅝c lower in Minneapolis and 1¼c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and Chicago, ⅞c lower in Minneapolis, ⅜c lower in New York and 1⅛c off in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ¼c higher in Chicago and ½d to ⅝d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed a shade higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "There was an easy undertone to the speculative wheat market at the start and values were ⅜d to ½d lower followed by a further decline of ¼d. Pressure resulted from the weakness of American cables yesterday and the lower La Plata offerings. During the morning, the market developed firmness, prices advancing ⅜d to ⅝d due to the fact that a large firm was buying and also a fair demand for spot.

"Corn was firm and ⅛d higher at the opening followed by a further advance of ¼d to ⅜d. Support resulted from the steadiness in America yesterday and a good spot trade, which prompted free selling. Spot wheat steady and ½d lower with the exception of choice La Plata which was lunchanged. Corn was firm and unchanged. Wheat cargoes were quiet with more pressure to sell. Corn was firm with very few offerings."

Car receipts at Duluth were 145 against 95 last year, and at Minneapolis 187 against 210 last year, making a total for the Northwest 332 against 305 last year. Chicago received 48 against 61 last year. Winnipeg received 270 against 253 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 512,000 bus., last year 661,000 bus. Shipments, 167,000 bus., last year 298,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 950,000 bus.

Bradstreet reports an increase of 2,445,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of wheat.

Primary receipts of corn were 536,000 bus., last year 1,164,000 bus. Shipments, 462,000 bus., last year 522,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 294,087 bus.

Trading was quiet in the Duluth market during the session. May wheat opened unchanged at $1.13⅞, went off to $1.13⅝, rallied to $1.13⅞, went off to $1.13¼ and closed at that price, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed at $1.13¾, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ⅛c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3c under May for No. 1 northern.

Flax trading was light. Offerings were scarce, however, and the tone was higher. May flax opened unchanged at $1.22, advanced to $1.22¼, declined to $1.22⅛, rallied to $1.22⅜, went off to $1.22¼ and closed at that price, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. July flax was inactive and closed at $1.22¾, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

Rye was 2c up and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.11¾. To arrive: No. 1 northern, $1.10¾; No. 2 northern, $1.07¾. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.10¾; No. 2 northern, $1.07¾; May, $1.13¼; July, $1.13¾; No. 1 northern in store, $1.09; No. 2 northern in store, $1.06½; durum on track, No. 1, 90¼c; No. 2, 88¼c; May durum, 93¼c; July durum, 94¼c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Firm, But Some Weakness on Commission Selling.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—The local wheat market opened firm, due to firmness at Liverpool, but weakened on selling by commission houses. The news from Argentina was bearish, good weather and favorable conditions having been reported. May opened a shade to ⅛@¼ higher at $1.07⅛@1.07¼, and sold off to $1.06⅝@¾. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 380 cars against 421 cars last week and 366 cars for the corresponding day a year ago.

The sentiment continued bearish throughout the session. There was considerable profit-taking by a leading long. The low point for May was $1.06. The close was weak, with May off ⅜c at $1.06¼@⅜.

There was only moderate trade in corn and the market was inclined to be weak. Local receipts were greater than had been estimated and the weather was still favorable for the movement of grain. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 61⅜c@½ to 61½c; the early tone being affected by higher prices at Liverpool. May sold off later to 61¼@¼c. Local receipts were 321 cars with 6 of contract grade.

The market assumed a firmer tone later on reports from Argentina that the crop was threatened by locusts. May sold up to 61⅞c and closed firm at an advance of ⅛ to 61½@⅝c.

There was almost nothing doing in oats. The market was steady. May opened a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 54¾@⅞c and sold at 54⅝@¾c. Local receipts were 239 cars.

Provisions were quiet and easy, a 5-cent decline in the price of live hogs being the chief influence. May pork was off 7½c at $13.57½; lard was 7½c lower at $8.20; ribs were down 7½@10c at $7.37@7.40.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.06¼-⅜; July, 98⅝c; September, 95⅛c. Corn—May, 61½@⅝c; July, 60¼-⅜c; September, 60@⅛c. Oats—May, old, 54⅝c; May, 53⅛c; July, old, 48⅝c; July, 46⅛c; September, 40⅝c. Pork—January, $13.10; May, $13.72½. Lard—January, $8; May, $8.25. Ribs—January, $7.05; May, $7.42½. Rye—Cash, 83c. Barley—Cash, 88c@$1.03. Timothy—March, $4.70. Clover—March, $17.25. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—At least one local bull leader sold out quite a line of wheat today. A bear leader, one of the few left, pressed the short side of wheat around bottom prices of the day, encouraged by the increase of nearly 2,500,000 in world's visible. The market is in a somewhat oversold position, both by longs and shorts, and the price off about ⅜c from the close yesterday. It must be conceded that the chief bear feature at present is the increasing stocks. There are a number of bullish features, among which are the very large export clearness, sales of 100,000 bushels to outside mills and buying of 500,000 out of elevators by milling interests at Minneapolis. There were sales of cash wheat at Omaha to go to Minneapolis and fairly good sales of cash wheat here to go to Eastern mills. For the time being the feeling in the local trade is quiet bearish, and it is only a matter of time until there will be over-selling on a congested market and the situation will be ready for another strong turn.

Corn—The one real strong spot in the grain trade at present is in corn. There was an effort to force something of a break in corn prices early because wheat showed further decline. For tomorrow the estimate is small. Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota are buying corn in Missouri. The weather has not yet been such as to make good roads and there is little prospect of increased receipts, without which the situation remains very strong.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Poultry continues very scarce in the local market and prices are firm. Receipts are very light and fresh fouls of all kinds in good demand.

The general produce market holds steady, with little change in prices.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: It was a good trading market with no decided tendency. The floor traders are still bearish, but will have hard work to put prices down much. Money was a little stronger, but is gradually working easier. There are no new developments at any of the mines, but they are getting ready to resume as soon as the metal market will warrant it.

New York Money.

New York, Jan. 7.—Close: Money on call, firm, 5½@6 per cent; ruling rate, 6 per cent; closing bid, 5 per cent; offered at 6 per cent. Time loans easier; 60 days, 6½ per cent; 90 days 6 per cent; six months, 6 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 8 per cent. Sterling exchange weak after strength with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.60@4.85.65 for demand and at $4.81 for 60-day bills. Commercial bills, $4.80.75. Bar silver, 58⅜c. Mexican dollars, 45c. Government bonds, firm; railroad bonds, strong.

TRICKING THE AIR INTO SERVICE.

In a mountain side in Northern Michigan there is a hole that strikes down into the ground some 350 feet, for the purpose of entrapping a river and compelling it to do a strange new thing, so writes H. G. Hunting in the Technical World Magazine.

I nan underground chamber at the bottom of this hole the plunging water once caught is held up and robbed of a very precious possession which it is tricked into bringing down with it, and which, oddly enough becomes more precious the farther down from the surface it is carried. For the treasure is air, which becomes compressed air, as the river carries it down into the underground chamber, and when it is released in the rocky cavern, cut in the solid heart of the mountain for ite purpose, it is under such a pressure that it is ready and eager to act, and so is very valuable indeed for power in the neighboring mines.

The jump which the river makes is not at all spectacular, because it is all hidden inside of great steel tubes, five feet in diameter, and, to be exact, 340 feet long. It does not make a flying start, but flows to its tremendous leap as quietly as any other unsuspicious untrapped thing might approach a pitfall. But once launched on its downward course, it becomes a subterranean cataract of more than twice Niagara's height. It is no wonder that the air, caught in millions of minute bubbles from the lips of special feed-pipes which touch the flowing stream at the top of its leap, is helpless to escape till the bottom of the plunge is reached, and it finds itself imprisoned in the dark, with escape blocked everywhere by the invincible water, and its freedom only purchasable in exchange for the energy its fall has developed.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

But Prices Held Well in Spite of Heavy Realizing.

Rally From the Extreme Reaction and Closing Was Dull.

New York, Jan. 7.—A moderate demand carried opening prices of stocks well over last night. Great Northern preferred rose 1¼, and American Smelting 1, and there were large fractional gains in Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Reading, Colorado Southern and America Cotton Oil. Central of New Jersey sold at an advance of 4 and Allis-Chalmrs preferred, 2¾. American Sugar demers preferred, 2¾. American Sugar de- Great Western preferred "A" 1½. The whole list reacted sharply immediately after the opening, carrying the active speculative stocks back to a fraction below last night.

Supporting orders were distributed and the market rallied to the opening figures. Buoyancy was shown by the high priced coalers, and strength was displayed by the metal stocks. Lackawanna bounded up 28½ to 478½; Delaware & Hudson, 6½; United States Production, 1½; Colorado Fuel, Distillers' Securities and United States Rubber, 1½; Reading, 1⅛; Amalgamated Copper and Anaconda, 1. American Sugar recovered about all its loss. Chicago Great Western preperred "A" dropped, 4. The general movement was wavering and uncertain.

The market reflected caustic profit-taking in a moderate reaction. Reading was held about par with sustaining effect. New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred sold at an advance of 8½; Granby Mining, 2; Northwestern, 1½; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha preferred and United States Steel preferred, 1. Great Northern Ore declined 1¼; Northern Pacific, 1. Bonds were firm.

Great Northern preferred came into special demand. The rest of the list showed a more stable tone, the absorption of special stocks contributing to the general steadiness. The whole list reacted, however, before the end of the noon hour. Delaware & Hudson extended its rise to 8 points, Northwestern, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha 3¼, Great Northern preferred, 3¼ and National Lead 1¼.

Extensive realizing and signs of renewed liuidation in Missouri Pacific caused some of the prominent stocks to sag below yesterday's closing and reduced the advances in others to small proportions. Meanwhile a large variety of the less active stocks made wide advances. Lackawanna reached 484½, a gain of 36½, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha also got up 6¼, the preferred 6, Sloss-Sheffield Steel preferred 7½, and New York, Chicago & St. Louis 3. Missouri Pacific, Anaconda and American Hide & Leather preferred lost 1.

The market closed irregular. The reaction established some considerable declines before it was arrested when the market was thrown into profound dullness. There was some rally from the extreme reaction.

Stock Gossip.

New York to Walter W. Carr: The market has been somewhat irregular, but on the whole held well, considering the amount of realizing that has taken place on the improvement in prices. This has caused recessions of from 1 to 2 points from the best prices on market leaders. The postponement of the Northern Pacific meeting caused some selling around the room. The diamond brokers' trouble had no effect. Sugar was sold on the Spreckels interview attacking the assets of the company. Chicago Great Western had a decline of 2 points on rumors that the company could not meet its notes. London sold about 10,000 shares today, partly for German account, the decline in the general list was not allowed to go far, and rumors were current again today that Morgan and banking interests were under the market. Money ruled easy from 6 to 7 per cent. A good deal of the selling by floor traders today was based on the belief that the advance had gone far enough for the present.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 7.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3@5 points, as a result of the steadier Liverpool market and larger English sales. The advance was encouraged by bullish reports concerning the Southern spot situation but the demand here was quiet and fluctuations were narrow.

Spot closed quiet; 10 points lower; middling uplands, 11.30; middling gulf, 11.55; no sales. Futures closed steady. Closing bids: January, 10.47; February, 10.56; March, 10.56; April, 10.65; May, 10.62; June, 10.58; July, 10.53; August, 10.38; October, 9.85.

TO REMEDY DEFECTS.

Senator Knox Introduces Bill Pertaining to Employers' Liability.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, who has taken much interest in the litigation growing out of the employer's liability act, which was declared to be unconstitutional in the supreme court of the United States, yesterday, today introduced a bill which is intended to remedy the defects in the present law. The bill is so drawn as to make it applicable only to corporations engaged in such commerce as congress has the undoubted right to control, and to employes of such corporations engaged exclusively in interstate commerce. The existing law is so broad as to cover all transportation between states, but Mr. Knox's bill so modifies it as to limit its operations to common carriers, which are operated by steam, or similar motive power.

LAND COMMISSIONER RESIGNS HIS OFFICE.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Richard A. Ballinger, commissioner of the general land office, has tendered his resignation of that office to President Roosevelt and it has been accepted, to take effect March 4. Fred Dennitt, assistant commissioner, has been appointed commissioner.

LARGE DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF ONE LEG.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A jury gave John Bailey a verdict for $7,500 against the Grand Forks Lumber company today. Bailey is the guardian of his son, who lost a leg in the defendants' sawmill last July.

MARTIN TIMBER COMPANY.

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Martin Timber company of Duluth, with a capital stock of $250,000. L. R., T. H. and G. W. Martin are the incorporators.

FARMERS' FEATHERED FRIENDS.

The American farmer is just beginning to scrape an acquaintance with his best friends, the birds. So writes Edward B. Clark, in the Technical World Magazine. He has had them with him in field and in garden through the years, and they have toiled for him during the hours of longer working days than even the over-worked husbandman has toiled for himself. The chances are that the first bird that Adam laid eyes on was pecking away at a cherry; for seemingly, from the day of Adam, man has held the bird to be a thief. That we have the feathered ones still with us despite the fact that the human hand has been against them ever since Eden's time, is due more to the sage city of the birds than it is to the kindliness of man.

It would seem perhaps that the farmer living in the very heart of nature, should know nature's ways, but for some reason the farmer until recently nver seemed to be able to see things in the right light. Experience taught him little. If a hawk carried off a chicken, the hawk was nothing but a chicken thief. The fact that the bird had earned some pay for his labors in protecting the growing grain and the corn in the crib from the rats and the other rodents, either was lost to sight entirely or was allowed to weigh nothing in the balance against the occasional chicken ravaged from the poultry yard.

Happily today things are different. The birds get their cherries from the trees on most farms without running the danger of being shot. The chickens are protected from the hawks by means of wire netting, and in case one happens to fall a victim to the appetite and the talons of a "red-tail" or a "broad-wing" the fact is not made the excuse for the shooting of every hawk that has the boldness to cast its shadow on the farm.

TRIUMPHANT AMERICAN OPTIMISM.

Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine: Optimistic philosophy is the dominant note in American life. It permeates all classes. The grumbler, the calamity howler, the predicter of evil, the man who thinks that the country is going to the dogs, and that American instituions are deteriorating is the exception, not the rule.

Who can ever estimate what we owe to that splendid wave of optimism, which has swept over this country since the panic?

Everywhere we hear strong business men talking of optimism, trying to reassure the people, cautioning them against the fatality of spreading the pessimistic note.

The optimism of the press has had a wonderful effect on the masses, especially the ignorant and the timid. In Chicago, especially, many of the business and social organizations have done a splendid work in allaying the fears of the people.

If the recent panic had occurred twenty-five years ago it would have been very much more serious. People were much more pessimistic than they are today. The leaven of optimism is working a marvelous change in our people. We are more hopeful, more confident.

There are not so many people today as there were formerly who believe that things are going to the dogs. We have more faith in ourselves, more faith in our country, more faith in that great creative principle which finally rights all wrongs, and which, in spite of all disaster and seeming wrong, finally brings harmony out of discord.

Our people have unbounded confidence in America's future, and this vigorous American optimism will ultimately make any very extended financial panic impossible. Our resources are too vast, our people too gritty, too resourceful, too inventive, too determined, too hopeful, to long be materially affected by any financial disturbance.

Nowhere in the world is there crowded together such untold resources, such vast unexplored wealth, as in this country; and nowhere else have the inventive, resourceful faculties of man been developed to such an extent as here in America. And better than all this is the fact that the hopefulness of the individual matches our national optimism, for here no youth is hampered or manacled in his race for success. His only limits are in himself.

We have as yet scarcely scratched the surface of our vast resources. Even during the recent panic we knew that the confidence of our people as to our future greatness and grandness was not shaken in the least. Everyone knew that it was only a temporary storm; that behind it the sun of American progress and enterprise was shining and would soon dissipate all the clouds.

Running all through the American people is a great underlying philosophy of optimism. Hope, not despair, carries the American banner.

The market on Butte & Ballaklava is looking very good. The people who want to get their money have not the least bit of trouble, for there are ten buyers for every seller. How can this stock keep at this level with the great showing at the mine? The opening up of the Bell Speculator should make this one of the greatest producers on Butte Hill and should at least carry the stock to $30 a share.

Butte & Ballaklava is a bonanza mine and if North Butte can pay in three months almost as much in dividends as the Ballaklava is selling for, why should not this be one of the greatest chances in a lifetime? I have seen this great property and know what they have when such men as Messrs. A. B. Wolvin, Archie Chisholm, John F. Killorin, George H. Crosby, Wm. T. Smith, Wm. White and many others who have seen the Butte & Ballaklava, say that there is no question about the great future of this property—then it is pretty near time to begin to understand it is a great mine. They have the rich ore in this property and you will see the day very soon that you will feel sore at yourself for not picking up this stock at a very low level. Butte & Superior is taken in big lots and stock is not easy to find at this level. You will see Butte & Superior sell up to $4.00 a share this winter.

THE REASONS WHY BUTTE & BALLAKLAVA IS A GOOD BUY AT THE PRESENT PRICE OR VERY MUCH HIGHER:

It is situated on the richest hill in the world, between two of the richest copper producers in the world—namely, the Boston & Montana and the North Butte. Some 3,600 feet of the richest veins worked on Butte Hill apex on Butte & Ballaklava ground and therefore belong to them whereever they dip. The veins that run lengthwise across the property are five in number—namely, the Sioux Chief, Mountain Chief, Edith May, Old Joe and Bell Speculator. Any one of these veins alone would make the Butte & Ballaklava a very rich mine and, when taken together, make a property whose dividend earning possibilities are not less than those of North Butte, which, until recently, was paying $800,000 every three months.

Only nine months after acquiring the Butte & Ballaklava the management has sunk one shaft to the 516-foot level and has driven a cross-cut both ways from the shaft and has to date cut the Old Joe 28 feet wide between walls highly mineralized and which at 200 feet greater depth is known to carry copper values averaging over 8 per cent. They have also cut the Edith May vein, showing up large bodies of very high grade ore running 8 to 40 per cent copper, 16 ounces silver, and gold values.

The management has done all this in nine months. Besides, it has paid for the property in full and has at the present time ample funds to put the property on a paying basis. Judging from their past record for quick and result-bringing work, you can rest assured that dividends will be forthcoming in as short a time as they were from North Butte after T. F. Cole and associates acquired that property.

MILLIONS IN FEES.

New Broadway Magazine: Several days after congress bought out the rights of the French Panama Canal company, a group of Washington correspondents entered the office of the late John Hay, secretary of state. They found him puzzled to the verge of bewilderment, and they sympathetically asked what was troubling him.

"William Nelson Cromwell has just been in here," Secretary Hay explained. "I mentioned having heard that he was to receive a fee of $2,000,000 for winning the Panama case.

"'I don't know what my fee will be,' Mr. Cromwell told me, 'and it does not matter much. I already have more money than I know what to do with.'

"Only one other man ever told me such a thing," mused the secretary of state, "and that was Andrew Carnegie. When you gentlemen of the press came in I was wondering what it would feel like to have more—money—than—one—knew—what—to—do—with! And a lawyer has it! What would Daniel Webster or Rufus Choate say to that?"

What would any of the shining lights among old school lawyers say to the wealth and power that has come to a score or more of present-day corporation lawyers in New York? says the New Broadway Magazine for January. How would a fee of half a million dollars for two weeks of work, such as the Steel interests paid James B. Dill, strike them? What would they think of the $800,000 which William D. Guthrie got for breaking the Plant will; or of the $200,000 paid Joseph H. Choate for a single argument that the income tax law was unconstitutional; or again, of John E. Parsons as the recipient of $100,000 for drawing a deed; or of incomes from $200,000 to $500,000 a year which are or have been paid without protest to other master counsellors?

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

COMPTROLLER RESIGNS.

Will Become Cashier of Union Commercial and Savings Bank.

Andrew J. Wentzel has resigned his position as city comptroller, and accepted the cashiership of the Union Commercial and Savings bank. His resignation takes effect Feb. 1.

The Union Commercial and Savings bank, on July 1, will be converted into a national bank.

Blueberry Has Bad Fire.

News reached the city yesterday that the two-story frame hotel building at Blueberry, on the Ashland line of the Northern Pacific road, was burned, entailing a loss of about $4,000. The building was owned by Rock DeSotelle. Several other small buildings standing close to the hotel are said to have been destroyed. The hotel was the principal building in the settlement, and was not insured. The fire occurred Sunday evening.

Smalley Must Staud Trial.

George Smalley, who was arrested on the charge of breaking into a South Shore freight car, has been bound over to the superior court for trial. In default of $300 bail he has been remanded to the custody of the sheriff. The night watchman is claimed to have found Smalley standing in front of a car on which the seal had been broken. Smalley claims he was merely walking through the railroad yards, and had stopped to rest near the car in question.

Teacher Wins Homestead.

Miss Frances J. Gates, a resident of Superior and a teacher in the local schools, has won her homestead, entry for which was contested by H. S. Barnes. The homestead is located near Solon Springs. Mr. Barnes contested on the ground that Miss Gates was a non-resident. It was shown that Miss Gates spent her vacation time on the homestead, making improvements, and the land office ruled in her favor. Barnes appealed to the land commissioner, but that official sustained the ruling of the land office at Wausau.

Carries Brass Knuckles.

The local police believe that in the person of Oscar Peterson, who was taken into custody yesterday pending an investigation concerning the theft of a coat at the Lake Superior mission, they have a "bad man." When Peterson was searched a pair of brass knuckles were found in his pocket. He claims to have come from Chicago, and has been hanging about the saloons for about a month past. A pawnbroker identified Peterson as the man who pawned a stolen overcoat, a few days ago.

OFFICERS ARE NEEDED.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The first class at the military academy will graduate Feb. 14, that date having been selected by the superintendent of the academy, in accordance with instructions received from Washington. The army is short of officers and the addition to the list resulting from an early graduation will help materially in filling some of the various assignments in regimental vacancies.

TO REGULATE TRAFFIC

In Liquor, Upper Michigan Towns Adopt Stringent Measures.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Whether Marquette's fifty saloons shall be cut to twenty-five will be decided at a special election to be held Jan. 20. The common council took steps to that end last night.

At Iron Mountain yesterday twelve saloonkeepers admitting violations of the liquor law were fined by Circuit Judge Stone. Then, at his suggestion, it was agreed that a committee of three hereafter would regulate the traffic. One member each was named by the judge, the brewers and the saloon men. The laws will be forced to the letter.

There is no such thing as luck in baking. Good management will provide Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts, so perfect results are assured.

RAILROADS

NEW TRAIN INSTALLED

Missabe Road Improves the Passenger Service to Coleraine.

Business on the Range Roads is Very Heavy.

While the falling off in railroad business seems to be general all over the country, the range roads appear to be exceptions when it comes to passenger traffic. About two weeks ago the Duluth & Iron Range put on additional trains between Duluth and range points and now the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, because of increased traffic, has been compelled to put another train on the Coleraine line. There are now two passenger trains a day in and out of Coleraine, where before there was only one a day each way. The new train went on yesterday.

The old schedule made it necessary for a person to leave Duluth at 7:40 a. m., arriving in Coleraine at 11:36 a. m. The leaving time is still the same out of Duluth, but the train now arrives at Coleraine at 11:35 a. m. The afternoon train leaves Duluth at 3:50 p. m., arriving at Coleraine at 7:35 p. m. This makes it much more convenient for persons traveling between the two points.

Returning, the morning train leaves Coleraine at 6:59 o'clock, and the afternoon train at 12:01 o'clock, arriving in Duluth at 10:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m., respectively. Passenger travel over the Coleraine branch is quite heavy this winter.

Judging from the number of inquiries being received at the local offices of the Missabe road, it is not generally known that the 1,000 and 2,000-mile bearer mileage tickets, issued by the Western railroads, are good over the range roads. They are as well adapted for use over the Missabe as they are for use over the Omaha, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, or any other road in this territory, a feature which is very agreeable to the traveling men, mining men, and others whose business calls them from outside points to stations on the ranges.

START PROCEEDINGS.

The Soo Road Wants to Issue $21,000,000 Capital Stock.

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Madison, Wis., says that the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie railroad, yesterday began mandamus proceedings in the Dane county circuit court to compel the Wisconsin railroad board to authorize the road to issue $21,000,000 capital stock.

The directors recently passed a resolution to increase the capital of the road from $21,000,060 to $42,000,000, but the company did not file the amendment to its charter with the secretary of state. The railroad commission refused to issue the certificates authorizing the increase until the amendment was filed, and a fee of $21,000 paid.

Circulars Out.

Circulars have been issued giving official notice that S. J. Bigelow, formerly representing the Michigan Central in Duluth, has been appointed commercial agent in this territory for the New York Central lines, and all the fast freight lines doing business over the New York Central tracks.

Quarterly Dividend.

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—The board of directors of the Great Northern railroad met yesterday and declared the regular 1¾ per cent quarterly dividend.

An Insidious Danger.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kdney Cure at the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. Sold by all druggists.

TWO MICHIGAN MEN MEET VIOLENT DEATHS.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Howard Reed, 19, of Ishpeming is dead from a bullet wound. He accidentally shot himself while hunting.

After lingering thirty hours with the top of his head blown off, William Johnson, aged 40, a farmer, died here this morning. While despondent he shot himself with suicidal intent yesterday.

GROSS FRAUDS ARE FOUND AT ST. JOSEPH.

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 7.—The county grand jury today reported that it had uncovered gross frauds and graft in the city's electric street lighting department, and returned indictments said to be against heads of departments and other city employes. It was found that dead men had been carried on the payroll for several years. The names of the indicted men were not made public.

Simple Remedy for La Grippe.

La grippe coughs are dangerous as they frequently develop into pneumonia. Foley's Honey and Tar not only stops the cough, but heals and strengthens the lungs so that no serious results need be feared. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar contains no harmful drugs and is in a yellow package. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

JUDGE IS TRANSFERRED.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Judge McKenzie Cleland, whose establishment of a wholesale parole system for offenders against police regulations has become widely celebrated, was last night transferred to the trial of civil cases. The transfer is attributed to opposition by other judges to Judge Cleland's policies.

REFUSES TO TAKE OATH

Algot Fernand Miller Would Not Swear to Anything.

Stanley Koros Said to Have Drawn Knife in Altercation.

Algot Fernand Miller's character doesn't fit his name, nor does his name fit his character. Algot might be a foreign nobleman, and the name would jibe nicely with the masquerade. But he isn't. According to the statements of the police, and the testimony in municipal court this morning, Algot is a very ordinary specimen of the distinctly American type of hobo, just as much so as any John Smith who ever lined up to the bar of justice to answer to a vagrancy charge.

Miller caused some amusement in court this morning. He wanted to make a statement, but he refused to take the oath. "I'll tell the truth before God, but I won't swear to anything," he said. The clerk thought that sufficient, and started to administer the oath. He no more than had a good start on the stereotyped, "Do you solemnly swear," than Algot's right hand went down from aloft. "I won't solemnly swear to anything," he repeated, so the court had to reach a verdict without his testimony.

Officer Milostan, who made the arrest, reported that Miller pretty well fitted a description of a chicken thief, for whom he had been ordered to keep on the look out. He noticed Miller, and watched him while Algot, with wonderful success, bummed three meals on the Bowery. The officer thought three meals in succession was too many for any man, so Miller was pulled in on the vag charge.

Miller was arraigned yesterday, and pleaded not guilty, the case being set over for this morning. He was found guilty and sent to the county jail for thirty days, in lieu of a fine of $25 and costs.

* * *

Stanley Koros didn't believe he was disorderly last night. The officers reported that Koros got into an altercation with another man in front of 531 West Superior street. It is said that he drew a knife and was preparing to use it when Officer Connor came along in response to a call. Koros started to make a getaway and broke around the end of a street car, but the officer overtook him. There was no knife in sight, but one, believed to have been held by Koros, was found lying on the street car tracks. He will be given a hearing this afternoon.

John Gustafson is an inmate of the county poor farm, but the simple life doesn't appeal to him. He broke away yesterday and came to Duluth. His blood quickened as he came in sight of the Bowery with its memories of the halcyon days of prosperity and good-fellowship. He met a few of the good fellows and his regeneration was complete. He was one of the boys again. It appears that he visited all the old familiar scenes. Likewise, it is said, he tasted the joy of the old familiar drinks. Then he found himself in the old familiar cell room at the police station and this morning it was the old familiar court room. John was booked up as second offense. He didn't think he was drunk. It was just the intoxication of joy and he pleaded not guilty. His case was set for this afternoon, but when the superintendent of the poor farm notified the authorities that John was a fugitive, the case was dismissed and he will be returned to his country home today.

* * *

William Hardy was in again. He is getting to be quite a familiar figure in the morning lineup, and Judge Windom thought the gap might well exist for a time, so handed out $20 and costs, or twenty days. Oscar Anderson, very drunk, drew $5 or five days.

All Atlantic Records Broken.

The Lusitania and Mauretania proved to be the fastest ships ever constructed when they broke all previous records by crossing the Atlantic in less than five days. This wonderful attainment is a practical triumph we can all appreciate. The most practical method for curing ailments of the stomach and bowels is to resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The many thousands of persons cured by it during the past fifty-four years are in a position to fully appreciate its merit, and a similar experience will be yours if you will start at once. It cures and prevents poor appetite, sour rislngs, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, biliousness, female ills, general debility, colds and malarial fever. We guarantee it pure. Try it today, also ask your druggist for a free copy of our 1908 Almanac before the supply is exhausted.

PIONEER RESIDENT DEAD.

Mrs. Henry Ohsteloh Passes Away at Family Home.

Mrs. Henry Ohsteloh, for many years a resident of Duluth, died this morning at the family home, 219 East Superior street. She had been ill for several months, but her condition was not serious until about three days ago. During that short time she failed rapidly to the end. She was 58 years of age and is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Joseph Bean.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning with services at the church of St. Anthony de Padua at 9 o'clock. Interment will be at Calvary cemetery.

TRAVELLED HANDS.

Gentlewoman: In the course of our lives, says the statistician, although we write many letters, we have not the remotest idea of the distance our hand covers while traveling over the paper.

According to him, the average man or woman writes about thirty words a minute, which, with the up and down strokes and curves, represent something like five yards, or 200 yards an hour. A person, therefore, using his pen for say two hours a day can boast that his right hand has journeyed a distance of 120 miles.

And this, it should be remembered, refers only to those who write, comparatively speaking, little. When we come to the professional element, journalists, clerks, etc., who work six or seven hours a day, the figures become startling.

EXPENSES ARE LARGE

Costs Money to Run County as Large as St. Louis.

Treasurer's Books Show Good Balance on the Credit Side.

It cost something over $2,000,000 to run St. Louis county during the year 1907.

The annual report of County Auditor O. Halden, which will be presented to the board of county commissioners this afternoon, or tomorrow, shows that the total expenditures of the county last year were $2,722,564.94, including $42,416.55 in tax redemption which, strictly speaking, do not represent an expenditure of county funds, the money merely passing through the county's hands.

The expenditures for 1907 are shown in the following fund:

County revenue fund	$213,450.53
County poor fund	30,192.50
County special road fund	96,280.83
County bond interest	2,804.98
County bond sinking fund	90,165.56
County road and bridge bond and interest sinking fund	15,567.92
Accrued interest on bonds	14,241.50
Courthouse sinking fund	15,848.17
Redemptions	42,416.55
Refunds	5,490.27
Hunters' licenses and inheritance tax	8,088.17
School districts	859,912.86
Cities, villages and towns	953,730.99
State	$74,395.59
Total	$2,722,564.94

County Treasurer W. A. Holgate's books show a balance of $572,681.23 on hand in the treasury Jan. 1, 1908. This sum is a little smaller than the balance usually carried on the first of the new year from the fact that the county paid up some old bonds last January.

The following statement by the treasurer shows the amount on hand Jan. 1, 1908, and the various funds accredited with the same:

State school lands	$10.81
State loans	36,129.44
Hunters' licenses	94.56
Mortgage tax collections	16,259.41
County revenue	25,998.06
Poor fund	23,701.13

County school fund	3863.21
Road and bridge fund—sinking	67,819.13
Railroad aid fund—sinking	30,212.36
Assured fund	1,250.00
Courthouse sinking fund	134,492.83
Accrued interest	164.92
Cities, villages and towns	94,931.37
School districts	93,733.99
Tax collections, less refunds	30,202.34
Surplus fund	2,461.75
Redemption	4,023.52
Cash on hand	$572,681.23

SUES FOR DAMAGES.

Two Harbors Baseball Case Being Heard in Municipal Court.

Judge Windom's court room was pretty well crowded this morning, when the civil action of A. J. McGee vs. J. A. McGaughey for $500 damages was called. The case is the outgrowth of a Sunday baseball case in Two Harbors. Mr. McGee, a member of the jury which acquitted the ball players, is suing Mr. McGaughey, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Two Harbors, for damages incurred through alleged slanderous statements made in the course of a sermon.

Charles Baldwin of Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer is conducting Mr. McGaughey's case, and M. H. McMahon appears for Mr. McGee. The morning session was taken up with the selection of a jury. There are several witnesses from Two Harbors and the case is creating considerable interest in the north shore town.

ELEPHANTS ATTACK MISSION.

Rhodesia Herald: The Rev. Mr. Grantham, in charge of the Wesleyan mission at Lomagundi, sends particulars of a raid made by a herd of elephants, which resulted in the loss of life.

He says: "I shall be glad if you will make known through the medium of your paper the followign incident, and my comments on it, in the hope that public sentiment may be aroused against a condition of things in which many suffer for the sake of a fad of a few, who share none of the misery that their hobby inflicts upon others. In May last the native gardens on this farm suffered serious damage from the incursion of a troop of elephants that visited us seven nights in succession. In this respect we are not the only sufferers, for I am constantly hearing of the same kind of thing throughout the neighborhood. We have no lawful means of protecting our crops, and applications for damages are ignored.

"On Friday morning two old natives and a picannin, who had been sleeping in a skerm erected in the lands, awoke to find that ten full grown elephants and three calves were within a few yards of where the ylay. The natives fled in terror, pursued by one of the bea'ts, which was apparently enraged at the sight of human beings in such close proximity to the calves. The picannin was just on the point of being tusked, but saved himself by rushing on hands and knees through the branches of a fallen tree. The elephant tossed these aside and continued in pursuit of the old men. One escaped, but the other was overtaken in about 100 yards, and the vicious beast transfixed him through the back, the protruding tusk ploughing deeply into the soil.

"The furious animal then proceeded to rip its victim to pieces, splitting one leg from buttock to calf, and an arm from shulder to wrist. He just lived long enough to urge his friend to fly back to the kraal, or no one would be left to tell the tale.

"We are told that in strict self-defence they may be fired upon. Are we, then, to wait until one of the brutes is in the act of charging upon us ere we pull a hasty trigger, which is more likely than not to be our last? And what is the use of firing at one angry elephant when several others are standing by ready to take up the cause of their companion if it does fall?

"It is popularly supposed that elephants will not attack a human being unless they are molested by him, but they will invariably do so if the herd contains any calves. A price is set upon the head of lions—beasts that rarely initiate an attack upon human beings, and whose depredations are generaly confined to cattle kraals and spans of donkeys. Why, then, should elephants, which in this district are a much greater scourge than lions, be protected, and the killing of one be a criminal offense?"
